An attempt to rob the Watervliet postoffice early Monday morning ended in failure. The robbers blew off the safe door with nitro-glycerine, but were frightened away before finishing the job.

Simon Stout, the 14-year-old son of Wm. Stout of Coral was drowned while bathing in Cowden lake Sunday. The body was recovered in half an hour. Mr. Stout lost his residence by fire recently.

Charles W. Button, for many years supervisor of Hopkins township, Allegan county, died at his home Sunday morning after a long illness. He had been active in politics and was widely known in that section and very popular.

Alexander Danohy, reported missing from Lapeer county last January, has been traced to Waters, 11 miles from Gaylord, where he worked for a short time. He disappeared from Waters. Relatives are searching for him. They suspect foul play.

Thompson Smith's Sons big lath mill at Duncan City, near Cheboygan, burned Sunday night; loss $12,000. No insurance. This is the third big mill fire on the same ground. The mill had five years' business ahead making lath from slabs in the old Duncan bay docks. The fire started in the engine room.

A wonderful happening.

Port Byron, N. Y., has witnessed one of the most remarkable cases of healing ever recorded. Amos King of that city says: "Bucklen's arnica salve cured a sore on my leg with which I had suffered over 80 years. I am now 85 years old." Guaranteed to cure all sores by C. A. Wright, & Son, druggists 25c.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's catarrh cure is the only positive cure known to medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's catarrh cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces, destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature. The proprietors have so much faith in it that they offer $100 for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

All nations are endeavoring to check the ravages of consumption, the "white plague" that claims so many victims each year. Foley's honey and tar cures coughs and colds perfectly and you are in danger of consumption. Do not risk your health by taking some unknown preparation when Foley's Honey and Tar is safe and certain in results. The genuine is in a yellow package. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Do you really enjoy what you eat? Does your food taste good? Do you feel hungry and want more? Or do you have a heavy, dull feeling after meals, sour stomach, belching gas on the stomach, bad breath, indigestion and dyspepsia? If so, you should take a little Kodol after each meal. Kodol will nourish and strengthen your digestive organs and furnish the natural digestive juices for your stomach. It will make you well. It will make your food do you good. Turn your food into good rich blood. Kodol digests what you eat. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Though we travel the world over to find the beautiful, we must carry it with us, or we find it not.

Was in poor health for years.

Ira W. Kelley of Mansfield, Pa., writes: "I was in poor health for two years, suffering from kidney and bladder trouble, and spent considerable money consulting physicians without obtaining any marked benefit, but was cured by Foley's kidney cure, and I desire to add my testimony that it may be the cause of restoring the health of others. Refuse substitutes. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Life should not be cheap, but sacred.

When there is the slightest indication of indigestion, heart burn, flatulence or any form of stomach trouble take a little Kodol occasionally and you will be afforded prompt relief. Kodol is a compound of vegetable acids and contains the juices found in a healthy stomach. Kodol digests what you eat, makes your food do you good. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Stimulation without irritation.

That is the watchword. That is what Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup does. Cleanses and stimulates the bowels without irritation in any form. For sale by all druggists Tecumseh.

Nearly all old fashioned cough syrups are constipating, especially those that contain opiates. They don't act just right. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup contains no opiates. It drives the cold out of the system by gently moving the bowels. Contains honey and tar and tastes nearly as good as maple syrup. Children like it. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Quick relief for asthma sufferers.

Foley's honey and tar affords immediate relief to asthma sufferers in the worst stages and if taken in time will effect a cure. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

The man who drinks beer is reasonably sure to have something to say of the unhealthful effect of ice cream.

A cleansing, clean, cooling, soothing, healing household remedy is DeWitt's carbolized witch hazel salve. For burns, cuts, scratches, bruises, insect bites and sore feet it is unequaled. Good for piles. Beware of imitations. Get DeWitt's. It is the best. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Noses of Great Men.

Prominent noses seem to have been the property of many great men. Lycurgus and Solon had noses six inches in length, and Ovid was surnamed Naso on account of his large nose. Scipio Nasica derived his name from his prominent olfactory organ, and Alexander the Great and Cardinals Wolsey and Richelieu all had large noses. On the medals of Cyrus and Artaxerxes their noses came clear out to the rim of the coin. Washington's was the true aquiline type, indicative of firmness and patience, as was the nose of Julius Caesar. Mohammed had a singular nose. It was so curved that a writer has told us that the point of it seemed continually striving to insert itself between his lips. The noses of Franklin, Shakespeare and Dr. Johnson all had wide nostrils, betokening strength and love of thought. The nose of Napoleon was exquisitely though firmly chiseled. He often said, "Give me a man with plenty of nose!" Frederick the Great had so large a nose that Lavater offered to wager that blindfolded he could tell it among 10,000 by merely taking it between his thumb and forefinger.

The Fly That Buzzed For Mendelssohn

The following story is told of the music of the overture to "A Midsummer Night's Dream:" While Mendelssohn was deep in the making of this same fine overture he went riding one day with a friend. In order, after awhile, to rest their horses the two boon companions dismounted and stretched themselves out under the shade of a great tree. Suddenly there came an excited "Hush!" from the great composer, who half arose very cautiously. A large fly was buzzing over them, and Mendelssohn was anxious to catch the true sound of the insect's hum as it gradually drifted farther away. Many days later when the overture had been completed the artist called his friend's attention to that passage in progression where the violoncello modulates in the chord of the seventh of the descending scale from B minor to F sharp minor. "There, that's the fly that buzzed past us at Schonhausen," said Mendelssohn.

Crushing a Critic.

School superintendents in New York among their many duties are expected to report on the personality of the teachers in their district. It is not always easy to get "a line" on that quality of a teacher, so many are lenient in the work. One of the superintendents, however, is never satisfied until he has made the test for orderliness by asking the teacher to open his or her desk. One day he found one of his fair subordinates with things in great confusion. She was evidently violating heaven's first law.

"My dear," said he to the blushing delinquent, "I don't believe you would make a good housekeeper."

The desk closed with a bang. There was fire in her eye as she calmly replied:

"Oh! Are you looking for a housekeeper?"—New York Press.

Falling Into Hole In Air.

One of the strange experiences of a balloonist is that of falling into "a hole in the air," which Mr. Rolker reports as follows: "So you continue sailing, enjoying the present with little thought of the startling surprises that may be before you. Ahead of you, unseen, may be what the balloonist calls a 'hole in the air,' resembling the vortex of a maelstrom, and down this you may literally fall at a rate which is terrifying until by sacrificing two or three bagfuls of sand at once your pilot checks your downward flight. But these 'holes' are scarce, and as a rule the atmosphere is of uniform carrying power."—American Magazine.

Great Blue Ribbon Meeting.

The great Blue Ribbon meeting at Detroit July 22-26 promises to surpass in greatness all other Great Blue Ribbon meetings. The list of entries which will be ready for publication within a few days shows more than 20 above the record breaking list of the last meeting, and the class of horses is the highest that ever met on a race track, including such celebrities as the great Highball 2:05¼ champion green trotter of the world Grant 2:02¼, Angus Pointer 2:02¼ and others that will meet in the free for all pace, the fastest harness class in the world. Special features of attraction have been arranged throughout the week in order to make every day a big day. Commencing Monday the Chamber of Commerce $3,000 pacing class, with 16 eligible horses is the greatest field which has ever started in this event since they had to step the record breaking gait that prevails in these six days.

Tuesday is the M. & M. day in which the great Highball will either establish his reputation forever or give way to a better horse. Wednesday is the day of the Free-for-All pace, the fastest class that has been given over the Grosse Pointe track in years. Thursday will occur the 2:08 trot a great trotting sweepstake. It is the first meeting on any track of Nut Boy 2:07¼ Grand Circuit champion of 1906 and Charley Belden 2:08¼ the Great Western champion of the same year. The winner of the 2:08 trot will be the champion of champions. Friday is the M. & M. Consolation, the 2:06 pace and 2:12 trot. The program has been arranged regardless of expense and promises to be the greatest race meeting in history.

"Pretty fair sort of a town this," remarked a representative of the Evening Telegraph to Jim Reynolds, the popular sport writer of the Jackson Patriot, as the two stood on Chicago street, Tecumseh, in that hustling little berg, recently. "Yes indeed," replied Mr. Reynolds. "It is a good town one of the best in Michigan for its size." "There seems to be something besides baseball here, despite the fact it is chiefly famous for containing more ardent fans and followers of national game per capita, than any place on the American continent?" "Well, I guess yes," was the rejoinder. "It is red hot on baseball, but has other things to boast of. It is the trading center of northwestern Lenawee county, has three railroads, several fine factories, pretty homes and well shaded streets and last, but not least it is brimming over with hospitality as you will observe in a short time. Don't fail to see the club here, it is as good as many a town twenty times the size of this place boasts of." That proved true for Tecumseh has a most beautiful and well appointed city club in a home of its own one would care to visit and the doors are wide open to strangers within their gates. About the only thing the thriving village was short on was hotels and that condition is now improved as the old Lilley House has been entirely overhauled and refurnished. Tecumseh is well located for a trading center, has a busy population of 2,800 and holds up its head with pride as being the "Biggest little baseball town in America."—Kalamazoo Telegraph.

The charming woman.

Is not necessarily one of perfect form and features. Many a plain woman who could never serve as an artist's model possesses those rare qualities that all the world admires, neatness, clear eyes, a smooth skin and that sprightliness of step that accompany good health. A physically weak woman is never attractive. Electric Bitters restore weak women, give strong nerves, bright eyes, velvety skin, beautiful complexion. Guaranteed at C. A. Advice of the largest coffee dealers in the world is always to buy the old-fashioned Arbuckles' ARIOSA Coffee in the sealed packages. Don't ask for a pound of Mocha and Java, or buy by the price, for Coffee fluctuates and you cannot get the same coffee for the same price all the time unless you pay too much for it. Most of the so-called Mocha and Java Coffee is simply masquerading, and is not nearly as good coffee for you as Arbuckles' ARIOSA, the blend of the Brazilian Coffees most suitable to the taste and health of American people. By the looks there is no difference between roasted Java and Brazilian Coffees; many people drink Brazilian but pay for Java. The principal difference is that Arbuckles' costs you less. It is a mistake to believe that a high price guarantees quality. When you buy Arbuckles' ARIOSA Coffee, you get a full one pound package of the leading Coffee of the world. Its sales for 37 years are greater than the combined sales of all the other packaged coffees. By giving better Coffee for the money, we have built up a business exceeding the combined businesses of the four next largest coffee firms in the whole world. If your dealer will not supply the genuine, write to ARBUCKLE BROS., New York City.

DON'T FORGET

Our Buggies are first class in every respect—all new. No old stock—and the best of all—a price that will sell them.

YOU

will soon need a Mower, Hay Loader or Rake. Please look over our line early and we fully believe you will say: "I will take one," as our quality and price can't be beat.

THE REASON

why our Cream Separators take the lead in this section is, it is the most handy, simple, most durable and close skimmer.

Look one over.

Coffee Value

If you are paying 25c a pound for coffee, you ought to be enioying good cup quality. The price you pay does not fix the quality you receive; different sellers give different qualities for the money.

LOWRY'S BLEND at 25c the pound, is a little bit better for the money. Years of experimenting has fixed our standard high and this coffee is now no experiment. Its increasing sale together with its ever repeating orders from old time users, is mighty convincing proof that it contains everything in the quality line that is claimed for it.

You are the judge. We ask your consideration of the evidence contained in a cup of this delicious coffee.

Don't "get along" with a coffee that doesn't suit your taste, because you think it is as good as you ought to expect for the money. Make your next order for LOWRY'S 25c BLEND.

Your money back if you are not satisfied.

BASE BALL or PING PONG?

This is the question the local base ball magnates are asking themselves and their friends. And it looks as though ping pong and pink teas would be the answer if the populace don't turn out more liberally to the exhibitions of fast ball which the Indians and their antagonists are putting up at Athletic park.

The aforesaid Indians have been unusually skillful in the use of the scalping knife this season and that too, in face of the fact that the opposing teams have invariably pitted their best pitchers against them. When the Indians come to town it is alway, "Heads up and go for 'em." The best spit ball artist is on the slab and it is "Beat the Indians or Bust." In spite of all this our boys have shown the stuff they are made of by having won more than two thirds of the games they have played.

But there must be money to buy shoes for the little Indians, and so the management want to earnestly urge every devotee of the game to COME and bring his friends and foes, even to the tenth generation. Seriously, however, there must be a much better attendance at the games or Tecumseh will have proven that she can't support a league team and instead of being "The Biggest Little Town on Earth" she will simply be relegated to the "Hasbeens." Come out and boost.

BASE BALL.

Steady as a clock with men on bases and fielding his position in fine style, Rubber Krapp pitched Flint to victory at Flint Friday afternoon in the third extra inning game of the week, the locals scoring the only run of the contest in the tenth on a double play by Cocash and Kipp's failure to handle a grounder from Taber's bat.

Tecumseh stood to score in several innings. Three were on and two down in the first when Somerlott skied, and in the fourth Merkle's safe hit and a gift put himself and Kipp on with two retired. Mitchell fanned Preston tripled in the fifth and when Slear was at bat attempted to score as a low pitched ball bounded off Walker's foot. Krapp fielded the ball and stabbed Preston a foot from the plate. Mitchell doubled in the tenth with no one out and took third on an error in an attempt to catch him napping. The next two men, Doty and Preston hit hard grounders to Krapp who retired them at first, gluing Mitchell at third. Slear's best bat was a high one to Krapp Merkle was benched in the ninth for disputing Miller. Slear's catch in the 10th off Tibald's bat was a feature.

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

Runs, Craven; three base hit, Preston; two base hits, Mitchell, Cocash; sacrifice hits, Mitchel, Cocash; stolen bases, Merkle, Somerlott, Kipp, Currie; first base on balls, off Krapp 2; struck out, by Doty, 6; by Krapp 6; left on bases, Tecumseh 8; Flint 3; double plays, Taber and Hamilton; time, 2 hours; umpires, Miller and Overmeyer; attendance 348.

Tecumseh made it two straight from Lansing by taking Sunday's game 2 to 1. The Senators led off in the scoring in the 2nd by a base on balls, a hit batter and a single. In the 6th the Indians scored twice, on an error and two hits. Lansing lost at least two chances to tie the score in the 9th but the chance went glimmering through poor base running. The feature of the game was the playing of Lansing's new short stop, Leifheit.

Score by innings:

Runs, Wagner, Hildinger, Kearney; sacrifices, Mitchell, Aiker; stolen bases, Somerlott, Doty, Kearney 2, Mauch; first on balls, off Railing 4, off Todd 1; hit by pitched ball, Hildinger, Mitchell, Mauch; first on errors, Tecumseh 2; left on bases, Tecumseh 7, Lansing 9; struck out, by Railing 4, by Todd 2; umpire, Fitzgibbon; attendance 1,200.

The ball club that has represented Jackson in the South Michigan League this season was formerly disbanded yesterday, following announcement by Manager Hayes, made on Sunday, that he had gone as far as he cared to. The team had done fairly well on the road, but lack of patronage at home had cut the receipts below a paying basis and had also caused some complaint from visiting clubs. Joe Jackson went to Jackson yesterday. He says that by Saturday they will have eight clubs playing again, either a new club in Jackson or a Saginaw club.

Long live the king!

Is the popular cry throughout European countries, while in America the cry is "long live Dr. King's New Discovery, king of throat and lung remedies!" of which Mrs. Julia Payne, Muro, Mass., writes "It never fails to give immediate relief or to quickly cure a cough or cold." Mrs. Payne's opinion is shared by many of the people of this country. New Discovery cures weak lungs and sore throat after all other remedies have failed and for coughs and colds it's the only sure cure. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son, druggists. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

Adrian Woodbury Post visit Tecumseh.

The Adrian Woodbury Post, 35 in number, paid Tecumseh a visit yesterday. They arrived here during the storm. At 5 o'clock a supper was served in the G. A. R. rooms, after which a camp fire was enjoyed. A program was rendered, consisting of songs and recitations and short talks were given by a number of the visitors, Henry Stevens, H. C. Daniels and others from Tecumseh.

If you cut your finger you don't attempt to heal it by swallowing a pill or a dose of medicine.

It's just as foolish to try and cure catarrh of the nose and throat with pills, for it is a local disease and needs special local healing treatment.

The only common sense method known for the cure of catarrhal trouble is Hy-o-mei. It is breathed through an ingenious pocket inhaler so that its medicated air reaches the most remote air cells of the throat, nose and lungs, killing all catarrhal germs, soothing the irritated mucous membranes and restoring to a healty condition.

If you have catarrh, with offensive breath, burning pains in the throat, difficulty in breathing, raising of mucous, discharge from the nose, dropping from the back of the throat, coughing spasms or frequent sneezing you should begin to use Hy-o-mei at once. It will destroy all disease germs in the respiratory organs and provide blood with additional ozone.

The complete Hy-o-mei outfit costs but $1.00. So strong is C. A. Wright's faith in the power of Hy-o-mei to cure catarrh that with every dollar outfit he gives a personal guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

Fred A. Spencer.

Fred A. Spencer died at his home in Tecumseh on West VanBuren street Sunday evening at 7 o'clock of cancer of the face. He formerly resided at Bridgewater, moving to Tecumseh about six months ago. The funeral was held today at 2 o'clock at the Friends church, Rev Wollam officiating. He leaves a wife and three children to mourn his loss.

What Shall we Eat?

Every day the same old question—"what shall we eat for breakfast, dinner or luncheon" assails with monotonous regularity the patient housewife who seeks to provide good living for the family in agreeable variety at a moderate cost. The Chicago Record-Herald has gone far towards solving the problem by devoting space to four departments on this important topic in all its issues. "Meals for a Day" which appears daily gives the daily menu and the necessary recipes. Housewives everywhere are invited to participate in the contest and weekly prizes are offered for the best menus. Marion Harland's Sunday page gives a list of fine selected recipes which if clipped and pasted in a book make a valuable collection. "Martha's Management" each Monday is filled with advice and helpful hints to the housewife.

A lady of our city has discovered a sure cure for broken dishes. If the dish to be mended can be tied together with a stout string then placed in boiling milk and left one hour you can never tell the dish has been broken and it can afterwards be put in boiling water without the pieces coming apart. The experiment has been tried and proven and many are the broken dishes which were thought to be useless which are now as good as new.—Quincy News.

"BLUE DEVILS"

Get rid of indigestion and things will look bright and joyous.

Even in the present era of prosperity and good times everything appears black to those people who are suffering wretchedly from some form of indigestion. Where digestion is quick, complete and easy there is a joyous and hopeful outlook, but indigestion causes depression.

The want of a safe, effective cure for sick headache, indigestion and stomach troubles, was always felt until the prescription known as Mi-o-na stomach tablets was put up in popular form and proved its invariable success in the many forms of indigestion.

After a few days use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets the headache, dizzy feeling, drowsiness, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, nervousness, sleeplessness, distress after eating—all these symptoms of a weak stomach—will disappear and perfect digestion and a good skin will show that the vital machinery is once more running smoothly.

Mi-o-na is to be taken before each meal and it will stimulate the secretive and digestive juices and strengthen the whole of the digestive system so that the unpleasant full feeling will be absent and indigestion prevented.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets are sold only in a neat metal box convenient for the vest pocket and cost 50 cents. C. A. Wright has seen so many cures made by Mi-o-na stomach tablets that he gives a guarantee with every box that the money will be refunded if the remedy fails to give satisfaction.

CURED TO STAY CURED.

If you suffer from backache
From urinary disorders
From any disease of the kidneys,
Be cured to stay cured.
Doan's Kidney Pills will do it.
Tecumseh people testify.
Read a case of it.

Orson Austin, retired, living on Logan street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I hold the same high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills today as when I gave a statement for publication some six years ago. Prior to that time I had been troubled with kidney disease. The pains I had in my back and shoulders were at times almost unbearable. Rheumatism settled in my limbs which added much to my misery. I did not sleep at night on account of the frequent action of the kidneys, the passages being attended by a smarting and burning sensation which was very painful. I think my trouble was brought on by an injury I received in the army which had slowly grown worse. I knew Doan's Kidney Pills were good so I began using them, noticing good effects in a short time and thus encouraged I continued until cured. My advice to all kidney sufferers is to give the Pills a trial and I know they will not be disappointed with the results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other.

G. B. Burhans of Carlisle Center, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I wrote you stating that I had been entirely cured of a severe kidney trouble by taking less than two bottles of Foley's kidney cure. It entirely stopped the brick dust sediment, and pain and symptoms of kidney disease disappeared. I am glad to say that I have never had a return of any of those symptoms during the four years that have elapsed and I am evidently cured to stay cured, and heartily recommend Foley's Kidney cure to any one suffering from kidney or bladder trouble." NEWS IN BRIEF.

A perceptible earth shock was felt in Paris, Texas, Sunday. Dishes were rattled and buildings were shaken.

Dr. Joseph G. Grancher, member of the academy of medicine and professor of children's diseases in the University of Paris, died in that city Monday, of pneumonia.

The club house and part of the grand stand at the American league baseball park, 7th street and Florida avenue, N. W., in Washington, Monday nightw as destroyed by fire, and a number of small buildings in the vicinity were also damaged.

The reduction of letter postage in France last year from three to two cents has not resulted in the augmentation of mailed letters expected, but has created an enormous deficit which ha seriously raised the question as to the advisability of continuing the system.

Twelve buildings were destroyed by a fire which swept through the business section of the town of Hartland, on the St. John river in northern New Brunswick, Monday, causing a total loss estimated at $250,000. The fire, which burned over four acre, is believed to have been of incendiary origin.

President Roosevelt has put his approval on public school rifle practice in a letter of congratulation to Ambrose Scharfenberg of Brooklyn winner of the shooting trophy of the Public School Athletic league, he takes occasion to encourage the system of rifle practice inaugurated by General George B. Wyngate, retired.

At a luncheon tendered him Monday by Des Moines, Ia., business men, President Winchell, of the Rock Island railroad, said that the Rock Island road is out of politics and will do away with its lobbies nd lobbyists, both in the state legislatures and the national congress.

Bagging the Grapes.

Immediately after the grapes have blossomed cover the bunches with two or three pound manila grocers' bags, according to the size of the variety. This is pre-eminently a fruit garden method, although commercial growers often use it. It is the surest and often the most practical way of securing perfect bunches. Tie or pin the mouth of the bag firmly; leave no opening to catch water. Cut a small piece off the lower corner of the bag, so that no water will stay in it. Leave the bag on until the fruit is ready to pick.—Garden Magazine.

Why Dreyfus Resigned.

Paris, July 16.—The Patrie today says the real reason for the recent resignation from the army of Major Alfred Dreyfus, the former captain of artillery, who was sentenced on a charge of treason to imprisonment on Devil's Island, was because General Picquart, the minister of war, refused to give him the rank of lieutenant-colonel. According to this newspaper, Dreyfus thought that in addition to receiving back pay for the years he spent on Devil's Island, and the decoration of an officer of the Legion of Honor, he should be promoted to the rank he would have held had he continued to serve in the army. General Picquart thought it would be impolitic to reopen the entire affair by making this promotion, and therefore Dreyfus resigned. Dreyfus has not as yet issued any statement.

President Releases Him.

Leavenworth, Kan., July 16.—William January, known at Charles W. Anderson, and often compared to Jean Valjean, an inmate of the United States penitentiary for whose pardon 40,000 Missourians petitioned, will leave prison Friday, after having been a prisoner since April 20, on which day he was returned here from Kansas City. January was sentenced for breaking into a postoffice. President Roosevelt recommended that his sentence be commuted.

Eleven Hurt In Wreck.

Washington, July 16.—As the result of the derailment of three cars of a northbound passenger train on the Southern railway at Jamestown, N. C., near Greensboro, Monday, eleven persons, mostly employes of the railroad, were injured. According to an official statement issued by the railroad here last night the derailment was due to "tracks buckling under the dining car."

Croker Declines Parliament.

Dublin, July 16.—Richard Croker has declined the nationalist nomination for member of parliament for East Wicklow, to replace D. J. Cogan, nationalist, resigned. It is believed that Arthur Chamberlain, brother of Joseph Chamberlain, will permit his name to be placed before the convention, which will be held July 16, being prepared to take the pledge exacted from each nationalist to go to parliament.

Not Fatal.

No Matter What Doctors Say—We Know That Heart Trouble in Many Cases Can Be Cured.

There are seven main features of heart disease, viz.: (1) Weakness or Debility; (2) Rheumatism or Neuralgia; (3) Valvular Disorder; (4) Dilation; (5) Enlargement; (6) Fatty Degeneration; (7) Dropsy.

Documentary evidence will prove thousands of so-called "incurables" have been absolutely cured by Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure.

Patients often have no idea their disease is heart trouble, but ascribe it to Indigestion, Liver Complaint, etc.

Here are some of the symptoms: Shortness of breath after exercise. Smothering Spells. Pain in Chest, left Shoulder and arm. Discomfort in Lying on one side. Fainting Spells. Nervous Cough. Swelling of Feet and Ankles. Paleness of Face and Lips. Palpitation. Nightmare. Irregular Pulse.

"I have great faith in Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and speak of its merits whenever opportunity presents. I can now go up and down stairs with ease, where three weeks ago I could hardly walk one block." One year later—"I am still in good health; the Heart Cure did so much for me, that I find it a far greater medicine than you claimed it to be."—S. D. YOUNG, D. D., 497 North Pine St., Natchez, Miss.

UN-STAND AGAIN.

Orchard is Recalled in the Haywood Case.

Boise, Ida., July 16.—Another warrant charging perjury against a witness who has testified for the defense in the trial of Wm. D. Haywood, for the murder of Frank Steunenberg, was issued last evening. C. W. Aller, formerly a telegraph operator and ticket agent for the Florence and Cripple Creek railroad at Cripple Creek, is charged with the offense by the prosecuting attorney of Ada county.

Eleven witnesses in rebuttal were examined Monday. Harry Orchard reappeared on the stand and was asked a few questions as to his acquaintance with some of the witnesses for the defense who have testified as to his movements. On being turned over to the cross-examination, Orchard admitted that his uncle, Peter McKinney, committed suicide by hanging thirteen or fourteen years ago. Counsel for the defense asked Orchard if this uncle was not insane before he killed himself, and tried to show by the witness that his material grandfather was insane, his monomania being imaginary crimes committed a long time ago in Ireland. Orchard denied all knowledge of the grandfather, but admitted that his uncle was demented for a year or so, although not over imaginary crimes.

The afternoon session was taken up with the examination of witnesses who contradicted the evidence given by C. W. Aller, who testified for the defense in support of the charge of a conspiracy against the Western Federation of Miners, in which it is alleged the Mineowners' association, the Citizens' alliance and the Pinkerton Detective agency were concerned. Aller swore that he saw Orchard and D. C. Scott together at the station of the Florence and Cripple Creek railway on a Sunday about three weeks prior to the explosion at the Independence station on June 6, 1904. Scott in the afternoon swore that he was not in Cripple Creek at that time, and a number of witnesses corroborated this. As a result of this rebuttal testimony, information was sworn out after court had adjourned, charging Aller with perjury.

No Change of Venue for Hargis.

Lexington, Ky., July 16.—Special Judge Moody at Sandy Hook refused to grant a change of venue in the case of Judge James Hargis who is charged with the murder of Dr. B. D. Cox, and ordered the trial to proceed. The motion was made by the prosecuting attorney, who alleged that witnesses could not be brought to Sandy Hook because of the inaccessibility of the place. A number of witnesses arrived Monday, having walked twenty-five miles from West Liberty.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

...OOD DAMAGE GREAT

Cloudbursts and Rains Swell Eastern Streams.

SEVERAL LIVES WERE LOST.

Pittsburg, July 19.—Conservative reports to the Associated Press from interior points of West Verginia indicate that floods caused by storms and cloudbursts during the past forty-eight hours are receding and that the damage will reach at least half a million dollars.

Four deaths have thus far been reported. At Macomber, in Preston county, the greatest damage was sustained. The loss to the county in bridges carried away will reach $100,000. At this place while Mrs. Bolyard and her two children were standing on a porch watching the waters which had already reached the floor, the porch was swept away. A moment later Bolyard stepped to the door only to see his entire family swept away. Claudius Wolf lost his life while attempting to ride across a bridge. When in the middle of the structure the bridge was washed away.

The damage to the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will reach $200,000 principally in tracks washed away.

The most damage to private property was at Newburg, where several buildings were washed away and nearly every house was flooded. A church at Evansville was overturned and washed away.

Near Elkins, another ... curred and the streets of the town were flooded. Much damage was done to the Western Maryland railroad tracks.

At Monessen, Pa., the water reached the unprecedented stage of 27 feet 3 inches and washed away a new steel railroad bridge that was in course of construction that will delay its completion many months.

At Washington, Pa., a storm Thursday afternoon did several hundreds of thousands of dollars damage. The Hazel-Atlas Glass Co.'s plants were put out of business by floods from overflowing stream causing a loss of a hundred thousand dollars to this firm alone. Street car traffic was crippled, houses were washed away and the Chartiers valley for many miles is strewn with debris.

Bridges and buildings continue to float down the river and the situation on the Baltimore & Ohio and Western Maryland railroads is chaotic. Train schedules have been annulled and the damage to highways will reach several hundred thousand dollars.

POISONED FIVE PERSONS.

Chicago, July 19.—Herman Billik last night was found guilty of killing with poison, Adolph Vrzal and five of his children. The jury fixed the penalty at death.

Vrzal and his children all died within a few weeks of each other under suspicious circumstances. Billik had been a friend of the family for years, and, in his capacity of fortune teller, had administered medicine to the children. An investigation showed that Vrzal and his children all suffered of the same complaint before death. Billik was arrested on suspicion of having been responsible for the deaths. The day after his arrest Mrs. Vrzal committed suicide by taking poison.

During the trial, testimony was submitted by the state charging Billik with having disposed of Vrzal and his children in order to collect the life insurance they carried.

Mrs. Vrzal was shown to have been under the influence of Billik, whom she loved, and evidence showed that she had guilty knowledge of the murdering of her husband and children by Billik.

Negro Is Electrocuted.

Columbus, O., July 19.—Henry White a negro, convicted of the murder of Marshal Basore of Franklin, O., in October, 1906, was electrocuted at the Ohio penitentiary a few minutes after midnight this morning. White was indifferent as to his fate.

Asa Curtis, 79, prominent lumberman; Mrs. Harriet Brown, 77, mother of ex-Senator William E. Brown, and Miss Kate Pike, 77, all pioneers of Lapeer, died Thursday.

...ATE IN DETROIT.

Maccabees of World Plan to Change Their Headquarters.

PORT HURON IS INADEQUATE.

Unable to Supply Banking and Convention Facilities—Membership of Organization Is Over 300,000 — Its Resources Amount to $7,000,000.

Detroit, Mich., July 19.—A resolution has been prepared and will be presented at today's meeting of the Knights of the Maccabees of the World at the Cadillac by G. W. Miller of Chicago, a member of the committee on laws, to the effect that the headquarters of the Maccabees be brought from Port Huron to Detroit. It is said that its adoption is practically certain.

This move is of inestimable interest to the commercial interests of Detroit. It means that hundreds of thousands of dollars will be expended in acquiring suitable property and in the erection of a headquarters representative of the 300,000 members of the organization. It means that the surplus of enormous reserve funds aggregating over $6,000,000, will be placed in Detroit banks. It means that the organization's contemplated home will be built in Detroit's suburbs.

It is claimed by the executive officers that the giant order has outgrown its present headquarters; that the city of Port Huron can not supply accommodations for the convention which must be held from year to year, and that the banking facilities of Port Huron are not sufficient to properly care for the order's growing needs.

Move a Necessity.

This question has received the close attention of the executive officers for several years, but owing to the practical reorganization of the order during the past three years it has not been presented to the membership heretofore. Now the growing needs of the organization make such a movement an immediate and a practical necessity.

The present wealth and resource of the society is shown by its statement at the end of the fiscal year of June 30, 1907. At that time the resource of the order were $7,144,710.10, with liabilities of $370,935.49.

The membership up to this time has passed the 300,000 mark, with 100,000 of the members residing in Michigan.

The moving of the national headquarters from Port Huron to Detroit, the selecton of temporary offices, and further arrangements will be in the hands of the board of trustees who were elected as follows: James J. Downer of Chicago, J. B. Dannell of Buffalo, W. E. Blaney of Pittsburg, R. B. Anderson of St. Louis, L. E. Sissler of Port Huron.

Last evening E. L. Young of Ohio, entertained the delegates from his state and the ladies of the party at a dinner at the Cadillac, and afterwards about 150 of the knights and their ladies attended the performance at the Temple theater.

Unknown Leaps Overboard.

Detroit, Mich., July 19.—An unknown man, apparently middle-aged, jumped overboard from the steamer City of St. Ignace, coming over from Cleveland during the night, and was drowned. The steamer was just off the southeast shoal light in Lake Erie, about 1:15 o'clock, when Special Officer Hulsch noticed a passenger who had been sitting on a deck chair holding his head in his hands for some time, make a sudden move for the rail and jump overboard. Hulsch gave the alarm, the steamer was stopped and a boat lowered in an effort to effect a rescue, but the man had completely disappeared. He left behind a hand satchel containing a bottle of whisky, a bottle of ginger ale and a lemon.

Given Chain Gang Sentences.

Asheville, N. C., July 19.—James H. Wood, district passenger agent, and Ticket Agent O. C. Wilson, of the Southern railway, who were arrested late Wednesday after the departure of Judge Pritchard for Raleigh, were found guilty in the police court of selling possenger tickets in disregard of the new rate law and each sentenced to 30 days on the chain gang. Mr. Wood is a member of the board of aldermen of this city. Little doubt is felt that some way will be found to save Wood and Wilson from serving this sentence.

A memorable day.

...ECOME BY HEAT.

Thousands Succumb During the Elks' Parade in Philadelphia.

ONLY ONE CASE WAS FATAL.

Terrible Temperature Wrought Havoc Among Spectators, Who Crowded Walks — Passing Procession Contained 20,000 Men.

Philadelphia, July 19.—The parade of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, Thursday was, was marked during its progress by the prostration from heat of an army of persons, estimated by the police and hospital authorities at 2,500.

Never has there been such a wholesale prostrating of people in this city. For six hours the police, ambulance surgeons and the Red Cross nurses were kept on the run looking after persons who collapsed under the scorching rays of the sun, and largely because of their excellent service, but one case resulted fatally. James Rowley, aged 44 years, of this city died in a hospital after being stricken the street. The other stricken persons are said to be in good condition with no prospect of fatal results.

The parade ground was on Broad street for a distance of three miles north and the same distance south of the city hall. The paraders countermarched the last three miles back to the city hall, so that they traversed upwards of nine miles, yet few of those overcome by the heat were in the line of march.

Those who succumbed were among the spectators jammed along the street in a solid mass from one end of the line to the other. The temperature hovered around 90 degrees and the humidity was excessive, and, as a consequence, people sweltered. Among the few paraders who were overcome were J. Harrington Walker of St. Paul, and Henry J. Waters, exalted ruler of the Philadelphia lodge of Elks. The other victims were chiefly from this city and the surrounding territory. The police secured records of more than 1,000 heat cases which were handled by them or taken to the hospitals, but hundreds were cared for in the dispensaries where no record of the cases was made, while the police surgeons and nurses cared for innumerable others.

Every attention was given to the spectators to see that they were protected, but it required four hours for the marchers to pass a given point and the eager people stood in the hot sun for two hours or more before the parade started. The total number in the line of march is conservatively estimated at 20,000 men, with about 125 floats.

The grand lodge installed its newly elected officers last night, at which time it was announced that at a previous session the state associations of Elks had been given official recognition. This decision on the part of the grand lodge settles a fight that has been waged for two years. The state association is restricted in its work and may not take up legislative matters or interfere with legislative affairs in the subordinate lodges. Its principal work will be along charitable and fraternal lines.

Want Army Canteen Restored.

Washington, July 19.—The convention of the Army and Navy union Thursday voted in favor of the restoration of the army canteen and for an increase of 10 per cent in the pay of petty officers and enlisted men of the army and navy after four years' service. Resolutions of condolence and sympathy to the relatives and friends of "the late comrades of the battleship Georgia," who lost their lives as the result of the recent explosion on that vessel were adopted. The national commander, by unanimous vote, was authorized to establish garrisons of the union on battleships and other vessels. The National Endowment, an auxiliary sick insurance death benefit, was revived by order of the convention but the joining of the endowment is optional.

Defense Rests Its Case.

Boise, Ida., July 19.—Argument on the advisability of points of evidence Tuesday followed announcement from the defense that it had no further witnesses to offer in behalf of Wm. D. Haywood, charged with murdering Frank Steunenberg. The jury was not brought into court, Judge Wood having been informed by counsel of their decision to rest without offer of surrebuttal. Clarence Darrow spoke for an hour and a half of the morning session. Senator Borah replied in the afternoon, and was followed by E. F. Richardson. Judge Wood will probably announce his decision today.

HANDS OUT JOBS.

Governor Warner Makes Several Important Appointments.

Lansing, Mich., July 19.—Governor Warner Thursday appointed a commission of nine authorized by act of the late session of the legislature to make a comprehensive inquiry into the whole subject of reforestation with a view of working out a better system than is now followed and to report at the next session of the legislature. The nine men appointed are: Carl E. Schmidt, Detroit; Robert D. Graham, Grand Rapids; C. V. R. Townsend, Negaunee; George B. Horton, Fruitridge; William E. Oamun, Montague; A. E. Palmer, Kalkaska; Albert B. Cook, Owosso; Francis King, Alma, and Dwight B. Waldo, Kalamazoo.

The governor yesterday also named Wm. B. Mershon of Saginaw, to succeed Arthur B. Hill, as a member of the state forestry commission.

He also appointed on the reorganized board of dental examiners Dr. G. H. Oakman, Detroit, for a five-year term; A. W. Haidle, Negaunee, for four years, and Adolson B. Robbinson, Grand Rapids, for three years. The other two members of the board previously appointed are Albert E. LeGro of Detroit, and Edgar A. Honey of Kalamazoo.

LEAGUERS AT LUDINGTON.

Thirteenth Annual Assembly Begins With Attendance of 2,000.

Ludington, Mich., July 19.—The thirteenth annual Epworth league assembly program opened Thursday with 2,000 people assembled in the auditorium to witness the rendition of the oratorio of "The Messiah" by the Handel society of Ludington. The event proved a tremendous success, being greeted by great enthusiasm.

The program will continue for six weeks and include three Shakespearean performances by the Ben Greet company who appear under calcium light in the woods. Over 200 cottages in Epworth Heights are now occupied and Epworth hotel is filled.

Saturday night is illumination night, when every cottage on the grounds will be decorated with Japanese lanterns and a grand pageant of water floats will be displayed.

Boy Drowns While Bathing.

Carsonville, Mich., July 19.—John Davis, aged 18, son of Martin Davis of Applegate, was drowned while bathing off Port Sanilac in Lake Huron Thursday afternoon. He was swimming with a companion, Don Leslie, in nine feet of water, when he was seized with cramps. Leslie made desperate efforts to save his friend and came near drowning himself, going down twice before he was forced to give up and accept the aid of rescuers.

Prisoner Attempts Suicide.

Saginaw, Mich., July 19.—Robert L. Parker, who was locked up at Central police station Wednesday charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, Wednesday made two attempts to commit suicide while in his cell, but was probably unsuccessful in both. He was discovered yesterday afternoon stabbing himself in the throat with a lead pencil. The pencil was taken away from him and his wounds dressed. Last night he tore a tin pail containing drinking water to pieces and sawed his throat with the ragged edge of the tin.

Train Kills Aged Woman.

Galesburg, Mich., July 19.—Mrs. P. H. Whitford was struck by a westbound Michigan Central train at 5:15 Thursday evening and instantly killed. She was about 80 years of age. Her husband, aged 96, survives. A daughter lives in Chicago.

HE WILL ABDICATE.

Tokio, July 19.—A dispatch from Seoul says that the emperor convened the elder statesmen at 1 o'clock this morning. The cabinet ministers waited in an adjoining room while the emperor conferred with the elder statesmen.

After a two-hours' conference, his majesty finally yielded and made up his mind to abdicate.

It was decided to hold abdication ceremonies at an early today. Much unrest prevails about the palace and at another place a crowd of 2,000 is assembled. A portion of this crowd assaulted the office of the Daily Kokumin, but the mob was dispersed before heavy damage was inflicted.

A wonderful happening.

Port Byron, N. Y., has witnessed one of the most remarkable cases of healing ever recorded. Amos King of that city says: "Bucklen's arnica salve cured a sore on my leg with which I had suffered over 80 years. I am now 85 years old." Guaranteed to cure all sores by C. A. Martin Hewitt, Investigator.

The Case of Mr. Foggatt.

By ARTHUR MORRISON.

Published by Arrangement With Harper & Brothers.

THE old house wherein my chambers and Hewitt's office were situated contained, besides my own, two or three more bachelors' dens, in addition to the offices on the ground and first and second floors. At the very top of all, at the back, a fat, middle aged man named Foggatt occupied a set of four rooms.

Mr. Foggatt appeared to have few friends, but lived in something as nearly approaching luxury as an old bachelor in chambers can live. The man himself was not altogether prepossessing. Fat as he was, he had a way of carrying his head forward on his extended neck and gazing widely about with a pair of the roundest and most prominent eyes I remember to have ever seen, except in a fish. On the whole, his appearance was rather vulgar, rather arrogant and rather suspicious, without any very pronounced quality of any sort. But certainly he was not pretty. In the end, however, he was found shot dead in his sitting room.

It was in this way: Hewitt and I had dined together at my club and late in the evening had returned to my rooms to smoke and discuss whatever came uppermost. We sat talking while time went unperceived, when suddenly we were startled by a loud report. Clearly it was in the building. We listened for a moment, but heard nothing else, and then Hewitt expressed his opinion that the report was that of a gunshot. Gunshots in residential chambers are not common things, wherefore I got up and went to the landing, looking up the stairs and down.

At the top of the next flight I saw Mrs. Clayton, the housekeeper. She appeared to be frightened and told me that the report came from Mr. Foggatt's room. She thought he might have had an accident with the pistol that usually lay on his mantelpiece. We went upstairs with her, and she knocked at Mr. Foggatt's door.

There was no reply. Through the ventilating fanlight over the door it could be seen that there were lights within, a sign, Mrs. Clayton maintained, that Mr. Foggatt was not out. We knocked again, much more loudly, and called, but still ineffectually. The door was locked, and an application of the housekeeper's key proved that the tenant's key had been left in the lock inside. Mrs. Clayton's conviction that "something had happened" became distressing, and in the end Hewitt pried open the door with a small poker.

Something had happened. In the sitting room Mr. Foggatt sat with his head bowed over the table, quiet and still. The head was ill to look at, and by it lay a large revolver, of the full sized army pattern. Mrs. Clayton ran back toward the landing with faint screams.

"Run, Brett!" said Hewitt. "A doctor and a policeman!"

I bounced down the stairs half a flight at a time, but it took me a good

five minutes to find a medico, after being led astray by a red lamp at a private hotel, and another five to get back with a policeman.

Foggatt was dead, without a doubt. Probably had shot himself, the doctor thought, from the powder blackening and other circumstances. Certainly nobody could have left the room by the door, or he must have passed my landing, while the fact of the door being found locked from the inside made the thing impossible. There were two windows to the room, both of which were shut, one being fastened by the catch, while the catch of the other was broken—an old fracture. Below these windows was a sheer drop of fifty feet or more, without a foot or hand hold near. The windows in the other rooms were shut and fastened. Certainly it seemed suicide—unless it were one of those accidents that will occur to people who fiddle ignorantly with firearms. Soon the rooms were in possession of the police, and we were turned out.

We looked in at the housekeeper's kitchen, where her daughter was reviving and calming Mrs. Clayton with gin and water. Hewitt took a small bottle of sewing machine oil from his pocket and handed it to the daughter, thanking her for the loan.

There was little evidence at the inquest. The shot had been heard, the body had been found—that was the practical sum of the matter. No friends or relatives of the dead man came forward. The doctor gave his opinion as to the probability of suicide or an accident, and the police evidence tended in the same direction. Nothing had been found to indicate that any other person had been near the dead man's rooms on the night of the fatality. On the other hand, his papers, bank book, etc., proved him to be a man of considerable substance, with no apparent motive for suicide. The jury found that Mr. Foggatt had died by accident.

"Well, Brett," Hewitt asked me afterward, "what do you think of the verdict?"

I said that it seemed to be the most reasonable one possible and to square with the common sense view of the case.

"Yes," he replied, "perhaps it does. Nevertheless Mr. Foggatt did not shoot himself. He was shot by a rather tall, active young man, perhaps a sailor, but certainly a gymnast—a young man whom I think I could identify if I saw him."

"But how do you know this?"

"By the simplest possible inferences, which you may easily guess if you will but think."

"But, then, why didn't you say this at the inquest?"

"My dear fellow, they don't want my inferences and conjectures at an inquest. They only want evidence. If I had traced the murderer, of course then I should have communicated with the police."

"But, if you are right, how did the man get away?"

"Come, we are near home now. Let us take a look at the back of the house. He couldn't have left by Foggatt's landing door, as we know; and as he was there (I am certain of that), and as the chimney is out of the question—for there was a good fire in the grate—he must have gone out by the window. Only one window is possible—that with the broken catch—for all the others were fastened inside. Out of that window, then, he went."

"But how? The window is fifty feet up."

"Of course it is. But why will you persist in assuming that the only way of escape by a window is downward? See, now, look up there. The window is at the top floor, and it has a very broad sill. Over the window is nothing but the flat face of the gable end, but to the right and a foot or two above the level of the top of the window an iron gutter ends. Observe it is not of lead composition, but a strong iron gutter, supported just at its end by an iron bracket. If a tall man stood on the end of the window sill steadying himself by the left hand and leaning to the right, he could just touch the end of this gutter with his right hand. The full stretch, toe to finger, is seven feet three inches. I have measured it. An active gymnast or a sailor could catch the gutter with a slight spring and by it draw himself up on the roof. You will say he would have to be very active, dexterous and cool. So he would. And that very fact helps us, because it narrows the field of inquiry. We know the sort of man to look for. Because, being certain (as I am) that the man was in the room, I know that he left in the way I am telling you. He must have left in some way, and, all the other ways being impossible, this alone remains, difficult as the feat may seem. The fact of his shutting the window behind him further proves his coolness and address at so great a height from the ground."

All this was very plain, but the main point was still dark.

"You say you know that another man was in the room," I said. "How do you know that?"

"As I said, by an obvious inference. Come, now, you shall guess how I arrived at that inference. You saw everything in the room as plainly as I myself. Did you see a newspaper, for instance?"

"Yes; there was an evening paper on the floor, but I didn't examine it."

"Anything else?"

"On the table there was a whisky decanter, taken from the tantalus stand on the sideboard, and one glass. That, by the bye," I added, "looked as though only one person were present."

"So it did perhaps, although the inference wouldn't be very strong. Go on."

"There was a fruit stand on the sideboard, with a plate beside it, containing a few nutshells, a piece of apple, a pair of nut crackers and, I think, some orange peel. There was, of course, all the ordinary furniture, but no chair pulled up to the table except that used by Foggatt himself. That's all I noticed, I think. Stay—there was an ash tray on the table and a partly burned cigar near it—only one cigar, though."

"Excellent—excellent, indeed, as far as memory and simple observation go. Don't you remember everything that I did as we went downstairs?"

"You returned a bottle of oil to the housekeeper's daughter, I think."

"I did. Doesn't that give you a hint? Come, you surely have it now?"

"I haven't."

"Then I shan't tell you. You don't deserve it. Think, and don't mention the subject again till you have at least one guess to make. Goodby. I'm off now. There's a case in hand I can't neglect."

"Don't you propose to go further into this, then?"

Hewitt shrugged his shoulders. "I'm not a policeman," he said. "The case is in very good hands. Of course if anybody comes to me to do it as a matter of business I'll take it up. It's very interesting, but I can't neglect my regular work for it. Naturally, I shall keep my eyes open and my memory in order. Sometimes these things come into the hands by themselves, as it were. In that case, of course, I am a loyal citizen and ready to help the law. Au revoir."

I am a busy man myself and saw no more of Hewitt for six weeks. One evening we together turned into Luzatti's, off Coventry street, for dinner.

"I have been here several times lately," Hewitt said. "They feed you very well. No, not that table"—he seized my arm as I turned to an unoccupied corner—"I fancy it's drafty." He led the way to a longer table where a dark, lithe and (as well as could be seen) tall young man already sat and took chairs opposite him.

We had scarcely seated ourselves before Hewitt broke into a torrent of conversation on the subject of bicycling. As our previous conversation had been of a literary sort and as I had never known Hewitt at any other time to show the slightest interest in bicycling, this rather surprised me. I had, however, such a general outsider's grasp of the subject as is usual in a journalist of all work and managed to keep the talk going from my side. As we went on I could see the face of the young man opposite brighten with interest. He was a rather fine looking fellow with a dark though very clear skin, but had a hard, angry look of eye, a prominence of cheek bone and a squareness of jaw that gave him a rather uninviting aspect.

"Of course," Hewitt said, "we've a number of very capital men just now, but I believe a deal in the forgotten riders of five, ten and fifteen years back. Nobody ever beat Cortis—except—let me see—I think somebody beat Cortis once. Who was it, now? I can't remember."

"Liles," said the young man opposite, looking up quickly.

"Ah, yes! Liles it was—Charley Liles. We lost a championship?"

"Mile championship. Cortis won the other three, though."

"Yes, so he did. I saw Cortis when he first broke the old 2:46 mile record." And straightway Hewitt and the stranger plunged into a whirl of talk of bicycles, tricycles, records and racing cyclists.

Our new friend, it seemed, had himself been a prominent racing bicyclist a few years back and was presently, at Hewitt's request, exhibiting a neat gold medal that hung at his watch guard. That was won, he explained, in the old tall bicycle days, the days of bad tracks, when every racing cyclist carried cinder scars on his face from numerous accidents. He pointed to a blue mark on his forehead, which, he told us, was a track scar, and described a bad fall that had cost him two teeth and broken others. The gaps among his teeth were plain to see as he smiled.

Presently the waiter brought dessert, and the young man opposite took an apple. Nut crackers and a fruit knife lay on our side of the stand, and Hewitt turned the stand to offer him the knife.

"No, thanks," he said. "I only polish a good apple; never peel it. It's a mistake except with thick skinned foreign ones."

And he began to munch the apple as only a boy or a healthy athlete can. Presently he turned his head to order coffee. To my unutterable amazement, Hewitt reached swiftly across the table, snatched the half eaten apple from the young man's plate and pocketed it, gazing immediately with an abstracted air at a painted Cupid on the ceiling.

Our neighbor turned again, looked doubtfully at his plate and the tablecloth about it and then shot a keen glance in the direction of Hewitt. He said nothing, however, but took his coffee and his bill, deliberately drank the former, gazing quietly at Hewitt as he did it, paid the latter and left.

Immediately Hewitt was on his feet and, taking an umbrella which stood near, followed. Just as he reached the door he met our late neighbor, who had turned suddenly back.

"Your umbrella, I think," Hewitt said, offering it.

"Yes, thanks." But the man's eye had more than its former hardness, and his jaw muscles tightened as I looked. He turned and went. Hewitt came back to me. "Pay the bill," he said, "and go back to your rooms. I will come on later. I must follow this man. It's the Foggatt case." As he went out I heard a cab rattle away and immediately after it another.

I paid the bill and went home. It was 10 o'clock before Hewitt turned up, calling in at his office below on his way up to me.

"Mr. Sidney Mason," he said, "is the gentleman the police will be wanting tomorrow, I expect, for the Foggatt murder. He is as smart a man as I remember ever meeting, and has done me rather neatly twice this evening."

"You mean the man we sat opposite at Luzatti's, of course?"

"Yes. I got his name of course from the reverse of that gold medal he was good enough to show me. But I fear he has biked me over the address. He suspected me, that was plain, and left his umbrella by way of experiment to see if I were watching him sharply enough to notice the circumstance and to avail myself of it to follow him. I was hasty and fell into the trap. He cabbed it away from Luzatti's, and I cabbed it after him. He has led me a pretty dance up and down London tonight, and two cabbies have made quite a stroke of business out of us. In the end he entered a house of which of course I have taken the address, but I expect he doesn't live there. He is too smart a man to lead me to his den, but the police can certainly find something of him at the house he went in at—and, I expect, left by the back way. By the way, you never guessed that simple little puzzle as to how I found that this was a murder, did you? You see it now, of course?"

"Something to do with that apple you stole, I suppose?"

"Something to do with it? I should think so, you worthy innocent. Just ring your bell. We'll borrow Mrs. Clayton's sewing machine oil again. On the night we broke into Foggatt's room you saw the nutshells and the bitten remains of an apple on the sideboard, and you remembered it, and yet you couldn't see that in that piece of apple possibly lay an important piece of evidence.

"First, now, the apple was white. A bitten apple, as you must have observed, turns of a reddish brown color if left to stand long. Different kinds of apples brown with different rapidities, and the browning always begins at the core. The apple on the sideboard was, as near as I could tell, a Newtown Pippin or other apple of that kind, which will brown at the core in from twenty minutes to half an hour and in other parts in a quarter of an hour more. When we saw it, it was white, with barely a tinge of brown about the exposed core. Inference—somebody had been eating it fifteen or twenty minutes before, perhaps a little longer—an inference supported by the fact that it was only partly eaten.

"I examined that apple and found it bore marks of very irregular teeth. While you were gone I oiled it over and, rushing down to my rooms, where I always have a little plaster of paris handy for such work, took a mold of the part where the teeth had left the clearest marks. I then returned the apple to its place for the police to use if they thought fit. Looking at my mold, it was plain that the person who had bitten that apple had lost two teeth, one at top and one below, not exactly opposite, but nearly so. The other teeth, although they would appear to have been fairly sound, were irregular in size and line. Now, the dead man had, as I saw, a very excellent set of false teeth, regular and sharp, with none missing. Therefore it was plain that somebody else had been eating that apple. Do I make myself clear?"

"I must follow this man."

"Quite! Go on!"

"There were other inferences to be made—slighter, but all pointing the same way. For instance, a man of Foggatt's age does not, as a rule, munch an unpeeled apple like a schoolboy. Inference—a young man and healthy. Why I came to the conclusion that he was tall, active, a gymnast and perhaps a sailor I have already told you when we examined the outside of Foggatt's window. It was also pretty clear that robbery was not the motive, since nothing was disturbed, and that a friendly conversation had preceded the murder—witness the drinking and the eating of the apple.

"As I said, after the inquest I was unable to devote any immediate time to the case, but I resolved to keep my eyes open. The man to look for was tall, young, strong and active, with a very irregular set of teeth, a tooth missing from the lower jaw just to the left of the center and another from the upper jaw a little further still toward the left. He might possibly be a person I had seen about the premises (I have a good memory for faces) or, of course, he possibly might not.

MOB MAY LYNCH 'EM.

Italians Found Guilty of Complicity in Little Walter Lamana's Murder.

Hahnville, La., July 19.—Eighty-two state soldiers reached the Hahnville jail late last night, and after passing through a mob of several hundred persons in Gretna, La., who tried to induce the train crew to side-track the militia special. The mob hoped thereby to get to Hahnville first.

The companies of militia were ordered here to protect from threatened lynching four Italians convicted "without capital punishment," for the complicity in the murder of little Walter Lamana of New Orleans, who was kidnaped and strangled about a month ago.

The verdict in the case was reached just after dark after the jury had been out forty-five minutes and at the close of a four-days' trial, full of excitement.

Scalded His Victim.

Erie, Pa., July 19.—Alozo Guiseppe, a young Italian, was placed under arrest here last night, charged with being responsible for the death of Franft St. George, nine years old. Guiseppe is alleged to have scalded his victim to death with boiling water.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Albert Tuebert, proprietor of the St. Charles hotel in Janesville, Wis, Thursday was sentenced to ten days in jail for slapping his wife.

Increases ranging from $2.50 to $10 per month were granted the telegraph operators of the Queen & Crescent railroad system by a re-adjustment that has just been completed. The new scale will go into effect August 1. Between 200 and 300 men are affected.

The degree of doctor was conferred by the University of Berlin, in Berlin, Germany, Thursday upon Ma Do Yuen, a Chinese student. This is the first time a Chinese has received a degree from a German university. The Chinese ministers at Berlin and Vienna and a number of Chinese studying in Germany were present at the ceremony.

William L. Roberts, engineer at the electric light and water works station at Milan, a few miles above Norwalk, O., was found dead in a pool of blood on the floor of the engine room and had evidently been murdered. There were several bruises on the back of the head and a hole in the skull, as though he had been struck with some blunt instrument.

[illegible] Berg, [illegible] of a prominent Chicago grocery, committed suicide Thursday by throwing himself over the railing on the 12th floor of the Chamber of Commerce building. Berg was a consumptive and despondent. He read the account of the suicide Wednesday of Anna Mormoyle who killed herself by jumping from the 15th floor of the Masonic temple in that city, and, it is thought, the story suggested the method of a quick death.

Stockbridge Estate Finally Settled.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 19.—After being in court 13 years the estate of the late Senator Francis B. Stockbridge has been finally settled and the executor, James L. Houghteling, the Chicago banker, discharged. Judge of Probate Hopkins accepted the receipts and the last money on hand as final account, Wednesday. When Senator Stockbridge died he was supposed to be a millionaire and the value of his estate placed at from $500,000 to $1,000,000. The executor found considerable shrinkage in valuation, but by wise management made it produce upwards of $500,000.

Washington, July 19.—On account of excessive freight rates on hay and straw, the American market in the east is sacrificed to foreign producers.

This, in substance, is the charge contained in a petition filed with the interstate commerce commission on Thursday by the National Hay association, against the Michigan Central railroad and several other railroads in the northern and eastern parts of the United States. The complaint alleges that the classification of, and rates on, hay and straw in the classification territory are excessive and unreasonable and that the products now are shipped as fifth class when as a matter of fact they ought to be shipped as sixth class freight. The difference in the classification of the freight makes an increase of $1 per ton on shipments between Chicago and New York. It is alleged further that the rates in force from points of origin to New York, New England and Long Island points favor the foreign produced hay "to such an extent as practically to compensate the foreign farmer and dealer for a large part of the customs duty, thus enabling the Canadian hay to compete successfully with the domestic product in New York, New England and Long Island."

The customs duty on hay is $4 per ton, and it is asserted by the complainant that the railroad rates, which it is compelled to pay on shipments from the west to the east, are practically wiped out as far as the Canadian producer is concerned.

The commission is asked to readjust the classification of hay and straw and to fix such reasonable rates on shipments of those products as it may deem proper after hearing the facts of the case.

ROUND ABOUT US.

On July 4th at high noon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Ashley in this village, their daughter, Miss Agnes, was united in marriage to Henry Bigelow. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present. Rev. Earl Rice of the M. E. church performed the ceremony. After a wedding dinner the bride and groom went to Tecumseh for a few days. They will reside at Riverbank farm northwest of Dundee, the home of the groom's mother. Both are industrious and respected young people and hearty congratulations and best wishes are theirs.—Petersburg Sun.

While playing on the walk in front of her father's house, Alice, the five-year-old daughter of Carl Stark, was struck and run over by a bicycle ridden by Bradford Newcomb, and very seriously injured. Her face was cut and bruised, there were severe bruises on her lips and it was feared that she was internally injured, besides the nervous shock, but she is improving and it is hoped that she will soon be well again. The collision seems to have been a very careless piece of business and something should be done to prevent such accidents in the future.—Blissfield Advance.

The farmer, if he only knew it, is a little nearer the kingdom of heaven than anyone on earth. He is certain of three square meals a day and is the only one who can fence himself in and live in spite of the rest of mankind. A few cattle and sheep and fowl provide him with food and clothing while his fields yield him flour and a source of revenue. So generous are these provisions and so common that hardly one farmer in ten makes any count of them although the ordinary business man thinks he has done well when he reaches the end of the year and finds, that he has a little more than made both ends meet.—Ex.

Under date of July 3, Mrs. A. L. Parker, who has been visiting at Neillsville, Wis., writes to her husband concerning a terrible cyclone which had just passed by the town and, wrought havoc in the surrounding country, sweeping everything before it and causing many deaths. The cyclone passed almost around the town and the horror-stricken populace watched its progress, expecting momentarily to fall victims. Many of the dead were horribly mangled and Mrs. Parker helped care for many of the injured. She considers herself especially fortunate in that she was out driving in the path of the cyclone only a short time before.—Blissfield Advance.

A horrible accident at Coldwater on the 4th cast a gloom over that city. Miss Bessie Munyon, a highly esteemed young lady stenographer was getting on board a train which was about to pull out of the depot when she lost her hold and fell under the wheels of the truck, one leg being cut off below the knee and the other foot crushed. She was taken to the hospital and both limbs were amputated but she failed to rally and died in the afternoon. She was the daughter of farmers who were apprised of the accident and were taken to Coldwater in an auto, but in alighting the mother fell heavily on the pavement and her face was badly injured.—Hudson Post.

The charming woman.

Is not necessarily one of perfect form and features. Many a plain woman who could never serve as an artist's model possesses those rare qualities that all the world admires, neatness, clear eyes, a smooth skin and that sprightliness of step that accompany good health. A physically weak woman is never attractive. Electric Bitters restore weak women, give strong nerves, bright eyes, velvety skin, beautiful complexion. Guaranteed at C. A. CATARRH CAN BE CURED.

Many people who have suffered with catarrh for years naturally feel that the disease cannot be cured and become discouraged.

Their failure to get relief is, that they have not used the right remedy. Catarrh is an affection of the head, throat and lungs and cannot be cured by stomach dosing.

The only scientific treatment for this disease is Hy-o-mei which is breathed through a pocket inhaler so that its healing and medicated air reaches the the most remote air cells, kills all catarrh germs and restores the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs to a healthy condition.

Hy-o-mei is the only cure for catarrh that has ever been sold with the understanding that it was to cost absolutely nothing unless it cured. C. A. Wright sells Hy-o-mei in this way and is always ready to refund the money if it does not relieve and cure catarrh.

The healing and antiseptic balsams of Hy-o-mei perform their purpose to perfection and using this remedy a few times each day you can soon cure yourself of any catarrhal troubles.

A complete Hy-o-mei outfit consists of a bottle of Hy-o-mei and an inhaler for $1.00.

The Best Laxative for Children.

Parents should see to it that their children have one natural, easy movement of the bowels each day. Do not dose the child with salts or griping pills, for they are too powerful in effect, and literally tear their little insides to pieces, leaving the bowels weakened and less able to act naturally than before. Laxative Fruit-ax Tablets tone and strengthen the bowels, and stimulate all the little organs to healthy activity. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never gripe or nauseate. 10c, 25c and $1.00.

No one ever takes a real good look at a horrible example.

WARMING ARBUCKLES' SLIGHTLY MAKES THE GRINDING EASY

If you want to drink real coffee, buy a sealed package of Arbuckles' ARIOSA and grind it in your own kitchen as you want to use it. Roasted coffee loses its strength and flavor if exposed to the air, and even its identity as coffee after grinding. Loose coffee sold out of a bag, bin or tin is usually dusty and soiled by handling.

Don't take it!

Coffee Value

If you are paying 25c a pound for coffee, you ought to be enjoying good cup quality. The price you pay does not fix the quality you receive; different sellers give different qualities for the money.

LOWRY'S BLEND at 25c the pound, is a little bit better for the money. Years of experimenting has fixed our standard high and this coffee is now no experiment. Its increasing sale together with its ever repeating orders from old time users, is mighty convincing proof that it contains everything in the quality line that is claimed for it.

You are the judge. We ask your consideration of the evidence contained in a cup of this delicious coffee.

Don't "get along" with a coffee that doesn't suit your taste, because you think it is as good as you ought to expect for the money. Make your next order for LOWRY'S 25c BLEND.

Tecumseh crossed bats with Kazoo on local grounds yesterday and were beaten by a score of 5 to 3. Tecumseh's first score came in the first inning, when Slear's single and Hillinger's two bagger scored Slear. Doty opened the 7th inning with a single and Preston followed with a three bagger, Slear and Wagner singled, scoring Doty and Preston. Both teams hit hard, Maire receiving the better support. Kazoo scored one run in the first inning on two hits and a sacrifice. In the fourth, two passes, a sacrifice, two errors and a wild throw scored four runs. The umps decisions at the plate were not satisfactory to either team.

BASE BALL NOTES.

Smoke Duvall signed with Tecumseh today. He played right field for Tecumseh yesterday.

Harry Howlett, a member of the Tecumseh pitching staff, has been released. He will return to his home in Detroit.

Pitcher Lagoe of Marion, jsined the team here yesterday. He has been with Grand Rapids in the Central league.

Tecumseh will play the Coldwater Independent team at Coldwater Monday. There is some talk of Coldwater taking Jackson's place in the Southern Michigan league as they are a very fast team.

Dallas, Texas, has filed a claim on Railing, one of Tecumseh's pitchers. This is thought to be spite work of other members of the league to down the Indians if possible. The Boston Americans bought Railing of Texas and gave him a try out and released him. It will undoubtedly be but a few days before he will be in the game again.

Joe York of Bay City, was the boss "rooter" at the ball game yesterday. He for sometime worked for the Anthony Fence Co., later on went to Bay City and now is umpire for the Bay City league team. Next year maybe will be on the staff of umpires for the Southern Michigan league. Joe is a great boy and with the aid of his magaphone is truly a great "rooter."

NEARLY KILLED

By passenger train in Jackson.

JOHN VAN ORMAN

With three ribs stove in on his left side, his right ear nearly torn off his head, with an ugly scalp wound and skull slightly fractured John Van Orman was picked up beside the Michigan Central track at 2:45 o'clock Tuesday morning when he was struck by an outgoing Grand Rapids passenger train No. 106 and nearly killed.

The engineer brought his train to a stop as quickly as possible and the trainmen picked up the injured man and took him to the Michigan Central baggage room. The police ambulance was summoned and Mr. Van Orman was taken to the city hospital where he lies in a precarious condition. Besides sustaining the injuries above mentioned his left arm was pierced by a bolt on the pilot of the engine, striking him between the bones of the forearm and passing nearly through.

Mr. Van Orman is employed as sand cutter at the Lask foundry on Water street and was on his way home when the accident happened. He was walking on the railroad track and was struck at the junction of the main line and that of the Grand Rapids and Saginaw division. A freight train was pulling into the city from the west on the main line and this was making some noise. He saw this train coming but did not know that a train was approaching him from the rear.

Just before it struck him, he heard it and jumped, but not soon enough, for the pilot of the locomotive struck him on the left side and threw him several feet. It was landing on the side of his head that cut the deep gash in his scalp and so badly lacerated his ear. The surgeon at the hospital upon examining Mr. Van Orman found that the skull had sustained a slight fracture, but not enough to be considered serious He suffers much pain from his broken ribs, but unless it should develop that there are internal injuries he will recover.

Mr. Van Orman resides at 403 North Mechanic street. It was thought at first he had been killed, but the man revived after a few minutes and told who he was and where his wife lived. He requested that she be notified at once of the accident and this was done.

Mr. Van Orman's hours for working have been from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until midnight, but Monday it was so hot he laid off a few hours and made up the time by working until 2 o'clock Tuesday morning, reaching the railroad track in time to be struck by the Grand Rapids train. Mr. Van Orman is aged 41 years and has a wife and family.—Jackson Patoiot.

Mr. Van Orman is a brother-in-law of Mrs C. E. Price of this place. He has many friends in Tecumseh who regret to learn of his frightful accident.

Long live the king:

Is the popular cry throughout European countries, while in America the cry is "long live Dr. King's New Discovery, king of throat and lung remedies!" of which Mrs. Julia Payne, Muro, Mass., writes "It never fails to give immediate relief or to quickly cure a cough or cold." Mrs. Payne's opinion is shared by many of the people of this country. New Discovery cures weak lungs and sore throat after all other remedies have failed and for coughs and colds it's the only sure cure. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright, & Son, druggists. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

DON'T DIE AT 45.

Cure the indigestion which is so liable to lead to apoplexy.

Rush of business, eating too fast and too much, excesses of any kind, soon result in indigestion. Then when the digestive organs cannot care for the food properly the coats of the blood vessels in the brain get little nourishment, become brittle and finally yield to the fierce blood pressure. One is then said to have a "shock," to be paralyzed, or to die from apoplexy.

People suffering with headache, giddiness, palpitation, sleeplessness, bad taste in the mouth, drowsiness, coated tongue, distress after eating, specks before the eyes and any other of the many distressing results of a weakened stomach, should profit by the discovery of Mi-o-na stomach tablets.

In recent years the greatest advance in medicine has been in the study of diseases of digestion and nutrition and no other prescription has proven itself of as much value as Mi-o-na. It is relied upon as a certainty today in relieving the worst troubles of digestion and assimilation and making a complete cure.

The strongest proof that can be offered in substantiation of the claims that Mi-o-na will cure the worst forms of stomach trouble, cancer excepted, and give immediate relief in indigestion is the guarantee that C. A. Wright gives with every 50-cent box of Mi-o-na to refund the money unless Mi-o-na cures. A guarantee like this must inspire confidence in Mi-o-na. C. A. Wright takes the whole risk and the remedy will not cost you a penny unless it cures.

SHORT TALKS BY L. T. COOPER.

NERVOUSNESS.

Nervousness makes people miserable, blue, and unhappy. They think something terrible is going to happen. At night they toss and worry and are not rested. They tire easily and haven't much energy. They think many things are the matter with them—Consumption, Kidney trouble, or twenty other diseases. It's just stomach trouble nothing else in the world. Two bottles of Cooper's New Discovery will put the stomach in shape in three weeks. I know this because I've seen it tried a thousand times. Then all nervousness will disappear. I know this too, because I've seen it happen a thousand times. Here's a letter I got the other day:

MRS. W. J. SCHAURER.

"My system was badly run down and my stomach and nerves in an awful shape. I could not digest my food, was always tired and would often feel faint and dizzy."

"I had heard so much of your New Discovery medicine that I began taking it. Relief and strength and happiness were found in the very first bottle and the benefit I have received from it has been truly wonderful. I am no longer nervous, my appetite and digestion are good and I eat everything and sleep well." Mrs. W. J. Schaurer, 220 Guthrie St., Louisville, Ky.

CURED TO STAY CURED.

If you suffer from backache
From urinary disorders
From any disease of the kidneys,
Be cured to stay cured.
Doan's Kidney Pills will do it.
Tecumseh people testify.
Read a case of it.

Orson Austin, retired, living on Logan street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I hold the same high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills today as when I gave a statement for publication some six years ago. Prior to that time I had been troubled with kidney disease. The pains I had in my back and shoulders were at times almost unbearable. Rheumatism settled in my limbs which added much to my misery. I did not sleep at night on account of the frequent action of the kidneys, the passages being attended by a smarting and burning sensation which was very painful. I think my trouble was brought on by an injury I received in the army which had slowly grown worse. I knew Doan's Kidney Pills were good so I began using them, noticing good effects in a short time and thus encouraged I continued until cured. My advice to all kidney sufferers is to give the Pills a trial and I know they will not be disappointed with the results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other.

Laxative Iron-ox Tablets

Cure Biliousness

The most common causes of biliousness is some perversion of the functions of the liver, or the retention of bile in the bile duct.

YELLOW SALLOW SKIN IS AN INDICATION OF BILIOUSNESS.

"Laxative Iron-ox Tablets are the best laxative I have ever used. They have cleared up my yellow skin as no other remedy has ever done, and I am 40 lbs. heavier than when I commenced using them." (CAPT.) L. G. CULVER, Soldier's Home, Bath, N. Y.

Laxative Iron-ox Tablets tone and strengthen the bowels, and stimulate the secretions of the liver. If the bowels and liver are active and working harmoniously, waste matter and poisons which cause biliousness, stomach trouble, headache, backache, colds and rheumatism cannot accumulate in the system. 37

Burglars at night cracked the safe of J. H. Parks & Son at Berrien Springs, and got about $100. They are surmised to be the same who tried to crack the postoffice safe at Watervliet last week but were scared away.

John Henes of Menominee has tendered his beautiful park site known as Popular Point, valued at $50,000, to the city, to be used as a park. The place is one of the most beautiful in the state. It is very similar to the Presque Island park at Marquette.

The postoffice and general store of M. Slingluff at Elwell was broken into early Thursday morning. Nothing was taken but a few pennies from the cash till. The robber left no clue except two receipts for 14 cents each from a railroad conductor.

Dr. Oliver LaCrone, aged 48 years, one of the best known physicians of Kalamazoo, died in Mercy hospital, Chicago, Thursday from an operation a week ago. Dr. LaCrone came to Kalamazoo some 15 years ago. Beside being prominent in medicine and surgery, he had taken an active interest in politics, being at one time a candidate for mayor.

Seventy Detroiters and 50 others from other parts of Michigan, headed by Father Francis J. Van Antwerp, pastor of the Church of Our Lady of the Rosary of Detroit left at noon on Thursday over the C. P. R., on the initial stage of a trip to Ireland. The journey will take about six weeks. The first stop will be made at Quebec, from which place a pilgrimage will be made to the shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre, where solemn high mass will be celebrated Saturday morning by Father Van Antwerp.

Every time a woman makes a fool of a wise man he simply charges it up to experience and lets it go at that.

Thousands of people are daily suffering with kidney and bladder troubles—dangerous ailments that should be checked promptly. DeWitt's kidney and bladder pills are the best remedy for backache, weak kidneys, inflammation of the bladder. Their action is prompt and sure. A week's treatment for 25c. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

During the summer kidney irregularities are often caused by excessive drinking or being over heated. Attend to the kidneys at once by using Foley's Kidney Cure. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Ball, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says:—"I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

TO FIX THE BLAME.

Three Investigations Under Way Relative to Salem Wreck.

DEAD NUMBER THIRTY-THREE

Two More of Injured Die—Railroad Seeks to Blame Freight Crew—Civic Officials Inclined to Think Otherwise—Ionia Buries Its Dead.

Detroit, Mich., July 23.—Justice Joslin of Northville, aided by Coroner Parker and Prosecutor Robinson will make a rigid inquest in Northville, Wednesday, over the victims of the Pere Marquette wreck in an attempt to fix the blame for the tragedy.

Coroner Parker has laid the foundation for the second inquest to be held in Detroit, if necessary, by swearing in a jury over the body of Banner Huggins of Ionia, who died in St. Mary's hospital Monday morning. Prosecuting Attorney Seldon and Coroner Clark of Ionia also say that an inquest will be held there.

Including Banner Huggins, who died in Detroit, and Mrs. Perry Turner, who died in Ionia Monday, the victims of the wreck now number 33, while the death of three, and probably four more are hourly expected.

Railway Quickly Gives Aid.

The railway company has been prompt to help those made destitute by the wreck, and General Counsel F. W. Stevens is responsible for the statement that the company will waive immunity from damages it might claim from the fact that the excursionists rode on passes, and will treat all claims the same as if presented by passengers who had paid their fares.

The Pere Marquette railroad, through General Counsel Stevens, gave out the following statement in regard to the responsibility for Saturday's wreck, Monday afternoon:

"The officials of the company," read the report, "are not shielding and will not shield any negligent employe concerned. The conductor of the local freight had served as such several years and was familiar with his duties and responsibilities. The local freight was not only on the main line on the time of the passenger train, about which the conductor and engineer of the local freight knew, but it was going towards the passenger train, on the latter's time.

Freight Not Heavy Train.

"The local freight was not a heavy train. It had only seven cars. In the ordinary course of its movement, and barring special delays, it would have gone from Plymouth to Salem, six and one-half miles, in 21 minutes which elapsed between the time of its departure from Plymouth, at 8:49, and the time when the passenger train was due at Salem at 9:10. If the conductor of the local freight had any special thing to do between Plymouth and Salem, or if there were any special conditions known to him, which would prevent him making Salem in the time he had, there was a long siding a little ways from Plymouth station into which he could have pulled his train to await the passing of the passenger train.

"It is not surprising to hear that the conductor of the local freight on Saturday admitted to the general superintendent his responsibility for the collision; and I am inclined to attach more importance to such an admission, in view of the conceded facts, than I am to suggestions of anonymous writers."

The railroad company will be asked to give up certain information that has much bearing on the movements of the local freight. There is also a search for a lost ten minutes—a ten minutes that has disappeared somewhere between General Counsel Stevens' report and the statements in the possession of the prosecutor.

Assistant Prosecutor James A. Robison waited at the scene of the wreck all night. He was curious to see what the company would do when darkness fell and the spectators had all departed. He took the precaution to have witnesses about, too.

"As soon as the spectators had departed, as the company thought, a crew of 100 men swooped down upon the wreckage and their movements were a revelation," says Robison.

Cars Burned Up.

"What startled everyone was the way whole cars, very little injured, were taken away and burned. Of course, there was a reason for that. The cars were mere match boxes. They were of the old shell type with practically no resisting power. There wasn't a steel frame in the entire train of 11 cars. The cars were unfit to carry human beings in. So, even the partially injured ones were burned, too. It would be very prejudicial to the company to have a jury view those cars."

The Pere Marquette is also conducting an investigation of its own. Though the railway officials have apparently determined to fix the blame for the loss of lives upon Engineer W. I. Rogers and Conductor Hamilton, of the freight train, some doubt as to whether this is just finds expression in many places.

Several other funerals will also be held today.

HAU FOUND GUILTY.

IS SENTENCED TO DEATH.

Germans Receive His Sentence With Demonstrations—Troops Forced to Drive Crowds Away From Court House With Drawn Bayonets.

Karlsruhe, July 23.—Karl Hau, a brilliant young law professor of Washington, D. C., was condemned to death this morning after a five-days' trial for the murder of his wife's mother, Frau Molitor, a wealthy resident of Baden-Baden, in that city November 5, last.

The prisoner heard the verdict of the jury with perfect composure. The sentence is unpopular with the street crowds, which have been demonstrating more and more openly for several days in Hau's favor and against the Molitor family.

After the adjournment of the court for an hour's recess at 8 o'clock last evening, enormous crowds assembled in the streets adjacent to the court house. Cordons of police kept the crowds in check for an hour or more, but then lost control of them; the masses pushing and crushing forward to the doors with the evident intention of storming the entrance.

There were many shouts from the crowd of "Hau is not guilty," the voices penetrating to the court room. Finally two companies of infantry and a squadron of mounted police appeared on the scene and drove the rioters before them. The infantry with fixed bayonets cleared all the streets within three hundred yards of the court house.

A large number of arrests were made. One old woman was trampled down by the horses, and it is reported that several other persons were wounded.

The demonstration in favor of Hau appears to be due largely to the same maudlin sentiment which has made a hero out of many another accused of a daring crime.

Loses Arm Counting Money.

Manila, July 23.—Major Paymaster Eugene Coffin has had his left arm amputated, the result of infection from the handling of money paying troops. He was a veteran of the civil war and a member of the old McKinley regiment.

Court Room Too Warm for Jurors.

Boise, Ida., July 23.—For four hours and a half Monday, E. F. Richardson pleaded with the jury for the life of Wm. D. Haywood. Under order of the court, the hours for the day's sessions were changed and in place of sitting in the afternoon, court met at 6 o'clock last evening. Judge Wood was informed by the jury that the extreme heat of the court room was too trying on some of the jurors and he complied with the request for a late evening session. The preliminary hearing of the case of Dr. I. L. McGee, one of the witnesses for the defense, charged with perjury, came up Monday afternoon and will be continued today. Orchard was on the stand for over an hour and was given a severe grilling in the cross-examination by McGee's counsel. The prisoner witness, however, maintained his characteristic calm all the way through. He denied he was in the Couer d'Alene at time McGee swore to a meeting with him at Wallace.

Suit Begun Again Hill.

St. Paul, Minn., July 23.—Clarence H. Venner of New York began suit against J. J. Hill and the Great Northern Railway Co., in the Ramsey county district court, the complaint being filed late Monday, in which he alleges that Hill wrongfully and fraudulently, while acting in his capacity as president of the Great Northern Railway Co., acquired stock of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railway at prices averaging about $150 per share, and that he induced the board of directors of the Great Northern to pay $200 per share for the stock. He claims that Hill thereby made a profit of more than ten million dollars. Venner sues as the holder of 300 shares of Great Northern stock.

SHIPS MEET IN FOG.

Probably Fifty Perished in Pacific Coast Catastrophe.

LIST OF DEAD IS INCOMPLETE

Steamers San Pedro and Columbia Meet Near Shelter Cove — Latter Quickly Sinks—Accident Happens at Night—Blame on Columbia's Pilot.

Eureka, Cal., July 23.—The best advices are that approximately two hundred of the 249 souls on board the steamer Columbia escaped death when that vessel went to the bottom near Shelter Cove, between midnight and 1 o'clock Sunday morning, in a collision with the steam schooner San Pedro, in a dense fog. One hundred and seven of the Columbia's passengers and 37 of her crew have been brought to this port by the steamer George W. Elder, which towed the colliding schooner San Pedro from the scene of the disaster to Eureka. A late message from Shelter Cove says that four more lifeboats have been picked up, one of them containing 18 persons, another 15, another 16, while the number in the fourth is not reported.

The survivors who were brought to this port are being cared for at hotels and in private houses. The citizens of Eureka, moved to unanimous action by pity and the distress of the victims, have supplied sufficient quantities of clothing and all necessary medical attention without stint or price.

Carried 189 Passengers.

A segregation of the Columbia's passenger list shows that in her cabin she carried 78 men and 90 women and girls; in her steerage 20 men and one woman, a total of 189. Discrepancies, however, between the full list furnished and the purser on sailing and some of the names given by survivors who have reached here indicate that the total passengers may have been greater in number.

Eight minutes after the San Pedro struck the Columbia the latter vessel had filled full of water and sunk. The night saloon watchman notified all the passengers to go to the upper deck. Without clothing they climbed out of their berths and rushed out. It was only two or three minutes before the decks were awash. Six boats and three life rafts were cut loose and as many passengers as possible were crowded into them. There were scarcely any evidence of a panic, the women acting with heroism. The crew of the San Pedro immediately lowered a boat and picked up a large number of survivors, while the boats from the Columbia lay to by the San Pedro.

Particulars Lacking.

When the Columbia sank she carried down with her about 74 passengers. This estimate is not accurate, and the number cannot be definitely determined until full particulars are received from Shelter Cove, where five boats are said to have been landed.

Captain Doran and First Officer Whitney were on the deck when the Columbia sank, the captain's last words being: "God bless you."

Two hours after the wreck the fog lifted and a cold wind commenced to blow. The people in the boats suffered terribly.

Pilot's Story Substantiated.

O. Swanson, a sailor of the San Pedro, was at the wheel Saturday night when the fatal collision occurred. In his report to Sailors' Agent John Erickson, the blame is laid upon the shoulders of the Columbia's officers. Other members of the crew of the San Pedro substantiate the story of Swanson. He says that the order was given to him when the lookout sighted the Columbia to put the wheel hard aport. Three points to port carried the San Pedro seaward apparently out of the way of the approaching vessel whose name at that time was not shown. Short toots from the whistles of both vessels warned the skippers. The Columbia was on the coast side, the San Pedro on the sea side.

Apparently both vessels were proceeding at full speed. If all had gone well, the San Pedro would have cleared the Columbia, but it is evident that an order "put the wheel hard a'starboard," was given on the Columbia. This sent her directly across the bow of the steam schooner. Whether or not the speed of each vessel was slacked is immaterial, for the crash of the vessels was terrific. The Columbia, an iron vessel, bore the brunt of the impact, and her iron plates cracked and a gash seven feet across the forward hatch allowed the water free ingress at a great velocity.

Nearly All Asleep.

Nearly all of the Columbia's passengers and many of her crew were asleep when the crash came. As the San Pedro backed away, the sea poured in through the ragged hole in the Columbia's bow above and below the water line, and steadily the Columbia sank to the bottom, the deep waters of Shelter Cove covering over the tops of the Columbia's masts.

Soon after the collision the steamers Roanoke and George W. Elder and the steam schooner Daisy Mitchell, all southbound, came on the scene and stood by. The Elder took the San Pedro in tow and brought her to Eureka.

IS IT CONSTITUTIONAL?

New Juvenile Law Questioned by State School Superintendent.

Lansing, Mich., July 23.—The supreme court will be asked to pass on the new juvenile court law. The question as to its constitutionality has been raised by the superintendent of the state school a Coldwater.

It is charged that there numerous defects in the law. Among those pointed out is the fact that the constitution prescribes for only three courts, the supreme, circuit and probate, while this law provides for a fourth. In another section it provides for a trial by a jury of six, while the constitution says that the jury in courts of record shall be composed of 12 citizens. It increases the salary of judgts of probate and it is charged that this is not germane to the title of the act.

Alleges Doctor Beats Sick Wife.

Port Huron, Mich., July 23.—Charges which may land Dr. A. B. House, a prominent physician of Memphis, behind the bars, were made to Prosecutor Moore Monday by Miss Nellie Chester, who has been employed by the House family. Miss Chester alleges that House, who is nearing the 60 mark in age, abuses his invalid wife, who is past 60, in a most unmerciful manner. She says that the doctor strikes her with his fists and a few days ago, she alleges, he beat her with a club for some unknown reason. Mrs. House is now lying at her home in a critical condition from injuries, Miss Chester claims, received at the hands of her husband. Prosecutor Moore will order a warrant.

Farmer Met Singular Death.

Lansing, Mich., July 23.—Edward Florian, 33 years old, married and having a wife and babe, was killed on his frm two miles west of here in a spectacular way. Across Florian's farm runs the high tension feed wire from a water power plant and one of the towers carrying the wire stands near his house. For some unimaginable reason Florian climbed the tower during a brewing thunder storm. There came a rumble of thunder and then a flash of lightning. The lightning hit the wire and traveled to the tower, where it seemed to burst all around Florian. It is believed that the man was dead when he struck the ground.

Aspirants Must Be Prompt.

Lansing, Mich., July 23.—Today the polls close for the primary election petitions of the candidates for election as delegates to the constitutional convention. About 63 petitions have been filed from the 11 districts in which the candidates will be nominated under the primary system. The law prescribes that all petitions must be in at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and it is stated at the office of the secretary of state that while petitions will be received if not here exactly at 4 o'clock, they cannot receive petitions which are mailed previous to that hour, but do not reach it on time.

Soldier Accidentally Killed Woman.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., July 23.—The ball from the gun in the hands of Private Gillette, soldier, intended for a deserter who was escaping, instantly killed Miss Elizabeth Cadenhead of Fergus, Ont., late Monday afternoon. The officials are investigating. Miss Cadenhead, with friends, visited at Fort Brady and was walking in the street near the fort when killed. The soldier did not see her. The ball went clear through her head.

Tombstone Inscriptions.

Three of the commonest tombstone inscriptions are "In the midst of life we are in death." "His end was peace," "He tempers the wind to the shorn lamb." The sentiment of each is comforting and consolatory, but none comes from the Bible.

A wonderful happening.

Port Byron, N. Y., has witnessed one of the most remarkable cases of healing ever recorded. Amos King of that city says; "Bucklen's arnica salve cured a sore on my leg with which I had suffered over 80 years. I am now 85 years old." Guaranteed to cure all sores by C. A. $100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's catarrh cure is the only positive cure known to medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's catarrh cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces, destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature. The propietors have so much faith in it that they offer $100 for any case it fails to cure. Send for circ'ars and testimonials.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

All nations are endeavoring to check the ravages of consumption, the "white plague" that claims so many victims each year. Foley's honey and tar cures coughs and colds perfectly and you are in danger of consumption. Do not risk your health by taking some unknown preparation when Foley's Honey and Tar is safe and certain in results. The genuine is in a yellow package. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Do you really enjoy what you eat? Does your food taste good? Do you feel hungry and want more? Or do you have a heavy, dull feeling after meals, sour stomach, belching, gas on the stomach, bad breath, indigestion and dyspepsia? If so, you should take a little Kodol after each meal. Kodol will nourish and strengthen your digestive organs and furnish the natural digestive juices for your stomach. It will make you well. It will make your food do you good. Turn your food into good rich blood. Kodol digests what you eat. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Though we travel the world over to find the beautiful, we must carry it with us, or we find it not.

Was in poor health for years.

Ira W. Kelley of Mansfield, Pa., writes: "I was in poor health for two years, suffering from kidney and bladder trouble, and spent considerable money consulting physicians without obtaining any marked benefit, but was cured by Foley's kidney cure, and I desire to add my testimony that it may be the cause of restoring the health of others. Refuse substitutes. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Life should not be cheap, but sacred.

When there is the slightest indication of indigestion, heart burn, flatulence or any form of stomach trouble take a little Kodol occasionally and you will be afforded prompt relief. Kodol is a compound of vegetable acids and contains the juices found in a healthy stomach. Kodol digests what you eat, makes your food do you good. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Stimulation without irritation.

That is the watchword. That is what Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup does. Cleanses and stimulates the bowels without irritation in any form. For sale by all druggists Tecumseh.

Nearly all old fashioned cough syrups are constipating, especially those that contain opiates. They don't act just right. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup contains no opiates. It drives the cold out of the system by gently moving the bowels. Contains honey and tar and tastes nearly as good as maple syrup. Children like it. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Quick relief for asthma sufferers.

Foley's honey and tar affords immediate relief to asthma sufferers in the worst stages and if taken in time will effect a cure. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

The man who drinks beer is reasonably sure to have something to say of the unhealthful effect of ice cream.

A cleansing, clean, cooling, soothing, healing household remedy is DeWitt's carbolized witch hazel salve. For burns, cuts, scratches, bruises, insect bites and sore feet it is unequaled. Good for piles. Beware of imitations. Get DeWitt's. It is the best. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Itching piles provoke profanity, but profanity won't cure them. Doan's Ointment cures itching, bleeding or protruding piles after years of suffering. At any drug store.

JUST A FARMER

By FRANK H. SWEET

Copyright, 1906, by Frank H. Sweet

"WHAT'S your notion 'bout goin' to town, Sairy?" And Farmer Lish Hopkins paused at the door, his shoulders still humping for a position inside the coat that was beginning to strain across the back. "Suit ye to a T, hey, wouldn't it, Sairy?"

"Well, no. I don't guess so today, Lish," was the placid answer. "It's ben my bakin' day, an' now I've got to black up the stove an' wash the floor. Ye'd have to wait too long for me to git ready."

"Oh, I don't mean today!" with a grin. "I mean move up for good an' all. Sell the farm an' be town folks like the best o' 'em. I'd go into business, an' ye'd be so ye could have comp'ny an' see somebody most every day. I guess we could stand up straight with 'em, hey?"

His wife gazed at him blankly for a moment, then dropped upon a chair, her favorite mode of expressing astonishment.

"Ye don't mean"—

"Yes, I do mean jest that! I've been thinkin' on 't for consider'ble of a spell, an' that letter from Hiram Potter out west sayin' he'd made $40,000 merchandisin' clinched the rivets close up. I've been a fool, Sairy."

"Well," he snorted, with profound self disgust, "for farmin' round here, mebbe. I've cleared off the mortgage an' put $1,000 in the bank an' got together a pretty good head o' stock, but I've been twenty years a-doin' it, Sairy, twenty years, an' I've worked like a dog sixteen hours a day an' more. I wan't goin' to miss anything for lack o' hard work. No, siree. An' now there's Hiram, who wan't thought nigh so smart as me at school, an' Reuben Smith, who keeps the hotel over to the Corners, an' Nathan Taylor, who sells us gros'ries, an' others. All of 'em have been wearin' good clothes right along an' takin' money over their counters in handfuls, an' when there was offices an' honors to be given it was them as was went to."

He drew his cap a little lower down and his collar a little higher up and peered at her through the narrow slit as though expecting some comment. "Suit ye to a T, hey?" he repeated.

She nodded reflectively.

"I dunno but 'twill," she conceded. "I'll miss the chickens an' butter-makin', but they be work, an', then, as ye say, I can see somebody most every day. N-no. I guess I won't mind."

"Course ye won't," he declared. "We'll be town folks an' will have to put on our best bibs an' tuckers every day. Ye'll set on a stuffed cheer talkin' to comp'ny an' takin' in money, an' in the evenin's there'll be a lot gathered round my store talkin' politics an' things, an' they won't cost me a cent for entertainment, like visitors gener'ly do, but will be bringin' me in more money."

"Ye don't suppose there'd be no hitch 'bout—'bout ye doin' it, Lish?" she inquired.

"Hitch?"—indignantly—"when Hiram an' Reuben an' Nathan have all done it an' made money! Well, I guess not. But I'll go an' look round some. Folks in town are gener'ly pretty keen scented on money, an' if they git wind o' my needin' a house to live in an' a store to merchandise in they might think rents ought to be a little higher. I'll look round sort o' casual. But ye're sure ye favor the idee, Sairy? I don't want to go into nothin' that ye couldn't smooth down to."

"Oh, I'll like it all right," she replied placidly. "I'm sure to. Ye needn't bother 'bout that, Lish. I've always hankered to shop without climbin' in an' out a waggin. I'm too hefty. An' say, Lish," raising her voice as he opened the door and let in a rush of air and whirling snow, "be sure an' beat 'em down some."

It was late in the evening when he returned, but from the way the wagon rattled by the house and the unnecessarily loud "Whoa!" which came to her when it reached the barn she felt that something momentous had happened, and this feeling was made a certainty when Lish flung open the door and she saw him trying to straighten his face into an expression of indifference.

"Supper ready, Sairy?" he demanded airily. "I swan, I'm most starved!"

"Ye know it's ready, Lish," she said quietly. "It always is at 7 to a minute. You know it's been gettin' cold jest an hour an' a half. So ye've hired a place?"

"Ye ain't wuth a cent for news, Sairy," he grumbled. "Ye either scent it out miles ahead or take it all for granted. I'd as soon have a stick to tell somethin' to. How'd ye know I've hired a place?"

"Goodness land," scornfully, "it's stickin' out all over ye, Lish! I knowed it by the way the wheels went round when ye went by."

"Don't suppose the wheels told ye what place I hired an' how much I'm to pay an' when we're goin' to move?" he asked.

"No," she confessed, "exceptin' they said ye was consider'bly set up, an' I figgered from that ye'd got the old drug store stand. That's the biggest store in the best part o' the town, an' it is the only one I know on as bein' empty just now."

"Wheels are mighty onreliable things to go by," he declared, "though I did hint sort o' casual 'bout that very identical store. But, law, they wanted $60 a month for it, much as I'd think the place could be wuth for a whole year. I jest laffed. Then I found Wood & Co.'s dry goods store would be empty the 1st of April, an' I went an' looked that over. The drug store folks said their place bein' on the corner made it valuable, an' as Wood & Co. was right in the middle of a block I figgered it might be cheap enough to wait for till April. But I didn't look round much. When they said $50 I jest turned an' walked off."

He stretched himself more comfortably across the chairs and chuckled again.

"Good thing, though," he went on reflectively. "It set me to lookin' round. Now I've got the nicest, quietest an' best place in the whole town, 'cordin' to my notion. There's big shade trees right in front, an' there ain't no rush an' rumblin' o' people an' waggins. Customers can come in an' go out easy an' comfortable-like without no danger o' bein' run over nor nothin'. We can almost make believe we're livin' in the country, Sairy, an' the best o' it is I only pay $10 a month. Deacon Rounds wanted $15, but I beat him down to $10. Ye see, he built the place two years ago an' has never been able to rent it."

"Deacon Rounds' store. Ain't that consider'able way out?"

"Only three streets. Buyers 'll be glad to come that fur jest for the quiet an' comfort'bleness o' the place. Why, we have to go eight miles for our gros'ries an' things. No; it's a bargain, Sairy. Squire Brown's goin' to take the farm an' stock jest as they stand for $3,500. He'll be out tomorrow with the papers. Then we'll move right off. I want to open the store next week."

Her eyes widened a little at this.

"But ye ain't got no stock nor nothin' yet, Lish," she said.

He rubbed his hands gleefully.

"That's all fixed, too, Sairy," he beamed. "I done a gist o' bizness up there. Some folks 'd 'a' took two days for it an' then thought themselves cheated. I had figgered on havin' to go to the city an' mebbe payin' as much as $25 for car fares an' expenses that wouldn't turn me in a cent, but a feller that was showin' samples to Mr. Wood follered me out, an'—an'—well, he got the whole thing from me an' is comin' down next week to show us samples."

"I s'pose ye talked it over with Nathan Taylor fust?" she asked. "He's done bizness there the heft o' his life an' could tell ye consider'ble. An' he's your own fourth cousin an' a schoolmate."

Lish snorted.

"Nathan Taylor! Huh! Don't s'pose he's goin' to encourage opposition, do ye? I did speak to him a little, an' he advised me to take the drug store stand; said it was at the best part o' the bizness street an' on a corner an' that the extra trade would pay the big rent a dozen times over. The idee! I seen in a minute what he was arter. Long's I was bound to go in, he felt the faster I rushed through the money the quicker I'd git out. Why, jest one year's rent would take half a quarter of all we've got! An', more'n that, he said I'd better be pretty careful how I left things to them drummers an' that I ought to go up to the city an' hunt round through the stores fer jest the things I needed an' the best prices. But he didn't say a word 'bout the $25 or more expenses that wouldn't turn me in a cent. Oh, no! He even hinted I'd better hire a bright young man with experience to help in the store."

The next week the drummer was as prompt as his word and came down with an extensive assortment of samples. An entire day was spent with him in the big, empty store, which Sairy had swept and scrubbed with her own hands. At first they were deliberate and circumspect in their buyings, Sairy being for ordering a dress pattern from this and that, a few yards of one ribbon and another, a piece of braid or a cake of fancy soap, and Lish for [illegible] dividing the boxes and packages. But after the drummer had repeatedly assured them that they were purchasing to fill a store and not for their own immediate necessities for a few months ahead they grew bolder and yet bolder, and finally, when a passion for buying had begun to possess them, they ordered from everything shown and toward the end recklessly. After it was all over and the drummer had left they drew long breaths and looked at each other curiously.

"We've bought a sight, Lish," Sairy faltered.

"I should say so," rubbing his chin thoughtfully. "More'n was ever put into a store at one time before, I guess. But it's bizness," brightening up some. "As the feller said, we can't open a store with a yard o' 'lastic."

"No, I s'pose not. But how much do ye think we got, Lish?" her face still anxious.

"I dunno," he confessed slowly, "an' ain't even an idee. I tried to go slow at first an' keep count, but I got off the track. Mebbe a thousand, two thousand, three thousand, though 'tain't likely so much as the last. We've never bought more'n $20 or $30 worth at a time before, an' it's hard to guess. But $2,000 or $3,000 is good for a mighty big pile o' stuff."

The second day the goods came down in boxes and barrels and kegs and bundles and in great square cases that required two men to roll from the freight platform into the wagon. Lish hired a team and a man to help and did all the hauling himself. The next morning the bill came.

Lish opened and looked at it eagerly, then drew a long breath and rubbed his eyes and looked at it again.

He seized his cap and jammed it viciously upon his head and left the store. The village bank was upon the principal street, and the cashier was an old friend. It was upon this bank that Squire Brown had given him a check for $3,500. The cashier happened to be alone.

By this time Lish had regained control of himself. Slipping the invoice into his pocket, he drew out the check and placed it in the cashier's window.

"I'd like that cashed, Mr. White," he said, "an' I want to borry $600 more. Ye know I'm good for it, an' anyhow there's stock enough in the store."

"Oh, that's all right, Mr. Hopkins," laughed the cashier. "I never knew the time when your word wasn't good for $600. But how happens it you need more just now? You were telling me the other day that you only intended to put half the money into goods now and have the rest as a reserve."

He [illegible] the invoice and spread it out [illegible] now. The cashier looked it over [illegible] ously.

"I don't know much about this line of [illegible], Mr. Hopkins," he said at length, "but it seems to me there's a good many things here that won't find much sale. Now, this six dozen door-bells, for instance."

I TOLD YOU TO BRING ARBUCKLES' PACKAGE

Arbuckles' ARIOSA comes in one pound packages only, sealed for your protection to insure your getting the genuine old-fashioned Arbuckles' ARIOSA Coffee everytime.

Be real angry if they send you a substitute, which is not as good and may in time ruin your digestion and nerves.

"The drummer said they were good sellers," ventured Lish.

"Well, perhaps they are," acquiesced the cashier. "Of course I don't know. But about the $600. If I were you I wouldn't hire the money just yet. Drummers have prices that are supposed to cover a generous system. Didn't your man say anything about it?"

"He said I could have thirty or sixty days' time jest as well's not, but I told him I'd rather pay cash."

"Very good, provided you have the money to pay and also provided he allows you a fair discount for paying it. You'd better wait and find that out. Send the firm what money you have and let the six hundred go until the drummer comes round again. You may take in enough by that time to pay him. At any rate, find out his discount for cash, and, if it's more than our interest, come to me and I will let you have the money. Only don't hire unless you're obliged to."

One morning a few weeks later Nathan Taylor entered the store. Lish was looking over his account book, kept with a lead pencil in much the same manner as he had jotted down items while on the farm. Sairy was at another counter, engaged in rubbing her hand back and forth across a few piece of velveteen which had just been taken from the case. Nathan said, "Good morning," and then paused and glanced critically about the store, with evident disapproval in his eyes.

"You've done just what I was afraid of, Lish," he said, at length. "A third of the goods won't sell in all the world. That fellow was too slippery and has loaded you with a lot of unsalable stuff."

Several times during the spring and summer Lish was sorely pressed for money, and more than once he started to the bank, but each time he turned back before reaching there.

But the end did not come until another winter, just one year from the time he had left the farm. Then one day a tall, strongly built man in a heavy coat strode into the room.

"Elisha Hopkins, I suppose?" he interrogated.

"Yes. What can I do for ye?"

The man did not answer. Taking a paper from his pocket, he unfolded it deliberately and read in a slow, ponderous voice for several minutes. Then he looked at the startled figure behind the counter.

"Going to pay it?" he asked.

"Can't jest now," Lish answered weakly.

"I suppose so." He walked to the counter and held out his hand. "I may as well take the key," he said.

Lish nodded toward the door, from the lock of which the key had not been removed. The sheriff went and took it out and then held the door open significantly. Lish realized that it was for him to go out.

How he stumbled across the room and out into the snow and across the yard to his own house he scarcely knew, only that it was a feeling of thankfulness that Sairy had not happened to be in the store.

She was bending over the stove when he entered and sank heavily into a chair.

"Goodness land!" she exclaimed, suddenly straightening up. "What is the matter, Lish?"

"Nothin'"—drearily—"only the sheriff's took the store an' shet me on the outside!"

"What?" She came quickly to his side and placed a hand upon his shoulder. "For money?"

"Yes; twelve hundred."

"An' can't ye pay?"

"No. An' if I could there's most another twelve hundred that'll be asked for soon 's this is known. Mebbe I could raise it all to the bank"—slowly—"but I dunno 's I want to. I'm gettin' tired o' the whole thing."

"But the goods are wuth more'n what we owe, ain't they?"

"Twice as much, 'cordin' to what we paid, but there ain't no knowin' what they'll fetch to auction. Not more'n enough to pay the debts mebbe."

She was silent for some minutes, looking down at him.

"The man Squire Brown rented our farm to has moved away," she said at last hesitatingly, "an' I hear the squire wants to rent ag'in."

Lish looked up quickly.

"An'—an' wouldn't ye mind goin' back, Sairy?" he asked.

"Mind?" she asked. "Oh, Lish, I never did really want to leave the farm!"

He rose sturdily to his feet.

"Then we'll go back," he declared. And there was something that was almost gladness in his face. "I know how to run a farm, an' tryin' to keep a store 's a dog's life anyway."

She Knew "Hamlet."

Every one has a point of view, as a serious minded young Englishwoman found out when she propounded to some working girls a scheme for Shakespeare readings. "Hamlet" was to be the first topic, and she dealt out to the girls some copies and awaited comments. The first came from a girl belonging to that immense army of bookfolders so familiar to all frequenters of working girls' clubs. "Oh, I know this well," she said in a superior tone. "Really?" said the gratified teacher. "Is it your favorite play?" The girl looked at her pityingly. "Lor', I ain't read it!" she chuckled. "We stock 'em at our place. I've 'ad 'undreds through my 'ands. 'Amlet? Sick to death of 'im!"

John Bennett, south side of Logan street.

It was moved and supported that the following resolution be accepted and adopted:

Resolved, that the Common Council of the Village of Tecumseh does hereby require that a new sidewalk be constructed along that portion of the south line of Logan street in this village which lies along and adjoining the north line of this parcel of land situated in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee county and State of Michigan and described as follows:

Bounded on north by Logan street, east by Wyandotte street, south by Hoag lot, west by Holdway lot.

Said walk to be 4 feet in width, on the established grade, of Portland cement, sand and gravel, the portion of cement to be used being not less than one-fourth nor more than one-half of the total material. Said sidewalk to be not less than four inches in thickness and the surface made of clean, sharp sand and said cement at least one inch in thickness.

And the owners and occupants of said lots and premises are hereby required to do the necessary grading therefor and to construct said sidewalk according to the provisions of this resolution, under the supervision of the street commissioner, said walk to be completed within 10 days from personal service, upon the owner or occupant of said described land, of a copy of this resolution; and in case of any default in the construction and completion of said walk, as herein directed, the street commissioner is hereby ordered to have the said walk constructed, and payment thereof shall be required of the owner of said above described land, and the expense thereof assessed and levied upon said land in the same manner as other taxes.

Ayes—Heesen, Slater, Lowry, Sherman, Magers. Nays—none. Carried.

It was moved and supported that the following resolution be accepted and adopted:

Ayes—Heesen, Slater, Lowry, Sherman, Magers. Nays—none. Carried.

It was moved and supported that the following resolution be accepted and adopted:

Resolved, that the Common Council of the Village of Tecumseh does hereby require that a new sidewalk be constructed along that portion of the east line of Pearl street in this village which lies along and adjoining the west line of this parcel of land situated in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee county and State of Michigan and described as follows:

Bounded west by Pearl street, north by Snell lot, east by Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway Company's property, south by Rowland lot.

Said walk to be 4 feet in width, on the established grade, of Portland cement, sand and gravel, the portion of cement to be used being not less than one-fourth nor more than one-half of the total material. Said sidewalk to be not less than four inches in thickness and the surface made of clean, sharp sand and cement at least one inch in thickness.

And the owners and occupants of said lots and premises are hereby required to do the necessary grading therefor and to construct said sidewalk according to the provisions of this resolution, under the supervision of the street commissioner, said walk to be completed within 10 days from personal service, upon the owner or occupant of said described land, a copy of this resolution; and in case of any default in the construction and completion of said walk, as herein directed, the street commissioner is hereby ordered to have the said walk constructed, and payment thereof shall be required of the owner of said above described land, and the expense thereof assessed and levied upon said land in the same manner as other taxes.

Ayes—Heesen, Slater, Lowry, Sherman, Magers. Nays—none. Carried.

It was moved and supported that the following resolution be accepted and adopted:

Resolved, that the deed from Albert D. Lawrence and Hettie W. Lawrence of a parcel of land in this village, described and bounded by beginning at the northwest corner of lot five, block two, of Hoag's addition, and running thence north in west line of said block twelve rods more or less to the south line of land owned by Osborne; thence west in south line of said Osborne land four rods to east line of block three of said addition; thence south in east line of said block twelve rods more or less to a point due west from said point of beginning; and thence east four rods to place of beginning, for the purposes of a public street of this village to be known as Van Buren street, be and is hereby accepted for such purpose; that said deed be placed upon record in the office of the Register of Deeds for Lenawee county; that the lands so deeded be and are hereby dedicated to the use of the public as such street as aforesaid under the name aforesaid; and that the Common Council of this village hereby assumes jurisdiction over said land as such street.

Ayes—Heesen, Slater, Lowry, Sherman, Magers. Nays—none. Carried.

It was moved and supported that the matter of a village pound be referred to the Committee on Public Grounds and Buildings with authority to act on the same and make some arrangement in this matter in the near future. Carried.

It was moved and supported that the following resolution be accepted and adopted:

Resolved, that Ira B. Rogers be, and is hereby, appointed night watchman for the period of three months from and after this date, at a salary of fifty dollars per month, with the powers of a deputy marshal, or peace officer, who shall, under the direction of the Committee on Fire and Fire Limits and the supervision of the Marshal, patrol the village outside the business portion, and giving attention to the parks, public and depot grounds, at least three times between the hours of 9 p. m. and 6 a. m.; shall keep strict account of the time each street lamp shall not be alight and make report thereof at each council meeting; and shall perform such other duties consistent with such position as may be required of him.

J. N. Buchanan of Reading, had a narrow escape on the Fourth. He was pumping oil from a car into a tank at the station, the pump being operated by horse power. He was seated on a keg in the center of the sweep and was driving the horse when he lost his balance and fell into the pit, where he was caught by the gearing and would have been decapitated had another man not ran to the rescue and stopped the horse. Mr. B. was badly cut and bruised, some of his teeth were knocked out and the back of his head was cut and had the machine been allowed to run a moment longer would have been crushed.—Hudson Post.

Alice Stark, 5 years old, was run over by a bicycle in Blissfield last week. Her face was cut and she was bruised and at first was supposed to be seriously injured but she has since improved nicely.—Hudson Post.

Eighteenth Century Life.

These brief extracts from the letters of Elizabeth Montagu, the "queen of the bluestockings," throws a curious light on eighteenth century life in England. She was suffering from a swelled lip. Promptly the great Dr. Mead prescribed a blister to her back. She writes: "I am better than I was; but, my mouth not being yet perfectly reduced, I have got a fresh blister upon my back. Well may it bend with such a weight of calamities. I have sent for my bathing cloathes and on Sunday night shall take a souze. I think it a pleasant remedy." Apparently in 1741 a lady could not take a bath even on Sunday night and in the privacy of her chamber without her "bathing cloathes." Mrs. Montagu writes again: "My lip is not entirely reduced, though I have been blistered twice, once blooded, and have five times taken physic, have lived upon chicken and white meats and drank nothing but water. I have suffered great disappointment about the warm bath which I am advised to try, for the bathing tubs are so out of order that we have not yet been able to make them hold water."

Highest Observatory In the World.

The highest scientific station in the world belongs to Harvard. It stands on the summit of Mount Misti, an extinct volcano near Arequipa, in southern Peru. The altitude of this station is 19,200 feet. No one lives at the station. No one could live there. The air is too rare and too cold. The barometer on the top of Misti often stands at fourteen inches. The thermometer often falls to 25 degrees below zero. Once a month an observer climbs up to the station to take the readings of the instruments. He is two days climbing up and two days climbing down.

Another Story.

An aged Scotch minister, about to marry for the fourth time, was explaining his reason to an elder. "You see, I am an old man now, and I canna expect to be here verra lang. When the end comes I wad like to have some one to close my eyes." The elder nodded and said, "Awell, meenister, I have had twa wives, and baith of them opened mine."—London News.

"What's the matter with the man in the second story of this house? The doctor's been coming here regularly for the past three months!"

"Oh, he's the doctor's best patient. He doesn't get well and he doesn't die!"—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Logic in Rags.

"I fine you $15 for being a vagrant," said the judge. "Have you the money to pay the fine?"

"Your honor," said the man plaintively, "if I had $15 I wouldn't be fined as a vagrant."

In a collision between a railroad speeder and the fast Wolverine special, Wm. Lapius of Jackson, was instantly killed on the Michigan Central, Saturday afternoon. The fatal accident occurred one mile west of Leoni curve. The curve at this place is so abrupt that the engineer had no time to stop his train after he caught sight of the speeder and its passenger. The deceased had charge of the switch lamps from Jackson to Dexter and was making his usual trip over the road at the time of the accident. His father was killed in a railway accident about 18 years ago. The mother of the deceased is a resident of Ypsilanti.—Chelsea Standard Herald.

The Hagenbeck-Wallace combined shows do not contain all the animal freaks in the world. This morning a five legged calf, 7 weeks old, was bought by Livernois & Wellbrook, the West Washington street market men. The youngster had a fifth leg projecting out from the shoulder joint of the right fore leg. It is just a bit shorter than the other four and does not help or hinder the animal in moving about, which is as sprightly as any of his kind who are possessed of only four legs. The calf has attracted much attention today and has been sold to Haas and Heibein, who will put it on exhibition in their show window tomorrow.—Ann Arbor Times.

The charming woman.

Is not necessarily one of perfect form and features. Many a plain woman who could never serve as an artist's model possesses those rare qualities that all the world admires, neatness, clear eyes, a smooth skin and that sprightliness of step that accompany good health. A physically weak woman is never attractive. Electric Bitters restore weak women, give strong nerves, bright eyes, velvety skin, beautiful complexion. Guaranteed at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store 50c.

No one ever takes a real good look at a horrible example.

Coffee Value

If you are paying 25c a pound for coffee, you ought to be enjoying good cup quality. The price you pay does not fix the quality you receive; different sellers give different qualities for the money.

LOWRY'S BLEND at 25c the pound, is a little bit better for the money. Years of experimenting has fixed our standard high and this coffee is now no experiment. Its increasing sale together with its ever repeating orders from old time users, is mighty convincing proof that it contains everything in the quality line that is claimed for it.

You are the judge. We ask your consideration of the evidence contained in a cup of this delicious coffee.

Don't "get along" with a coffee that doesn't suit your taste, because you think it is as good as you ought to expect for the money. Make your next order for LOWRY'S 25c BLEND.

Your money back if you are not satisfied.

Long live the king!

Is the popular cry throughout European countries, while in America the cry is "long live Dr. King's New Discovery, king of throat and lung remedies!" of which Mrs. Julia Payne, Muro, Mass., writes "It never fails to give immediate relief or to quickly cure a cough or cold." Mrs Payne's opinion is shared by many of the people of this country. New Discovery cures weak lungs and sore throat after all other remedies have failed and for coughs and colds it's the only sure cure. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright, & Son, druggists. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

BASE BALL.

Kazoos winning streak was badly bent in the game Sunday afternoon with Tecumseh, the Indians winning after 6 innings in a brizzly rain by 6 to 2.

Kalamazoo's playing was featureless, while Doty pitched winning ball. Taylor was bumped for seven hits and his backing was far from being up to the average. It appeared as though Kalamazoo would make it the fifth succession game from Tecumseh from the way things started out in the first. Andrew hit safely and Blake got first on fielders choice. Furlong singled and stole second. Hale sacrificed scoring both men. No more runs were made.

Tecumseh scored one run in the second, third and fourth. A wild heave, a base on balls and clever base running secured three runs for Tecumseh in the sixth. Merkle was hit and Preston reached first on a fielder's choice. Somerlott hit safely, scoring Merkle. Preston came home on a wild pitch, and Merkle scored on a fielder's choice. Tecumseh had men on bases in the first of the 7th, when Umpire O'Toole called the game because of rain.

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6.

Runs, Merkle 2, Preston 2, Somerlott, Doty, 6; Andrews, Miller 2; first base on balls, off Doty 3, off Taylor 1; struck out, by Doty 1, by Taylor 1; left on bases, Tecumseh 7, by Kalamazoo 7; wild pitch, Taylor; hit by pitched ball, Merkle; stolen bases, Hale 2, Miller, Preston, Merkle; time 1:25; umpire, O'Toole; attendance 2,640.

Coldwater's team was defeated yesterday afternoon by Tecumseh by a score of 4 to 0. Tecumseh got four runs in the 2nd inning. This is the first shutout for Coldwater this season. Batteries: Coldwater, Latham, Delong and Beard; Tecumseh, Railing and Mitchell. Railing struck out nine men and gave one base on balls. Latham pitched two innings, striking out one man and giving one base on balls. Delong pitched seven innings and struck out five men. Tecumseh made eleven hits and one error. Coldwater had no hits and two errors. Attendance 600.

BASE BALL NOTES.

LADIES' BANNER DAY.

Several of the lady base ball fans of Tecumseh are thinking of making Monday, as this is the day Flint plays against Tecumseh on local grounds, a ladies' banner day. Flint and Tecumseh have both had rather of a hard time as the attendance at both towns has been small. Flint has been near the bottom of the heap for a long time and Tecumseh although at the top, has nearly all the other town in the league constantly fighting against them. It is desired that every lady who is fond of base ball attend the Flint-Tecumseh game next Monday. Admission to ladies 25c.

Resolutions.

Resolutions passed by the unanimous vote of Macon Grange No. 167, July '07.

Whereas, the loving Father has permitted the pearly gates to swing open to admit to the society of angels and the just made perfect, our loved brother and friend, Isaiah Hendershot.

Resolved, that to the wife and loved ones, we would offer our heartfelt sympathy in this their time of deepest sorrow and would commend them to the care of one who will never forsake them and they may love their dear one still, though he be removed from the family circle.

Resolved that we deeply sympathize with his wife and friends who have been called to part with a loved one, and that we earnestly beseech the great Father to grant them the consolation they so much need.

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our records, one sent to the bereaved family and the same be printed in the Tecumseh HERALD and Michigan Patron, also that our charter be draped for 30 days.

CATARRH CAN BE CURED.

Many people who have suffered with catarrh for years naturally feel that the disease cannot be cured and become discouraged.

Their failure to get relief is, that they have not used the right remedy. Catarrh is an affection of the head, throat and lungs and cannot be cured by stomach dosing.

The only scientific treatment for this disease is Hy-o-mei which is breathed through a pocket inhaler so that its healing and medicated air reaches the the most remote air cells, kills all catarrh germs and restores the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs to a healthy condition.

Hy-o-mei is the only cure for catarrh that has ever been sold with the understanding that it was to cost absolutely nothing unless it cured. C. A. Wright sells Hy-o-mei in this way and is always ready to refund the money if it does not relieve and cure catarrh.

The healing and antiseptic balsams of Hy-o-mei perform their purpose to perfection and using this remedy a few times each day you can soon cure yourself of any catarrhal troubles.

A complete Hy-o-mei outfit consists of a bottle of Hy-o-mei and an inhaler for $1.00.

The good times that have been so long coming must be here since watches cost only $1.

ROUND ABOUT US.

Wm. Rogers met with a painful accident Wednesday noon, the mules he was driving getting beyond his control in some manner, he was thrown to the ground and his collar bone was broken. Dr. Tuttle, Jr., was called and is now in attendance.—Clinton Courier.

Saturday at midnight the old Rice hotel and the Grandy drug store, in Fairfield, were discovered to be on fire, and although every effort was made to save the buildings, they were entirely destroyed. The loss is almost total, the only insurance being $500 on the drug store.—Hudson Post.

He didn't have a dollar, he didn't have a dime, his clothes and shoes looked as though they had served their time. He didn't try to kill himself to dodge misfortune's whacks. Instead he got some ashes and he filled five dozen sacks. Then next he begged a dollar. In the paper in the morn he advertised tin polish that would put the sun to scorn. He kept on advertising and just now, and suffice to say he's out in California at his cottage on the bay.—Mecca Herald.

The village of Clayton over on the west side of the county was visited by a fire Wednesday that at one time threatened to destroy the whole town. The whole populace turned out and by hard work finally succeeded in getting control of the fire after about $3,000 worth of damage had been done. As they were lucky enough to have $2,000 insurance the loss was not so bad after all. The fire was caused by the explosion of two barrels of roof paint.—Clinton Local.

Rev. A. K. Hall arrived from Port Huron on Tuesday to take up his work as rector of All Saints church of this place, and St. Michael and All Angels church at Cambridge. Mrs. Hall and daughter are expected Saturday The Brooklyn rectory is being wired for lights one of which will be a beautiful reading lamp, the gift of a class of young men at Port Huron presented on the eve of Rev. Hall's departure.—Brooklyn Exponent.

The East Side school board met and reorganized Monday night. J. Marshall is president, R. McWilliams, secretary and C. E. Howland treasurer. Mr. Stein the retiring secretary, has served the board in that capacity for some 9 years and has given good faithful service during test time. His business interests at Adrian render it impossible for him to serve longer and he is certainly entitled to the thanks of the district for efficient service rendered.—Blissfield Advance.

Talking of stingy folks, a man in this town one time subscribed some money for the church. He was a member alright but he was what some folks call a little "near." So in a few days he met the preacher and told him he would like to see the subscription, for said he "I subscribed some money for the church, I am afraid I got the wrong figure down first, I meant to set down 25 cents and I got the 2 last instead of first." The preacher hurried from his presence for fear he would say something not down in the book of rules.—Ex.

"All things come to them that wait." The people of Carleton have long been needing a new school building and, have proposed a special election for the purpose of voting funds for the building of the same, but the oppositition was strong and the matter has been deferred During the electrical storm Wednesday the school house was struck by lightning and the building damaged to the amount of several hundred dollars. The new building proposition will now probably be brought to a focus.—Dundee Reporter.

DON'T DIE AT 45.

Cure the indigestion which is so liable to lead to apoplexy.

Rush of business, eating too fast and too much, excesses of any kind, soon result in indigestion. Then when the digestive organs cannot care for the food properly the coats of the blood vessels in the brain get little nourishment, become brittle and finally yield to the fierce blood pressure. One is then said to have a "shock," to be paralyzed, or to die from apoplexy.

People suffering with headache, giddiness, palpitation, sleeplessness, bad taste in the mouth, drowsiness, coated tongue, distress after eating, specks before the eyes and any other of the many distressing results of a weakened stomach, should profit by the discovery of Mi-o-na stomach tablets.

In recent years the greatest advance in medicine has been in the study of diseases of digestion and nutrition and no other prescription has proven itself of as much value as Mi-o-na. It is relied upon as a certainty today in relieving the worst troubles of digestion and assimilation and making a complete cure.

The strongest proof that can be offered in substantiation of the claims that Mi-o-na will cure the worst forms of stomach trouble, cancer excepted, and give immediate relief in indigestion is the guarantee that C. A. Wright gives with every 50-cent box of Mi-o-na to refund the money unless Mi-o-na cures. A guarantee like this must inspire confidence in Mi-o-na. C. A. Wright takes the whole risk and the remedy will not cost you a penny unless it cures.

for it hastens recovery by creating strength

There is just nothing the matter with a person who has been sick—that is, weakness.

To all such people in this vicinity we recommend our delicious cod liver preparation, Vinol, as the very best strength creator for convalescents

Vinol strengthens the digestive organs, creates an appetite, promotes sound sleep, makes rich, red blood, and builds up a depleted sytem to health and vigor.

This is because Vinol contains all the medicinal elements of cod liver oil with the useless oil eliminated and tonic iron added. We guarantee it.

WEAK KIDNEYS MAKE WEAK BODIES.

As one weak link weakens a chain so bad kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking down.

Strain, colds and other causes injure the kidneys and when their activity is lessened the body suffers from uric poison circulated in the blood.

Aches, pains, languor and urinary ills come with an increasing tendency towards diabetes and Bright's disease. There is no real help except by using Doan's Kidney Pills. Tecumseh cures are proof.

John Smith, deputy sheriff, living on East Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have suffered a great deal of pain in the small of my back, through the loins and about the kidneys and when an attack was on it was all I could do to attend to my heavy work on a large farm. On bending over I would be dizzy and spots of fire would flash before my eyes, at night I was restless. I doctored a great deal and used many kidney remedies but received no permanent benefit. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and the statements were so convincing that I tried them. I felt much benefit after taking the first box and thus encouraged I continued until cured. I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all suffering with kidney trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other.

Killed Himself in Central Park.

New York, July 23.—A. ansing Baird, 45 years old, a lawyer, and until recently manager of the uptown branch of Brown, Ryan & Williams, brokers, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head while sitting under a tree in Central Park Monday. Baird had been missing for three months and recently the police had searched for him with a warrant charging that he had passed several worthless checks.

May Have Been Kidnaped.

Port Huron, Mich., July 22, 1907.—Maud Johnson, aged 11, has been missing from her home, 2603 Military street, since Saturday afternoon. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Johnson and a very pretty girl. Saturday afternoon Mrs. Johnson went shopping leaving Maud at home, and returned at 5 o'clock to find the child missing. It is feared she has been kidnaped and the police are at work in the case.

McClelland Exonerated.

Grand Haven, Mich., July 23.—The coroner's jury impaneled to view the bodies of the victims of the Sunday Polkton tragedy, Monday rendered a verdict to the effect that all came to their death at the hands of Henry Scutcheon and that his death was due to self-inflicted wounds. Harry McClelland, the neighboring farmer who shot Scutcheon, was completely exonerated.

When Dogs Were Cooks.

"There was a time," said the antiquarian, "when dogs did our roasting for us—at least they kept the meat turning so it would not burn. 'Spit dogs' they were called, and we call their descendants 'spitz' to this day. Spit dogs were trained to turn the spits on which roasted chickens, beef, ducks and turkeys. The little fellows did their work well. They were never known to let a fowl burn or to snatch a mouthful or two from it. As late as 1816 spit dogs were employed in the old Philadelphia inns on Second and Third streets."

The Servant Question.

The proud millionaire entered his garage haughtily. "Francois," he said, "you took out the new sixty horsepower again last night without permission. I'm afraid I'll have to get another chauffeur."

"I wish you would, sir," Francois answered. "With those four big cars there's quite enough work for two of us."—New York Press.

Historic New York.

New York city has more points of historical interest than any other city on the continent, there being scores of them, extending from Fort Amsterdam, where the new custom house stands, at the Battery, on the south, to Fort George, Fort Washington and the Van Cortlandt manor house on the north.

Equalized.

The larynx of man is twice the size on an average of the same organ in woman, although this disproportion is equalized by the fact that woman uses her larynx a little more than twice as much as man.

English Men and Women.

Englishwomen are inherently shy, and half the bad manners with which we are credited as a nation is the result of this shyness. Englishmen suffer from it to the same extent; only in their case shyness is merely self consciousness and part and parcel of an immense conceit.—London Ladies' Field.

Wit in the Workbasket.

"What's the old lady doing now?" asked the stocking.

"Getting a needle and wool," replied the thimble.

Literary Coincidence.

Resemblance does not always mean plagiarism. There was no plagiarism, certainly, in Newman's line, "The night is dark, and I am far from home," though it has been pointed out that it almost exactly reproduces a line in a play printed in 1590. This play is "Two Angry Women of Abington," by Henry Porter, and the original line runs, "'Tis late and dark, and I am far from home."

Kept His Word.

"Be mine!" he cried in a voice surcharged with anguish. "If you refuse me I shall die!"

But the heartless girl refused him. That was sixty years ago. Yesterday he died.

KILLED HIM IN STREET.

Armenian From Chicago Shoots Down Rich Countryman in New York.

New York, July 23.—As he stepped out on the sidewalk from his store on East 17th street near Union Square Monday, Hochaness Tavshanjian, a wealthy rug importer and Persian commissioner to the Chicago's world's fair in 1893, was shot from behind and almost instantly killed. The assassin, a shabbily dressed Armenian, who was arrested after a chase of several blocks, declared, according to the police, that he came here from Chicago especially to kill the merchant. The prisoner described himself as Beros Hampartzoomian, 24 years old, of 41 Archer street, Chicago. Later, however, he said he might be mistaken in the Chicago address.

According to the police, the prisoner declared that he killed Tavshanjian because the merchant refused to contribute for the financing of a revolution in Armenia against Turkish rule. "I killed him to save my country," the man told the police. "We asked him for money. He had plenty; he would give nothing. Yesterday I came from Chicago; I met him, and talked with him. He said 'No, no,' many times; he would give no money to us ——— his countrymen."

The shooting occurred at a busy hour of the day in the heart of the crowded shopping district and caused much excitement.

Mark Twain Returns Home.

New York, July 23.—Samuel L. Clemens, (Mark Twain), came back to this country bringing with him a degree of doctor of laws, recently conferred upon him by Oxford university in England, and some brand new jokes. Mr. Clemens was an arrival late Monday afternoon on board the steamship Minnetonka from London. Regarding the accounts in the English newspapers of the disappearance of the Ascot cup on the day of his arrival in England, Mr. Clemens told the reporters, laughingly, that he had the Ascot cub aboard. He firmly stated that he had nothing to do with the robbery of the Dublin crown jewels.

Met a Horrible Death.

Pittsburg, July 22.—Oliver P. Benson, 51 years old, one of the best known iron rollers in the country, met a horrible death at the Carnegie Steel Co., Braddock. Benson was standing in front of the rolls when a huge steel rail, red-hot, came out of the rollers and passed through his body. Death was almost instantaneous.

Jewelers Protect Patrons.

"The general public is not aware of the carefully worked out system by which the large jewelry houses continue to protect their splendid wares long after these have been sold and passed out of their hands," said a detective, discussing daring modern burglaries. "Most large establishments dealing in precious metals and gems have a carefully organized and very efficient detective system, which makes it easy for a patron to recover stolen goods without charge and with little or no delay in the institution of the search. In the safes of these large jewel houses are minute descriptions of every piece of valuable jewelry which goes out from the establishment. Each piece is numbered too. When the gems are missed the patron telephones the shop in which the articles were purchased. At once a special detective, thoroughly acquainted with the business in hand and armed with a detailed description of the jewelry, is hurried to the scene of action. This is without expense to the client."—New York Press.

A Wonderful Grasshopper.

The number of astonishing and often absurd blunders perpetrated by translators is without limit. The first man to translate Cooper's novel, "The Spy" into French made numerous errors, among which are these: When the translator came to the word "Locusts," which was the name of the Whartons' residence in the story, he turned to his dictionary and found the rendering of the word to be "Les Sauterelles" (the grasshoppers). He was a trifle puzzled later when he came to the passage in which a dragoon was represented as tying his horse to one of the locusts on the lawn. He had never been in America; but, taking it for granted that the grasshoppers of that country must be of tremendous size, he solemnly informed his readers that the trooper fastened his horse by the bridle to a

Suffering

Will Not Help Your Disease, but Will Weaken Your Nerves.

Folks who think it is better to bear pain than soothe it—are wrong.

Old-fashioned doctors used to say it was better, because they had nothing with which to ease pain but dangerous, heart-paralyzing drugs.

But now, that a safe remedy has been found, Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, it is wrong to suffer, for nothing can be gained but weakened nerves.

A safe rule to remember is: When in pain, take an Anti-Pain Pill.

This will soothe your quivering nerves.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills relieve pain by restoring the natural secretions, in which they differ from opium and similar narcotic drugs, which relieve pain by checking the action of the glands.

They are sure and harmless, and are the latest medical treatment for the cure of Headache, Neuralgia, Backache, Rheumatism, Dizziness, Toothache, Stomachache, Menstrual (Monthly) Pains. Also nerve irritations like Sea-Sickness, Car-Sickness, Sleeplessness, Indigestion, etc.

Pleasant to take, quick in results.

"I have used Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for sick, nervous headache, and have received the best results. I heartily recommend their curative properties, for they are successful."—REV. RAY A. WATROS, D. D., Iowa City, Ia.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Robert P. Robertson, aged 32 years, of Prescott was united in marriage here Saturday to Mrs. Margaret McLaughlin, aged 79 years.

A passenger car bound east on the Ypsi-Ann interurban line, Sunday forenoon, collided with a construction car between Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti, and four on the passenger car were hurt. One of the four was Rev. Joseph E. Ryerson, Methodist minister at Chelsea.

J. B. Mills of Prescott owns perhaps more land than any one individual in the state of Michigan. He located there in the '80s with mercantile stock, and today he owns 10,000 acres here, 12,000 in Burleigh township, Iosco county, 15,000 in Montmorency county, and some in Arenac and Lapeer counties.

East Jordan is to have a mammoth iron furnace and chemical works that will employ from 400 to 500 men the year around. P. B. Baird of Buffalo; Charles H. Shaffer, of Marquette, and W. H. Matthews and W. S. Shaw of Boyne, are behind the move. The plant is to cost $600,000 and work on it is to be started at an early date.

During the severest thunderstorm of the season Sunday evening, lightning struck the barn of Reynolds Hoag at Lacota, killing on horse and wrecking the inside of the building. Mrs. Hoag ran to the barn, where she was struck senseless by a second stroke. It is thought she will recover. The storm caused great damage to grain, now being harvested.

Sunday night a fierce storm wrought great damage in the country about Niles, leveling to the ground the growing corn, oats, wheat and hay. Basements were flooded in the business part of town. The electric lighting system was put out of business. Such a flood has not been known in years.

Jared Downer, 65 years old, of Vassar is dead. He was serving his twenty-fifth consecutive year as justice of the peace.

Mines Are Shut Down.

Duluth, Minn., July 23.—Practically all the mines of the United States Steel corporation on the ranges are closed down as a result either of the strike of the dock laborers in Duluth and Two Harbors, or of the men employed in the mines. The only violence reported occurred at Mountain Iron, where 500 strikers congregated and poured oil over a pile of 5,000 fence posts belonging to the company, set fire to them. A newly formed union of dock laborers in Duluth met Monday and appointed a committee with power to arbitrate differences with steel company officials.

Every time a woman makes a fool of a wise man he simply charges it up to experience and lets it go at that.

Thousands of people are daily suffering with kidney and bladder troubles—dangerous ailments that should be checked promptly. DeWitt's kidney and bladder pills are the best remedy for backache, weak kidneys, inflammation of the bladder. Their action is prompt and sure. A week's treatment for 25c. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

During the summer kidney irregularities are often caused by excessive drinking or by over heated. Attend to the kidneys at once by using Foley's Kidney Cure. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

"Mr. R. S. Bell, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says:—"I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

GUARDING THE DEAD.

Three Wyandotte Squaws Carefully Guard Cemetery.

GOVERNMENT WOULD SELL IT

Conley Sisters Declare They Will Shoot First Person Who Attempts to Remove Body of One of Illustrous Ancestors.

Kansas City, July 26.—Helen, Ida and Lida Conley, Wyandotte Indians, began an armed guard Thursday over the graves of their ancestors in Huron cemetery in Kansas City, Kas., recently ordered sold by the government. The sisters threaten to shoot the first person who may attempt to remove bodies.

Congress authorized the sale of the cemetery, set aside for years as a tribal burying ground, and a division of the money among the remaining members of the Wyandottes, first removing the bodies. The Conley sisters say they will not permit the graves to be touched, and they have begun the erection of a shanty near the cemetery. Miss Helen, who was superintending the building, said:

"From this time on, one of we three sisters will be here in the day time. At night all three of us will sleep here and guard. In this cemetery are buried 100 of our ancestors. The blood of the ancient royalty of France flows in my veins. My grandfather owned the whole state of Ohio. Why should we not be proud of our ancestors and protect their graves. We shall do it, and woe be to the man that first attempts to steal a body."

"We shall keep right on asking bids on the property," said H. B. Durant, chairman of the government commission which is trying to sell the cemetery. "The government is behind us."

Troops Won't Be Called Out.

Duluth, July 26.—Unless conditions attending the strike of ore miners become more aggravated than they are at present, state troops will not be called to the Mesaba range. This was decided by Gov. J. A. Johnston Thursday after an inspection of conditions at Hibbing, Virginia and Eveleth, the three principal towns in the strike area. At Hibbing, the governor met Teofil Petriella, manager of the strike for the Western Federation of Miners, as well as a number of city officers and strike committeemen.

Women Loot Emperor's Palace.

Seoul, July 26.—The Kwan ant hill has been stirred to the very cellar by the former emperor's second pledge of abdication. A wave of great excitement crept over the whole peninsula Thursday when the new agreement with Japan was announced and the emperor's proclamation published in the provinces. All the privileged old ladies attached to the court arrived in crowds at the palace, condoling, weeping, wailing and incidentally carrying away in their customary loose clothing everything detachable and portable. The palace was looted of all possible souvenirs.

Holds Up Twine Plant Funds.

Lansing, Mich., July 26.—Atty.-Gen. Bird has handed out a formal opinion advising the auditor-general to wait for a supreme court decision, and not to O. K. any expenditures from the fund of $17,000 granted by act of the last legislature for thep urpose of financing a binder twine plant in Jackson prison. The money was to instal the plant and buy raw material. The reason for the attorney-general's opinion is found in the defect discovered in the law after it was signed by Gov. Warner. The title of the bill carried the figures $175,000, but a clerk in transcribing the bill made it read $175.

Runyan Remanded for Sentence.

New York, July 26.—Chester B. Runyan, the paying teller of the Windsor Trust Co., who recently defaulted with $100,000 of the company's funds, came into court, pleaded guilty to the indictment charging him with grand larceny and was remanded for sentence. His council urged that no date be fixed for sentence, as Runyan desired a few days to attend to some personal affairs before being sentenced.

Peary to Start Soon.

New York, July 26.—Commander Robert E. Perry, who has practically completed arrangements for his fifth dash for the North Pole, has determined to succeed this time or give up the quest forever. He has extreme confidence that this time he will place the American flag at the magnetic point. Peary hopes to sail for the north within the next 10 days.

THE LAST ARGUMENT

Famous Haywood Trial Drawing to Close.

COURT ROOM IS CROWDED.

Senator Borah Makes Final Speech in Behalf of Prosecution — Does Not Hesitate to Attack Darrow's Final Argument for Defense.

Boise, Ida., July 26.—The case of the state of Idaho against Wm. D. Haywood, charged with the murder of Frank Steunenberg, a former governor of the state will rest with judge and jury by night.

Clarence Darrow, after speaking for 11 hours, concluded the final plea for Haywood's life at 4:20 p. m. Thursday, and at 7 o'clock in the evening United States Senator Borah opened the closing argument for the prosecution. He will speak for three sessions or about seven hours.

Judge Wood will instruct the jury on Saturday morning.

One thousand people were unable to find seats in the court room last night. Two hours before the hour set for the third session of the day, crowds began to arrive, and within half an hour the doors were closed to all but court officials and newspaper men. It was an audience composed almost entirely of Boise people gathered to hear the speech of the young man who, recently elected by the people of Idaho to represent them in the United States senate, has been the assistant counsel for the prosecution in the case against Haywood.

Steunenberg's Widow There.

Mrs. Steunenberg, the widow of the murdered governor, appeared in the court room for the first time since the trial ope[illegible] seat inside the railing beside her youngest son, Julian. Governor Gooding, with a number of the executive staff and a large representation of the state judiciary and bar, were among the audience. Haywood was surrounded by his counsel and his wife, in her invalid chair, was as usual by his side.

"I am aware," said Senator Borah, "that I am in this case as a special prosecutor. The learned counsel on the other side has impressed this fact upon you. But let me say that the state which does not protect its citizens or punish wrong-doers would soon lose the respect of its people and have no standing in our civilization.

"But counsel has gone further with my associate. Why they should attack Mr. Hawley, who went fearlessly into the investigation of this matter; why they should assail in a personal way, a man who has practiced law in his community for forty years and whose loyalty, whose honesty, has never been questioned, I do not know. It is usually thought sufficient to attack a man's argument, and do away with his logic; but, running through this case is an attack upon every one high or low, who has had anything to do with, or been in any way associated with, the investigation of the crime of December 30, 1905."

Puts It Up to Jury.

Senator Borah declared the state did not want Haywood convicted of any crime for which Orchard or Pettibone or Moyer or Simpkins or anybody else was responsible, and desire a verdict of guilty only if the evidence was deemed sufficient to warrant such a conclusion.

The senator denounced Clarence Darrow's statement that the jurors' minds had been poisoned against the defendants in this case. "No where," he declared, "could a fairer trial be had than in Boise."

"We are not here fighting organized labor," he said. "Neither are we here to consent that organized labor shall be a shield to crime. This is not an industrial war, as my eloquent friend of the defense would have you believe. We are not arraying class against class, or one phase of society against another. This is not a battle of the rich against the poor, or the poor against the rich. We are here in the interest of law, of justice, of fairness. That is all."

Senator Borah here plunged directly into the assassination of Steunenberg. He declared Orchard had planted a bomb, as he had done many times before. He was an old and experienced criminal; and he was not alone in the commission of the crime.

WON'T PLACE BLAME

Superintendent Trump Would Rather Jury Do That.

WRECK INQUEST CONTINUES.

Three Witnesses Declare Order No. 3 Model of Clearness and Neatness—Conductor Hamilton Was Warned Not to Try to Make Salem.

Northville, Mich., July 26.—General Superintendent William D. Trump, after the manner of a man to whom discipline is everything, was on the stand all Thursday afternoon at the Salem wreck inquest, and steadily refused to admit that the dispatching department could make any allowance for the personal equation in the execution of train orders on the road, while he just as steadily insisted that when it came to operators who might or might not have been careless the personal equation ought to always be taken into account.

Assistant Prosecutor Robison has not been satisfied with any of the stories told by the railroad officials, and he frankly told General Superintendent Trump so.

It will be recalled that Dispatcher Bonsell frankly said that he considered the freight crew's copy of the order No. 3 a most carelessly copied order and accused the operator at Plymouth of great neglect. But when Trainmaster E. E. Cain, General Manager Trump and Yardmaster Romoser took the stand they all said with one accord that the order was a model of clearness and neatness and expressed the greatest surprise that anyone should regard it otherwise. Trump was especially high in his praise of the order.

Not Regular Crew.

It was learned from Mr. Trump that Engineer Alvord, who pulled the special passenger train in which 33 lives were lost, was not a regular passenger engineer and that Conductor Pixley was a regular freight conductor running extra as a passenger man.

Mr. Trump was asked if the presence of non-employes on the train was not a violation of the new railroad law. He replied that as the train ran only in the state it could no come under the interstate commerce commission's provisions, while the Michigan law relating to passes did not go into effect until 1908. He added that most of the non-employes who were riding had taken advantage of the generosity of the company.

Trump stated that the coaches that made up the excursion train were of the lighter class of equipment—"the kind used in regular excursion business," he said.

"Are not those cars the most liable to suffer in a collision?"

"Not necessarily."

"Why?"

"Light Cars Safer," Says Trump.

"Well, I consider that the fact that the excursion train was composed of light equipment saved many lives. If the cars had been composed of heavy material the momentum would have been so great that a greater pile-up would have resulted and more lives lost."

"Can you place the blame, according to your own judgment, for this accident?"

"I prefer the jury to do that."

"Has Operator Cassidy told you he tried to stop Hamilton from going out of Plymouth with his train?"

"Yes, Cassidy told me that when Conductor Hamilton got his orders Cassidy turned to him and said, 'You haven't time to make Salem. The special is due there at 9:10.' Cassidy said that Hamilton didn't answer. Hamilton has told me that he didn't hear what Cassidy said."

"Don't you consider it was Cassidy's duty to see that Hamilton did hear—to prevent him from leaving the yards?"

"No. Hamilton had the orders. The operator's responsibility ends when the orders are delivered."

A queer thing happened towards the end of Trump's examination. Juror Clarke was asking Trump if he didn't think the reason that casualties in Europe were about one-sixth the number in America per thousand passengers carried was due to the better block system of European railroads.

Straus and Longworths Sail.

San Francisco, July 26. The steamer Siberia, which sailed Thursday afternoon for the Orient, carried a number of prominent passengers, including Secretary of Commerce and Labor Straus, Congressman Nicholas Longworth of Ohio and wife, Governor Carter of Hawaii, Commanders Hughes and Sears, and Lieutenant Commander Gillis, of the United States navy and department of government inspection of steam vessels.

WARRANT FOR WARD.

Presley Jury Returns Verdict That Implicates Dr. Fitch.

Detroit, Mich., July 26.—Prosecutor Robison announced at the close of Thursday morning's session of the Presley inquest before Coroner Parker that a warrant charging manslaughter will be issued either today or Saturday for Rep. Charles E. Ward, the Bancroft legislator, who is at present in Du Quoin, Ill. In case he does not take advantage of the opportunity to redeem his pledge and return to Detroit of his own free will, officers armed with requisition papers will go after him." The jury brought in the following verdict:

"We find that Edith Presley came to her death, according to the testimony given us, from the effects of treatment by Dr. George A. Frich at Hope Sanitarium, 1146 Third avenue, on Monday, April 22, 1907, from the results of which the said Edith Presley died on Sunday, April 28, 1907. As to the accessories, the jury begs to leave an open verdict."

Prosecutor Robison intimated he is holding back testimony tending to prove that Ward was in Detroit on Saturday, April 20, and that part of the day he was with Edith Presley. Ward told newspaper men shortly after the death of the girl that he was not in Detroit that Saturday.

The prosecutor hints that he has a goodly store of surprises on hand for Ward when it comes time for the examination and trial.

FOUR ARE DEAD.

Lightning Strikes Hardware Store at Otter Lake.

Otter Lake, Mich., July 26.—During a terrific electrical storm here Tuesday the hardware store of W. S. Hemingway was struck and Maynard Hemingway, brother of the proprietor, his wife and child and a customer, whose name could not be learned, were instantly killed. The store, a two-story wooden structure, was entirely destroyed.

Several other buildings were struck, among them being the one containing the Michigan telephone exchange, so that this communication is entirely cut off.

Osborn Wins Big Suit.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., July 26.—Judge Streeter of Houghton Thursday decided the case of David A. Aiken vs. Chase S. Osborn, in which an accounting was asked for $125,000 disputed in the Moose Mountain iron mine deal, in favor of the defendant. The property involved is the mine discovered by Osborn in the Moose mountains, north of Georgian bay, probably the greatest iron fields in North America. Osborn interested eastern capitalists in the enterprise and the holding is said to be worth $25,000,000 today. Aiken claimed a fourth interest in the property.

Cursed His Rescuers.

Ludington, Mich., July 26.—While evidently under the influence of liquor Jens Jensen, an oiler at Butters' mill, fell off the stern of the ferry boat Ralph Cooper Thursday and went down in 30 feet of water. Captain Sterling backed his boat to the spot, which was located by the bubbles sent to the surface by the drowning man. Jensen finally came to the surface for the third time and was fished out with a pike pole. Upon regaining the deck of the boat the rescued man grew abusive and swore violently at his rescuers for tearing his clothes.

Three Men Killed in Wreck.

Eau Claire, Mich., July 26.—W. F. McBaine of Kalamazoo; Michael McGerry, aged 18, of Grand Rapids, and a third unidentified man were killed in a wreck on the Wabash, 15 miles north of here, caused by a top-heavy oil tank filled with naphtha tipping over. Two of the train crew were badly burned and three cars were destroyed.

Dominican Treaty Proclaimed.

Washington, July 26.—The president Thursday signed a proclamation notifying the public of the conclusion of the Dominican treaty. Similar action was taken yesterday in Santo Domingo by President Caceres. President Roosevelt's proclamation recites that whereas a treaty "providing for the assistance of the United States in the collection and application of the customs receipts of the Dominican republic was concluded and signed by their respective plenipotentiaries Feb. 8, 1907," Then is recited the text of the treaty which is proclaimed "to the end that the same and every article thereof may be observed and performed with good faith."

A wonderful happening.

Port Byron, N. Y., has witnessed one of the most remarkable cases of healing ever recorded Amos King of that city says; "Bucklen's arnica salve cured a sore on my leg with which I had suffered over 80 years. I am now 85 years old." Guaranteed to cure all sores by C. A. Wright, & Son, druggists 25c.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's catarrh cure is the only positive cure known to medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's catarrh cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces, destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature. The proprietors have so much faith in it that they offer $100 for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Martin Hewitt, Investigator.

The Case of the Dixon Torpedo.

By ARTHUR MORRISON.

Published by Arrangement With Harper & Brothers.

HEWITT was very apt, in conversation, to dwell upon the many curious chances and coincidences that he had observed, not only in connection with his own cases, but also in matters dealt with by the official police, with whom he was on terms of pretty regular, and indeed friendly, acquaintanceship.

A case in point was that of the ruble note forger Mirsky, who might never have been handed over to the Russian authorities had he confined his genius to forgery alone. It was generally supposed at the time of his extradition that he had communicated with the Russian embassy, with a view to giving himself up—a foolish proceeding on his part, it would seem, since his whereabouts, indeed, even his identity as the forger, had not been suspected. He had communicated with the Russian embassy, it is true, but for quite a different purpose, as Martin Hewitt well understood at the time. What that purpose was is now for the first time published.

The time was half-past 1 in the afternoon, and Hewitt sat in his inner office examining and comparing the handwriting of two letters by the aid of a large lens. He put down the lens and glanced at the clock on the mantelpiece with a premonition of lunch, and as he did so his clerk quietly entered the room with one of those printed slips which were kept for the announcement of unknown visitors. It was filled up in a hasty and almost illegible hand, thus:

Name of visitor: F. Graham Dixon.
Address: Chancery lane.
Business: Private and urgent.

Mr. Dixon was a gaunt, worn looking man of fifty or so, well, although rather carelessly, dressed, and carrying in his strong, though drawn, face and dullish eyes the look that characterizes the lifelong strenuous brain worker. He leaned forward anxiously in the chair which Hewitt offered him and told his story with a great deal of very natural agitation.

"You may possibly have heard, Mr. Hewitt—I know there are rumors—of the new locomotive torpedo which the government is about adopting. It is, in fact, the Dixon torpedo, my own invention, and in every respect—not merely in my own opinion, but in that of the government experts—by far the most efficient and certain yet produced. The machine is the result of many years of work and disappointment, and its design has only been arrived at by a careful balancing of principles and means, which are expressed on the only four existing sets of drawings. The whole thing, I need hardly tell you, is a profound secret, and you may judge of my present state of mind when I tell you that one set of drawings has been stolen."

"From your house?"

"From my office, in Chancery lane, this morning. The four sets of drawings were distributed thus: Two were at the admiralty office, one being a finished set on thick paper and the other a set of tracings therefrom, and the other two were at my own office, one being a penciled set, uncolored—a sort of finished draft, you understand—and the other a set of tracings similar to those at the admiralty. It is this last set that has gone. The two sets were kept together in one drawer in my room. Both were there at 10 this morning. Of that I am sure, for I had to go to that very drawer for something else when I first arrived. But at 12 the tracings had vanished."

"You suspect somebody probably?"

"I cannot. It is a most extraordinary thing. Nobody has left the office except myself, and then only to come to you, since 10 this morning, and there has been no visitor. And yet the drawings are gone!"

"But have you searched the place?"

"Of course I have. It was 12 o'clock when I first discovered my loss, and I have been turning the place upside down ever since—I and my assistants. My men even insisted on turning all their pockets inside out, although I never for a moment suspected either of them, and it would take a pretty big pocket to hold the drawings, doubled up as small as they might be."

"You say your men—there are two, I understand—had neither left the office?"

"Neither, and they are both staying in now. Worsfold suggested that it would be more satisfactory if they did not leave till something was done toward clearing the mystery up."

"Just so. Now, I am assuming that you wish me to undertake the recovery of these drawings?"

The engineer nodded hastily.

"Very good. I will go round to your office. But first perhaps you can tell me something about you assistants. Mr. Worsfold, for instance?"

"He is my draftsman—a very excellent and intelligent man, a very smart man, indeed, and, I feel sure, quite beyond suspicion. He has prepared many important drawings for me (he has been with me nearly ten years now), and I have always found him trustworthy. But of course the temptation in this case would be enormous. Still, I cannot suspect Worsfold. Indeed, how can I suspect anybody in the circumstances?"

"The other, now?"

"His name's Ritter. He is merely a tracer, not a fully skilled draftsman. He is quite a decent young fellow, and I have had him two years. I don't consider him particularly smart, or he would have learned a little more of his business by this time. But I don't see the least reason to suspect him."

"Very well. We will get to Chancery lane now, if you please, and you can tell me more as we go."

"I have a cab waiting. What else can I tell you?"

"I understand the position to be succinctly this: The drawings were in the office when you arrived. Nobody came out and nobody went in, and yet they vanished. Is that so?"

"That is so. When I say that absolutely nobody came in, of course I except the postman. He brought a couple of letters during the morning. I mean that absolutely nobody came past the barrier in the outer office—the usual thing, you know, like a counter, with a frame of ground glass over it."

"I quite understand that. But I think you said that the drawings were in a drawer in your own room, not the outer office, where the draftsmen are, I presume."

"That is the case. It is an inner room, or, rather, a room parallel with the other and communicating with it, just as your room is which we have just left."

"But, then, you say you never left your office, and yet the drawings vanished, apparently by some unseen agency, while you were there in the room."

"Let me explain more clearly." The cab was bowling smoothly along the Strand, and the engineer took out a pocketbook and pencil. "As you will see presently, my offices consist of three rooms—two at one side of a corridor and the other opposite, thus." He made a rapid pencil sketch.

"In the outer office my men usually work. In the inner office I work myself. These rooms communicate, as you see, by a door. Our ordinary way in and out of the place is by the door of the outer office leading into the corridor, and we first pass through the usual lifting flap in the barrier. The door leading from the inner office to the corridor is always kept locked on the inside, and I don't suppose I unlock it once in three months. It has not been unlocked all the morning. The drawer in which the missing drawings were kept, and in which I saw them at 10 o'clock this morning, is at the place marked D. It is a large chest of shallow drawers in which the plans lie flat."

"I quite understand. Then there is the private room opposite. What of that?"

"That is a sort of private sitting room that I rarely use, except for business interviews of a very private nature. When I said I never left my office I did not mean that I never stirred out of the inner office. I was about in one room and another, both the outer and the inner offices, and once I went into the private room for five minutes, but nobody came either in or out of any of the rooms at that time, for the door of the private room was wide open, and I was standing at the bookcase (I had gone to consult a book), just inside the door, with a full view of the doors opposite. Indeed, Worsfold was at the door of the outer office most of the short time. He came to ask me a question."

"Well," Hewitt replied, "it all comes to the simple first statement. You know that nobody left the place or arrived, except the postman, who couldn't get near the drawings, and yet the drawings went. Is this your office?"

The cab had stopped before a large stone building. Mr. Dixon alighted and led the way to the first floor. Hewitt took a casual glance around each of the three rooms. There was a sort of door in the frame of ground glass over the barrier to admit of speech with visitors. This door Hewitt pushed wide open and left so.

He and the engineer went into the inner office. "Would you like to ask Worsfold and Ritter any questions?" Mr. Dixon inquired.

"Presently. Those are their coats, I take it, hanging just to the right of the outer office door, over the umbrella stand?"

"Yes; those are all their things—coats, hats, stick and umbrella."

"And those coats were searched, you say?"

"Yes."

"Well, of course, I must assume you made no mistake in your hunt. Now, tell me, did anybody know where these plans were beyond yourself and your two men?"

"As far as I can tell, not a soul."

"You don't keep an office boy?"

"No. There would be nothing for him to do except to post a letter now and again. I have patent locks to each door, and I keep all the keys myself. If Worsford or Ritter arrive before me in the morning, they have to wait to be let in, and I am always present myself when the rooms are cleaned. I have not neglected precautions, you see."

"No. I suppose the object of the theft—assuming it is a theft—is pretty plain: the thief would offer the drawings for sale to some foreign government?"

"Of course. They would probably command a great sum. I have been looking, as I need hardly tell you, to that invention to secure me a very large fortune, and I shall be ruined indeed if the design is taken abroad. If you cannot help me, the consequences will be terrible. Bad for the service of the country, too, of course."

"Of course. Now, tell me this: It would, I take it, be necessary for the thief to exhibit these drawings to anybody anxious to buy the secret—I mean he couldn't describe the invention by word of mouth?"

"Oh, no; that would be impossible. The drawings are of the most complicated description and full of figures, upon which the whole thing depends."

At this moment the door of the outer office was heard to open, and somebody entered. The door between the two offices was ajar, and Hewitt could see right through to the glass door left open over the barrier and into the space beyond. A well dressed, dark, bushy bearded man stood there carrying a hand bag, which he placed on the ledge before him. Hewitt raised his hand to enjoin silence. The man spoke in a rather high pitched voice and with a slight accent. "Is Mr. Dixon now within?" he asked.

"He is engaged," answered one of the draftsmen; "very particularly engaged. I'm afraid you won't be able to see him this afternoon. Can I give him any message?"

"This is two—the second time I have come today. Not two hours ago Mr. Dixon himself telephoned to call again. I have a very important—very excellent steam packing to show him that is very cheap and the best of the market." The man tapped his bag. "I have just taken orders from the largest railway companies. Cannot I see him, for one second only? I will not detain him."

"Really, I'm sure you can't this afternoon. He isn't seeing anybody. But if you'll leave your name"—

"My name is Hunter. But what the good of that? He ask me to call a little later, and I come, and now he is engaged. It is a very great pity." And the man snatched up his bag and walking stick and stalked off indignantly.

"You'd scarcely expect a man with such a name as Hunter to talk with that accent, would you?" he observed musingly. "It isn't a French accent, nor a German, but it seems foreign. You don't happen to know him, I suppose?"

"No, I don't. He called here about half-past 12, just while we were in the middle of our search, and I was frantic over the loss of the drawings. I was in the outer office myself and told him to call later. But what will you do now? Shall you see my men?"

"I think," said Hewitt, rising, "I think I'll get you to question them yourself."

"Myself?"

"Yes. I have a reason. Will you trust me with the key of the private room opposite? I will go over there for a little, while you talk to your men in this room. Bring them in here and shut the door. I can look after the office from across the corridor, you know. Ask them each to detail his exact movements about the office this morning, and get them to recall each visitor who has been here from the beginning of the week. I'll let you know the reason of this later. Come across to me in a few minutes."

Ten minutes later Mr. Dixon, having questioned his draftsmen, found Hewitt standing before the table in the private room, on which lay several drawings on tracing paper.

"See here, Mr. Dixon," said Hewitt, "I think these are the drawings you are anxious about."

The engineer sprang toward them with a cry of delight. "Why, yes, yes," he exclaimed, turning them over, "every one of them! But where—how—they must have been in the place, after all, then? What a fool I have been!"

Hewitt shook his head. "I'm afraid you're not quite so lucky as you think, Mr. Dixon," he said. "These drawings have most certainly been out of the house for a little while. Never mind how. We'll talk of that after. There is no time to lose. Tell me, how long would it take a good draftsman to copy them?"

"They couldn't possibly be traced over properly in less than two or two and a half long days of very hard work," Dixon replied, with eagerness.

"Ah, then, it is as I feared. These tracings have been photographed, Mr. Dixon, and our task is one of every possible difficulty. If they had been copied in the ordinary way, one might hope to get hold of the copy, but photography upsets everything. Copies can be multiplied with such amazing facility that, once the thief gets a decent start, it is almost hopeless to checkmate him. The only chance is to get at the negatives before copies are taken. I must act at once, and I fear, between ourselves, it may be necessary for me to step very distinctly over the line of the law in the matter. You see, to get at those negatives may involve something very like house breaking."

"Mr. Hewitt, I implore you, do what you can. I need not say that all I have is at your disposal. I will guarantee to hold you harmless for anything that may happen. But do, I entreat you, do everything possible. Think of what the consequences may be!"

"Well, yes; so I do," Hewitt remarked, with a smile. "The consequences to me, if I were charged with housebreaking, might be something that no amount of guarantee could mitigate. However, I will do what I can, if only from patriotic motives. Now, I must see your tracer, Ritter. He is the traitor in the camp. With Ritter I must take a deep course. What I don't know I must appear to know. First put these tracings safely out of sight."

Dixon slipped them behind his bookcase.

"Now," Hewitt pursued, "call Mr. Worsfold and give him something to do that will keep him in the inner office across the way and tell him to send Ritter here."

Ritter walked into the private room with an air of respectful attention. He was a puffy faced, unhealthy looking young man, with very small eyes and a loose, mobile mouth.

"Sit down, Mr. Ritter," Hewitt said in a stern voice. "Your recent transactions with your friend Mr. Hunter are known."

Ritter, who had at first leaned easily back in his chair, started forward at this and paled.

"You are surprised, I observe; but you should be more careful in your movements out of doors if you do not wish your acquaintances to be known. Mr. Hunter, I believe, has the drawings which Mr. Dixon has lost, and, if so, I am certain that you have given them to him. That, you know, is theft, for which the law provides a severe penalty."

Ritter broke down completely and turned appealingly to Mr. Dixon.

"Oh, sir," he pleaded, "it isn't so bad, I assure you. I was tempted, I confess, and hid the drawings; but they are still in the office, and I can give them to you—really I can."

"Indeed?" Hewitt went on. "Then in that case perhaps you'd better get them at once. Just go and fetch them in; we won't trouble to observe your hiding place. I'll only keep this door open to be sure you don't lose your way, you know, down the stairs, for instance."

The wretched Ritter, with hanging head, slunk into the office opposite. Presently he reappeared looking, if possible, ghastlier than before. He looked irresolutely down the corridor, as if meditating a run for it, but Hewitt stepped toward him and motioned him back to the private room.

"You mustn't try any more of that sort of humbug," Hewitt said, with increased severity. "The drawings are gone, and you have stolen them; you know that well enough. Now attend to me. If you received your deserts, Mr. Dixon would send for a policeman this moment and have you hauled off to the jail that is your proper place. But unfortunately your accomplice, who calls himself Hunter, but who has other names besides that, as I happen to know, has the drawings, and it is absolutely necessary that these should be recovered. I am afraid that it will be necessary therefore to come to some arrangement with this scoundrel—to square him, in fact. Now, just take that pen and paper and write to your confederate as I dictate. You know the alternative if you cause any difficulty."

"Address him in your usual way," Hewitt proceeded. "Say this: 'There has been an alteration in the plans. I shall be alone here at 6 o'clock. Please come without fail.' Have you got it? Very well, sign it and address the envelope. He must come here, and then we may arrange matters. In the meantime you will remain in the inner office opposite."

The note was written, and Martin Hewitt, without glancing at the address, thrust it into his pocket. When Ritter was safely in the inner office, however, he drew it out and read the address. "I see," he observed, "he uses the same name, Hunter; 27 Little Carton street, Westminster, is the address, and there I shall go at once with the note. If the man comes here, I think you had better lock him in with Ritter and send for a policeman—it may at least frighten him. My object is, of course, to get the man away and then, if possible, to invade his house in some way or another and steal or smash his negatives if they are there and to be found. Stay here, in any case, till I return. And don't forget to lock up those tracings."

It was about 6 o'clock when Hewitt returned alone, but with a smiling face that told of good fortune at first sight.

"First, Mr. Dixon," he said as he dropped into an easy chair in the private room, "let me ease your mind by the information that I have been most extraordinarily lucky. In fact, I think you have no further cause for anxiety. Here are the negatives. They were not all quite dry when I—well, what?—stole them, I suppose I must say, so that they have stuck together a bit, and probably the films are damaged. But you don't mind that, I suppose."

He laid a small parcel wrapped in newspaper on the table. The engineer hastily tore away the paper and took up five or six glass photographic negatives of the half plate size, which were damp and stuck together by the gelatin films in couples. He held them one after another up to the light of the window and glanced through them. Then, with a great sigh of relief, he placed them on the hearth and pounded them to dust and fragments with

Eccentric John Underwood.

John Underwood, who died at Whittlesea, England, in 1733, left some odd instructions for his burial. His fortune of £6,000 went to his sister, provided that no bell was tolled at his grave, no relative followed his coffin and various other arrangements were carried out. Six men only were invited and requested not to come in "black," who received 10 guineas each for their services. Service over, an arch was raised over the green painted coffin, with "Non Omnis Moriar, 1733," inscribed on white marble. The six men sang the last stanza of the Twentieth ode of the second book of Horace. The deceased, who had been coffined fully dressed, had under his head Sanadow's "Horace," at his feet Bentley's "Milton," in his right hand a Greek Testament and in his left hand a small "Horace." The six on repairing to his house to a cold repast had to sing the Thirty-first ode and drink a cheerful glass before retiring at 8 p. m. This done, directed the will, "Think no more of John Underwood."

The Sistine Chapel, Rome.

The chapel is a beautiful place in itself by its simple and noble proportions as well as by the wonderful architectural decorations of the ceiling, conceived by Michael Angelo as a series of frames for his paintings. Beautiful beyond description, too, is the exquisite marble screen. No one can say certainly who made it. It was perhaps designed by the architect of the chapel himself, Baccio Pontelli. There are a few such marvels of unknown hands in the world, and a sort of romance clings to them with an element of mystery that stirs the imagination in a dreamy way far more than the gilded oak tree in the arms of Sixtus IV. by which the name of Rovere is symbolized. Sixtus commanded, and the chapel was built. But who knows where Baccio Pontelli lies? Or who shall find the grave where the hand that carved the lovely marble screen is laid at rest?

Eased His Conscience.

"I have examined our public subscription boxes for years," said an officer of a charitable organization, "and in them I have found many queer things. The very queerest, though, was last year. On opening a box in a New York railway station I found the gold settings of a necklace, a stomacher, a pair of earrings and five rings. They were magnificent settings, worth a deal of money. I could not help wondering what the stones, which had been roughly torn out of them, were like. These jewels, of course, had been stolen. The settings were now given to charity by the thief. The stones themselves would be recut and sold. Around this gift was a note, which said:

The Last Prize Fight.

Prize fighting, as distinguished from the glove contests of today, has long been banned by law, though it once had aristocratic support. Fights took place to a finish in a roped ring twenty-four feet square pitched on turf in the open. The men stripped to the waist, using bare knuckles, and wrestling was allowed. The last fight for the championship of the world under these London prize ring rules was when John L. Sullivan beat Jake Kilrain in seventy-five rounds July 8, 1889, outside New Orleans, the stakes being $10,000 a side, a side bet of $1,000 a side and the championship belt.—London Answers.

Franklin's Kite Experiment.

Commenting on Benjamin Franklin's kite experiment, which proved that lightning and electricity are the same, a scientist says: "It was one of the most brilliant examples of luck yet recorded. To attempt the extraction of lightning flashes from a lowering sky was almost suicidal. Even at this late day timid persons occasionally fly to feather beds, sit on glass legged chairs or find refuge in rubber boots during thunderstorms. A repetition of Franklin's experiment cost his immediate imitator his life."

New York's First Street Cleaner.

The Dutch housewives of old New York, ever noted for their housekeeping qualities, created the agitation which resulted in the appointment of the first public street cleaner in New York in 1692. He was Laurens Van der Spiegle, a baker. His daughter married Rip Van Dam, who afterward became governor of New York, an illustration of the democracy of that day.

Happy Adam.

The first monopolist was Adam. The first consumer was Adam. Therefore Adam had the unique and exquisite pleasure of raising the price of beef to the consumer and the equally great pleasure of kicking at the price put on it by the trust. Adam was the only happy man.—Detroit Times.

The Cure.

Anxious Parent—Doctor, my daughter appears to be going blind, and she is about to be married. Doctor—Let her go right on with the wedding. If anything can open her eyes, marriage will.

Valuable Zones of Silence.

There has come into moderd life a greater variety of sound and a greater volume than assailed the ears of our ancestors. To keep one's freshness there ought to be a zone of silence around every human being during some part of the day. The finest creative work is done, as a rule, in seclusion; not necessarily apart from men nor in solitary places, but away from the tumult and away from distracting sounds. There was organized in Paris years ago a society for the culture of silence. On the occasion of the initiation of a distinguished man of letters a bowl of water was brought out to him in a room where he was waiting in solitude. He studied it a moment, placed a rose upon it and sent it back. The water bore the rose without overflowing. To the members assembled in another room the act was the most convincing evidence that the initiate comprehended the purpose of its fellowship and was prepared in spirit to become one of the company. The act was a symbol which Americans may wisely study.—Good Health.

English Railways And Fogs.

It is seldom that there is a sufficiently heavy fog on an American railway to cause serious inconvenience that no special precautions are taken; but in England a heavy fog is so common that there is a regular service made up of the repair gangs, who take the place of the mechanical signals. Every distance signal is guarded by a signal man, who is supplied with flags and torpedoes, the latter being called detonators, while the signal men are pointsmen. Two torpedoes are placed on the track to warn the engineer when the signal is set at danger and are supplemented by a red lantern in the hands of the signal man. As the torpedoes cost a cent and a half each and are used in great numbers there is a machine supplied by which the second torpedo is forced from the rail by the force of the explosion of the first, as only one is necessary, the second being merely a precaution.

The Chow Dog.

The chow, the solemn, black tongued dog which comes from China, is, the London Chronicle thinks, the ideal city dog. It says: "He never barks unless there is something serious to bark at. You open the door, and the dog marches out with fine solemnity. This writer's chow has a range of about ten square miles, and he has never hurt a baby, though he has gathered innumerable friends during his solemn march through London. He never loses his head, and his morning walks embrace Chelsea, Putney and the sacred precincts of the Brompton oratory. Indeed, he once followed a bicycle to Hendon and found his way back within forty-eight hours with an honorably empty stomach. The unaccompanied chow is the very least of the nuisances of the London streets."

Artificial Honey.

The honey had some foreign substance in it—the leg of a bee and a shred of broken wing.

"Well," said the wife of the food expert, "this is pure at any rate." She held up the bits of bee on a fork before her husband. "No benzoic acid, formaldehyde, boric acid or salicylic acid here, eh, John?"

But John, the food expert, laughed scornfully. "Those bits of bee in the honey," he said, "prove its artificiality. Genuine honey never has dead bees in it. They who make genuine honey are too clean and careful for anything of that kind to happen. It is as rare to find in real honey a bee's wing or a bee's leg as it is to find in a loaf of bread a baker's hand or foot."

Is not necessarily one of perfect form and features. Many a plain woman who could never serve as an artist's model possesses those rare qualities that all the world admires, neatness, clear eyes, a smooth skin and that sprightliness of step that accompany good health. A physically weak woman is never attractive. Electric Bitters restore weak women, give strong nerves, bright eyes, velvety skin, beautiful complexion. Guaranteed at C. A. When You Hear
A Woman
speak of Flour, you invariably hear her speak of TECUMSEH CHIEF.
WHY?
Because they have always found it to be just as represented--"satisfaction or your money back"; always that feeling of sincerity as regards the quality. A woman feels that she has ordered the best to be had when she orders TECUMSEH CHIEF FLOUR, and she has.
Buy Tecumseh Chief Flour of your grocer or at the mill.

M. F. STEIN,
THE DETROIT OPTICIAN,
The eye, when properly cared for affords the keenest delight because of the pleasures we are able to enjoy through its medium. When not cared for and its warnings are unheeded, it becomes an instrument of torture. Headaches, eye pains, burning, itching sensation, strained vision, nervous troubles and many bodily ills are the results accruing from over worked eyes, eyes that need help. My examination reveals all hidden troubles, and it is my province to fit the right glass to any and all defects of vision. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

Coffee Value

If you are paying 25c a pound for coffee, you ought to be enioying good cup quality. The price you pay does not fix the quality you receive; different sellers give different qualities for the money.

LOWRY'S BLEND at 25c the pound, is,a little bit better for the money. Years of experimenting has fixed our standard high and this coffee is now no experiment. Its increasing sale together with its ever repeating orders from old time users, is mighty convincing proof that it contains everything in the quality line that is claimed for it.

You are the judge. We ask your consideration of the evidence contained in a cup of this delicious coffee.

Don't "get along" with a coffee that doesn't suit your taste, because you think it is as good as you ought to expect for the money. Make your next order for LOWRY'S 25c BLEND.

Long live the king!

Is the popular cry throughout European countries, while in America the cry is "long live Dr. King's New Discovery, king of throat and lung remedies!" of which Mrs. Julia Payne, Muro, Mass., writes "It never fails to give immediate relief or to quickly cure a cough or cold." Mrs. Payne's opinion is shared by many of the people of this country. New Discovery cures weak lungs and sore throat after all other remedies have failed and for coughs and colds it's the only sure cure. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright, & Son, druggists. 50c and $1. SUMMER WEDDING

The Marriage of two Popular young People,

MISS ANNA OSBORN

to

DR. F. G. HARRIS

Of Chicago, at the Episcopal Church Wednesday Evening.

Wednesday evening at Saint Peters church occurred the marriage of Anna M., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph White Osborn of Macon, and Dr. Frederick Gillette Harris of Chicago. A massive back ground of ferns and palms completely banked the altar. Weeping cut leaf birch was also used effectively in this decoration. Ribbons held to place the huge bunches of sweet peas, which marked the pews for the reception guests.

At the appointed time, half after six o'clock the ushers, Mr. William Hicks, Mr. Percival Fitzsimmons, Mr. Charles Bidwell and Mr. Levi Hayden entered the church stretching the ribbons to the altar. Miss Marion Osborn of Milwaukee, was the maid of honor. She was very daintily gowned in pink chiffon over pink silk and carried a bunch of pink roses. Miss Margaret Perkins as ring bearer and Miss Helen Perkins as flower girl wore white with val lace. Both carried sweet peas.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father. She was beautifully gowned in white silk poplin with Irish point lace. A veil completely clouded her figure and was fastened in her hair with orange blossoms. She carried a shower of white roses.

Dr. Harris was attended by his best man, Mr. Herbert Volzwell of Cleveland, and awaited the approach of the bridal party at the altar, where the double ring marriage service was impressively performed by Rev. Kemp, rector of the church. Miss Louise Phelps presided at the organ, rendering the sweet strains of Wagner's Lohengrin.

After the ceremony a small but very pretty wedding supper was given at the residence on Union street of William H. Osborn, grandfather of the bride. Only the immediate relatives and a few of the bride's most intimate friends were present. The supper was served in three courses, Mrs. Mattis catering. The bride's table was strewn with sweet peas. Other decorations of the rooms were large bouquets of pansies and white poppies.

Mrs. Harris is a niece of William Osborn of Milwaukee, Wis., and of Mrs. H. C. Lowe of Colorado Springs, both of whom are well known in Tecumseh. She attended the Tecumseh schools, afterwards studying music with Sherwood in Chicago and is well known to the musical world in that city.

She taught in the schools in Hudson and in Chicago, where she received her instruction. For the past three years she has been teaching at Memphis, Tenn. The bride is a girl of great loveliness of character and has been the center of devoted friends all her life. Dr. Harris is a rising young physician of Chicago, receiving his instruction abroad. His father is a prominent dentist of that city.

He and his bride sail from New York Saturday to spend six months in France and Italy, where the doctor will take a course of lectures and Mrs. Harris will continue her studies in music.

Mrs. Osborn of Macon, mother of the bride, was gowned in gray silk with white lace trimmings. Mrs. Harris, of Chicago, mother of the groom, wore black silk. Mrs. H. C. Lowe of Colorado Springs, Colo, was handsomely costumed in pearl gray louisine silk with duchess lace trimmings. Mrs. Thomas Osborn of Monroe, wore black lace over black silk. Miss Alice Osborn of Milwaukee, a white lingeria gown, Mrs. Harry Perkins of Toledo, black chiffon and lace.

Other guests from abroad were Dr. A. J. Harris of Chicago, father of the groom; Mr. Harry Perkins, Helen, Margaret and Robert Perkins of Toledo, and Wm. H. Osborn of Milwaukee, Wis.

WOMEN PAY MORE.

Medical examiners of insurance companies say that the reason a woman pays more for the privilege of insurance than a man, is from the fact that women more readily fall victims to indigestion and stomach troubles and the fatal ailments that spring from these causes.

All persons, they say, who have a weakened digestive system and suffer from sick headache, dizzy spells, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness and the many other symptoms of indigestion, soon lower the tone of the whole system and are most susceptible to a fatal illness.

For curative power in all stomach troubles, nothing else is as safe yet effective, nothing else can be thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na. It is unlike any remedy heretofore known and is really one of the valuable discoveries in modern medical science.

It is not the acute attacks that influence the insurance examiners alone but the constant feeling of weakness, headachs, indigestion and stomach troubles—these things, physicians say, kill more people than more serious diseases.

To escape this condition of ill health, to enjoy one's food and yet never suffer with indigestion, a person should use Mi-o-na stomach tablets. They are not a mere digestive tablet, but strengthen and restore to natural action the stomach and bowels and effect a complete cure in even the worst form of stomach trouble.

C. A. Wright sells Mi-o-na in 50 cent boxes under a guarantee to refund the money unless it does all that is claimed for it.

THE BASE BALL SITUATION

As it now stands in Tecumseh.

All kinds of talk about the Indians can be heard on the streets. This talk is caused by rumors in the state papers that Tecumseh was going to follow the lead of Jackson and disband the team. Yesterday I saw the base ball managers and was told that the word "quit" has never for a moment been thought of. The Indians will play ball as long as the league lasts, at least for this season and the men will be paid each week as always. Tecumseh never did quit and never will.

Of course as the Indians have been winning, all the other clubs are against us which is but natural and it has seemed that at times the combined association has desired that the Indians should lose but the HERALD cannot believe this but the HERALD can and will say, the Indians WILL NOT QUIT and the Tecumseh team will be kept up in the best possible shape. Today the Indians are CHAMPIONS and hope to remain so till the end of the season despite being obliged to "buck" all the other teams in the league. In fact the HERALD thinks the Indians are able to do it.

BASE BALL.

Coldwater a base ball team evened up with Tecumseh's nine for the defeat on Tuesday by winning an 11 inning game Wednesday afternoon by a score of 5 to 4.

The Coldwater bunch got to Lagoe hard in the second and third innings. He was succeeded by Richardson who held Coldwater scoreless until the 11th, when hits by Beard and Harris won out for Coldwater. Features of the game were the hitting of Beard and Merkle and a fine throw from deep right to home plate by Foust nailing the man for the third out

BRONCHIAL COUGHS.

Breathe Hyomei's healing air and all irritation will be cured.

The most irritating and annoying form of cough is that termed bronchial. People subject to bronchial troubles when there is a change in the weather or they are exposed to a draft will catch a bronchial cough which is annoying and irritating.

Bronchial trouble cannot be cured by stomach dosing. The medicated air of Hy-o-mei is the only treatment that reaches the affected parts and gives relief and cure. It destroys all disease germs, soothes and relieves the irritated mucous membrane in all parts of the bronchial tubes and quickly overcomes the irritation.

Bronchitis is really an inflammation of the mucous membrane lining the air passages and is a local disease requiring local treatment like that afforded by Hy-o-mei.

If there is any doubt in your mind as to the power of Hy-o-mei to cure bronchal troubles so that the system will resist coughs and colds, the unusual way in which it is sold by C. A. Wright should dispel that doubt. He agrees to to refund the money to any purchaser of Hy-o-mei who is not perpectly satisfied with the results following the use of the remedy. He takes all the risk and if the remedy does not help you it does not cost you a penny, while if it cures, the expense is nominal, for a complete Hy-o-mei outfit is sold at only $1.00.

SHORT TALKS BY L. T. COOPER.

DEBILITY.

Many people who talk to me say: "I feel half sick all the time. I dont just know what's the matter with me." This is general debility. It's very common. People who get in this shape have my sympathy. They arn't sick enough for bed so they drag around and their families get exasperated with them.

E. McDADE.

There are two causes for this condition; bad habits and a weak stomach. By bad habits I mean eating irregularly and too fast and not chewing the food thoroughly. The stomach gives out and loss of appetite, billiousness, constipation, and general debility result. First get the stomach in shape and then be more careful in the future, and the worn out, despondent, half sick feeling will be a thing of the past.

Two bottles of Cooper's New Discovery will put the stomach in shape. Common sense will do the rest. There are fifty thousand people in this country who know this to be true because they've tried it.

Here's a letter from one of them:

"I was all run down from overwork, lost ambition and energy and could not sleep. It was difficult for me to attend to my work owing to that tired-out feeling. I secured two bottles of the New Discovery medicine and determined to try it. The result delighted me for renewed strength and vigor and energy came with the first few doses. It's effect was different from anything I had ever taken. I finished the two bottles now and feel well and strong again." E. McDade, 839 Dix Ave., Detroit, Mich.

We hear favorable reports of these famous medicines every day. Ask us about them.

WEAK KIDNEYS MAKE WEAK BODIES.

As one weak link weakens a chain, so bad kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking down.

Strain, colds and other causes injure the kidneys and when their activity is lessened the body suffers from uric poison circulated in the blood.

Aches, pains, languor and urinary ills come with an increasing tendency towards diabetes and Bright's disease There is no real help except by using Doan's Kidney Pills. Tecumseh cures are proof.

John Smith, deputy sheriff, living on East Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have suffered a great deal of pain in the small of my back, through the loins and about the kidneys and when an attack was on it was all I could do to attend to my heavy work on a large farm. On bending over I would be dizzy and spots of fire would flash before my eyes, at night I was restless. I doctored a great deal and used many kidney remedies but received no permanent benefit. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and the statements were so convincing that I tried them. I felt much benefit after taking the first box and thus encouraged I continued until cured. I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all suffering with kidney trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other.

Bad sick headaches, biliousness or constipation are quickly relieved by De Witt's little early risers Small pill, sure pill, safe pill—prompt and pleasant in action. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Brilliancy may be imparted to the complexion by powdering with diamond dust.

Over Score Anarchists on Trial.

Mannheim, Germany, July 26.—The trial of 29 anarchists, who comprise the entire national convention of the German anarchist societies in that hey sought to hold an open air meeting in the country Easter night in contravention of the police ordinances, began here Thursday. The trial brought out the fact that Mannheim is one of the principal centers of anarchist activity and hat the local society has 60 members. Among the defendants are delegates from societies at Berlin, Cologne, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Offenbach, Wiesbaden, Dusseldorf, Elberfeld, Munich, Hamburg, Bremerhaven, Hanover, Stuttgart, Luswigshaven and Mainz. They are a harmless-looking lot, most of them earn their living as free lance journalists.

Bather Drowns Near Allegan.

Allegan, Mich., July 26.—Walter Hanson, aged 16, was drowned Wednesday evening while bathing at Swan lake near this village. His home is in Ravenswood, a suburb of Chicago, but he was spending his vacation at the country home of George R. Ott of Cheshire township. The body was recovered.

Rheumatic Man Shoots Self.

St. Joseph, Mich., July 26.—Suffering with rheumatism, John Green, said to be from Chicago, wandered into the City park Thursday afternoon and shot himself in the right temple, dying instantly.

Spaniards Regret Rash Act.

Madrid, July 26.—When the body of Christopher Columbus, after the Spanish-American war, was brought back to Spain from Havana and placed in a magnificent sepulchre in the cathedral at Seville, the Spaniards, smarting under the memory of their defeat, placed the following epitaph upon the tomb: "When ungrateful America separated itself from the mother country Seville took back his bones." Now that the ill-feeling against America has largely disappeared, it is proposed to replace this epitaph with more appropriate words. The municipality of Seville has consulted the duke of Veragua, the descendent of Columbus, and the duke has expressed not only willingness but pleasure at the idea of removing from the tomb such an unworthy piece of rancor toward America.

Ambassador Reid Entertains.

London, July 26.—One of the last big entertainments of the London season, which is now drawing to a close, was given at Dorchester house last evening by Ambassador Reid, assisted by his daughter Miss Jean Reid. The guests of honor of the occasion were Princess Louise, the duke of Argyle and Prince Francis of Teck.

Army Chaplain Shoots Soldier.

San Antonio, Texas, July 26.—Chaplain Thomas Dickson, 26th Infantry, Thursday shot and wounded Clyde Blakely, a private of company B, 9th Infantry. Dickson says that Blakely, with a companion, was dragging away from the chaplain's front yard a brass cannon, made in 1698, which Dickson brought from the Philippines.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy, The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

PEOPLE MUCH EXCITED

Feeling Against Blacks in Maryland Town Runs High.

LYNCHERS NOT SATISFIED.

Dig Up Their Victim's Body and Burn It—Colored Population Will Co-Operate in Restration of Order—Many Negro "Joints" Closed.

Crisfield, Md., July 30.—Their passion unsated by the kicking and beating to death of the negro, Reed, who on Saturday evening, without provocation, shot and killed Policeman Daugherty, who had Reed's associate, William Hildred, under arrest, a mob at an early Monday morning dug Reed's mutilated remains from the rude grave in a swamp near town into which they had been thrown, riddled them with bullets, and then, lighting a bonfire, tossed them into the flames and stood about, watching, until they were reduced to ashes.

Lemuel Showers, the keeper of a billiard room frequented by negroes, who loaned Reed the revolver with which he shot Daugherty, was captured yesterday and lodged in the county jail at Princess Anne. Every train arriving at Crisfield was searched in the hope that Showers would be found on board. Had he been, he would almost certainly have been lynched, for there has been much trouble with lawless negroes and the feeling against such is very high. Hildred, whose arrest precipitated the trouble, has not yet been captured. When he is, the authorities will undoubtedly keep him away from this city, else he would surely meet a fate similar to Reed's.

There has been no advers criticism of the treatment given Reed. Those who put an end to his life, strung his body up to a telegraph pole, and, after the inquest, interred him in the swamp, doing their work throughout without attempt at concealment. It was no masked men, but a band of citizens whose patience had been tried too far by the lawless negroes of this locality. Even among the colored race, the work of the lynchers met approval.

Monday the town council was waited upon by a delegation representing the best colored element of the vicinity and including all the local colored ministers and a colored physician. They asked to be allowed to co-operate with the white citizens in restoring order and proper feeling between the whites and blacks. They asked that the council close all places of business and amusement where the unruly element among the blacks might congregate and foment trouble. They offered to furnish information upon which certain dives in the negro section might be closed. They presented resolutions expressing regret for the murder of Daugherty and commending him; condemned Reed and his kind, and said that they would have been willing to join in the hunt for him and in lynching him when he was captured.

The council has acted upon some of these suggestions. Nine negro "joints" have been closed.

Feeling is still high. Post card pictures of the scenes of the lynching have appeared and are selling rapidly. Pieces of the rope by which Reed was suspended to the telegraph pole bring fancy prices.

JURY RETURNS VERDICT.

Charges Private Gillette With Involuntary Manslaughter.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., July 30.—A coroner's jury rendered a verdict charging Private Cyrus Gillette with involuntary manslaughter in connection with the death of Miss Elizabeth Cadenhead, a Canadian, who was shot last week when Gillette was firing a shot after a prisoner escaping from Fort Brady.

A warrant has been issued for Gillette's arrest, and Prosecuting Attorney Holden says that the decisions quoted at Washington to explain why the army officers here did not surrender Gillette to the civil authorities do not cover the case at issue. Prosecutor Holden intimates that the conflict between the army officers and the civil authorities may be fought through to the supreme court.

The point has been raised here that Miss Cadenhead and Private Gillette were not within the limits of the army reservation when the shooting occurred.

MOYER'S BAIL FIXED.

Judge Places the Amount at Twenty-Five Thousand.

RELEASE COMES AT ONCE.

No Bail Asked for Pettibone—His Trial Begins October 1—Haywood Receives Congratulatory Telegrams From All Over Country.

Boise, July 30.—Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, and co-defendant with Wm. D. Haywood acquitted Sunday of the murder of former Governor Steunenberg, was ordered released on $25,000 bail Monday by Judge Wood, who presided at the Haywood trial. The attorneys for the federation expected to have the bond ready for filing last night, but the arrangements had not been wholly completed at a late hour, and Moyer resigned himself to another night in jail. He will probably be released sometime today and will leave within 24 hours for his home in Denver.

No application for bail was made in the case of George A. Pettibone, the third of the alleged conspirators, but a motion was made for a speedy trial, and his case was ordered set down for Tuesday, Oct. 1. Counsel intimated that they might apply for bond for Pettibone later, but it is not believed that the state's attorneys will consent. It has been generally claimed that the state has more incriminating evidence against Pettibone than any of the others, while it has been generally conceded that the case against Moyer is the weakest of the three. The defense in the Haywood case admitted that there were a number of things for Mr. Pettibone to explain as to his association with Harry Orchard and the sending of money to him, but they said it would be time enought to deal with these matters when Pettibone himself was placed on trial.

Haywood continues to receive many congratulatory telegrams from all sections of the country. Aside from the personal congratulations of the senders the messages have nearly all expressed the sentiment that "labor has triumphed over oppresive measures of capital."

Haywood spends the time at the cottage occupied by his family and received many callers. He expects to leave for Denver on Thursday.

It was said last night that Pettibone may be taken back to the Canyon county jail at Caldwell until the time for his trial arrives. The case and the prisoners were brought to Boise six months ago on a change of venue from Canyon to Ada county.

Bond for Moyer is to be given in a unique way, suggested by Attorney Peter Breen of Butte, Mont., who has been associated with the defense.

The Butte local of the Western Federation of Miners, is the richest in the organization, and Mr. Breen said, carries a deposit of from $100,000 to $140,000 constantly in the bank. Arrangements were made by wire by Mr. Breen to have the Butte union make $25,000 subject to draft by the First National bank of Boise. Some of the officers of the Boise bank will sign the bail bond as surety. A telegram to Mr. Breen last night said the arrangements at Butte had been completed.

Discussion of the verdict in the Haywood case is widespread, concensus of opinion being that the jury had done its duty as it saw it and should not be criticized.

The Price.

Whenever I have heard people railing at the vast fortunes of some of the California millionaires, says an English writer, I have always replied that no man became a millionaire in the early history of California who had not earned his fortune by the risks he had had the courage to face. I remembered an old Irishman named Bill Dunphy bringing home to my mind what these pioneers had encountered when he told me how he and a companion had fared in a journey across the continent. The companion injured his leg. Dunphy had to cut it off with an ax and then, going forward through the dark untraced woods to search for the trail and for food, had to leave his friend behind by the side of a stream and with a single tin of biscuits to keep him up till his friend's return. Then I saw what the pioneers of 1849 had faced, and I felt that they merited such rewards, however great, as fortune had afterward bestowed upon them.

JUDGE'S LIFE SAVED.

Inventor Attempts to Kill Muskegon Probate Official.

AIMED PISTOL AT HIM.

Alva Kent, Insane Genius, Angered Because Judge Prescott Had Declared Him Mentally Incompetent, Seeks Revenge in Murder.

Muskegon, Mich., July 30.—Probate Judge Prescott, of Muskegon county, narrowly missed death at the hands of a mad would-be assassin in his office at 3:30 Monday afternoon. Arva B. Kent, an 80-year-old insane inventor, crept into the probate office and pressed a 32-caliber revolver against the back of his intended victim's head.

His fingers weakened by age and nervous from mind troubles combined with the fact that the revolver was rusty, prevented Kent from accomplishing his purpose. While Kent struggled desperately at the trigger, Deputy Probate Register Ruth Thompson saw the weapon and screamed. Judge Prescott turned at the cry, saw Kent and the revolver and wrested the weapon from the old man's hand. Kent was easily overpowered and thrown to the floor.

Officers were called and Kent was hurried to the county jail. On the way he attempted to butt his brains out against the court house walls.

Six months ago Kent sprang into public notice by visiting business men and petitioning for a large sum of money to perfect and patent a combination airship and water-vehicle. Two months later, on the application of his son, he was declared mentally incompetent by Judge Prescott and a guardian was appointed. Since that time Kent has borne a fierce resentment towards the officials who participated in the proceedings and Judge Prescott was the mark for his particular animosity. On several occasions Kent threatened the judge.

Early Monday afternoon he visited a drug store and bought a large quantity of valerian, a stimulating drug. He swallowed the stuff and then proceeded to the court house. That he fully intended to take the life of Judge Prescott was shown in the evening, when at the county jail he mumbled an incoherent story in which he begged the Almighty to aid him in killing Prescott. He also cursed his failure.

LAW IS NO GOOD.

Bird Condemns New Juvenile Court Statute.

Adrian, Mich., July 30.—The new juvenile court law, passed by the last legislature, and just beginning to go into effect throughout the state, is declared by Attorney-General Bird to be invalid. The law created a new court of record, the probate judges of the counties being made presiding judges.

Mr. Bird has been importuned by probate judges all over the state to make a statement. Replying to such an inquiry from Probate Judge Anderson of Paw Paw, Van Buren county, Mr. Bird says:

"The law is invalid because it establishes a new court not provided for in the constitution of the state. It also provides for a jury of six persons, whereas the constitutional number for a court of record is 12.

"Another defect in the law is the provision raising the salaries of the judges of probate without specifying that intent in the title of the act. The law also excludes from is operations such children as may be sent to the Coldwater orphanage, and then proceeds to legislate in relation to those children."

Shot While in Bed.

Battle Creek, Mich., July 30.—Antonio Nicholas, an Armenian, was shot Sunday while sleeping in his boarding house on Third street. Three bullets entered his body, two passing completely through one leg at the thigh. The police were not called until an hour later, when they found the victim lying in a pool of blood four feet square. The victim was taken to Nichols hospital, where it is believed he will recover. His friends say the shots were fired through a window, but the police believe they came through the doorway from another room as the result of a Macedonian feud of some kind. A brother of the victim was asleep in the same room at the time. Fifteen Armenians stay at the house where the shooting occurred.

Keeping a Secret.

Banquo—I say, old man, can you keep a secret? Well, Smiggins told me in confidence that— Elmore—Hold on! Can you keep a secret? Banquo—I? Why, yes; certainly. Elmore—Then you'd better do so.

WOULD ARBITRATE.

Ore Handlers on Strike Make Overtures to Company Officials.

Duluth, Minn., July 30.—No settlement of the ore handlers' strike is in prospect. The adjustment committee of the strikers Monday addressed a letter to the officials of the Duluth, Missabe and Northern railroad proposing arbitration and the officials of the company have taken it under advisement. It is probable that an answer will be returned later today.

At the meeting Monday the men spent some time in a discussion of terms and the matter of arbitration was put to vote, the proposition being carried with just one vote to spare.

The following is the proposition for arbitration expressed in a formal ballot at the meeting of the striking ore handlers:

First—That work be resumed at once; that no discrimination shall be made on account of strike, and that no new men be employed until all who participated in the strike shall be given an opportunity to work if they so desire.

Second—That all matters of difference now existing between the ore dock employes and the company be submitted to the arbitration of five men, selected in the following manner:

Two to be appointed by the Duluth, Missabe and Northern Railway company; two to be appointed by the striking miners, and the fifth, who shall be a disinterested person, to be chosen by the other four. In the event of the four disagreeing, the selection then shall be made by the judges of the district court for the eleventh judicial district.

Third—That the arbitrators make their award and final decision upon all matters submitted to them not later than thirty days from the date of the agreement to arbitrate.

Work is going on at the Allouez docks in Superior, and officials say it will not take the company long to get into action on the docks here.

In event that the dock strike is settled it is believed that an attempt to open all the mines will be made and then will come another test.

NEW IN BRIEF.

Consul-General Thackara, in Berlin, has prepared a statement showing the exports from Germany to the United States for the last fiscal year. The total is placed at $161,963,958, an increase of $27,000,000 over the last fiscal year.

Barney Oldfield, at the Fargo, N. D., Interstate fair, Monday broke two automobile records on a half mile track, going the first mile of a three-mile race in 1:15 1-2 and the three miles in 3:51. His mile record beat that made by himself at Winnipeg ten days ago, by four and a half seconds, and his three-mile record was 18 seconds faster that that of his Winnipeg record.

Frank F. Rosselle, police commissioner in Kansas City was summarily removed Monday afternoon by order of Gov. Folk. Governor Folk had first requested the commissioner's resignation because of their disagreement over the re-appointment of John Hays as chief of police, who is opposed by the governor, but later he ousted the commissioner from office.

In a rear-end collision between a passenger train bound from Hartford to Danbury, Conn., and a "mogul" engine running light, between Danbury and Hawleyville, on the Highland division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, Monday night, Samuel Anderson of East Hartford, fireman on the passenger engine, was killed and a number of other persons were seriously injured.

A woman, known only as Mrs. Davidson, was found dead in a room in a boarding house in West 22nd street in New York. About a week ago she went to the house with her husband and engaged a room. The man left the house Sunday night and has not been seen since. Mrs. Davidson was not seen Monday, and Monday night the door of her room was broken open. A necktie had been tightly knotted about her throat.

General William Booth, the head of the Salvation army, who is engaged in a motor tour of Great Britain, announced on Sunday at Blackburn, in Lancashire, England, that the same electric flash that carried the news of his death would publish the name of the new general for the army. It is learned that Com. Booth has left minute directions for the future administration of the army in a sealed envelope with his solicitors. No one knows who his successor will be, but it is believed that it will be Bramwell Booth.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's catarrh cure is the only positive cure known to medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's catarrh cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces, destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature. The proprietors have so much faith in it that they offer $100 for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The Case of the Dixon Torpedo.

By ARTHUR MORRISON.

Published by Arrangement With Harper & Brothers.

For a few seconds neither spoke. Then Dixon, flinging himself into a chair, said:

"Mr. Hewitt, I can't express my obligation to you. What would have happened if you had failed I prefer not to think of. But what shall we do with Ritter now? The other man hasn't been here yet, by the bye."

"No; the fact is I didn't deliver the letter. The worthy gentleman saved me a world of trouble by taking himself out of the way." Hewitt laughed. "I'm afraid he has rather got himself into a mess by trying two kinds of theft at once, and you may not be sorry to hear that his attempt on your torpedo plans is likely to bring him a dose of penal servitude for something else. I'll tell you what has happened.

"Little Carton street, Westminster, I found to be a seedy sort of place—one of those old streets that have seen much better days. A barber had possession of the ground floor front of No. 27 for trade purposes, so to him I went. 'Can you tell me,' I said, 'where in this house I can find Mr. Hunter?' He looked doubtful, so I went on: 'His friend will do, you know—I can't think of his name; foreign gentleman, dark, with a bushy beard.'

"The barber understood at once. 'Oh, that's Mirsky, I expect,' he said. 'Now I come to think of it, he has had letters addressed to Hunter once or twice. I've took 'em in. Top floor back.'

"This was good so far. I had got at Mr. Hunter's other alias. So, by way of possessing him with the idea that I knew all about him, I determined to ask for him as Mirsky before handing over the letter addressed to him as Hunter. A little bluff of that sort is invaluable at the right time. At the top floor back I stopped at the door and tried to open it at once, but it was locked. I could hear somebody scuttling about within, as though carrying things about, and I knocked again. In a little while the door opened about a foot, and there stood Mr. Hunter—or Mirsky, as you like—the man who in the character of a traveler in steam packing came here twice today. He was in his shirt sleeves and cuddled something under his arm, hastily covered with a spotted pocket handkerchief.

"'I have called to see M. Mirsky,' I said, 'with a confidential letter'—

"'Oh, yas, yas,' he answered hastily. 'I know, I know. Excuse me one minute.' And he rushed off downstairs with his parcel.

"Here was a noble chance. I slipped inside the door and, finding the key on the inside, locked it. It was a confused sort of room, with a little iron bedstead in one corner and a sort of rough boarded inclosure in another. This I rightly conjectured to be the photographic dark room and made for it at once.

"There was plenty of light within when the door was left open, and I made at once for the drying rack that was fastened over the sink. There were a number of negatives in it, and I began hastily examining them one after another. In the middle of this our friend Mirsky returned and tried the door. He rattled violently at the handle and pushed. Then he called.

"'Who are you, there, inside?' he shouted indignantly from the landing. 'Why for you go in my room like that? Open this door at once, or I call the police!'

"I took no notice. I had got the full number of negatives, one for each drawing, but I was not by any means sure that he had not taken an extra set. So I went on hunting down the rack. There were no more, so I set to work to turn out all the undeveloped plates. It was quite possible, you see, that the other set, if it existed, had not yet been developed.

"Mirsky changed his tune. After a little more banging and shouting I could hear him kneel down and try the keyhole. I had left the key there, so that he could see nothing. But he began talking softly and rapidly through the hole in a foreign language. I did not know it in the least, but I believe it was Russian. What had led him to believe I understood Russian I could not at the time imagine, though I have a notion now. I went on ruining his stock of plates. I dragged every one ruthlessly from its hiding place and laid it out in the full glare of the sunlight.

"I have called to see M. Mirsky."

"Mirsky left off talking, and I heard him quietly sneaking off. Perhaps his conscience was not sufficiently clear to warrant an appeal to the police, but it seemed to me rather probable at the time that that was what he was going for. So I hurried on with my work.

"I had spoiled every plate I could find and had the developed negatives safely in my pocket, when I happened to glance at a porcelain washing well under the sink. There was one negative in that, and I took it up. It was not a negative of a drawing of yours, but of a Russian twenty ruble note!

"This was a discovery. The only possible reason any man could have for photographing a banknote was the manufacture of an etched plate for the production of forged copies. I was almost as pleased as I had been at the discovery of your negatives. He might bring the police now as soon as he liked. I could turn the tables on him completely. I began to hunt about for anything else relating to this negative.

"I found an inking roller, some old pieces of blanket (used in printing from plates), and in a corner on the floor, heaped over with newspapers and rubbish, a small copying press. There was also a dish of acid, but not an etched plate or a printed note to be seen.

"I had no doubt now of Mirsky's reason for carrying a parcel downstairs. He probably mistook me for another visitor he was expecting, and, knowing he must take this visitor into his room, threw the papers and rubbish over the press and put up his plates and papers in a bundle and secreted them somewhere downstairs, lest his occupation should be observed.

"Plainly, my duty now was to communicate with the police. So, by the help of my friend the barber downstairs, a messenger was found and a note sent over to Scotland Yard. When the official detective arrived, he recognized at once the importance of the case. A large number of forged Russian notes have been put into circulation on the continent lately, it seems, and it was suspected that they came from London. The Russian government has been sending urgent messages to the police here on the subject.

"Of course I said nothing about your business, but while I was talking with the Scotland Yard man a letter was left by a messenger addressed to Mirsky. The letter will be examined, of course, by the proper authorities, but I was not a little interested to perceive that the envelope bore the Russian imperial arms above the words 'Russian embassy.' Now, why should Mirsky communicate with the Russian embassy? Certainly not to let the officials know that he was carrying on a very extensive and lucrative business in the manufacture of spurious Russian notes. I think it is rather more than possible that he wrote—probably before he actually got your drawings—to say that he could sell information of the highest importance, and that this letter was a reply. Further, I think it quite possible that, when I asked for him by his Russian name and spoke of 'a confidential letter,' he at once concluded that I had come from the embassy in answer to his letter. That would account for his addressing me in Russian through the keyhole; and, of course, an official from the Russian embassy would be the very last person in the world whom he would like to have observe any indications of his little etching experiments. But, anyhow, be that as it may," Hewitt concluded, "your drawings are safe now, and if once Mirsky is caught—and I think it likely, for a man in his shirtsleeves, with scarcely any start and, perhaps, no money about him, hasn't a great chance to get away—if he is caught, I say, he will probably get something handsome at St. Petersburg in the way of imprisonment or Siberia or what not; so that you will be amply avenged."

"Yes, but I don't at all understand this business of the drawings even now. How in the world were they taken out of the place and how in the world did you find it out?"

"Nothing could be simpler, and yet the plan was rather ingenious. Now, as the drawings were in your inner office, the only people who could have got at them besides yourself were your assistants, so that it was pretty clear that one of them at least had something to do with the business. You told me that Worsfold was an excellent and intelligent draftsman. Well, if such a man as that meditated treachery he would probably be able to carry away the design in his head—at any rate, a little at a time—and would be under no necessity to run the risk of stealing a set of drawings. But Ritter, you remarked, was an inferior sort of man, 'not particularly smart,' I think, were your words—only a mechanical sort of tracer.

"When I looked round the rooms, I pushed open the glass door of the barrier and left the door to the inner office ajar in order to be able to see anything that might happen in any part of the place without actually expecting any definite development. While we were talking, as it happened, our friend Mirsky—or Hunter, as you please—came into the outer office, and my attention was instantly called to him by the first thing he did. Did you notice anything peculiar yourself?"

"No, really, I can't say I did. He seemed to behave much as any traveler or agent might."

"Well, what I noticed was the fact that as soon as he entered the place he put his walking stick into the umbrella stand over there by the door, close by where he stood, a most unusual thing for a casual caller to do, before even knowing whether you were in. This made me watch him closely. I perceived with increased interest that the stick was exactly of the same kind and pattern as one already standing there, also a curious thing. I kept my eyes carefully on those sticks and was all the more interested and edified to see when he left that he took the other stick—not the one he came with—from the stand and carried it away, leaving his own behind. I might have followed him, but I decided that more could be learned by staying, as, in fact, proved to be the case. This, by the bye, is the stick he carried away with him. I took the liberty of fetching it back from Westminster because I conceive it to be Ritter's property."

Hewitt produced the stick. It was an ordinary thick malacca cane, with a buckhorn handle and a silver band. Hewitt bent it across his knee and laid it on the table.

"Yes," Dixon answered, "that is Ritter's stick. I think I have often seen it in the stand. But what in the world"—

"One moment. I'll just fetch the stick Mirsky left behind." And Hewitt stepped across the corridor.

He returned with another stick, apparently an exact facsimile of the other, and placed it by the side of the other.

"When your assistants went into the inner room, I carried this stick off for a minute or two. I knew it was not Worsfold's, because there was an umbrella there with his initial on the handle. Look at this."

Martin Hewitt gave the handle a twist and rapidly unscrewed it from the top. Then it was seen that the stick was a mere tube of very thin metal, painted to appear like a malacca cane.

"It was plain at once that this was no malacca cane. It wouldn't bend. Inside it I found your tracings, rolled up tightly."

"And this—this was the way they were brought back!" the engineer exclaimed. "I see that clearly. But how did they get away?"

"See here. Mirsky gets hold of Ritter, and they agree to get your drawings and photograph them. Ritter is to let his confederate have the drawings, and Mirsky is to bring them back as soon as possible, so that they shan't be missed for a moment. Ritter habitually carries this malacca cane, and the cunning of Mirsky at once suggests that this tube should be made in outward facsimile. This morning Mirsky keeps the actual stick, and Ritter comes to the office with the tube. He seizes the first opportunity, probably when you were in this private room and Worsfold was talking to you from the corridor, to get at the tracings, roll them up tightly and put them in the tube, putting the tube back into the umbrella stand. At half past 12, or whenever it was, Mirsky turns up for the first time with the actual stick and exchanges them, just as he afterward did when he brought the drawings back."

"Yes, but Mirsky came half an hour after they were—Oh, yes, I see. What a fool I was! I was forgetting. Of course, when I first missed the tracings, they were in this walking stick, safe enough, and I was tearing my hair out within arm's reach of them!"

"Precisely. And Mirsky took them away before your very eyes. I expect Ritter was in a rare funk when he found that the drawings were missed. He calculated, no doubt, on your not wanting them for the hour or two they would be out of the office."

"How lucky that it struck me to jot a pencil note on one of them! I might easily have made my note somewhere else, and then I should never have known that they had been away."

"Yes, they didn't give you any too much time to miss them. Well, I think the rest is pretty clear. I brought the tracings in here, screwed up the sham stick and put it back. You identified the tracings and found none missing, and then my course was pretty clear, though it looked difficult. To Ritter I pretended to know nothing of the return of the drawings or how they had been stolen—the only things I did know with certainty. But I did pretend to know all about Mirsky—or Hunter—when, as a matter of fact, I knew nothing at all, except that he probably went under more than one name. That put Ritter into my hands completely. When he found the game was up, he began with a lying confession. Believing that the tracings were still in the stick and that we knew nothing of their return, he said that they had not been away, and that he would fetch them—as I had expected he would. I let him go for them alone, and when he returned, utterly broken up by the discovery that they were not there, I had him altogether at my mercy. You see, if he had known that the drawings were all the time behind your bookcase, he might have brazened it out, sworn that the drawings had been there all the time, and we could have done nothing with him. We couldn't have sufficiently frightened him by a threat of prosecution for theft, because there the things were in your possession, to his knowledge.

"As it was, he answered the helm capitally, gave us Mirsky's address on the envelope and wrote the letter that was to have got him out of the way while I committed burglary, if that disgraceful expedient had not been rendered unnecessary. On the whole, the case has gone very well."

"It has gone marvelously well, thanks to yourself. But what shall I do with Ritter?"

"Here's his stick—knock him downstairs with it, if you like. I should keep the tube, if I were you, as a memento. I don't suppose the respectable Mirsky will ever call to ask for it."

Mirsky was caught and, after two remands at the police court, was extradited on the charge of forging Russian notes. It came out that he had written to the embassy, as Hewitt had surmised, stating that he had certain valuable information to offer, and the letter which Hewitt had seen delivered was an acknowledgment and a request for more definite particulars. This was what gave rise to the impression that Mirsky had himself informed the Russian authorities of his forgeries. His real intent was very different, but was never guessed.

Piling It On.

A certain judge by reason of his bad temper found considerable difficulty in controlling individuals in the courtroom. On one occasion there was unusual disorder. At last the judge could stand it no longer. "It is impossible to allow this persistent contempt of court," exclaimed his honor, "and I shall be forced to go to the extreme length of taking the one step that will stop it!" There followed a long silence in the court. Finally one of the leading counsel arose and without the suspicion of a smile asked, "If it please your honor, on what date will your resignation take effect?"

A Quaint Oath.

The judicial oath in the Isle of Man is so quaint as to deserve printing. It runs thus: "By this book and the holy contents thereof and by the wonderful works that God hath miraculously wrought in heaven above and in the earth beneath in six days and seven nights I do swear that I will, without respect of favor or friendship, love or gain, consanguinity or affinity, envy or malice, execute the laws of this isle justly between our sovereign lord the king and his subjects within this isle, betwixt party and party, as indifferently as the herring's backbone doth lie in the midst of the fish."

Worked Out.

They were talking about futility and for some reason known only to each other failed to agree. Finally she asked:

"Well, now, suppose you give me an example of what you call futility."

"All right," said he. "Multiply 8,040 by 721."

She took a pencil in her hand, seized a piece of paper and after a few minutes of diligent figuring announced the result.

"It is 2,845,060," said she.

"Divide that by 2," he continued.

"It is 1,422,533," she said.

"Very well," said he. "Now add 7 to that and then subtract 1,422,540 and tell me what you get."

"The result is 0," said she after further figuring.

"Well, that's what I call futility," said he, with a laugh. "You've covered a sheet of paper with figures to arrive at nothing."

Whereupon she became so angry with him that she refused to argue any further on the subject.—London Sphere.

The Formation of Coal.

Many different theories are held by geologists to account for the formation of beds of coal between strata of rock. The simplest of them is that vast masses of wood, such as grew in the carboniferous age of the earth's development, were sunk under the sea, that deposits of silt upon them changed to rock and that by some upheaval of the earth the bottom of the sea was lifted above sea level. Such upheaval occurred in remote geologic ages in the Mississippi valley, all the central parts of which were undoubtedly at one time covered with water and formed an arm of the sea. The one thing certain about coal is that by one process of nature or another it has been converted from the giant trees which grew in the carboniferous age of geology. How many thousands or millions of years that was nobody knows. All that is known about the duration of different geologic ages of the world is that they were long.

Dramatic Detail.

Sir Henry Irving was accustomed to visit at the home of Miss Friswell, author of "In the Sixties and Seventies," in which volume appears the following anecdote: "My mother often used to point out little details that had been overlooked. I remember one in 'The Bells,' which my mother told Mr. Irving on the first night when he returned to our house to supper. People who have seen the play may remember that the first scene is a small inn and that there is supposed to have been a deep fall of snow. The innkeeper, Matthias (Irving), walked in on that first night in ordinary black boots, with no snow upon them. My mother spoke of it, and afterward Matthias wore high black boots and stood on the mat while the snow was brushed off. Remarks were made in the papers as to Mr. Irving's attention to the minutest details, and this was cited as an instance."

Punishments In Early Days.

"In 1643 the assistants order three Stoneham men to sit in the stocks on lecture day for traveling on the Sabbath."

"In 1651 Anna, wife of George Ellis, was sentenced to be publicly whipped for reproaching the magistrates."

"In 1658, for slandering the elders, she had a cleft stick put on her tongue for half an hour."

An Odd Sermon.

It seems doubtful if there is anything more crooked than the following title of a pamphlet published in 1703: "The Deformity of Sin Cured; a Sermon Preached at St. Michael's, Crooked Lane, Before the Prince of Orange, by the Rev. J. Crookshanks." The pamphlet was sold by Matthew Denton at the Crooked Billet near Cripple gate. The words of the text are, "Every crooked path shall be made straight," and the prince before whom it was read was deformed.

Word has reached the state department at Washington that the Chinese foreign office is about to take up with the diplomatic corps, negotiations for a treaty prohibiting the smuggling of arms and ammunition into that country.

BASE BALL.

Mr. Teal, a school teacher by profession and a ball player by choice, was the one big obstacle that stepped the Champions in the first game with So Slear's Indians Friday. Teal had everything and Harris was the only man to get a bingle off his delivery. It came in the third and was rather scratchy. Dillon reached third in the fifth on a gift, sacrifice and error by Merkle, but Ragan was doubled at first on a short fly and the only chance Mt. Clemens had to score was lost. The Indians scored one in the fifth. Hildinger doubled to left. Preston sacrificed him to third and he came home on Merkle's fly to center. In the eighth Merkle drew a pass. Somerlott sacrificed and Mitchell and Wolfe rapped out two baggers, adding two more to the total. Mt. Clemens played errorless ball, but Teal remained an unsolved mystery.

Score by innings:

Mt. Cle'ns	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0

Runs, Hildinger, Merkle, Mitchell; two base hits, Hildinger, Preston, Mitchell; sacrifice hits, Dorsh, Preston, Somerlott; bases on balls, off Neuschafer 1, off Teal 1; struck out, by Neuschafer 4, by Teal 6; first base on errors, Mt. Clemens 2; left on bases, Mt. Clemens 3, Tecumseh 2; double play, Merkle and Wagner; passed ball, Mitchell; umpire, O'Toole; attendance 538.

Inability to hit Chiesman lost the final game of the series for Tecumseh with Mt. Clemens.

Richardson was hit harder than the score indicates and it was only by fast field work that the Indians kept the score down. The Champs got one in the 4th on 3 hits and a base on balls. The last tally came in the 8th when Dillon drove out one, the throw to first was wild and he rested on second coming in on Kelley's 2 sacker.

Tecumseh looked dangerous in the 7th. Wagner drew a base on balls, Hillinger sacrificed and Preston's hit put Wagner on third. Merkle fled to short center on which Wagner tried hard to score but was caught at the plate. Wagner drew applause by catching three difficult flies in left.

The score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Mt. Clemens	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	1	*	2

Runs, Dillon, Chiesman; sacrifice hit, Wenger, Hillinger, Mitchell; first base on balls, off Chiesman 3, off Richardson 3; struck out, by Chiesman 7; stolen bases, Somerlott, Richardson; left on bases, Mt. Clemens 8, Tecumseh 4, double play, Kelley and Cadman, umpire, O'Toole; attendance, 753.

In two fast games of base ball yesterday, Tecumseh and Flint broke even. The first game was won by Flint, Krapp, their pitcher landed on the ball for a home run in the eighth, winning the game, that had been a tie since the fourth inning. Tecumseh's only run came in the fourth on a base on balls and two singles.

Score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E

Runs, Craven 2, Hamilton, Smith, Krapp, Wagner; home run, Krapp, sacrifice hits, Cocash, Slear, Preston, Somerlott; stolen bases, Craven 2, Currie, Wagner; bases on balls, off Krapp 6, off Lagoe 3; hit by pitched ball, Tibald, Slear 2; first base on errors, Flint 2, Tecumseh 1; left on bases, Flint 2, Tecumseh 9; struck out, by Krapp 8, by Lagoe 5; passed ball, Bonckart; time, 2 hours; umpire, Corlette; attendance 550.

Second game.

Score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E

Runs, Cocash, Smith Hillinger, Teal, Somerlott; 3 base hit, Teal; sacrifice, Slear; first base, off Hogan 2, off Teal 1; first on errors, Flint 2, Tecumseh 1; left on bases, Flint 3, Tecumseh 6; struck out by Hogan 1, by Teal 8; wild pitch, Teal; passed ball, Ryan; time, 1:45; umpire, Corlette; attendance, 550.

BASE BALL NOTES.

The Tecumseh management wish to thank the ladies for their attendance on Ladies' Banner day, especially those who put forth the effort to make the day a success.

The new schedule is expected to be out Aug. 1. On account of the change of schedule the teams will have off dates Friday and Saturday and it is expected that games with independent teams will be arranged.

Dan Brouthers was here to attend the Flint—Tecumseh game yesterday in the interest of the New York National league. Brouthers was one of the "Big Four" of Detroit, in '97 and '98 and was once the best first baseman in the United States. It is very likely that he will purchase first baseman Merkle.

Mrs. Mary Clark, the venerable mother of T. R. Clark, went to Deerfield Saturday for a visit of a week with her sis the Misses Jane and Nancy Ferguson. Mrs. Clark is nearly 88 years of age, while one of her sisters is 84 and the other 82, making the combined ages of the three about 254 years. Aside from the blindness of one of the sisters at Deerfield, all are remarkably well, with faculties unimpaired for persons of their years. We are all proud of our pioneers and sincerely hope these aged sisters may have many years of health and happiness.—Petersburg Sun.

COMING HOME FROM TOWN

"We dined in some of the finest hotels and restaurants, but did not find any coffee to excel in quality Arbuckles' ARIOSA."

That is what one lady writes and millions of others prove they believe, by using more Arbuckles' ARIOSA Coffee than all the other packaged coffees in the United States put together.

The fact that Arbuckles' ARIOSA Coffee costs less and has suited the health and taste of most American people for over 37 years, ought to induce everybody to at least sample it.

The cities hide many country girls and boys who secretly sigh for a cup of good coffee like "mother" made. "Mother" probably used the old original "Arbuckles'" the first roasted packaged coffee.

See that you get the sealed package, one pound full weight, bearing the name ARBUCKLES' ARIOSA COFFEE and the signature of Arbuckle Brothers, which entitles you to presents.

That is the genuine article, no matter where you buy it or what price you pay for it.

Same old Coffee, same old firm.

Invitations are out for the marriage of Miss Elsie Gaye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs J. S. Butrick, and Ernest S. Hazard of Riga. The nuptial event will occur at 5:30 o'clock at the Butrick home at 136 west Maumee street, Wednesday evening, Aug. 7. The bride to be is one of the accomplished triplets so well and favorably known to many Press readers and the groom is one of the capable and well to do young farmers of Riga township whose home is near Southlands.—Adrian Press.

Among the Sand lake visitors Sunday were Mr. and Mrs Floyd Heesen, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Williamson, Misses Ernestine Anderson, Edith Shull, Stella Zimmerman, Margaret Elliott, Mayme Kaiser, Hazel Clark Bidwell, Vita Rude Mildred Heesen, Gertrude Bowen of Adrian, Mable Buckingham of Toledo, Messrs Paul Rowland, Otto Garlinghouse, Tom Dennison, Don Heesen, Roy VanWinkle, Sam Foote, Herbert Russell, Mr. Mansfield of Toledo, and Leonard Conklin.

Notice.

At a meeting of the township board held at the township office July 26, 1907, Elijah Ames was appointed as township commissioner of noxious weeds, whose duty is to notify people owning or occupying lands to cut all Canada thistles or other noxious weeds and if they disregard his notice, to go upon the premises and cut the weeds, and return an account of the expense to the supervisor of the township and it will be assessed and collected the same as other taxes.

Moving Picture Show.

L. A. Quayle, who is conducting the moving picture show here every evening is meeting with great success. Last week he had an attendance of 1673. He puts up a good, clean show and many are just getting interested. By request last Friday and Saturday nights he repeated the pictures, "Lost in the Alps" that pictures a beautiful little story.

Both of these nights the theatre was crowded, many standing up while the halls were crowded with people during performances who were anxiously waiting their turn. Mr. Quayle has rented the building for a year and the prospects are that he will remain.

Mrs. Edith Lamkin burned.

Mrs. Edith Lamkin was quite badly burned Sunday morning by the explosion of a gasoline can. Long live the king!

Is the popular cry throughout European countries, while in America the cry is "long live Dr. King's New Discovery, king of throat and lung remedies!" of which Mrs. Julia Payne, Murg, Mass., writes "It never fails to give immediate relief or to quickly cure a cough or cold." Mrs. Payne's opinion is shared by many of the people of this country. New Discovery cures weak lungs and sore throat after all other remedies have failed and for coughs and colds it's the only sure cure. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright, & Son, druggists. 50c and $1. Present Trustees Heesen, Lowry, Magers, Slater, Sherman.

Absent Teachout.

Moved and supported that the clerk be instructed to draw an order in favor of James McCann for $1 55 for error in assessment. Carried.

Moved and supported that the meeting adjourn until Monday, July 29, at 7:30 o'clock. Carried.
W. L. JONES, Clerk.

Adjourned meeting held July 29 1907.

President J. H. Combs in the chair.

Present Trustees Heesen, Lowry, Slater, Sherman.

Absent Teachout, Magers.

It was moved and supported that the following resolution be accepted and adopted.

Resolved, That the Common Council of the village of Tecumseh, does hereby deem it necessary and declares its intention to make the following improvements, viz:

First, That a sanitary sewer be constructed, having its outlet in the River Raisin, at a point about three hundred feet north of the railroad bridge and running thence northwesterly to the center of Chicago street, east of the bridge across the tail race and thence westerly in Chicago street and with laterals throughout the entire portion of the village lying south of Evans creek. And second, that a sanitary sewer be constructed, having its outlet in the River Raisin about three hundred feet northeasterly from the intersection of Water street and Maumee street and running thence southwesterly throughout all that portion of the inhabited part of this village, lying between Evans creek and the River Raisin; Said sewers to be of a material and size and laid at a depth according to the plans and specifications and maps thereof now on file in the office of the village clerk.

That said maps and specifications and plans shall be open to inspection by the public in the office of said clerk for a period of two weeks next ensuing this date.

That the whole expense of said sewers be paid by general tax upon all the taxable property in the village.

That for the purpose of raising funds for the payment of said sewers, subject to the favorable action by the qualified electors of this village and in the manner specified by statute, there shall be issued the bonds of this village for an amount sufficient to pay for the expense of such improvement, but not exceeding the sum of Forty Thousand Dollars, bearing interest at the rate of five per cent payable annually; that of said bonds the interest only shall be payable during the term of ten years next ensuing their date, and that the principal of said bonds shall fall due One Thousand Dollars annually for the period of twenty years next ensuing said above mentioned period of ten years, and become due at the rate of Two Thousand Dollars per year, next ensuing the thirty years above provided for.

And that it is the sentiment of this Council, that, as soon as it is possible and practicable and as soon as it shall become necessary in order that the inhabitants of this village may all have the full benefit of said sewer system, the waterworks system be extended upon all streets now without water mains.

And that there shall be a meeting of this Council at 6:30 p. m. on the 12th day of August, 1907, for the purpose of hearing objections to and suggestions upon the subject of said sewers and to which meeting all citizens of this village be invited.

Ayes, Heesen, Slater, Lowry, Sherman. Nays, none. Carried.

Moved and supported that council adjourn. Carried.
W. L. JONES, Clerk.

Louis Davis, a simple minded boy, has been staying for some months with the Wagner family of Hillsdale, who own a boat house at Baw Beese lake. A few days ago Davis went into the boat house and struck a match to find out how much gasoline was in a barrel. The result was an explosion which knocked the boy into a boat and a moment later the house was on fire and in a short time was entirely destroyed. The boy escaped without injury but was sent to the county farm.—Hudson Post.

WOMEN PAY MORE.

Medical examiners of insurance companies say that the reason a woman pays more for the privilege of insurance than a man, is from the fact that women more readily fall victims to indigestion and stomach troubles and the fatal ailments that spring from these causes.

All persons, they say, who have a weakened digestive system and suffer from sick headache, dizzy spells, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness and the many other symptoms of indigestion, soon lower the tone of the whole system and are most susceptible to a fatal illness.

For curative power in all stomach troubles, nothing else is as safe yet effective, nothing else can be thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na. It is unlike any remedy heretofore known and is really one of the valuable discoveries in modern medical science.

It is not the acute attacks that influence the insurance examiners alone but the constant feeling of weakness, headachs, indigestion and stomach troubles—these things, physicians say, kill more people than more serious diseases.

To escape this condition of ill health, to enjoy one's food and yet never suffer with indigestion, a person should use Mi-o-na stomach tablets. They are not a mere digestive tablet, but strengthen and restore to natural action the stomach and bowels and effect a complete cure in even the worst form of stomach trouble.

C. A. Wright sells Mi-o-na in 50 cent boxes under a guarantee to refund the money unless it does all that is claimed for it.

ROUND ABOUT US.

A real rattlesnake was killed in Adrian last Monday. This goes to show that the county seat is so much like a jungle that rattlers find the environments congenial and also that occasionally an Adrianite who sees snakes can produce the goods.—Hudson Post.

Burglars entered the passenger house at the station Monday night and ransacked the ticket office carrying off a large amount of tickets that are no earthly use to them, as to offer them would surely cause their arrest. It looks like a case of pure cussedness and was probably done by hoboes as they bunked in a car on the siding near by.—Clinton Courier.

Shortly before noon Wednesday the barn on the Kappler farm about one half mile south of Pittsfield Junction, was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. Thos. Knight was using the barn and had it full of hay, the last load being on the wagon on the barn floor. There was also in the barn about 100 bushels of barley, a lot of oats and some wheat.—Saline Observer.

The Carleton high school was struck by lightning last Tuesday afternoon and the fire smouldered until about midnight when it broke out in a threatening manner The entire village population took a hand at fighting the flames and extinguished them after only $300 worth of damage was done. The loss is covered by insurance.—Milan Leader.

The fishermen, who returned last week from a fishing trip at Lovell, Mich. have a bear story to tell as well as a fishing story. It seems that James Ash and Ham Halran found a large wild strawberry patch and were doing justice to the fine ripe strawberries when a large bear came onto the scene with the intention of helping them take care of the fruit but they did not want any help of that sort. The two fishermen had a lively foot race back to camp to see which could get there first.—Hudson Gazette.

Robert Wellwood, who lives on the Oliver Nichols farm seven miles west of this village had quite a serious accident a few days ago that will incapacitate him for work for a time. He was unloading hay with a horse fork and was driving the team himself. Like many others he walked directly behind the team and when the whiffletrees broke he was struck on the hand hurting it badly. He carried his watch in his pants watch pocket and it is probably on this account that he escaped a very serious wound on his body at that point as his watch case was smashed flat. Robert seems to be up against hard luck. Only a few years ago he was nearly killed by being run away with a three-horse team of high spirited animals while ploughing and it took him a long time to recover from the injuries.—Clinton Local.

Boys shooting sparrows, often become careless in their aim and many accidents more or less serious in nature are reported from time to time. It is none too pleasant a sensation, when upon the streets or even in one's home, to hear shot whizzing by your ear or to feel it glancing from your person. This has been the case in several instances as has also been the breaking of many windows and much disfigurment to property. Several days ago a work horse belonging to N. D. Curtiss was shot in the tail, which has since been the cause of the amputation of that appendage. That these instances are results of pure carelessness is very evident, but that excuse hardly makes good the harm done. A word to the wise is sufficient.—Dundee Reporter.

Betser—Healey.

Mrs. Libbie Betser and Fred Herley were married in Adrian Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock by Judge Larwill. They will reside in Tecumseh.

BRONCHIAL COUGHS.

Breathe Hyomei's healing air and all irritation will be cured.

The most irritating and annoying form of cough is that termed bronchial. People subject to bronchial troubles when there is a change in the weather or they are exposed to a draft will catch a bronchial cough which is annoying and irritating.

Bronchial trouble cannot be cured by stomach dosing. The medicated air of Hy-o-mei is the only treatment that reaches the affected parts and gives relief and cure. It destroys all disease germs, soothes and relieves the irritated mucous membrane in all parts of the bronchial tubes and quickly overcomes the irritation.

Bronchitis is really an inflammation of the mucous membrane lining the air passages and is a local disease requiring local treatment like that afforded by Hy-o-mei.

If there is any doubt in your mind as to the power of Hy-o-mei to cure bronchal troubles so that the system will resist coughs and colds, the unusual way in which it is sold by C. A. Wright should dispel that doubt. He agrees to to refund the money to any purchaser of Hy-o-mei who is not perpectly satisfied with the results following the use of the remedy. He takes all the risk and if the remedy does not help you it does not cost you a penny, while if it cures, the expense is nominal, for a complete Hy-o-mei outfit is sold at only $1.00.

Waiting doesn't pay.
If you neglect the aching back
Urinary troubles surely follow.
Doan's Kidney Pills relieve backache.
Cure every kidney ill.
Tecumseh people endorse them.

Henry Keyser, retired, living on Pottowatamie street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I still hold the same good opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills as I did five years ago when I gave a statement recommending them. For years I was bothered with a weakness of the bladder and my back ached all the time. Sharp pains would attack me suddenly and I would have to grasp something for support. I did not rest well at night and in the morning I felt tired. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills, began using them and received great benefit as they rid me of my backache. I advise all sufferers from kidney trouble to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other.

OFFERS HUSBAND POISON.

Wife Then Drinks the Potion Before She Could Be Stopped and Dies.

Detroit, Mich., July 30.—"Come, have a drink with me, Joe," said Mrs. Joseph Bowers, of 724 Howard street, about 5 o'clock Monday afternoon as she walked into her husband's room and aroused him from his afternoon's slumber.

"Why, what do you mean?" asked the husband, startled by his wife's request and trying to realize the meaning of it.

At the side of the bed stood the wife. In her hand she held a catsup bottle. It was half full.

Terrified, the husband sprang from his bed and started after her. She reached the bottom of the stairs first. The pursuit continued through several rooms—has the husband reached the kitchen, the door closed before him. When he finally opened it, his wife lay writhing on the floor. The wife died in Red Cross hospital shortly after, and the doctors said it was from carbolic acid poison.

A few hours before she entered her husband's room and invited him to drain the poison cup with her, Mrs. Bowers bade her two sons and daughters a more affectionate farewell than usual. As she kissed them, she repeated "goodbye" several times.

She has been afflicted with a disease of the throat for some time and this is thought to be the cause for her act.

Coroner Bennet intimated that he would conduct an investigation.

Mrs. Bowers is survived by two daughters, Edith and Anna, and two sons, Earl and Raymond. She was 42 years old.

Killed During Sham Battle.

Lansing, Mich., July 30.—The death at "Swedeton Hill," near Calumet, of a member of Co G, Michigan National Guard of Houghton, may mark the end of sham battles between companies in Michigan Guard. The dead boy's name is given as Hjalmar Luokkolo, and his age as 17. He was shot through the heart just as Co. G was engaging Co. A, the engineer company of Calumet. The bullet went clear through his body and lodged in a tree. The state military department is investigating.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

John Tyler, a carpenter employed by the Dow Chemical Co., at Midland, fell dead at his work Monday just after stating to a companion that he never felt better in his life. Tyler was an old resident of Midland.

Earl Near, a young man of 16 years, son of James Near, a farmer living just south of Standish, was killed by the south-bound passenger train at Standish Sunday morning at 5:30, as he was walking on the track. He came in on an earlier train from the north. The body was horribly mangled.

With no one near to hear her cries, Mrs. J. H. Ehler of Mount Sterling, Ill., a tourist, was drowned in Batchawana river near the Soo Sunday while trying to recover a rowboat which left its moorings. She stepped into a deep hole. The remains will be taken to Dayton, O., for burial.

Playing around a bonfire Monday morning, Anna Kerpic, the four-year-old daughter of Paul Kerpic, a Polish saloonkeeper, at 2500 Jefferson avenue west, Detroit, stepped too near the blaze. Her clothes took fire and she was probably fatally burned. A passing policeman extinguished the flames.

During her drop of 250 feet at North park, near Grand Rapids, Sunday, Mlle. Victoria de Beuville's parachute failed to work properly, and she struck the earth so hard that the bones of her feet were crushed. Both feet were amputated at the Soldiers' Home hospital. The woman is from Kankakee and is about 20 years old.

Their boat upset by a cable stretched across the river under the water, where the new Ann street bridge is being built at Grand Rapids, Charles Likstrom and Louis Anderson of that city were drowned early Sunday morning. Likstrom leaves a widow and two children, and Anderson a widow and six children.

Henry C. Leighton, aged 35, and employed as clerk at the Bismarck hotel in Battle Creek, committed suicide on Sunday, shooting himself with a 38-caliber revolver. He left a note, notifying his family where to collect his life insurance. He leaves a widow and two children to whom he had complained of late that he was not making the best of life.

The deserted Baptist church at Royal Oak is to be reopened for worship by Detroit summer residents. The church was built by Rev. Silas Finn, father of A. H. Finn, the Detroit publisher. Rev. Finn was a carpenter as well as preacher. He built the church in the form of a Greek cross, with a tower in the middle, and the pulpit under the tower.

After taking in a tramp to feed him, Mrs. J. Gollwifer of Caledonia, was attacked by the man, whose purpose was robbery. She broke away and got to the phone, where the fellow knocked her down. Neighbors heard her screams and drove the tramp off. He got $4 and a gold watch, but missed a roll of $300 in the woman's stocking.

Andy Fay, a member of Chunn's Uncle Tom's Cabin Co., left the show at East Tawas and joined the Prentice medicine show holding forth there. He stole $20 from Harry Losher, his roommate, and the sheriff found him at Alabaster. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to pay $25 or go to the house of correction at Detroit for 60 days. He chose the trip to Detroit.

Death Adds to Tragedy.

Versailles, July 30.—The death of the aged American soldier himself, and an attempt at self destruction on the part of his son, Henry, who shot his sisters and brothers on Sunday in the last hours of his dying father, imparted additional sadness Monday to the shocking tragedy in the home of Major Henry A. Huntington, which has caused a sensation in the American colony and diplomatic circles of France. As the family were gathered about the bedside of the dying parent, Henry, it is reported, who has been estranged from the remainder of the family, sought his father's forgiveness. Evidently words must have ensued and the repentent son grew angry. He suddenly whipped out a pistol and began shooting wildly, bullets striking and wounding his two sisters, Elizabeth and Edith, and two brothers, Alonzo and Douglas.

The Clyde at Glasgow.

There are magnificent harbors in the old world which have been dug out of shallow sloughs and sluggish ditches. The Elbe at Hamburg is a narrow and insignificant stream compared with the great rivers of this western world. Yet for some score of miles down the Elbe from Hamburg to the sea this river's shores are lined with the seagoing craft of all the maritime nations of the world. Where Glasgow is situated, on the Clyde, that stream was once what is known in America as "a creek." Yet the Clyde has been dredged out until today the leviathans of peace and war, the great sea monsters of the transatlantic lines, the creations of the great captains of the shipbuilding industry, are built and launched there month after month, year after year. So narrow is the Clyde at Glasgow that these ships, some of them five and six hundred feet in length, cannot be launched head to the stream, as is the custom, but are launched broadside on for fear they should run their bows into the opposite bank.—Argonaut.

A Bride of Morocco.

Says an observer of conditions in modern Morocco: "The wife is bought in Morocco today, and the sum paid is agreed upon between her father and the would-be husband. Sometimes a cow may be sufficient to procure a bride, at other times many cattle and several dollars are necessary for her purchase. The bride is, of course, dressed in suitable costume, but the most interesting part of her toilet to a stranger is the decoration of henna. The henna, pounded and mixed with lemon juice, is sometimes painted directly on to her face, arms, hands and legs. At other times a stencil pattern it put on her flesh and the perforated holes filled up with the henna. By the time this is completed she is tattooed with a dark design. Society women in more enlightened countries who wear lace blouses in a hot summer sun often find their arms and neck burned into a pattern which has much the same effect as the henna tattoo on the poor little Moorish maid."

How the Burro Eats Thistles.

The Rocky mountain burro, one of the most sagacious of animals, seeks the thistle as a favorite food, and the pungent spines with which it protects its leaves at every angle are doubtless a recognition on its part of this fondness of grazing animals for it. Few experiences of frontier life are more amusing than to watch the donkey's attack upon a large bull thistle. He walks about it, seeking for a favorable opening, projects his lip gingerly against its spines and jerks back as he feels its pricks. He surveys it pensively for a moment or two and then slowly raises his foot and strikes it, pausing to watch the effect of the blow. He then perhaps strikes it from the other side and watches again. The blows become rapid, and at length it is broken down and thoroughly trampled, after which it is consumed to the last vestige.—Country Life In America.

A Homiletical Repeater.

"It was in a small German congregation that I heard a preacher who when he had completed his introduction and first point said, 'I have come to the second head.' A man rose, rubbed his eyes, folded his arms across his breast and appeared ready for that head. When it was finished he had overcome the drowsiness and sat down. During the elucidation of the third head three other men stood up. At the close of his sermon the preacher found all his people asleep. As he stopped they all looked up and seemed greatly relieved. But the good man said, 'You have slept all through the sermon, and as this is a sermon you all ought to hear I will begin it anew.'"—Ecclesiastical Review.

The Face.

Nature has laid out all her art in beautifying the face. She has touched it with vermilion, planted in it a double row of ivory, made it the seat of smiles and blushes, lighted it up and enlivened it with the brightness of the eyes, lining it at each side with curious organs of sense, given it airs and graces that cannot be described and surrounded it with such a flowing shade of hair as sets all its beauties in the most agreeable light.—Addison.

Wanted to Be In Time.

A wealthy Parisian, tired of supporting his nephew, determined to get him married off and settled. He called upon a matrimonial agent and looked over his album of candidates for husbands. To his horror he found the picture of his own pretty young wife. He reproached her and demanded an explanation. "I do not deny it," she said, "but it was last year, when, as you know, dearest, you had been given up by all the doctors."

To wade in marshes and sea margins is the destiny of certain birds, and they are so accurately made for this that they are imprisoned in those places. Each animal out of its habitat would starve. A soldier, a locksmith, a bank clerk and a dancer could not exchange functions. And thus we are victims of adaptation.—Emerson.

My Breath.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure has permanently restored to health many thousands who had found no relief in the medicines (allopathic or homoeopathic) of regular practicing physicians.

It has proved itself unique in the history of medicine, by being so uniformly successful in curing those diseases.

Nearly always, one of the first signs of trouble is shortness of breath. Whether it comes as a result of walking or running up stairs, or of other exercises, if the heart is unable to meet this extra demand upon its pumping powers—there is something wrong with it.

The very best thing you can do, is to take Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. It will go to the foundation of the trouble, and make a permanent cure by strengthening and renewing the nerves.

"I know that Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is a great remedy. For a number of years I suffered from shortness of breath, smothering spells, and pains in my left side. For months at a time I would be unable to lie on my left side, and if I lay flat on my back would nearly smother. A friend advised using Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which I did with good results. I began to improve at once, and after taking several bottles of the Heart Cure the pains in my side and other symptoms vanished. I am now entirely well. All those dreadful smothering spells are a thing of the past."—F. P. DRAKE, Middletown, O.

Long Beach Hotel Burns.

Long Beach, L. I., July 30.—Eight hundred guests of the Long Beach hotel, one of the largest seashore hotels on the Atlantic coast, had to flee for their lives early Monday when the hotel was burned to the sands. There was no loss of life and so far as can be learned no one was injured. The guests lost almost all their clothing and personal effects. The fire was discovered on the first floor shortly after 5 o'clock. Hall boys and clerks hurried through the smoky corridors and aroused the sleeping guests. The flames spread so rapidly in the great wooden structure that the guests had barely time to seize some scanty clothing and escape. They fled to the beaches and were taken care of by the cottagers. The hotel burned like tinder.

New U. of M. Dean Is Dead.

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 30.—Dr. Willoughby Dayton Miller, newly chosen dean of the dental department, who was to have assumed his duties this fall, is dead. He succumbed in Alexandria, O., to an operation for appendicitis. Dr. Miller is the scientist who was called to the U. of M. from Berlin university, and whose ability and learning were some time ago publicly commented on by Emperor William. He was a graduate of the U. of M. class of '76, literary department, and took his D. D. S. at the University of Pennsylvania. He was the author of scientific works in the German language.

Linen Makes Rice Paper.

The rice plant contributes nothing toward the manufacture of rice cigarette papers but the name. Rice paper as bought by the cigarette merchants of Egypt and Turkey is made from only perfectly new trimmings of linen and mostly comes from English and French mills in Constantinople, Fumen and France. The celebrated Chinese rice paper is made from thin slices of the pith from the canes of a tree about five feet high. A sharp knife pares the pith into cylinders of uniform thickness, which are than unrolled and pressed out into so called rice paper. By the way, Egyptian cigarettes contain no Egyptian tobacco, for since 1890 the cultivation of the tobacco plant has been prohibited. It is for workmanship and the curing of the leaf that the Cairenes are so justly celebrated, but the tobacco they import comes entirely from Turkey.

Fell Into River While Asleep.

Detroit, Mich., July 30.—Monday afternoon another name was added to the list of river victims, bringing the total of those who have met a watery grave within 22 days up to 11. An unidentified man was drowned in the river about 5 o'clock Monday afternoon. The Belle Isle ferry boat, Garland, was just making her landing at Woodward avenue, when the pleasure seekers on board were attracted by a man struggling in the water off the White Star line docks at the foot of Griswold street. Before aid could reach the struggling figure the man disappeared in the water, not to rise again. His body was recovered 15 minutes later. He had been seen sitting on a pile of lumber by several workmen a short time before. It is thought he fell asleep and dropped into the river.

Little Girl Is Drowned.

Detroit, Mich., July 30.—Emma Blumen, 12-year-old daughter of August Blumen, living on Baldwin living on Baldwin avenue in the eighteenth ward, was drowned in the River Rouge near the carbon works at 11:30 o'clock Monday morning. The little girl was playing along the shore with several playmates, and walked out on a log placed in the river to protect a sewer outlet. The log suddenly swung out into the stream and rolled over, throwing the girl into the water. Instead of trying to aid her, the other children ran away to give the alarm, but no one arrived in time to save the girl. The body was recovered.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle

A THIRD MURDERED.

Reign of Crime in New York's Foreign Quarter.

PEOPLE MUCH WROUGHT UP.

Little Girl is Last Victim of Fiend—Two Women Have Previously Suffered Death in Similar Manner—One Arrest Has Been Made.

New York, Aug. 2.—The "grave yard," as the foreign populated neighborhood on First avenue, between 13th and 14th streets, is known locally, gave up a fresh crime, rivalling in atrocity the mysterious butcheries of last week. The latest discovered victim was an eight-year-old girl, and, like the two young women murdered, she had been shockingly mistreated before death and the body mutilated when life was extinct.

The three murders are strikingly similar. Last Thursday night a woman was strangled in a 22nd street boarding house; the next morning the body of a still unidentified woman, who had been choked to death, was found in an area way in East 90th street. Katie Pritschler, daughter of a restaurant waiter, disappeared a week ago yesterday, and was killed that night. A ribbon placed about the throat and drawn so tightly that it cut the flesh, showed how she died. Her body was found yesterday.

If the brutality of the murders can be classified, that of the Pritschler girl ranks first. She was assaulted, murdered and then her lifeless form horribly mutilated.

"The grave yard" takes its name from the proximity of the old 13th street cemetery and the locality has been the scene of several revolting murders.

The majority of the residents are foreigners.

Carl Pritschler, the father of Katie, is a hard-working, respectable citizen. He has several other children, all other children, all younger than Katie. The girl left home at 349 East 13th street last Thursday night to play in the street. When she failed to return the father notified the police and a general alarm was sent out. The body was discovered Thursday within a block of her home and scarcely a hundred yards from the location of a placard placed by the father, calling attention to the fact that his child was lost. How the body could have remained undiscovered for a week is not explained.

At the coroner's direction, Gaetano Rippolano, whose cobbler shop adjoins the girl's home, was arrested and asked to explain his absence from his shop on last Friday. He established the fact that he had spent the day at Bristol, Conn. The girl is said to have frequented Rippolano's place, and a search of the shop brought to light a a man's shirt which bore red stains. The cobbeler was arraigned and remanded to the coroner. Giuseppe Bonfanto, Rippolano's partner, was questioned, but threw little light on the case and was not detained. The police also began a search for a woman who is said to have formerly roomed at the Pritschler home, but who left there after a quarrel and took lodgings in the house where the girl's body was found.

When the news of the findings of the little one's body spread through the neighborhood, excitement rose to such a pitch that the removal of the body and the arrest of Rippolano caused almost a riot.

Alleged Janitor Stole $8,500.

Pittsburg, Aug. 2.—Thomas Jordan, 27 years old, colored janitor of the First National bank of Turtle Creek, Pa., near here, was lodged in the Allegheny county jail last night charged with the theft of $8,500 from the institution. Jordan denies all knowledge of the robbery. At the preliminary hearing Cashier Thomas Carroll testified that he had forgotten to place the money in the vault Wednesday evening and that to the best of his belief and knowledge the money lay on the counter inside the paying teller's window until taken by the thief. The information against the colored janitor was sworn out by a director of the bank and Jordan was committed to jail in default of bail in the sum of $9,000.

Sentenced to Be Hanged.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Herman Billik, recently convicted of the murder of Mary Azral by poisoning, was Thursday sentenced to hang on Oct. 11. Before sentence was passed, Billik broke down and cried. He then denied that he had poisoned anybody, and declared that the evidence against him was manufactured.

NOW GOES TO JURY.

Inquest Over Salem Wreck Near to an End.

ATTORNEYS YET TO ARGUE.

Engineer Rogers Gives His Testimony Lying in Bed—He and Conductor Hamilton Both Declare They Misread Their Orders.

Northville, Mich., Aug. 2.—Undergoing examination at his own request after receiving from the prosecutor a warning that what he said might be used against him later on, Conductor Fred E. Hamilton, on the witness stand before the coroner's jury investigating the Pere Marquette wreck at Washburn's curve on Saturday, July 20, Thursday afternoon attributed the cause of the disaster to his own misreading of train order No. 8. His whole story of the misinterpetation of the order coincided exactly with that of his engineer, W. I. Rogers.

With his testimony the inquest closed Today the different attorneys interested will present their argument, and it is expected that the jury will then take the entire case under consideration.

In the couse of his testimony, Conductor Hamilton declared that when he received the order that morning in the station at Plymouth, he read it aloud in the hearing of Operator Cassidy, who had handed it to him. And right there, he said, he made the mistake that was to cost over thirty lives that day. No mention of hearing anything about the order was made by Cassidy in his testimony.

Hamilton told his story straightforwardly, without the least hesitation, with the greatest evident intent to make it clear to the jurors who were listening to him. His manner on the stand was one of firmness and confidence, tending to leave the impression that he was most sincere in what he said.

Court Migrates.

During the morning, Justice Joslyn's court was a migratory tribunal. Together with the jurors and Assistant Prosecutor Robison he went over to Plymouth, and there held to sessions, one in the hotel lobby, the other in the bed room occupied by Engineer W. I. Rogers, of Yl. The latter was the most peculiar and at the same time the most affecting session held in the entire course of the inquisition.

Swathed in bandages and still suffering intense pain from the severe burns which he sustained in the wreck, the veteran engine driver gave his testimony before the court and jury, the spectators looking on with pitying eyes. Everything in the court's power was done to relieve him of strain, yet so hard was it on him that Rogers buret into tears when the end came. The sight of the engineer completely broken down affected every man present, and the eyes of Assistant Prosecutor Robison, who conducted the examination on behalf of the people, filled with tears.

Rogers Corroborates Hamilton.

The engineer corroborated in every detail Conductor Hamilton's story of how the order which led to the wreck was misinterpreted. He swore that he himself misread the time figures "Salem 9:25" instead of "Salem 9:10." The engineer when he gave his testimony was lying in a plain white room with boquets of fragrant flowers on the bureau.

The inquest adjourned to the lobby of the hotel, where William Washburn, formerly a section hand on the Pere Marquette, testified that he heard Conductor Hamilton say he had until 9:25 to make Salem while they were unloading gravel two miles west of Plymouth.

Washburn said he quit the Pere Marquette because of long hours, irregular times for meals and almost continuous performance on wrecking duty.

Victim of Strange Delusion.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 2.—Laboring under the delusion that she is dead, Mrs. Mary Peek, wife of Frank Peek, of this city, will be sent to the Pontiac asylum this week, petition having been made by her husband Wednesday. Mrs. Peek is 48 yars old and she imagines that she constantly hears music and the ringing of telephone bells. At times she asks her children to prepare for her a funeral and bury her. Mrs. Peek has been demented for some time.

HOLD COURT AT NIGHT.

Disorderlies in New York Secure Quick Trial.

NEW PLAN IS BEING TRIED.

Professional Bondsmen Deprived of Their Business—Judge Whitman Occupies Bench — Policemen Leave Beats Unprotected in Order to Get Prisoners to Court.

New York, Aug. 2.—There will be no more languishing in cells on a desk lieutenant's say-so, or premiums paid to professional bondsmen on trumped-up arrest cases in this city. From now on the policeman who makes an arrest at any hour of the day or night will have to bring his prisoner immediately before a magistrate.

New York's first all-night police court was opened last evening when Judge Whitman formally announced that the night shift of justice was ready for business. Seventy-two unfortunates who had fallen into the toils since nightfall peered from the detention pen.

Heretofore professional bondsmen reaped a harvest in keeping out of jail for the night many women arrested as disorderly and who, upon subsequent hearings, were discharged. It has been alleged that many such arrests were made without sufficient warrant.

On the bench with Judge Whitman was practically the full board of city magistrates. Police Commissioner Bingham, two of his deputies and many attorneys also attended the sessions, the formal hours of which will be from 9 p. m. to 3 a. m., but these are subject to modification, and day and night sessions will, to all intents and purposes, be on the continuous performance plan. It is expected that other night courts will be required to handle the after dark business.

An interesting development last night was the discovery that the coming to court of patrolmen left many beats unprotected. One section, where 30,000 families are housed, was left without a policeman while its seven officers took their prisoners to court. When adjournment for lunch was taken at midnight, 168 cases had been disposed of and 35 prisoners were awaiting arraignment.

His Ears Cut Off.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 2.—The body of a young man with both ears severed was found west of this city last night. One ear was found in a street. This is the second crime of this sort within a week. The body of a man with both ears severed was found in a box car last Saturday.

He Slashed Women's Dresses.

Denver, Aug. 2.—Peter Magoffin, a laborer, was arrested Thursday after he had slashed the dresses of 30 women and girls in the streets. He was caught in the act. A keen knife and a number of bits of slashed dresses were found on his person. He could not explain his action.

Bernhardt Not in It.

Paris, Aug. 2.—The Associated Press learns from an authoritative source that the name of Sarah Bernhardt, in spite of the reports tha have been current for a year or more, is not to be included in the forthcoming list of new members of the Legion of Honor.

His Death a Mystery.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 2.—A man giving the name of Joseph Smith, about 35 years of age, was found by the Sarnia police on the Grand Trunk tracks late Thursday afternoon, suffering intense pain. The stranger gave his address as Fletherton, Ont., but could give no account for his sickness. He died an hour later at the Sarnia hospital without the physicians being able to diagnose his case. A postmortem will be held.

They Get the Most Fish.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 2.—The game warden's report for July shows 1,382 pounds of undersized fish seized. Fines collected aggregated $955 80, and 31 cases were started in the courts. Twenty-six convictions were secured.

Fleet Sails When He Gives Word.

Oyster Bay, Aug. 2.—Secretary Loeb said yesterday that there had been no change in the plans to send the Atlantic battleship fleet to the Pacific ocean and that the necessary preparations for the trip are now being made by the navy department. Upon their completion and approval by the president the voyage will be begun when the president gives the word.

HAIL AND LIGHTNING.

Do Much Damage in Southern Portion of the State.

Owosso, Mich., Aug. 2.—A disastrous wind and hail storm Thursday noon at the village of Oakley and for a four-mile radius broke the church and store windows facing east and caused thousands of dollars' damage to crops. Corn was cut to ribbons, beans beaten flat and large fields of oats so badly damaged that they will probably never be threshed.

Redford, Mich., Aug. 2.—The most severe hail storm ever experienced here occurred Thursday afternoon. The largest of the hail was the size of hickory nuts and the ground was entirely covered for a few minutes. The damage to corn and oat crops will reach well into the hundreds.

Twining, Mich., Aug 3.—During a severe rain and electrical storm about noon Thursday lightning struck and set fire to a barn belonging to James Bruce, a farmer living four miles west of Twining. The flames quickly spread to an adjoining barn and the two large barns together with hay from 80 acres of land burned to the ground.

Great Plains, Mich., Aug. 2—A severe hail storm passed over this section at 5:15 Thursday afternoon. Many window lights were broken and much damage was done to oats, corn and beans. Many of the stones ranged in size from walnuts to hen's eggs.

Orion, Mich., Aug. 2.—Over 2,000 panes of glass were broken in the greenhouse of A. Harvey & Sons, Detroit, by the heavy hail and rain storm that passed over this village about 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Immense damage was done to oats and corn and the loss sustained by farmers on their crops is estimated at $50,000.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 2.—Trains, street cars and traffic in general was tied up for five hours by the electrical storm here Tuesday afternoon. The power plant of the traction company was put out of business at 2 o'clock and the cars were stalled until 7 in the evening, forcing workmen to walk miles to and from their work.

Northville, Mich., Aug. 2.—An extraordinary severe hail storm broke over this place at 2:15 Thursday afternoon. It was a combination of electrical, wind and ice pebble onslaught, the like of which has not been seen here at this season in years. The farmers in the vicinity report a great deal of damage done to standing grain and to grain in shock, but unprotected. The corn on some of the poorer and lower land was badly injured.

Shifting Wind Saves Factories.

Corunna, Mich., Aug. 2.—Sparks from a Grand Trunk engine Thursday afternoon set fire to a platform containing 100 steel tanks, each containing 50 gallons of oil. The platform burned and the tanks blew up in succession with deafening report. The fire department responded, but could do nothing towards subduing the flames. Fortunately the platform was in an isolated position and a shift of wind a few minutes before the fire kept Corunna's two furniture factories from being in danger from sparks. The Standard Oil Co. owned the platform and tanks.

Frankfort Assembly Opens.

Frankfort, Mich., Aug. 2.—A dreary drizzly rain marked the opening of the Congregational summer assembly here Thursday morning. It is the sixth annual session and is being held in a large auditorium tent on the assembly grounds between Lake Michigan and Crystal lake, about two miles from Frankfort. The attendance is good and each train brings its additional coterie. The program was opened by Secretary Frank K. Sanders, Ph. D., D. D., of Boston, who began the first of a series of eight lectures on the new testament viewed as history and literature.

Prefers Jail to Mother.

Traverse City, Mich., Aug. 2.—Because he had only spent five cents in saloons in the past four years, Judge Mayne Thursday afternoon sentenced Lloyd Hulburt to six months in the Detroit house of correcton instead of a year. A young girl who was implicated with him is a problem to the court, as she declares she would rather go to prison than go back to mother and the judge doesn't know what to do with her.

A young widow has a peculiar way of seeing a man without looking at him.

Men past sixty in danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate glands and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am 91 years old." Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

A man doesn't have to wear good clothes if he can afford not to.

"We never repent of eating too little" was one of the ten rules of life of Thos. Jefferson, president of the United States and the rule applies to every one without exception during this hot weather, because it is hard for food, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach as much as possible by the use of a little Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Martin Hewitt, Investigator.

"Better than Sherlock Holmes" is the term used by the New York Tribune's reviewer in describing the stories in which Martin Hewitt, investigator, plays the leading part. In keen witted deduction, unfailing logic and unerring observation of details this English unraveler of mysteries is unsurpassed among the detectives of fiction or history. No circumstance is too trifling to afford him a clew to the untangling of the thread of crime or mystery. Withal, his methods are so simple and easily intelligible that the reader declares after following his explanation without even a trace of difficulty, "Why, I might have seen that for myself!" Yes, of course, but the reader hasn't done so until Martin Hewitt pointed out the way. And therein lies the chief charm of the detective's disclosures.

THOSE who retain any memory of the great law cases of fifteen or twenty years back will remember at least the title of that extraordinary will case Bartley versus Bartley and others which occupied the probate court for some weeks on end. The affair will perhaps be more readily recalled as the occasion of the sudden rise to eminence in their profession of Messrs. Crellan, Hunt & Crellan, solicitors for the plaintiff, a result due entirely to the wonderful ability shown in this case of building up apparently out of nothing a smashing weight of irresistible evidence. But there are not many of the outside public who know that the credit of the whole performance was primarily due to a young clerk in the employ of Messrs. Crellan who had been given charge of the seemingly desperate task of collecting evidence in the case.

This Mr. Martin Hewitt had, however, full credit and reward for his exploit from his firm and from their client, and more than one other firm of lawyers engaged in contentious work made good offers to entice Hewitt to change his employers. Instead of this, however, he determined to work independently for the future, having conceived the idea of making a regular business of doing on behalf of such clients as might retain him similar work to that he had just done with such conspicuous success for Messrs. Crellan, Hunt & Crellan.

I myself first made Hewitt's acquaintance as a result of an accident resulting in a fire at the old house in which his office was situated and in an upper floor of which I occupied bachelor chambers. I was able to help in saving a quantity of extremely important papers relating to his business. The acquaintance thus began has lasted many years and has become a rather close friendship.

"I consider you, Brett," he said, addressing me, "the most remarkable journalist alive. You have never yet been guilty of giving away any of my little business secrets you may have become acquainted with."

This he said, as he said most things, with a cheery, chaffing good nature that would have been, perhaps, surprising to a stranger who thought of him only as a grim and mysterious discoverer of secrets and crimes. Indeed, the man had always as little of the aspect of the conventional detective as may be imagined. Nobody could appear more cordial or less observant in manner, although there was to be seen a certain sharpness of the eye, which might, after all, only be the twinkle of good humor.

I did think it worth while to write something of Martin Hewitt's investigations and a description of one of his adventures follows.

* * * * * * *

At the head of the first flight of a dingy staircase leading up from an ever open portal in a street by the Strand stood a door, the dusty ground glass upper panel of which carried in its center the single word "Hewitt," while at its right hand lower corner, in smaller letters, "Clerk's Office" appeared. On a morning when the clerks in the ground floor offices had barely hung up their hats, a short, well dressed young man, wearing spectacles, hastening to open the dusty door, ran into the arms of another man who suddenly issued from it.

"I beg pardon," the first said. "Is this Hewitt's detective agency office?"

"Yes, I believe you will find it so," the other replied. He was a stoutish, clean shaven man of middle height and of a cheerful, round countenance. "You'd better speak to the clerk."

In the little outer office the visitor was met by a sharp lad with inky fingers, who presented him with a pen and a printed slip. The printed slip having been filled with the visitor's name and present business and conveyed through an inner door, the lad reappeared with an invitation to the private office. There, behind a writing table, sat the stoutish man himself.

"Good morning, Mr. Lloyd—Mr. Vernon Lloyd," he said affably, looking again at the slip. "You'll excuse my care to start even with my visitors—I must, you know. You come from Sir James Norris, I see."

"Yes; I am his secretary. I have only to ask you to go straight to Lenton Croft at once, if you can, on very important business. Eleven thirty is the first available train from Paddington."

"Quite possibly. Do you know anything of the business?"

"It is a case of a robbery in the house, or, rather, I fancy, of several robberies. Jewelry has been stolen from rooms occupied by visitors to the Croft. The first case occurred some months ago—nearly a year ago, in fact. Last night there was another, but I think you had better get the details on the spot. Sir James has told me to telegraph if you are coming, so that he may meet you himself at the station, and I must hurry, as his drive to the station will be rather a long one. Then I take it you will go, Mr. Hewitt? Twyford is the station."

"Yes, I shall come and by the 11:30. Are you going by that train yourself?"

"No; I have several things to attend to now I am in town. Good morning. I shall wire at once."

Martin Hewitt locked the drawer of his table and sent his clerk for a cab.

At Twyford station Sir James Norris was waiting with a dogcart. Sir James was a tall, florid man of fifty or thereabouts, known away from home as something of a county historian and nearer his own parts as a great supporter of the hunt and a gentleman much troubled with poachers.

"I have sent for you, as Lloyd probably told you, because of a robbery at my place last evening. It appears, as far as I can guess, to be one of three by the same hand or by the same gang. Late yesterday afternoon—

"Pardon me, Sir James," Hewitt interrupted, "but I think I must ask you to begin at the first robbery."

"Very well. Eleven months ago, on thereabouts I had rather a large party of visitors and among them Colonel Heath and Mrs. Heath—the lady being a relative of my own late wife. Colonel Heath has not been long retired, you know—used to be a political resident in an Indian native state. Mrs. Heath had rather a good stock of jewelry of one sort and another, about the most valuable piece being a bracelet set with a particularly fine pearl.

"It was a very noticeable bracelet, the gold setting being a mere feather-weight piece of native filigree work, almost too fragile to trust on the wrist, and the pearl being, as I have said, of a size and quality not often seen. Well, Heath and his wife arrived late one evening, and after lunch the following day, most of the men being off by themselves—shooting, I think—my daughter, my sister, who is very often down here, and Mrs. Heath took it into their heads to go walking—fern hunting, and so on. My sister was rather long dressing, and while they waited my daughter went into Mrs. Heath's room, where Mrs. Heath turned over all her treasures to show her, as women do, you know. When my sister was at last ready, they came straight away, leaving the things littering about the room rather than stay longer to pack them up. The bracelet, with other things, was on the dressing table then."

"One moment. As to the door?"

"They locked it. As they came away my daughter suggested turning the key, as we had one or two new servants about."

"And the window?"

"That they left open, as I was going to tell you. Well, they went on their walk and came back with Lloyd, whom they had met somewhere, carrying their ferns for them. It was dusk and almost dinner time. Mrs. Heath went straight to her room and—the bracelet was gone."

"Was the room disturbed?"

"Not a bit. Everything was precisely where it had been left except the bracelet."

"You called the police, of course."

"Yes, and had a man from Scotland Yard down in the morning. He seemed a pretty smart fellow, and the first thing he noticed on the dressing table, within an inch or two of where the bracelet had been, was a match which had been lit and thrown down. Now, nobody about the house had had occasion to use a match in that room that day and if they had certainly wouldn't have thrown it on the cover of the dressing table. So that, presuming the thief to have used that match, the robbery must have been committed when the room was getting dark, immediately before Mrs. Heath returned, in fact. The thief had evidently struck the match, passed it hurriedly over the various trinkets lying about and taken the most valuable."

"Nothing else was even moved?"

"Nothing at all. Then the thief must have escaped by the window, although it was not quite clear how. The walking party approached the house with a full view of the window, but saw nothing, although the robbery must have been actually taking place a moment or two before they turned up.

"There was no water pipe within any practicable distance of the window, but a ladder usually kept in the stable however, that he had put the ladder there after using it himself early in the afternoon."

"Of course it might easily have been used again after that and put back."

"Just what the Scotland Yard man said. He was pretty sharp, too, on the gardener, but very soon decided that he knew nothing of it. No stranger had been seen in the neighborhood, and a stranger could scarcely have known enough to go straight to the room where a lady, only arrived the day before, had left a valuable jewel and away again without being seen. So all the people about the house were suspected in turn. The servants offered in a body to have their boxes searched, and this was done; everything was turned over from the butler's to the new kitchen maid's. I believe the Scotland Yard man got as far as suspecting me before he gave it up altogether, but give it up he did in the end. I think that's all I know about the first robbery. Is it clear?"

"Oh, yes; I shall probably want to ask a few questions when I have seen the place, but they can wait. What next?"

"Well," Sir James pursued, "the next was a very trumpery affair that I should have forgotten all about probably if it hadn't been for one circumstance. Even now I hardly think it could have been the work of the same hand. Four months or thereabouts after Mrs. Heath's disaster—in February of this year, in fact—Mrs. Armitage, a young widow, who had been a school fellow of my daughter's, stayed with us for a week or so. Mrs. Armitage is a very active young lady and was scarcely in the house half an hour before she arranged a drive in a pony cart with Eva, my daughter. They were late for dinner. Mrs. Armitage had a small plain gold brooch—not at all valuable, you know; £2 or £3, I suppose—which she used to pin up a cloak or anything of that sort. Before she went out she stuck this in the pincushion in her dressing table and put a ring—rather a good one, I believe—lying close by."

"This," asked Hewitt, "was not in the room that Mrs. Heath had occupied, I take it?"

"No; this was in another part of the building. Well, the brooch went—taken evidently by some one in a deuce of a hurry, for when Mrs. Armitage got back to her room there was the pincushion with a little tear in it where the brooch had been simply snatched off. But the curious thing was that the ring, worth a dozen of the brooch, was left where it had been put. Mrs. Armitage didn't remember whether or not she had locked the door herself, although she found it locked when she returned, but my niece, who was indoors all the time, went and tried it once, because she remembered that a gasfitter was at work on the landing near by, and found it safely locked. The gasfitter, whom we didn't know at the time, but who since seems to be quite an honest fellow, was ready to swear that nobody but my niece had been to the door while he was in sight of it, which was almost all the time. As to the window, the sash line had broken that very morning, and Mrs. Armitage had propped open the bottom half about eight or ten inches with a brush, and when she returned that brush, sash and all were exactly as she had left them. Now, I scarcely need tell you what an awkward job it must have been for anybody to get noiselessly in at that unsupported window and how unlikely he would have been to replace it, with the brush, exactly as he found it."

"Then, as to getting in at the window, would it have been easy?"

"Well, yes," Sir James replied; "yes, perhaps it would. It is a first floor window, and it looks over the roof and skylight of the billiard room. It would be easy enough to get at the window from the billiard room roof. But, then," he added, "that couldn't have been the way. Somebody or other was in the billiard room the whole time."

"Well, was anything done?"

"Strict inquiry was made among the servants, of course, but nothing came of it. It was such a small matter that Mrs. Armitage wouldn't hear of my calling in the police or anything of that sort, although I felt pretty certain that there must be a dishonest servant about somewhere. A servant might take a plain brooch, you know, who would feel afraid of a valuable ring, the loss of which would be made a greater matter of."

"Well, yes, perhaps so. What made you connect these two robberies together?"

"Nothing whatever for some months. They seemed quite of a different sort. But scarcely more than a month ago I met Mrs. Armitage at Brighton, and we talked, among other things, of the previous robbery—that of Mrs. Heath's bracelet. I described the circumstances pretty minutely, and when I mentioned the match found on the table she said: 'How strange! Why, my thief left a match on the dressing table when he took my poor little brooch!'

"The coincidence appealed to me so far that it struck me it might be worth while to describe the brooch to the police in order that they could trace it if it had been pawned. They had tried that, of course, over the bracelet without any result, but I fancied the shot might be worth making and might possibly lead us on the track of the more serious robbery."

"Quite so. It was the right thing to do. Well?"

"Well, they found it. A woman had pawned it in London at a shop in Chelsea. But that was some time before, and the pawnbroker had clean forgotten all about the woman's appearance. The name and address she gave were false. So that was the end of that business."

"Had any of your servants left you?"

"No."

"Were all your servants at home on the day the brooch was pawned?"

"Oh, yes! I made that inquiry myself."

"Very good. What next?"

"Yesterday—and this is what made me send for you. My late wife's sister came here last Tuesday, and we gave her the room from which Mrs. Heath lost her bracelet. She had with her a very old fashioned brooch, containing a miniature of her father and set in front with three very fine brilliants and a few smaller stones.

"Late yesterday afternoon as my sister-in-law was changing her dress she left her room for a moment to speak to my daughter in her room, almost adjoining. She was gone no more than three minutes or five at most, but on her return the brooch, which had been left on the table, had gone. Now the window was shut fast and had not been tampered with. Of course the door was open, but so was my daughter's, and anybody walking near must have been heard. But the strangest circumstance, and one that almost makes me wonder whether I have been awake today or not, was that there lay a used match on the very spot, as nearly as possible, where the brooch had been, and it was broad daylight!"

Hewitt rubbed his nose and looked thoughtfully before him. "Um! Curious certainly," he said. "Anything else?"

"Nothing more than you shall see for yourself. I have had the room locked and watched till you could examine it. My sister-in-law had heard of your name and suggested that you should be called in, so of course I did exactly as she wanted. That she should have lost that brooch, of all things, in my house is most unfortunate. You see, there was some small difference about the thing between my late wife and her sister when their mother died and left it. It's almost worse than the Heaths' bracelet business. Here are three persons, all ladies, all in my house, two even in the same room, each successively robbed of a piece of jewelry, each from a dressing table, and a used match left behind in every case. All in the most difficult, one would say impossible, circumstances for a thief, and yet there is no clew!"

"Well, we won't say that just yet, Sir James; we must see. And we must guard against any undue predisposition that to consider the robberies in a lump is that your gardener, the man who left the ladder by the lawn on the first occasion you spoke of?" Mr. Hewitt nodded in the direction of a man who was clipping a box border near a lodge gate.

"Yes; will you ask him anything?"

"No, no; at any rate, not now. Remember the building alterations. I think, if there is no objection, I will look first at the room that the lady—Mrs."— Hewitt looked up inquiringly.

"My sister-in-law's name is Cazenove. Oh, yes, you shall come to her room at once!"

"Thank you. And I think Mrs. Cazenove had better be there."

They alighted, and a boy from the lodge led the horse and cart away.

Mrs. Cazenove was a slim and faded but quick and energetic lady of middle age. She bent her head very slightly on learning Martin Hewitt's name and said: "I must thank you, Mr. Hewitt, for your very prompt attention. My room is quite ready for you to examine."

The room was on the second floor—the top floor at that part of the building. Some slight confusion of small articles of dress was observable in parts of the room.

"This, I take it," inquired Hewitt, "is exactly as it was at the time the brooch was missed?"

"Precisely," Mrs. Cazenove answered. "I have used another room and put myself to some other inconveniences to avoid any disturbance."

Hewitt stood before the dressing table. "Then this is the used match," he observed, "exactly where it was found?"

"Yes."

"Where was the brooch?"

"I should say almost on the very same spot. Certainly no more than a very few inches away."

Hewitt examined the match closely. "It is burned very little," he remarked. "It would appear to have gone out at once. Could you hear it struck?"

"I heard nothing whatever; absolutely nothing."

"Well," he suggested, "we will try and experiment. Tell me if you hear matches struck and how many. Where is the match stand?"

The match stand proved to be empty, but matches were found in Miss Norris' room, and the test was made. Each striking could be heard distinctly, even with one of the doors pushed to.

"Both your own door and Miss Norris' were open, I understand; the window shut and fastened inside as it is now, and nothing but the brooch was disturbed?"

"Yes, that was so."

"Thank you, Mrs. Cazenove. I don't think I need trouble you any further just at present. I think, Sir James," Hewitt added, turning to the baronet, who was standing by the door, "I think we will see the other room and take a walk outside the house, if you please. I suppose, by the bye, that there is no getting at the matches left behind on the first and second occasions?"

"No," Sir James answered. "Certainly not here. The Scotland Yard man may have kept his."

Montaigne Runs on Anything.

When I read Montaigne or Wordsworth or Landor I am always reminded of the advice which the baseball coacher on the side lines so often repeats to the men on bases, "Run on anything!" Each one of these worthies, to continue the parlance of the ball field, accepts all his chances. If Wordsworth never gave to the world "Lines Suggested by Seeing a Favorite Cat Crossing the Road" it was simply because that spectacle never chanced to arrest his "inward eye." If Montaigne never meditated, as did another celebrated author, on producing a chapter about "Buttonholes" such reticence was not in any degree owing to barrenness as concerned that or any other known topic. And [illegible] if he would perchance have begun with shoestrings, wandered on to darning needles and pruning hooks, quoted a dozen or so of Latin authors in regard to plowshares, related anecdotes concerning dealings of the Cymbrians, Scythians, Lacedaemonians, Romans and the like with knots and fastenings, mentioned his own personal experience in the matter of hooks and eyes and ended by an exposition of the practical, mechanical and ethical relations between a buttonhole and a button, and every quaint and divaricating line would have endeared him to his affectionate reader.—Martha Baker Dunn in Atlantic.

Birds Cross No Deep Seas.

A writer in the London Outlook points out that no birds cross deep, even if narrow, seas. The narrow Madagascar strait is impassable to birds, though the north seas are a highway for them. Godwits pass from the Nile to the shores of Norfolk, though neighboring islands in an archipelago may show no common stock. All birds, with the possible exception of the sparrow, are stirred to movement by different causes—wind, weather, food, the bullying of parent and other birds. Birds of prey drive off their young. Martins love familiar eaves. Successive ravens have built on the same ledge for a century. The longer passages are only made over shallow seas that once were land, and when once a journey is made the memory is strong enough to urge a repetition. The change of home then becomes not a fashion, but an inherited habit.

Girl Slaves In China.

A native writer in a Chinese publication remarks: "When a girl is sold in China she becomes the slave of her owner and a part of his property. She no longer retains her freeborn rights, but surrenders them all to the will of those who own her. She receives no compensation for her labor, but is obliged to accept such raiment and food as her owner may be pleased to give her. In cases of tyranny or gross cruelty she cannot appeal for redress. She may be resold, given away or cast off in the streets at the arbitrary will of her master. All freedom is denied her, and she remains a tool and chattel in the hands of her owner until she is sold again or until death releases her from her unwilling fate."

The Black Maria.

"Black Maria" is a familiar term, with an origin more or less mysterious. It has been suggested that "Maria" is really represents the old word "marinated," which meant transported or "married," a slang expression formerly applied to persons chained or handcuffed together on the way to jail. But more attractive is the story that in the old colonial days a gigantic and brawny negress kept a sailors' boarding house at Boston and frequently lent her strength to the cause of law and order. Once she took three sailors to the lockup unassisted. "Send for Black Maria," it is said, became a regular way of hinting that a man ought to be jailed.

Smoking Contests.

"Smoking contests are as old as the hills," said an antiquary. "Go to Brittany, take in a Breton 'pardon,' and you'll see a smoking contest sandwiched in between the dancing matches and the wrestling bouts."

The old man took out his notebook.

"The first smoking contest of which we have any authentic record," he said, "came off at Oxford, the English seat of learning, in 1723. The conditions were that you should smoke three ounces of tobacco without drinking or leaving the stage, the person first finished to get a prize of 12 shillings.

"Hearne says—I copied it down here: "'Many tryed, and 'twas thought that a journeyman taylor of St. Peter-in-the-East would have been the victor, he smoaking faster than and being many pipes before the rest, but at last he was so sick that 'twas thought he would have dyed, and an old man that had been a builder and smoked greatly came off the conqueror, smoaking the three ounces quite out, and he told me that after it he smoked four or five pipes the same evening.'"

Pike's Peak in Summer.

The first part of the road to Pike's Peak is through a picturesque ravine with a beautiful mountain torrent roaring and leaping through it. This ravine is a popular walk, and one sees many climbers who shoot their kodaks as the train passes, until one knows exactly how it feels to be a celebrity. As one goes on the climbers become gradually fewer, and after three or four miles they are left behind. Suddenly a new turn in the road shows that the first foothills have been surmounted and that we are climbing the vast bare side of the peak itself. The track stretches toboggan-like far ahead. Great views unfold. One looks down on lonely wooded valleys, where blue lakes glisten, on the tops of the mountains and over mountains to the plain that stretches away like the sea. It has grown cold, and patches of snow begin to appear. The date is Aug. 1, but in the snow heaps on the summit we shall soon be snowballing one another.—Four Track News.

Alabama's State Flag.

Over the historic capitol at Montgomery waves not the national flag, but the Alabama flag, and not one Alabamian in a thousand would recognize it if he saw it elsewhere than on the capitol. The flag in question has no history woven into it, for it was not adopted until 1895. It presents a St. Andrew's cross in crimson on a white field. Such a cross is shaped like a letter X, and the books suggest that the apostle Andrew died on a cross of that design. Few, if any other states indulge in flags of their own. A flag is the symbol of sovereignty, and state sovereignty is limited by the federal constitution. When we were a part of Georgia we granted to the federal government the executive power of punishing treason, and if any one becomes a traitor to the Alabama flag we might have to call in the federal government in order to punish him.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The Tongues of the Balkans.

Too many languages are spoken in the Balkans. A traveler in that region writes of the babel: "Turkish, Bulgarian, Serbo-Croatian, Roumanian, Armenian, Greek, Albanian, Kulzo-Wallachian, Chingeni, the language of the gypsies; Spaniole, the language of the Jews of Spanish or Portuguese descent, and the language spoken by the German, Austrian, Roumanian and Russian Jews. Add to this Arabic, Persian and Syrian, largely spoken in Constantinople; Italian, on the northeast coast of the Adria; Russian, in the northeastern parts of Roumania; various Austro-Hungarian idioms spoken in Bosnia and Herzegovina and the Caucasion languages of the Circassians and Georgians." Not one of these languages is of common use.

The Lone Star of Texas.

The origin of the Lone Star flag of the republic of Texas is not entirely clear. The claim has been made that it was unfurled in the present territory of Louisiana in 1810, but other searchers cannot find earlier trace of it than the presentation of such a banner to the company of Captain Andrew Robinson in May, 1835. Still another claim is made for a flag unfurled at Velasco Jan. 3, 1836, and said to have been made by a Miss Troutman of Nashville, Ga. One story has it that the star came from the fact that Governor Smith, for lack of a seal, used a brass button from his coat which bore a five pointed star.—St. Louis Republic.

The Word "Capsize."

Etymologists are driven to pure conjecture to explain the origin of the word "capsize." One of them suspects that it comes from the Spanish language, as so many sailors' words do, and may be connected with "cabecear," to nod the head in sleep or to pitch as a ship, and with "capuzar un baxel," to sink a ship by the head—"cabeza" meaning head. Another guess—based on the fact that "capsize" is an English dialect word for moving a hogshead by turning it over alternately on to its two heads—is that the word is simply "cap," a head, and "seize."

Kept Up the Wailing.

In Abyssinia it was once the habit of complainants to stand before the door of the king's palace, loudly appealing to his majesty for help. "So accustomed is the king," wrote one traveler, "to these querulous tones of sorrow that when the rains prevent such as are really distressed from repairing to the capital a set of vagrants is provided whose object it is to raise the cry of artificial sorrow lest he should feel a lonely quietness."

Sacredness of the Mantilla.

Many attempts are being made in London and in Paris to adapt the Spanish mantilla to our use. To the Spanish women the mantilla stands for all that is national and characteristic, and so intimate a part of herself is the mantilla deemed that it is even held sacred by law and cannot be seized for debt.—London Country Gentleman.

None "Just as Good"

Tecumseh Chief Flour is all that the name implies--the purest, the richest and the best.

Some merchants will offer you the "just as good" kind, because they can make a larger profit on it.

Better buy the genuine article--that made from sweet, sound wheat, in an up-to-date mill, by a practical miller, and thus avoid the chance of getting an inferior grade of Flour--a "just as good" as TECUMSEH CHIEF FLOUR.

Linen Paper.

The only real linen paper made in the United States is that used for government documents. All the so called linen papers are largely made from cotton rags with some linen mixed in. The reason for this is that it is extremely difficult to separate cotton and linen rags. The government gets around this difficulty by using nothing but clippings from collars and shirts.

The limit of life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that limitation of human life is far below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 50 is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son. 50c.

JOHN J. ORR.

Julia Dorliska Pocklington.

Julia Dorliska Pocklington was born Oct. 5, 1848, at Raisin, Mich. In her infancy her parents moved to the English settlement where the first 16 years of her life were spent. She attended Sunday school in the old brown church at Bl[illegible] death still had in her possession a Bible which Rev. Donnelley presented to her for reciting the catechism at the Methodist church.

The deceased was married to Alva Freer Jan. 9, 1868. To them were born three children, Mrs. Nellie McRoberts of Lansing, Mrs. Della Gilmore and Oral Freer. She was left a widow in 1879 and with her children made her home with her parents until her marriage to Asel Russell of Macon, Dec. 18 1886. To them were born one son, George, who with Mrs. Russell's other children and Mr. Russell's daughter, Mrs. Bert Boyd of Clinton, and son, Edward, of Macon, were permitted to be with her at the time of her death.

During the years spent in Macon, she took an active part in the Grange, holding the office of lecturer. Mr. Russell died April 22, 1898 and the deceased again made her home with her parents. She united with the M. E. church in early life, was also a member of the order of the Eastern Star and held the office of vice president of the Ridgeway cemetery association. Her life has been an unselfish one, always thinking of others first and self last. Truly her willingness to do for relatives and friends has often exceeded her physical strength.

Her last sickness continued for three weeks, passing peacefully away Friday morning, July 19. An aged mother, daughters, sons and grandchildren are left to mourn besides many relatives and friends. Services were held at the house Sunday afternoon conducted by Rev. Scarlett. She was laid at rest in the family lot in Ridgeway cemetery.

REV. H. K. FOX

Will go to a new pastorate in COVINGTON, IND.

Begins his duties one week from Sunday.

Covington, Ind., the county seat of Fountain county, lying on the extreme west of the Hoosier state and fourteen miles east of Danville, will be the scene of the next pastorate of Rev. H. K. Fox, who was called to the Tecumseh Presbyterian church while Rev. Dunning, who was ordained and installed May 15, was concluding his theological course. Mr. Fox succeeded very nicely in his first pastorate, a faculty he has, seemingly in everything he undertakes. Mr. Fox considers himself a pretty loyal Adrianite, if he is really a "Sucker," as the Illinoisans are dubbed.

He graduated from Adrian college, was a valuable attache of the Page Fence offices and married an Adrian girl, Miss Josie Grassman, which surely makes him an Adrianite. Mr. Fox also graduated from Union Theological seminary and took a post graduate course at Columbia university, New York City. He has also been president of Giddings seminary at LaHarpe for two years. His friends here are numbered by the score and they will wish him unqualified success in his new field. Mr. Fox and family go Tuesday to visit his people at Gibson City, Ill. His family will join him later at Covington. Mr. Fox having the manse ready before their arrival. He preaches the first sermon in his new pastorate a week from Sunday.

Endorsed by the county.

"The most popular remedy in Otsego county and the best friend of my family writes Wm. Dietz, editor of the Otsego Journal, Gilberterville, N. Y., "is Dr. King's New Discovery. It has proved to be a sure cure for coughs and colds, making short work of the worst of them. We always keep a bottle in the house. I believe it to be the most valuable prescription known for throat and lung diseases." Guaranteed to never disappoint the taker by C. A. Wright & Son. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

BASE BALL.

Tecumseh took the third game with Flint Tuesday afternoon, score 4 and 2. Doty pitched for Tecumseh allowing 7 hits. The visitors scores came in the 8th. Curry and Ryan singled, a fielders choice put Smith on first but Curry was caught at third. Singles by Cannon and Taber scored Ryan and Smith. Bouchart replaced Mitchell in the 8th as the latter injured his knee.

Tecumseh's scores came in the 6th and 7th innings. In the 6th, Wolfe hit to third who threw high to first, Mitchell was hit by the pitcher and Doty sacrificed, Wolfe scored on Ryan's error, Hillinger started the ball rolling in the 7th but was caught at second which placed Merkle on first. Somerlott hit, stole second and Wolfe doubled, Mitchell singled and when the dust cleared away the locals had scored three more runs.

MERKLE SOLD

To the New York National League Club.

$2500

Was the Amount received for him.

Fred Merkle, the Toledo boy who has been playing with Tecumseh for two years in the South Michigan league, was sold to the New York National League Club last Tuesday for $2500 and a check for that amount has been received here. Merkle will continue to play with Tecumseh until the end of the South Michigan season, when he will report to New York.

Dan Brouthers of the New York league, has been here several day, liked the looks of Merkle and finally purchased him. Merkle was a star foot ball man on the high school squad and last year played a great half for the Toledo Athletics. He played third for Tecumseh last year and this season has been holding down the initial sack for this team in the South Michigan league.

He is a big fellow weighing about 190 pounds, is fast and has a fine base ball head. He is scarcely 19 years of age, but good training with the Giants will undoubtedly make him a star base ball player. Grand Rapids wanted to buy him some time ago but Tecumseh refused to let him go.

DON'T PUT IT OFF LONGER.

Get rid of that indigestion at once by using Mi-o-na.

Either through slackness or carelessness hundreds of people slowly poison themselves by chronic indigestion. By neglecting to cure at once any sluggishness of the important organs of digestion the system is filled with fermenting and decaying food that results in sick headaches, heartburn, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, specks before the eyes, sleeplessness, nervous troubles and the many other symptoms that are the direct result of indigestion.

The want of a perfectly safe yet effective cure for indigestion and stomach troubles in their many forms was felt up to the time of the successful investigations that resulted in the production of Mi-o-na stomach tablets. They quickly cure the worst cases of indigestion and the pain and distress which are often felt after meals disappear in a very few days—such is the wonderful curative power of Mi-o-na.

The old-fashioned medicines for stomach troubles merely digest the food, while Mi-o-na strengthens the digestive organs so that they soon become able to care for the food that is eaten.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets cost but 50 cents a box and do more real good than a dozen boxes of the ordinary digestive tablets. C. A. Wright & Son give an absolute, unqualified guarantee to refund the money if Mi-o-na fails to cure.

THE CHURCHES.

The annual Sunday school excursion to Detroit and Belle Isle will be on the 16th of August.

On account of the Adrian Quarterly meeting there will be no morning service, Sunday school or C. E. at the Friends church Sunday. Regular evening preaching. All invited.

Regular preaching service in M. E. church Sunday morning by the pastor. Sunday school at [illegible] mens' class, "Tithing." Leader, Wm. Smith. Class meeting at 5:30. E. L. at 6:30. Mid-week prayer meeting and teachers' meeting Wednesday evening.

Presbyterian church, J. W. Dunning minister. Next Sabbath morning the pastor will speak on the second of the series on Fundamental Themes, "The Bible." Men's class at 11:15, subject "Is the Golden Rule a practical thing in business." Leader R. B. Gillespie. During August there will be no Christian Endeavor or evening service.

BRONCHIAL TROUBLES.

Bronchial troubles are purely local. They cannot be helped by stomach dosing. They are caused by irritation in the air passages and can be relieved and cured by medicated air alone. In this lies the secret of success of Hy-o-mei in the treatment of bronchial troubles.

The Hy-o-mei medication laden with nature's remedies is breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, reaching every part of the bronchial tubes and killing the disease germs. It allays all irritation and heals the inflammation of the mucous membrane with rapidity.

Treatment with sprays, douches and atomizers in bronchial troubles is condemned by the best physicians as they cause further irritation.

The first breath of Hy-o-mei's medicated air seems to soothe the inflammation, stop the cough and thus relief becomes a permanent cure.

Hy-o-mei has made many remarkable cures in the worst and most chronic forms of bronchial troubles and is sold by C. A. Wright & Son with the same guarantee as they give when Hy-o-mei is purchased for catarrh that is to refund the money in case the remedy does not give satisfaction. The complete outfit costs but $1.

SHORT TALKS BY L. T. COOPER.

THE STOMACH.

My but peoples' stomachs do cause a lot of trouble. I offered to wager some doctors in St. Paul, Minn., that one half of all sickness is caused by the stomach. After I assured them that my medicine did nothing but put the stomach in shape and they had spent a day listening to what people who called on me had to say, they had to agree with me. They heard people come in and tell me that for years they had been near the grave with Bright's disease, or lung trouble, or kidney complaint and all manner of diseases and that the New Discovery had cured them. Of course these people were mistaken, it was nothing but their stomachs. As a matter of fact when the stomach gives out most everything else is thrown out of order too.

C. H. POWELL.

When a person feels tired and dull and despondent, is loosing flesh and don't sleep well, has a poor memory, a bad taste in the mouth, a coated tongue, and other troubles he's liable to believe a lot of things are the matter with him. Nine chances to one it's his stomach. I've seen Cooper's New Discovery bring back health to too many people in just this shape to believe anything else. Here's a letter about it:

"I suffered for a long time without knowing just what was the matter with me. I seldom felt like eating. I lost greatly in weight. My digestion was extremely poor and when I did eat I invariably suffered afterward. I was constipated and frequently suffered from nerve racking, violent headaches. When I heard of what the Cooper remedies were doing for others I resolved to try them."

"Relief came with the first bottle. My appetite and digestion improved rapidly. I am no longer constipated nor do I have those dreadful headaches. I sleep well and am gaining flesh." C. H. Powell, 13 Harrison Addition. Duluth, Minn.

We are selling immense quantities of these medicines and our customers express great satisfaction.

JOHN J. ORR.

Prejudice is seldom on speaking terms with reason.

TAKE IT IN TIME.

Waiting doesn't pay.
If you neglect the aching back.
Urinary troubles surely follow.
Doan's Kidney Pills relieve backache.
Cure every kidney ill.
Tecumseh people endorse them.

Henry Keyser, retired, living on Pottowatamie street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I still hold the same good opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills as I did five years ago when I gave a statement recommending them. For years I was bothered with a weakness of the bladder and my back ached all the time. Sharp pains would attack me suddenly and I would have to grasp something for support. I did not rest well at night and in the morning I felt tired. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills, began using them and received great benefit as they rid me of my backache. I advise all sufferers from kidney trouble to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other.

Brilliancy may be imparted to the complexion by powdering with diamond dust.

Feel languid, weak, run-down? Headache? Stomach "off"?—Just a plain case of lazy liver. Burdock Blood Bitters tones liver and stomach, promotes digestion, purifies the blood.

A woman's idea of wisdom is the ability to detect cotton in an alleged all wool fabric.

"I suffered habitually from constipation. Doan's regulets relieved and strengthened the bowels, so that they have been regular ever since."—A. E. Davis, grocer, Sulphur Springs, Tex.

Those who have stomach trouble, no matter how slight, should give every possible help to the digestive organs, so that the food may be digested with the least effort. This may be done by taking something that contains natural digestive properties—something like Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia. Kodol is a preparation of vegetable acids and contains the very same juices found in a healthy stomach. It digests what you eat. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

In 1863 he was united in marriage to Mary A[illegible] Marshall. To this union were born eight children, namely, Ida May, Clinton; Mabel Luella, Saline; Chas. Henry, Tecumseh; Nellie Irene, Orlando D[illegible]; Hazel, Macon, all of whom re[illegible] with their sorrowing mother to mourn the departure of a kind and d[illegible] husband and father. Three brother[illegible] two sisters survive and with all these a host of sorrowing friends and neighbors who deeply feel the untimely demise of a true and loyal citizen.

With honest heart and honest toil
He has turned the furrow and tilled the soil,
His earthly substance to maintain—
For a time in health, at last in pain.
His ship broke anchor and sailed away,
So calm and peaceful to the harbor above,
Resting at last in the haven of Jesus' love.

TROOPS DISBANDED.

Koreans Attack Japs and Many Killed and Wounded.

Seoul, Aug. 2.—Unverified official returns from Thursday morning's conflict between Japanese troops and the Firs battalion of the First Shiwa regiment give the number of killed and wounded as 60 Koreans and 40 Japanese.

About 3,000 men willingly disbanded, marching without arms through the parade ground, where, according to rank they received gratuities ranging from to 25 to 80 yen.

At 8 o'clock this morning the minister of war read the rescript of disbandment to the higher Korean officials at the house of Gen. Hasegawa.

Major Paksung Huan, commander of the First battalion of the First Shiwa regiment, returned to the barracks and committed suicide. This excited his subordinates and also a battalion of the Second Shiawa, who attacked two Japanese officers and their orderlies.

One battalion marched on the south gate, where a clash occurred in which Captain Kajiwara and two others were killed.

Over 100 Koreans escaped with their rifles and divided into two bands. They are still abroad.

LONGED FOR HUSBAND.

Wife Became Despondent and Attempted to Kill Self and Children.

New York, Aug. 2.—Unable to endure the separation from her husband, held in a German prison as a deserter from the German army, Mrs. Redina Fischel, a young woman, tried to kill herself and her two children by turning on the gas in her home in Williamsburg Wednesday night. When a janitor broke in the Fischel apartment Thursday, he found the five-year-old daughter Lilly dead and the mother and 12-year-old son dying.

Twelve years ago John Fischel left Germany and evaded military duty. A year ago Fischel returned and was arrested and sentenced to three years in prison. Each month the German government has sent Mrs. Fischel a remittance. The woman went to work to support her family, but grief over her husband's incarceration and prolonged absence broke her spirit and she became despondent. Wednesday night after the children had been put to bed, Mrs. Fischel wrote letter to several friends, telling them that she was tired of life without her husband. Turning the fixture so that the gas would pour down upon them, Mrs. Fischel opened the jets.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach. Mr. S. S. Oak of Raymond, W. Va., writes: "I was troubled with sour stomach for years. Kodol cured me, and we are now using it in our family for baby." Kodol Digests What You Eat.

Prepared by E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago. Large size bottle containing 2½ times the trial size, sold by druggists for $1.00.

Nails which do not yield readily to the manicure may be driven in with a hammer.

Ten years in bed.

"For twenty years I was confined to my bed with disease of the kidneys," writes R. A. Gray, J. P. of Oakville, Ind. "It was so severe that I could not move part of the time. I consulted the best medical skill available, but could get no relief until Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended to me. It has been a Godsend to me. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

KILLED HER BABIES.

Insane Baltimore Mother Strangles Her Little Ones.

TWICE PLACED IN ASYLUM.

Imagined She Put Them to Sleep—After Committing Deed She Called in a Friend Who Discovers Both Children Naked and Dead on Table.

Baltimore, Aug. 6.—The atrocious murder of her two babies by an insane mother thrilled northeast Baltimore Monday. Madness which has twice caused her to be confined in an asylum yesterday again took possession of Mrs. Christine Nenadal, aged 26 years, the wife of Joseph Nenadal, a woodworker, employed in a wagon factory. With the cunning of a mind deranged she laid her plans to put her little ones to sleep—for that is what she believed she has done, and no more.

Leaving her little daughter, Mary, aged between two and three years, playing in the street, she put the younger of her children, Yarosalov, a year and three months old, in its carriage and took it to a nearby park. Just what happened there is not known. When the mother returned, the little one in the carriage was covered with leaves and small branches, but a neighbor noticed that its face was strangely pale. Mrs. Nenadal took both children into the house and carefully closed all the doors and windows. A little later she went for a friend, Mrs. Victoria Vala, and asked her to come and assist in dressing the children.

Returning, the two women entered the dining room of the Nenadal home; and there, lying upon the table, Mrs. Vala was horrified to find the naked bodies of the two children, both of them having been strangled by their mother. The latter, when the police were summoned, fondled the little bodies and gave them up only when forced to do so. Her one concern now seems to be lest the children be awakened. She repeatedly asks to have them brought to her, so that she may guard their slumbers.

As she sits in her cell at the police station, Mrs. Nenadal is being constantly watched lest she renew an attempt at suicide which she made some time ago. On that occasion she took her little daughter in her arms and was about to plunge into a stream when her husband found and restrained her. She has twice been confined in an asylum, once having been discharged as practically cured, and the last time having been taken from the institution by her husband against the protests of the physician in charge.

IN COMPLETE ACCORD.

Czar and Emperor Find Nothing Over Which to Quarrel.

Swinemunde, Aug. 6.—Emperor William of Germany and Emperor Nicholas of Russia spent the entire day Monday together at sea. A review of the German fleet was witnessed in the morning from the German battleship Deutschland, and last evening there was a reception on board the Russian imperial yacht Standart.

A semi-official communication regarding the meeting of the two sovereigns declares that their conferences have served further to strengthen the traditional friendly relations between them, and that the meeting has given proof of the good understanding existing today between the leading statesmen of the two countries. Every question of an international character actually pending has been the subject of thorough discussion between the two emperors and their statesmen with the result that the views held thereon have been found to be in absolute accord.

Deceiving Soldier Pays Penalty.

Leavenworth, Kas., Aug. 6.—Private James M. Pyne, Sixteenth battery, siege artillery, is to serve three years in the military prison here for breaking a promise of marriage and borrowing money with intent to defraud. He was tried by court-martial under the charge "Conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline." It was shown in the court-martial trial that Private Pyne became engaged to an army nurse in Cuba; that he was transferred to Fort Leavenworth and wrote to the young woman asking a loan of $500 to fit him out with uniforms and other equipment, made necessary, he said, by his having passed an examination for promotion to a lieutenancy. The girl advanced the money and when she came to Kansas City later she made an investigation and learned that Private Pyne was deceiving her. The court-martial followed, and its findings was approved yesterday by Brig.-Gen.

PEARY IS DETERMINED

Goes North Prepared to Stay Three Years.

HE SAILS IN A FEW DAYS.

Crew Will Be Practically Same as on His Last Trip—Denies He Ever Said Would Not Make Trip Again if Not Successful.

Portland, Me., Aug. 6.—Commander Robert E. Peary left here Monday for New York, whence he will sail in a few days on an expedition to the north pole. Commander Peary said:

"From New York I shall go directly to Sydney, C. B., where I shall coal; and there will be no stops on the way, as I have no time to lose.

"My crew this time will be practically the same as on my last trip; Captain Robert Bartlett is to command the Roosevelt. I am going prepared to make every effort to reach the pole. If I do not succeed next summer, I shall stay over a year. If I do not succeed I shall stay one year later. I am taking along everything for a three-years' trip."

Details of His Plans.

Commander Peary, giving some details of his plans, said:

"John Murphy, my old boatswain, is to be with me again; I am to have Wardwell, my old chief engineer; Ross G. Marvin of Bucksport is to be my assistant, and he will be the only Maine member of the party. I am to have a new surgeon. There are several applications for the position, but as yet, no one has been chosen. I will settle that when I get to New York."

Asked if he expected to reach the pole this time, Peary said:

"A man who has had my experience in the north, knows that to say he will do a certain thing up there, is madness. I have learned many lessons from my other trips, especially my last one, and I shall profit by all this experience. Whether I shall find the north pole or not is a question which will not be answered until I have either reached it or failed. It will not be because I am not prepared or do not try."

Asked if he should ever try again if not successful this time, Commander Peary said:

"The newspapers have criticized me with saying that I should never make the attempt again. I do not say whether I shall or not. Future circumstances and conditions only will govern me in that.

"I am already over three weeks late in starting, and it is very possible that before I finally get away from New York I shall be four weeks. From Sydney I shall go to Cape York, which point I expect to reach this year—in ten days from Sydney. From there I shall carry out the program which has already been published."

Funds Do Not Worry Him.

Asked if he had ample funds for carrying out the expedition, Commander Peary replied:

"I will say one thing, and that is that the delays in the repairs on the boilers of the Roosevelt have been, and are now, worrying me a great deal more than the money with which to finance the expedition."

Commander Peary appeared to be in rugged health, and was full of enthusiasm for the trip.

New York, Aug. 6.—Stronger than ever in her hull, and better equipped generally for her battle with the Arctic ice floes, Commander Peary's steamer, Roosevelt, lies at Shooter's Island, ready to start in a few days on her second trip in search of the north pole.

Since she returned from her last voyage, the Roosevelt has undergone extensive repairs. New planks have been added, the hull caulked throughout and a new maintopmast sent aloft. A new rudder and rudder post have replaced those crushed by the ice. On deck a new house has been built to furnish better living quarters for the crew of twenty men, all of whom have been shipped for the new expedition. The engines have received a general overhauling and two new Scotch boilers have been installed.

The Reason.

"I think the picture lacks atmosphere," said the kindly critic.

"Fact is," said the artist, "I had a hard time raising the wind while I was painting."

"Everybody should know"

Says C. G. Hayes, of Bluff, Mo., "that Bucklen's arnica salve is the quickest and surest healing salve ever applied to a sore, burn, wound or to a case of piles. I've used it and know what I'm talking about." Guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son, druggists, 50c.

BATTLES WITH DOG.

Detroit Woman Has Terrible Experience.

ANIMAL WAS A FAMILY PET.

Canine Became Vicious When Door Was Closed, Preventing Him From Going Into Street—Victim May Recover—Hydrophobia Feared.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 6.—Suffering no more from the terrible wounds inflicted by a pet bull dog than from the fear of hydrophobia, Mrs. J. L. Weipert, lies at her home, 1671 Fort street west. In the kitchen of her home, securely locked in, is the dog, which was until 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, a pet of the family.

Mrs. Weipert was entertaining Mrs. McCarthy, a neighbor, in the sitting-room of her home, and the dog, a splendid specimen of the English bull variety, lay on the floor close to her feet. Suddenly he noticed a passing dog and made for the door, but Mrs. Weipert closed it.

The dog whirled around and sunk its fangs in her left arm. Mrs. Weipert hurled the canine to one side and Mrs. McCarthy pushed a big Morris chair between the dog and his victim, but he continued his attack and came under the chair, catching her by the foot and sinking his teeth into the flesh. Mrs. Weipert, using her already torn and bleeding arm, forced him to loose his hold and endeavored to push him through the door into the kitchen. After frightfully lacerating her lower limbs, he released his hold and as she attempted to close the door on him he jumped toward her throat, but as she turned quickly his jaws closed on her thigh, tearing out a huge piece of flesh. She managed with her remaining strength, to close the kitchen door, making him a prisoner.

She then called for help. Mrs. McCarthy ran for a doctor while the battle still waged.

Dr. Currie of 337 Artillery avenue dressed the woman's wounds.

Mrs. Weipert's arm, thigh and foot are seriously lacerated, while her lower limbs contain no less than 20 deep cuts caused by the dog's teeth.

It is not thought the dog has hydrophobia, but he will be killed and his brain sent to Ann Arbor to be analyzed. If hydrophobia germs are found Mrs. Weipert will be sent to Ann Arbor at once for treatment.

Dr Currie gives as his opinion that Mrs. Weipert will recover, although she is suffering from loss of blood and the nervous shock.

"I though I would have to give up and fall to the floor," said Mrs. Weipert, "but the awful thought of being torn to pieces by the maddened beast spurred me on to battle, and I used every ounce of strength in my body for the final effort when I closed the door on him."

Vessel Drifted for Hours.

St. Joseph, Mich., Aug. 6.—After drifting helplessly in the lake for several hours with 500 passengers aboard, the big side-wheeler City of Chicago, of the Graham & Morton line, succeeded in making her way to port late Monday afternoon. The plight of the craft had been reported by the steamer Frank Woods, which arrived here after passing the disabled vessel, and the tug Bonita was sent out to tow her in, but met the Chicago when 15 miles out. After receiving minor repairs, the steamer returned immediately to Chicago.

Seize Small Whitefish.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Aug. 6.—Over half a ton of undersized white fish were seized at Wellsburg by Deputy Game Warden Eddy. They were shipped by Simon Johnson and the warrant for his arrest has been issued. The fish were turned over to the asylum at Newberry and Marquette prison. Johnson is an old offender. The fish were for the Chicago market.

Mrs. Mann Bound Over.

Midland, Mich., Aug. 6.—Mrs. W. H. Mann, the Jackson woman charged with destroying a house owned by her husband and located in Larkin township, on July 4, had her hearing in Justice Snell's court Monday and was bound over to the circuit court, with bail fixed at $500.

Victims of Auto Tragedy Buried.

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 6.—The double funeral of Mrs. Emily Pulver and her granddaughter, Bernice Oliver, victims of Friday's automobile tragedy, occurred Monday afternoon. Mrs. Oliver, one of the injured, had recovered sufficiently to attend. Mr. Oliver is still in a critical condition.

RAISULI EXPLAINS.

Moroccan Bandit Gives Reasons Why He Took McLean Prisoner.

Tangier, Aug. 6.—In a long statement to the correspondent of an English newspaper, Raisuli, the Moroccan bandit who is holding Caid Sir Harry MacLean a prisoner, blames the treachery of the sultan's government for his capture of Sir Harry.

Raisuli says that in the course of his negotiations with the man who is now his prisoner, previous to his capture, he explained his grievances and Sir Harry promised him a safe conduct if he would go to Fez and lay his troubles before the sultan, who would remedy them. He accepted this offer, but while he was arranging for the journey, government troops, instigated by the sultan's bad advisors, Sidi Mohammed Gabbas, the Moroccan minister of war, and General Bagdani, chief of the sultan's army, plundered and devastated his property at Zinat and captured some if his relatives.

In the meantime Sir Harry MacLean had shown him a letter from the sultan, promising him safe conduct, but he had also secured a copy of another written by the sultan to his minister of war instructing him to attack Raisuli vigorously unless he went to Fez. This, continues Raisuli, convinced him of the treachery of the sultan, and he therefore made a prisoner of the English caid. Sir Harry, Raisuli declares, is perfectly safe in his hands. He did not capture him for money, but for justice, and this he hopes to secure by calling the attention of the British government to his grievances.

Vets. to Be Royally Entertained.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 6.—From all parts of the United States more than 300 veterans of the Fifteenth Pennsylvania cavalry, Gen. Wm. J. Palmer's regiment in the civil war, will arrive in Colorado Springs on the evening of August 20 for a six days' reunion as the guests of Gen. Palmer. A magnificent special train will bear the veterans to Colorado Springs and from the time each man leaves his own door until he returns to it, his expenses will be borne by General Palmer. Every station agent on the Pennsylvania railway system has received orders to issue tickets to Gen. Palmer's comrades on the presentation of a card supplied by the general, and the train will make its circuit from point to point in such a way as to pick up each traveler at the nearest station to his home.

"Leadville Jimmie" In Custody Again.

New York, Aug. 6.—James Courtney, alias "Leadville Jimmie," was brought here from California last night by two detectives to answer to a charge of killing Carrie Englehardt in 1900. Courtney left New York shortly before the woman's body was discovered. He was traced to San Francisco, but before the New York police could capture him, he was arrested and sentenced to seven years in prison for killing a policeman in San Francisco. He was released from San Quentin prison a few days ago and was arrested for the New York police as he left the building.

Policeman Killed.

Chicago, Aug.—6.—On information given by Mrs. Mary Dubois, the police last night arrested Joseph Glazebrook in connection with the murder of Police Officer Edward Smith, who was shot and killed near his home early Monday. Glazebrook is suspected by the police of having shot the officer during a quarrel over a woman. No charge has been placed against Glazebrook, but he will be held to await the action of a coroner's jury.

Wellman Prepared to Start.

Spitzenbergen, Friday, August 2, via Tromsoe, Aug. 6.—The balloon of the Wellman-Chicago Record-Herald polar expedition was successfully inflated, and the preparations for the start for the pole, which is scheduled for about the middle of August, are in good shape.

Salt Lake Mayor Resigns.

Salt Lake, Aug. 6.—The resignation of Ezra Thompson as mayor of Salt Lake City was sent to the city council last night. Mayor Thompson was elected in November, 1905, by the American, or anti-Mormon party.

Accident in Paper Mill.

Three Rivers, Mich., Aug. 6.—Two men were injured by flying debris and several thousand dollars' worth of damage was caused when a big 35-ton colendar crashed through the floor of the Eddy Paper Co.'s mill here Monday. The mill will be shut down some time as a result.

A young widow has a peculiar way of seeing a man without looking at him.

Men past sixty in danger

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rubey Burnett, Rockport, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate glands and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am 91 years old." Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

A man doesn't have to wear good clothes if he can afford not to.

"We never repent of eating too little" was one of the ten rules of life of Thos. Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule applies to every one without exception during this hot weather, because it is hard for food, even in small quantities to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach as much as possible by the use of a little Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Hay fever and summer colds.

Victims of hay fever will experience great benefit by taking Foley's Honey and Tar, as it stops difficult breathing immediately and heals the inflamed air passages, and even if it should fail to cure you it will give instant relief. Martin Hewitt, Investigator.

The room that Mrs. Armitage had occupied presented no peculiar feature. A few feet below the window the roof of the billiard room was visible, consisting largely of skylight. Hewitt glanced casually about the walls, ascertained that the furniture and hangings had not been materially changed since the second robbery and expressed his desire to see the windows from the outside. Before leaving the room, however, he wished to know the names of any persons who were known to have been about the house on the occasions of all three robberies.

"Well, you know it's quite impossible to answer for all the servants. You'll only get that by direct questioning. I can't possibly remember things of that sort. As to the family and visitors—why, you don't suspect any of them, do you?"

"I don't suspect a soul, Sir James," Hewitt answered, beaming genially, "not a soul. You see, I can't suspect people till I know something about where they were. Was there any visitor here each time, or even on the first and last occasions only?"

"No, not one, and my own sister, perhaps you will be pleased to know, was only there at the time of the first robbery."

"Just so! And your daughter, as I have gathered, was clearly absent from the spot each time—indeed, was in company with the party robbed. Your niece, now?"

"Why, hang it all, Mr. Hewitt, I can't talk of my niece as a suspected criminal! The poor girl's under my protection, and I really can't allow"—

"My dear sir, haven't I said that I don't suspect a soul? Do let me know how the people were distributed as nearly as possible. Let me see. It was your niece, I think, who found that Mrs. Armitage's door was locked—this door, in fact—on the day she lost her brooch? And yesterday—was she out then?"

"No; I think not. Indeed, she goes out very little. Her health is usually bad. She was indoors, too, at the time of the Heath robbery, since you ask. But come, now, I don't like this. It's ridiculous to suppose that she knows anything of it."

"I don't suppose it, as I have said. I am only asking for information. That is all your resident family. I take it, and you know nothing of anybody else's movements, except, perhaps, Mr. Lloyd's?"

"Lloyd? Well, you know yourself that he was out with the ladies when the first robbery took place. As to the others I don't remember. Yesterday he was probably in his room writing. I think that acquits him, eh?" Sir James looked quizzically into the broad face of the affable detective, who smiled and replied:

"Now, you see, we get down to the servants, unless some stranger is the party wanted. Shall we go outside now?"

Lenton Croft was a large, desultory sort of house, nowhere more than three stories high and mostly only two. Hewitt scrutinized its external features carefully as they strolled round and stopped some little while before the windows of the two bedrooms he had just seen from the inside. Presently they approached the stables and coach house, where a groom was washing the wheels of the dogcart.

"Do you mind my smoking?" Hewitt asked Sir James. "Perhaps you will take a cigar yourself. They are not so bad, I think. I will ask your man for a light."

Sir James felt his own matchbox, but Hewitt had gone and was lighting his cigar with a match from a box handed him by the groom. A smart little terrier was trotting about by the coach house, and Hewitt stooped to rub its head. Then he made some observation about the dog which enlisted the groom's interest and was soon absorbed in a chat with the man. Sir James, waiting a little way off, tapped the stones rather impatiently with his foot and presently moved away.

For fully a quarter of an hour Hewitt chatted with the groom and when at last he came away and overtook Sir James that gentleman was about re-entering the house.

"Oh!" exclaimed Sir James shortly.

"There is one other thing," Hewitt said, "that I should like to know—there are two windows directly below that of the room occupied yesterday by Mrs. Cazenove, one on each floor. What rooms do they light?"

"That on the ground floor is the morning room; the other is Mr. Lloyd's, my secretary, a sort of study or sitting room."

"Now you will see at once, Sir James," Hewitt pursued—"you will see at once that if a ladder had been used in Mrs. Heath's case anybody looking from either of these rooms would have seen it."

"Nobody seemed to have been in either of the rooms when the thing occurred—at any rate, nobody saw anything."

"Still I think I should like to look out of those windows myself. It will at least give me an idea of what was in view and what was not if anybody had been there."

Sir James Norris led the way to the morning room. As they reached the door a young lady, carrying a book and walking very languidly, came out. Hewitt stepped aside to let her pass and afterward said interrogatively, "Miss Norris, your daughter, Sir John?"

"No; my niece. Do you want to ask her anything? Dora, my dear," Sir James added, following her in the corridor, "this is Mr. Hewitt, who is investigating these wretched robberies for me. I think he would like to hear if you remember anything happening at any of the three times."

The lady bowed slightly and said in a plaintive drawl: "I, uncle? Really, I don't remember anything; nothing at all."

"You found Mrs. Armitage's door locked, I believe," asked Hewitt, "when you tried it on the afternoon when she lost her brooch?"

"Oh, yes, I believe it was locked! Yes, it was."

"Had the key been left in?"

"The key? Oh, no! I think not; no."

"Do you remember anything out of the common happening — anything whatever, no matter how trivial—on the day Mrs. Heath lost her bracelet?"

"No, really, I don't. I can't remember at all."

"Thank you," said Hewitt hastily; "thank you. Now the morning room, Sir James."

In the morning room Hewitt stayed but a few seconds, doing little more than casually glance out of the windows. In the room above he took a little longer time. It was a comfortable room, but with rather effeminate indications about its contents. Little pieces of draped silk work hung about the furniture, and Japanese silk fans decorated the mantelpiece. Near the window was a cage containing a gray parrot, and the writing table was decorated with two vases of flowers.

Hewitt stared thoughtfully out of the window and then, still deep in thought, rattled at the wires of the cage with a quill toothpick and played a moment with the parrot. Then, looking up at the window again, he said, "That is Mr. Lloyd, isn't it, coming back in a fly?"

"Yes, I think so. Is there anything else you would care to see here?"

"No, thank you," Hewitt replied; "I don't think there is."

They went down to the smoking room, and Sir James went away to speak to his secretary. When he returned Hewitt said quietly: "I think, Sir James, I think that I shall be able to give you your thief presently. I should like to know now whether you are determined to prosecute?"

"Why, bless me, of course," Sir James replied, with surprise. "It doesn't rest with me, you know. The property belongs to my friends. And even if they were disposed to let the thing slide I shouldn't allow it. I couldn't after they had been robbed in my house."

"Of course, of course! Then, if I can, I should like to send a message to Twyford by somebody perfectly trustworthy, not a servant. Could anybody go?"

"Well, there's Lloyd, although he's only just back from his journey. But if it's important he'll go."

"It is important. The fact is we must have a policeman or two here this evening, and I'd like Mr. Lloyd to fetch them without telling anybody else."

Sir James rang, and in response to his message Mr. Lloyd appeared. While Sir James gave his secretary his instructions Hewitt strolled to the door of the smoking room and intercepted the latter as he came out.

"I'm sorry to give you this trouble, Mr. Lloyd," he said, "but I must stay here myself for a little, and somebody who can be trusted must go. Will you just bring back a police constable with you, or, rather, two? Two would be better. That is all that is wanted. You won't let the servants know, will you? Of course there will be a female searcher at the Twyford police station. Ah, of course. Well, you needn't bring her, you know. That sort of thing is done at the station." And, chatting thus confidentially, Martin Hewitt saw him off.

When Hewitt returned to the smoking room, Sir James said suddenly: "Why, bless my soul, Mr. Hewitt, we haven't fed you! I'm awfully sorry. We came in rather late for lunch, you know. There's no dinner till 7, so you'd better let me give you something now."

"Thank you, Sir James," Hewitt replied. "I won't take much. A few biscuits perhaps or something of that sort. And, by the bye, if you don't mind, I rather think I should like to take it alone. Perhaps I can go into Mr. Lloyd's room for half an hour or so. I don't think he'll mind, and it's pretty comfortable."

"Certainly, if you like. I'll tell them to send you whatever they've got."

"Thank you very much. Perhaps they'll also send me a lump of sugar and a walnut. It's—it's just a little fad of mine."

"A—what? A lump of sugar and a walnut?" Sir James stopped for a moment, with his hand on the bell rope. "Oh, certainly, if you'd like it; certainly," he added and stated after this detective of curious tastes as he left the room.

When the vehicle bringing back the secretary and the policemen drew up on the drive, Martin Hewitt left the room on the first floor and proceeded downstairs. On the landing he met Sir James Norris and Mrs. Cazenove, who stared with astonishment on perceiving that the detective carried in his hand the parrot cage.

"I think our business is about brought to a head now," Hewitt remarked on the stairs. "Here are the police officers from Twyford." The men were standing in the hall with Mr. Lloyd, who on catching sight of the cage in Hewitt's hand paled suddenly.

"This is the person who will be charged, I think," Hewitt pursued, addressing the officers and indicating Lloyd with his finger.

"This is his accomplice," Hewitt went on, placing the parrot and cage on the hall table, "though I doubt whether there will be any use in charging him."

"This was his little messenger, his useful Mercury," Hewitt went on, tapping the cage complacently; "in fact, the actual lifter. Hold him up!"

The last remark referred to the wretched Lloyd, who had fallen forward with something between a sob and a loud sigh. The policemen took him by the arms and propped him in a chair.

* * * * * * *

"System?" said Hewitt, with a shrug of the shoulders, an hour or two after in Sir James' study. "I can't say I have a system. I call it nothing but common sense and a sharp pair of eyes. Nobody using these could help taking the right road in this case. I began at the match, just as the Scotland Yard man did, but I had the advantage of taking a line through three cases. To begin with, it was plain that that match, being left there in daylight in Mrs. Cazenove's room, could not have been used to light the table top in the full glare of the window; therefore it had been used for some other purpose—what purpose I could not at the moment guess. Habitual thieves, you know, often have curious superstitions, and some will never take anything without leaving something behind—a pebble or a piece of coal or something like that. The match had clearly been brought in, because when I asked for matches there were none in the stand, not even an empty box, and the room had not been disturbed; also the match probably had not been struck there, nothing having been heard, although of course a mistake in this matter was just possible. This match, then, it was fair to assume, had been lit somewhere else and blown out immediately—I remarked at the time that it was very little burned. Plainly it could not have been treated thus for nothing, and the only possible object would have been to prevent it igniting accidentally. Following on this, it became obvious that the match was used, for whatever purpose, not as a match, but merely as a convenient splinter of wood.

"So far so good. But on examining the match very closely I observed, as you can see for yourself, certain rather sharp indentations in the wood. They are very small, you see, and scarcely visible, except upon narrow inspection, but there they are, and their position are regular. See, there are two on each side, each opposite the corresponding mark of the other pair. The match, in fact, would seem to have been gripped in some fairly sharp instrument, holding it at two points above and two below, an instrument as it may at once strike you, not unlike the beak of a bird.

"This is the person who will be charged."

"Now here was an idea. What living creature but a bird could possible have entered Mrs. Heath's window without a ladder, supposing no ladder to have been used, or could have got into Mrs. Armitage's window without lifting the sash higher than the eight or ten inches it was already open? Plainly, nothing. Further, it is significant that only one article was stolen at a time, although others were about. A human being could have carried any reasonable number, but a bird could only take one at a time. But why should a bird carry a match in its beak? Certainly it must have been trained to do that for a purpose, and a little consideration made that purpose pretty clear. A noisy, chattering bird would probably betray itself at once. Therefore it must be trained to keep quiet both while going and coming.

"I thought at once, of course, of a jackdaw or a magpie, but the marks on the match were much too wide apart to have been made by the beak of either. I conjectured, therefore, that it must be a raven. So that, when we arrived near the coach house, I seized the opportunity of a little chat with your groom on the subject of dogs and pets in general, and ascertained that there was no tame raven in the place. I also, incidentally, by getting a light from the coach house box of matches, ascertained that the match found was of the sort generally used about the establishment—the large, thick, red-topped English match. But I further found that Mr. Lloyd had a parrot which was a most intelligent pet, and had been trained into comparative quietness—for a parrot. Also, I learned that more than once the groom had met Mr. Lloyd carrying his parrot under his coat, it having, as its owner explained, learned the trick of opening its cage door and escaping.

"I got to Lloyd's room as soon as possible. My chief object in going there was achieved when I played with the parrot and induced it to bite a quill toothpick.

"When you left me in the smoking room I compared the quill and the match very carefully and found that the marks corresponded exactly. After this I felt very little doubt indeed. The fact of Lloyd having met the ladies walking before dark on the day of the first robbery proved nothing, because, since it was clear that the match had not been used to procure a light, the robbery might as easily have taken place in daylight as not.

"When Mrs. Heath left her window open and her door shut, anybody climbing upon the open sash of Lloyd's high window could have put the bird upon the sill above. The match placed in the bird's beak for the purpose I have indicated, and struck first, in case by accident it should ignite by rubbing against something and startle the bird—this match would, of course, be dropped just where the object to be removed was taken up. As you know, in every case the match was found almost upon the spot where the missing article had been left—scarcely a likely triple coincidence had the match been used by a human thief. This would have been done as soon after the ladies had left as possible, and there would have been plenty of time for Lloyd to hurry out and meet them before dark—especially plenty of time to meet them coming back, as they must have been, since they were carrying their ferns. The match was an article well chosen for its purpose, as being a not altogether unlikely thing to find on a dressing table and, if noticed, likely to lead to the wrong conclusions adopted by the official detective.

"In Mrs. Armitage's case the taking of an inferior brooch and the leaving of a more valuable ring pointed clearly either to the operator being a fool or unable to distinguish values, and certainly from other indications the thief seemed no fool. The door was locked and the gasfitter, so to speak, on guard, and the window was only eight or ten inches open and propped with a brush. A human thief entering the window would have disturbed this arrangement and would scarcely risk discovery by attempting to replace it, especially a thief in so great a hurry as to snatch the brooch up without unfastening the pin. The bird could pass through the opening as it was and would have to tear the pincushion to pull the brooch off, probably holding the cushion down with its claw the while.

"Now, in yesterday's case we had an alteration of conditions. The window was shut and fastened, but the door was open, but only left for a few minutes, during which time no sound was heard either of coming or going. Was it not possible, then, that the thief was already in the room, in hiding, while Mrs. Cazenove was there and seized its first opportunity on her temporary absence? The room is full of draperies, hangings and what not, allowing of plenty of concealment for a bird, and a bird could leave the place noiselessly and quickly. Before taking any definite steps I resolved to see if Polly could not be persuaded to exhibit his accomplishments to an indulgent stranger. For that purpose I contrived to send Lloyd away again and have a quiet hour alone with his bird. A piece of sugar, as everybody knows, is a good parrot bribe, but a walnut split in half is a better, especially if the bird be used to it. So I got you to furnish me with both. Polly was shy at first, but I generally get along very well with pets, and a little perseverance soon led to a complete private performance for my benefit. Polly would take the match, mute as wax, jump on the table, pick up the brightest thing he could see in a great hurry, leave the match behind and scuttle away round the room, but at first wouldn't give up the plunder to me. Indeed enough. When we sent Lloyd away, it struck me that he might as well be usefully employed as not, so I got him to fetch the police, deluding him a little, I fear, by talking about the servants and a female searcher. There will be no trouble about evidence. He'll confess. Of that I'm sure. I know the sort of man. But I doubt if you'll get Mrs. Cazenove's brooch back. You see, he has been to London today, and by this time the swag is probably broken up."

"But Mrs. Armitage's brooch was pawned, and by a woman," said Sir James.

"Exactly. I expect our friend Lloyd was rather disgusted at his small luck—probably gave the brooch to some female connection in London and she realized on it."

The two smoked in silence for a few minutes, and then Hewitt continued: "I don't expect our friend has had an easy job altogether with that bird. His successes at most have only been three, and I suspect he had many failures and not a few anxious moments that we know nothing of. I should judge as much merely from what the groom told me of frequently meeting Lloyd with his parrot. But the plan was not a bad one—not at all. Even if the bird had been caught in the act, it would only have been 'That mischievous parrot!' you see. And his master would only have been looking for him."

Absentminded Miss Amy

By Louise J. Strong

Copyright, 1908, by C. H. Sutcliffe

"There are worse things than being an old maid," Miss Amy Colver said serenely.

"Oh, Miss Amy—I didn't mean—I never think of you as being that!" the girl stammered.

"She isn't such a very old maid," Mrs. Wridgely smiled. "And she says truly there are worse things—such as having a blind husband on your hands, which would have been her fate if she'd married Henry Scott, as she came near doing once."

"She wouldn't think so if she were his wife! She'd love him all the more for the affliction. I know I should. If Willie"— Blushing hotly, Elsie ran from the room.

Mrs. Wridgely laughed, but with a keen glance at her sister, who murmured something about the heat, fanning vigorously. Then presently she asked, "Did you say that Henry Scott was blind?"

"That's what Kate wrote. The doctors think his eyes were ruined, and no wonder, running into that fire so. Inflammation set in. He may never see again. It's a good thing he has no family. He's pretty well off, but he'll need all he's got. He'll never work again, and his business will soon go to ruin, with hired help managing it."

Amy said nothing. Mrs. Wridgely regarded her preoccupied face with a slight frown, then closed the subject by remarking briskly:

"Well, fortunately, Henry Scott is nothing to us. I ran over to see what you're going to wear to the reception, Amy."

"The same as usual, I suppose, if I go."

"If you go!" Mrs. Wridgely almost shrieked. "When you know the affair is complimentary to you! Of course you'll go! And you must wear your cream silk. I'll send Ruth to dress you. And, Amy, I want to take the waist and have the sleeves shortened. You have such pretty arms. I'll run up and get it."

"Judge Hale and wife will be there," she resumed, returning to the porch with the waist.

"Be where?" Amy questioned vaguely.

"Well, if you aren't enough to— Be at the reception, of course, and Senator Ellsworth, too; he got back this morning. Mrs. Reed was so afraid they would not be here. I think I'll dress early and come over myself, Amy, or like as not you'll appear in that everlasting black! Of course you are full of your new book, but you owe something to your friends. Do put it out of your mind for this evening. I'll be over early."

"I'm glad it's out about Henry Scott," Mrs. Wridgely communed with herself. "I've been some afraid of the effect on her, but I guess she's forgotten that old affair, and I mentioned the senator on purpose to turn her thoughts. I wish I dare speak plainly to her about Senator Ellsworth. If she were only a little more like other folks! But then, I suppose, he would not find her so attractive."

Mrs. Wridgely had constituted herself first aid to Senator Ellsworth a few months before, when chance enabled her to extract a letter from Amy's mail which was plainly from Henry Scott. She felt justified. Amy would be spared mental disturbance, and, anyway, the letter was probably only a congratulatory note on the success of her book, such as she received constantly. Mrs. Wridgely's hopes concerning the senator were new then, and the brilliancy of the possible position for her sister Amy excused anything.

Amy had been provokingly unappreciative of this advantageous opportunity, as she had been of many others, which was perhaps to be expected of people who wrote books.

Amy sat alone pondering over her lover's peculiar silence. Was it due to jealousy of her success? She had glorified in his magnificent conduct when the papers had told of his plunging again and again into the burning wreck, rescuing women and children, and to her love, that folly and estrangement could not kill, was added hero worship. She had sat silent under the news of his calamity with a control that reassured her sister, but now her fan fell from her grasp, a broken heap.

"Blind! Blind!" she moaned.

The dark eyes that had looked into her heart with a power that no other could ever attain darkened forever.

Her imagination vividly pictured what it would mean to him, so active, so alive to the world and its needs, suddenly imprisoned in darkness, hopeless darkness, dependent upon others, limited to the companionship of hired attendants and his decrepit aunt, his sole relative.

At least she might write him a few sympathetic lines, the fact that she had but now learned of his terrible loss being explanation and justification of her former seemingly heartless indifference. In the privacy of her chamber she gave rein to her emotions, producing that which she hastily reduced to scraps for the wastebasket.

Recalling that other eyes now scanned his letters, she wrote and discarded page after page, finding each short epistle more difficult of composition. In the midst of her perplexity a maid brought in the remodeled garment and an imperative scrawl from Mrs. Wridgely to the effect that the article be tried on immediately and, if not satisfactory, returned for further alteration.

Amy dismissed the maid and donned the garment, her mind turning sentences over and over, still striving to express only the proper amount of interest. Then, as she absently arranged ribbons and lace, there came the firm conviction that to write was impossible; that she must see him as soon as distance would allow.

It would not have happened had Amy been properly chaperoned and companioned instead of maintaining the independence which Mrs. Wridgely often and uselessly deplored. The generously salaried and loyal servants only looked their astonishment when, wearing the elbow sleeved bodice of her elegant reception gown, a black lace fichu and plain traveling hat, Miss Amy announced that she was going on a journey. As she descended the steps she received a large box from a florist's boy, and this she abstractedly carried with her.

She was still carrying it when, after an hour's ride on a train, she walked to the old Scott homestead, at the end of the village, where she had been raised. She had been engrossed in the past, but once inside the gate she was roused to a somewhat embarrassing present. With a painfully beating heart she stole away to the summer house, hoping there to regain self control before ringing the bell. As she entered a voice, speaking from the gloom, startled her.

"Are you back so soon, auntie?"

She would have run away, but a sudden weakness at sight of him, a heavy shade over his bandaged eyes, made her stumble to the bench beside him. He put out a groping hand as if seeking something unusual.

"Is it you, auntie? Is anything wrong—or—who is it?"

The shock of his helplessness swept away everything but tender pity, yearning love and longing to minister to him. She caught the groping hand and kissed it, sobbing with impetuous abandon:

"Oh, Harry, Harry! I came as soon as I knew. I am going to stay with you and take care of you forever. You shall never, never be alone in the darkness again!"

"Why!" he cried. "Why, it must be—it is—Amy! My own Amy!"

His next movements demonstrated that his arms at least were as strong as of old, and Miss Colver submitted to the loving bonds without a struggle.

"Dear," he said gravely when the old misunderstanding and the purport of the purloined letter had been made clear—"dear, I do not mean to let you leave me again, because you might forget to come back, but I must not hold you by false pretense. You came, like a sweet angel, to care for a blind man, but you will not discard me, will you, though my sight be fully restored, as I now have hopes it may be?"

"Oh, Harry!"

The ecstatic cry and the soft, bare arms about his neck were answer enough.

From the crushed box between them there crept a perfume that presently brought unpleasant remembrances to Miss Amy.

"Why," she exclaimed, examining the contents and the accompanying card, "the senator's roses! And I have on my"— She viewed the costume with amazement, a guilty sense of outraged social amenities and her sister's disapproval.

When she had made shamefaced explanation, Henry Scott intimated, with a heartless disregard of the senator's shattered hopes, that the parsonage was close by and that the evening bodice and the roses were plainly in preparation for the wedding that was to occur immediately.

On nearly all street corners even in the largest metropolis of Europe may be found relics of the middle ages and of the earliest times. Take, for instance, the wooden image of a shoe, which every cobbler hangs out above his door. It goes back for its origin to the Rome of the pre-Christian era. In the ruins of the lava buried cities of Herculaneum and Pompeii many shop signs of stone and terra cotta have been discovered, the forerunners of those that for centuries adorned the highways not only of Europe, but of the new world. Among them was the emblem of the shoemaker's trade, a Cupid carrying a dainty pair of women's shoes. But the Romans did not stop there. They used the image of a goat to indicate the dairies, that of a mule driving a mill to point out the bakers' shops and a bush of evergreen to direct the thirsty traveler to a tavern. This particular sign gave rise to the English proverb, "Good wine needs no bush."

"St. Peter at the Gate."

St Peter stood guard at the golden gate
With solemn mein and an air sedate.
When up to the top of the golden stair
A man and woman, ascending there,
Applied for admission. They came and stood
Before St. Peter, so great and good,
In hope the City of Peace to win—
And asked St. Peter to let them in.

The woman was tall and lank and thin
With a scraggly beardlet upon her chin.
The man was short and thick and stout,
His stomach was built so it rounded out.
His face was pleasant and all the while
He wore a kindly and genial smile
The choirs in the distance the echoes woke,
And the man kept still while the woman spoke.

"Oh thou who guardest the gate" said she,
"We two come hither, beseeching thee
To let us enter the heavenly land,
And play our harps with the angel band,
Of me St Peter, there is no doubt
There's nothing from heaven to bar me out.
I've been to meeting three times a week,
And almost always I'd rise and speak.

"I've told the sinners about the day
When they'd repent of their evil way.
I've told my neighbors, I've told 'em all
'Bout Adam and Eve, and the Primal Fall,
I've shown them what they'd have to do
If they'd pass in with the chosen few.
I've marked their path of duty clear,
Laid out the plan for their whole career.

"I've talked and talked to 'em loud and long,
For my lungs are good and my voice is strong.
So good St. Peter, you'll clearly see,
The gate of heaven is open for me
But my old man, I regret to say,
Hasn't walked exactly in the narrow way.
He smokes and he swears and grave faults he's got,
And I don't know whether he'll pass or not.

"He never would pray with me, or go to revival or join in a hymn,
So I had to leave him in sorrow there
While I, with the chosen, united in prayer,
He ate what the pantry chanced to afford,
While I, in my purity sang to the Lord.
And if cucumbers were all he got
Its a chance if he merited them or not.

"But, oh St. Peter, I love him so
To the pleasures of heaven please let him go.
I've done enough—a saint I've been,
Won't that atone? Can't you let him in?
By my grim gospel I know 'tis so
That the unrepentant must fry below
But isn't there some way you can see
That he may enter who's dear to me?

"It's a narrow gospel by which I pray,
But the chosen expect to find some way
Of coaxing, or fooling, or bribing you
So that their relation can amble through.
And say, St. Peter, it seems to me
This gate isn't kept as it ought to be,
You ought to stand right by the opening there
And never sit down in that easy chair.

"And say, St. Peter, my sight is dimmed,
But I don't like the way your whiskers are trimmed.
They're cut to wide and outward toes;
They'd look better narrow, cut straight across.
Well, we must be going, our crowns to win,
So open, St. Peter, and we'll pass in!"

St. Peter sat quiet and stroked his staff,
But, spite of his office, he had to laugh,
Then said, with a fiery gleam in his eye,
"Who's tending this gateway, you or I?"
And then he arose, in his stature tall,
And pressed a button upon the wall,
And said to the imp who answered the bell:
"Escort this female around to hell!"

The man stood still as a piece of stone,
Stood sadly, gloomily there alone.
A life-long settled idea he had
That his wife was good and he was bad.
He thought if the woman went down below
That he would certainly have to go—
That if she went to the regions dim
There wasn't the ghost of a show for him.

Slowly he turned, by habit bent,
To follow wherever the woman went.
St Peter, standing on duty there,
Observed that the top of his head was bare.
He called the gentleman back and said:
"Friend, how long hast thou been wed?"
"Thirty years," (with a weary sigh)—
And then he thoughtfully added,
"Why?"

St. Peter was silent. With head bent down
He raised his hand and scratched his crown.
Then, seeming a different thought to take,
Slowly, half to himself he spake.
"Thirty years with that woman there?
No wonder the man hasn't any hair!
Swearing is wicked. Smoke's not good.
He smoked and swore—I should think he would!

"Thirty years with that tongue so sharp?
Ho! Angel Gabriel! GIVE HIM A HARP!
A jeweled harp with a golden string!
Good Sir, pass in where the angels sing!
Gabriel, give him a seat alone—
One with a cushion—up near the throne!
Call up some angels to play their best.
Let him enjoy the music and rest.
See that on finest Ambrosia he feeds,
He's had about all the hell he needs.
It isn't just hardly the thing to do
To roast him on earth and the future, too."
They gave him a harp with golden strings,
A glittering robe and a pair of wings.
And he said as he entered the Realm of Day,
"Well, this beats cucumbers anyway!"
And so the Scripture had come to pass
"The last shall be first and the first shall be last."

The limit of life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that limitation of human life is far below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The county Y. M. C. A. camp for boys is on at present and there are 87 boys and men from 9 different towns. Baseball, water base ball, swiming, boating and tramps through the woods are the enjoyable sports of the camp. The camp is divided into three groups, each having its own tent and presided over by a leader, F. R. Hurst having charge of tent No. 1, Rev. Dunning No. 2, and Fred Frost No. 3.

Each tent has its own base ball team and hard battles are fought on the diamond every day. At present Dunning's warriors are ahead with two games to their credit and none lost. The battery for this tent are Roy Bramble and Dale Hodges, the reverend gentleman occupying first sack while third is cared for by Herman Babcock. Tent No. 1, second in the list of base ball has the county secretary on first, Seymour Orr on second, Raymond Brown on third and Glenn Lanning in the field.

Fred Frost, alias O'Toole is the umpire of the camp but has been too honest to swing tent number three into victory yet.

Some how or other Herbert Henderson's old name has become known and he is hailed always as Henderson's whale.

The Bible class at 8 o'clock in the morning is well attended and interesting, Biblical characters being used as a course of study. Sunday afternoon a meeting of the boys was held under the trees in front of the camp at which there were several visitors from different parts of the county.

NOTICE

An ordinance relating to dogs.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the Common Council of the village of Tecumseh that no dog shall be permitted to run at large in any street or place in said village away from the premises of the owner at any time from the 15th of June to the 15th of September in any year unless so thoroughly and securely muzzled that no bite or harm can result therefrom to any living creature.

Sec. 2. That the owner or person having possession or custody of, or harboring any dog, who shall allow such dog to continue within, pass through or come within the bounds of this corporation, off the premises of such owner, excepting such dog be so muzzled, shall be punished by a fine not less than five dollars and not exceeding ten dollars, on conviction thereof before any justice of the peace of the township of Tecumseh, or by imprisonment in the jail of Lenawee county not exceeding ten days for such offense, or both by such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

Sec. 3. It shall be the duty of the village marshall and street commissioner, and each of them to kill forthwith any dog running at large contrary to the provisions of this ordinance.

BASE BALL.

Three thousand fans witnessed the game between Tecumseh and Battle Creek Sunday at Battle Creek. Railing for Tecumseh pitched a no hit, shut out, the game being a brilliant one from start to finish. Tecumseh scored in the first on two hits, a base on balls and a sacrifice. McCain for Battle Creek pitched good ball.

Score by innings:

Runs, Preston; bases on balls, off Railing 3, off McCain 3; two base hit, Wagner; struck out, by Wagner 7, by McCain 6; left on bases, Tecumseh 8, Battle Creek 3; sacrifice hits, Preston, Slear, Hildinger, Henderson, Cross, Reardon; stolen bases, Wagner, Wolfe; umpire, Gallagher; attendance 3,000.

Tecumseh outclassed Battle Creek in Monday's game and had little difficulty in winning 3 to 1. The Indians made their 7 hits count and were helped by the mistakes of Battle Creek. Teal allowed but 3 safeties and was given errorless support. The locals got two in the second after Merkle tripled and Lagoe and Teal singled. Their third run was a gift in the 7th. With two out, Somerlott singled and scored on errors by Cross and Steiger. Battle Creek got one in the 4th on Henderson's single and Deneau's double.

Score by innings:

Runs, Merkle, Somerlott, Lagoe 3, Henderson 1; bases on balls, off Teal 3, off Deneau 3; two base hit, Deneau; three base hit, Merkle; hit with pitched ball, Wolfe; struck out, by Deneau 4, by Teal 4; sacrifice hits, Cross, Reardon, Somerlott; stolen bases, Hildinger, Merkle, Somerlott; left on bases, Battle Creek 4; Tecumseh 6. Time 1:10; umpire Corlett; attendance 350.

Endorsed by the county.

"The most popular remedy in Otsego county and the best friend of my family writes Wm. Dietz, editor of the Otsego Journal, Gilberteville, N. Y., "is Dr. King's New Discovery. It has proved to be a sure cure for coughs and colds, making short work of the worst of them. We always keep a bottle in the house. I believe it to be the most valuable prescription known for throat and lung diseases." Guaranteed to never disappoint the taker by C. A. Wright & Son. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

Goats as Mowing Machines.

A flock of Angora goats was put on a rocky hillside that it was desired to have cleared and got into grass. It was such a tangle of brush and briers that it was with difficulty one could make a way through it. The goats actually ate their way in until it was penetrated with paths in all directions. After the leaves within reach were eaten they would stand on their hind feet with their fore feet in the branches and so get the leaves higher up, or, if the bush was not too large, would throw their weight against and bend it to the ground, where others of the flock would help strip it of its foliage. The leaves would come out again only to be eaten off, then sprouts would come from the roots to share the same fate, until at the end of the second summer everything in the shape of a bush not over six feet tall except the pines and laurel was completely killed and white clover was beginning to appear. These goats with their long, curly, white fleeces attracted more attention probably than anything else on the place; but, as can be imagined, they had to be well fenced in, for they would run over a stone wall like dogs.—Country Life In America.

Poetry at $1,875 a Line.

The highest price ever paid for poetry was $1,875 a line, $15,000 for an eight line poem.

It was not a good poem either. James Smith, one of the authors of "Rejected Addresses," wrote it. Smith met one night at dinner in London Strachan, the famous English printer. Strachan, what with old age and gout, was most infirm. Indeed, he could hardly walk. But his mind was exceedingly powerful and brilliant, and he talked so well that Smith on his return home wrote the following doggerel about the old man:

Your lower limbs seemed far from stout
When last I saw you walk;
The cause I presently found out
When you began to talk.
The power that props the body's strength
In due proportion spread
In you mounts upward, and the strength
All settles in the head.

Though this was undeniably rank poetry and ranker flattery, it pleased Printer Strachan so well that he added to his will a codicil giving Smith $15,000.

Treasure Good Health.

How few of us stop to count good health as a great blessing! We are so busy grumbling over some financial wrong that we forget that all the money in the world would profit us but little if we were invalids.

DON'T PUT IT OFF LONGER.

Get rid of that indigestion at once by using Mi-o-na.

Either through slackness or carelessness hundreds of people slowly poison themselves by chronic indigestion. By neglecting to cure at once any sluggishness of the important organs of digestion the system is filled with fermenting and decaying food that results in sick headaches, heartburn, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, specks before the eyes, sleeplessness, nervous troubles and the many other symptoms that are the direct result of indigestion.

The want of a perfectly safe yet effective cure for indigestion and stomach troubles in their many forms was felt up to the time of the successful investigations that resulted in the production of Mi-o-na stomach tablets. They quickly cure the worst cases of indigestion and the pain and distress which are often felt after meals disappear in a very few days—such is the wonderful curative power of Mi-o-na.

The old-fashioned medicines for stomach troubles merely digest the food, while Mi-o-na strengthens the digestive organs so that they soon become able to care for the food that is eaten.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets cost but 50 cents a box and do more real good than a dozen boxes of the ordinary digestive tablets. C. A. Wright & Son give an absolute, unqualified guarantee to refund the money if Mi-o-na fails to cure.

There are many high-salaried teachers in the school of experience.

BRONCHIAL TROUBLES.

Bronchial troubles are purely local. They cannot be helped by stomach dosing. They are caused by irritation in the air passages and can be relieved and cured by medicated air alone. In this lies the secret of success of Hy-o-mei in the treatment of bronchial troubles.

The Hy-o-mei medication laden with nature's remedies is breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, reaching every part of the bronchial tubes and killing the disease germs. It allays all irritation and heals the inflammation of the mucous membrane with rapidity.

Treatment with sprays, douches and atomizers in bronchial troubles is condemned by the best physicians as they cause further irritation.

The first breath of Hy-o-mei's medicated air seems to soothe the inflammation, stop the cough and thus relief becomes a permanent cure.

Hy-o-mei has made many remarkable cures in the worst and most chronic forms of bronchial troubles and is sold by C. A. Wright & Son with the same guarantee as they give when Hy-o-mei is purchased for catarrh that is to refund the money in case the remedy does not give satisfaction. The complete outfit costs but $1.

FARM GATES

We have the agency for the Iowa Gate and we claim it is the best farm gate on the market. We are selling more of them every day and the reasons for selling are—

1st—It can never sag or droop, as it is made of rolled steel.

3rd—It is durable, practical, ornamental and useful.

4th—It is adjustable, and by moving a ring, can be raised or lowered at outer end.

5th—They are low in price as compared to most metal gates.

Come in and see sample and let us sell you what you need.

MOTHERS READ THIS

DAUGHTER OF C. W. STUMP

Mrs. C. W. Stump of Canton, Ohio, writes: "I wish I could induce every mother who has a weak, sickly child to try that delicious cod liver preparation, Vinol. Our little daughter was pale, thin and sickly.

"We tried various medicines, but without any benefit whatever, and she could not take cod liver oil or emulsions, as they nauseated her and upset her stomach.

"Learning that Vinol contains all the medicinal and strength-creating properties of cod liver oil, but without the disagreeable oil, we decided to try it, and the results were marvelous, so quickly was she restored to health and strength.

"We have never sold a medicine equal to Vinol for delicate children.

FASTIDIOUS WOMEN

consider Paxtine Toilet Antiseptic a necessity in the hygienic care of the person and for local treatment of feminine ills. As a wash its cleansing, germicidal, deodorizing and healing qualities are extraordinary. For sale at Druggists. Sample free. Address The R. Paxton Co., Boston, Mass.

Unless you strive for your rights you are apt to get left.

WOMEN'S WOES

It seems that women have more than their share of the pains that afflict humanity, they must keep up, must attend to household duties in spite of a backache, headache or dizzy spells, they must walk, bend and work with racking pains from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. Keep them well and health is maintained. Read of a remedy endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. Chas. Stevenson, of Wyandotte street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I am glad to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills as they have been of great benefit to me. When I was ill with malaria fever my kidneys were also in a terrible condition. The nurse advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills as they were good for such troubles. I began using them and they at once gave me relief. In a short time the pains all left, the secretions became natural in color and the gravel stones which had bothered me for years, disappeared. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills and will continue to do so."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other.

Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup is sold under a positive guarantee to cure constipation, sick headache, stomach trouble, or any form of indigestion. If it fails, the manufacturers refund your money. What more can any one do. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Brilliancy may be imparted to the complexion by powdering with diamond dust

Farmers, mechanics, railroaders, laborers rely on Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Takes the sting out of cuts, burns or bruises at once. Pain cannot stay where it is used.

Fortunate is the milkmaid who has no kick coming.

Keep the pores open and the skin clean when you have a cut, burn, bruise or scratch. DeWitt's carbolized witch hazel salve penetrates the pores and heals quickly. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

A woman's idea of wisdom is the ability to detect cotton in an alleged all wool fabric.

Those who have stomach trouble, no matter how slight, should give every possible help to the digestive organs, so that the food may be digested with the least effort. This may be done by taking something that contains natural digestive properties—something like Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia. Kodol is a preparation of vegetable acids and contains the very same juices found in a healthy stomach. It digests what you eat. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

TWENTY RESORTERS ILL.

Believed They Are the Victims of Ptomaine Poisoning.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Aug. 6.—Sunset View farm along the Lake Michigan shore, was converted into a temporary hospital Sunday evening when 20 resorters were suddenly taken ill with what is supposed to be ptomaine poisoning.

The guests of the resort had eaten supper when one child was taken ill. Another soon followed and then the parents began to be affected. Finally the whole party were laid out.

Alarmed, a portion of the resort hastily summoned physicians, whose promptness in arriving doubtless saved several lives.

The party had partaken of a heavy supper, but what caused the poisoning is a mystery. Portions of the food have been submitted to the state chemist.

Troubles Drove Her Insane.

Marshall, Mich., Aug. 6.—Heartbroken over the death of her idolized father, robbed of her favorite brother who was accidentally shot, divorced from her husband, Mrs. Maude Searles, formerly Maude Wagoner, once very wealthy and a society leader, was committed to the Kalamazoo asylum Monday morning by Probate Judge Hahn. Mrs. Searles' father was the late Capt. M. V. Wagoner. At his death he left considerable property, including his splendid home, to his daughter. She married Milton Searles, and it was not long before all her wealth was gone. Two years ago she secured a divorce. Searles is now in Cincinnati. Mrs. Searles lately has been forced to earn her own living by doing typewriting. While she had many friends who proffered assistance, she steadfastly refused aid.

Elevator Fell; Three Hurt.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 6.—John Flockton, Jacob Louwet and John Brock were injured, Flockton perhaps fatally, when a freight elevator on which they were riding in D. M. Ferry & Co.s warehouse, on Monroe avenue, fell from the fourth floor to the basement about 10:30 o'clock Monday morning. The men were descending with a large load of seed when the steel cable snapped, precipitating car, men and seed to the cement floor, 50 or 60 feet below.

Fugitive Is Returned.

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 6.—William Sewell has been returned to the Michigan state prison from St. Louis, Mo., where he was captured after breaking his parole. Sewell was sent up from Ingham county in 1904 for three years for burglary and was paroled in 1906. He broke his parole this year and will now have to serve a year and a half.

Killed by Train.

Jonesville, Mich., Aug. 6.—B. Kauffman, formerly a resident of Jonesville, but now a resident of Chicago, fell from a Lake Shore train at the west depot in this city and was run over Monday night. Both legs were badly mangled and the injuries caused his death in a few minutes. The coroner is investigating.

Boston's Name.

Boston owes its name to a Roman Catholic saint. Early in the seventh century a Catholic monk named Botolph founded a church in what is now Lincolnshire, England.

As the years went by a town grew up around the church and was called Botolphstown. This was shortened for convenience into Botolphston, then to Botoston and finally to Boston. John Cotton came to America from that town and named the New England capital after his native village.

The Silence Cure.

Nerve specialists, it is said, are now recommending a "silence cure" for women who suffer from nerves. The patients have to set apart a certain number of hours in which no word is spoken. A woman we know tried this treatment, with a curious result. She herself came out in a rash, but her husband, who suffered from headaches, recovered.—Punch.

On the Slopes of Vesuvius.

Despite the danger to which they are exposed from 80,000 to 100,000 people live upon the slopes of Vesuvius, besides the 500,000 inhabitants crowded into Naples. The reason is that the fertility of the soil is perennial, the peril only occasional. The volcanic ejecta are rich in alumina, silica, magnesia, lime, potash and iron, which by their decomposition go to make splendid land. Some of the best vines in Italy grow on the skirts of Vesuvius. If the volcano were away not one-tenth of the many cultivators could [illegible] in the same area.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Robert Featham, 26, a mason contractor of Alpena, died Monday morning of lockjaw after an illness of two days. He ran a rusty nail into his foot a week ago. He was unmarried.

Mrs. Wm. Thaw of Pittsburg, the mother of Harry K. Thaw, in company of a Mrs. Christie, is at a Mr. Clemens hotel, for several weeks' rest and to take the baths.

Fire of unknown origin swept Walloon Lake Sunday night and virtually wiped out the business portion. The damage is placed at $20,000, with considerable insurance. Walloon Lake is a summer resort on the G. R. & I. railroad and has a population of 350.

John Brechtelbaur, aged 40 years, of Saginaw dropped dead from heart disease in his home Monday. He leaves a widow and several children. Brechtelbauer was employed by the Prudential Insurance company. He was well known in sporting circles as a bowler of no mean ability, having participated in national tournaments.

John W. Clark of Saginaw has been appointed by Gov. Warner to succeed John Baird as deputy state salt inspector. Clark was born in Saginaw 33 years ago, and has lived there ever since. For four years he has been publisher of the Michigan Miner. During the World's fair he was appointed commissioner of mines to represent the mining interests of the state.

On the petition of the City Machine & Manufacturing Co., the C. R. Wilson Body Co. and the Peninsular Milled Screw Co., whose claims aggregate only $1,023 45, the Aerocar Co., automobile manufacturers in Detroit, was placed in the hands of a receiver Saturday and the plant temporarily closed. The receiver, the Detroit Trust Co., was appointed by Referee in Bankruptcy Davock, who authorized that the plant be continued in operation.

In a collision between an automobile and a street car near midnight Sunday, at Grand Rapids, seven narrowly escaped death and two are in a hospital in a serious condition. George Elliot and his wife were giving an auto ride to five of their friends, and were speeding along at a fast clip when the crash came. Mrs. Elliot was thrown completely through the car window. Mr. Elliot, who was at the wheel, was hurled across the street. The machine was demolished.

Turks and Meerschaum.

According to the best authorities upon the subject, the idea of using white talc in the manufacture of pipes is of comparatively recent date compared with the age of the habit of smoking; and what is still more curious is the fact that in the oriental countries which produce white talc, or meerschaum, as it is called, and where the use of tobacco forms part of the education of the faithful the people never dream of making this substance into pipes. They make bowls and goblets of it, but no pipes. It may be that the long pipestems which allow the smoke to cool and lose its acridity before reaching the mouth leave the oriental smoker quite indifferent in regard to the quality of the bowl. At all events, one never sees a Turk with a meerschaum pipe.

There should be as little merit in loving a woman for her beauty as a man for his prosperity, both being equally subject to change.—Pope.

Man, the Monstrous Specter.

What a monstrous specter is this man, the disease of the agglutinated dust, lifting alternate feet or lying drugged with slumber; killing, feeding, growing, bringing forth small copies of himself; grown upon with hair like grass, fitted with eyes that move and glitter in his face; a thing to set children screaming, and yet looked at nearer, known as his fellows know him, how surprising are his attributes! —R. L. Stevenson.

The Dog's Kennel.

Damp is the greatest evil to which the dog confined outside the house in a kennel is liable. It will kill the strongest dog and must be carefully guarded against. If a dog is to keep in health, too, it is necessary that it should be able to enjoy plenty of sunlight, and the kennel should always be placed facing south, except in the hottest parts of the day in summer, when it should be moved into the shade.

Woes of Society Ladies.

There should be an eight hour day for "fashionable" women. We cannot talk scandal continuously for twelve, as we do now. The excitement and the strain upon the imagination are terrific.—Letter to London Truth.

Pretty Full.

"McLush has been arrested for drunkenness and wants you to bail him out."

"Bail him out!" ejaculated Colonel Pepper, who had heard the remark indistinctly. "Good gracious, is he that full?"—Exchange.

It Is Women Who Need Most Relief From Little Irritating Pains and Aches.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are for women.

Woman's delicate nervous organism tingles to the least jarring influence, and some ache or pain is the result.

The remedy is at hand—

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills.

They act most marvellously on woman's nervous organism, and relieve and cure the pains to which she is a martyr.

Headaches, neuralgiac pains, monthly pains, and all kinds of pains disappear, as if a gentle hand had lightly soothed them away. Dizziness, Rush of Blood to the head, Toothache, Backache are all cured by these "Little Comforters."

Cured without danger of disagreeable after-effects; cured quickly; cured without unnatural action on liver, stomach, or other internal organs.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills please the women, and the children take them because they are easy to take and soothe all their sufferings.

"For years I had spells of sick headache, at times suffering untold agonies. I could not endure any excitement. Going to church, and even visiting brought on these terrible spells. I tried many remedies without relief until I tried Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, and they cured me. When I feel symptoms of headache I take a pill and the attack. When I am tired I take a pill soothes me."—MRS. A. ATKINSON, Blairstown, Ia.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Sheriff Artis of Greenup, Ky., and Deputy Williams were shot Monday afternoon while arresting three timbermen working for the Cole-Crane company at Ironton, O. Williams will die.

One man was instantly killed and six others seriously injured by the bursting of a thirty-ton fly-wheel at the works of the Youngstown Iron and Steel Roofing Co., in Youngstown, O., Monday.

Leon Mallie, the French naval recruit, who fired two revolver shots at President Fallieries of France on the streets of Paris July 14, last, was Monday declared to be insane and was sent to an asylum.

Fred Upright of Ulster Heights, near Ellenville, Ulster county, N. Y., Sunday night shot Miss Flora Wright and then committed suicide. He was a suitor for Miss Wright's hand, but imagined he had a rival. Miss Wright will recover.

It has been announced at Grand Army headquarters in Saratoga, N. Y., that President Roosevelt would not attend the national encampment there in September. An invitation was sent to the president, who replied that he would be unable to accept it.

Several hundred of the uniformed rank, Knights of Pythias, from Ohio, West Virginia and Virginia, are holding a week's encampment at the Jamestown exposition. The western Pythians came principally from Cincinnati, Columbus and Athens, Ohio.

Sheriff Bullitt of Jefferson county, Ky., late Monday afternoon raided two pool rooms opposite the Churchill Downs race track in Louisville. The principal operators of the rooms were arrested, the blackboards stripped from the walls and the paraphernalia of the rooms confiscated.

Boy Mangled by Switch Engine.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 6.—Charles Seeley, aged eight years, son of Wm. Seeley, a laborer, was killed Monday while catching rides on a Grand Trunk switch engine. It was not known that an accident had happened until Brakeman Nelson Frank discovered the mangled remains of the little fellow some minutes after the engine had passed on.

Willing, But—

Theatrical Manager—What are you going to do with all that wall paper? Green Hand—Why, when you hired me you said you wanted me to make myself generally useful, and I heard you say yesterday that you would have to paper the house tomorrow, so I thought I would get you these samples to look at.—New York Press.

Too Personal.

"What caused you to strike the customer?"

"He sets down, an' when I asks him what it'll be," explained the new waiter, "he sez, 'You ain't got no brains, have you?' an' then I soaked him one."

A Change of Climate.

His Wife—John, dear, the doctor says I need a change of climate. Her Husband—All right. The weather prophet says it will be colder tomorrow.

One English Seal.

The parish council of Rudgwick, Sussex, England, possesses an official seal in which the occupations of all the members are indicated. Thus the vicar is represented by an open Bible, the farmer by some trees, the coal dealer by a sack, the miller by a mill, the innkeeper by a bottle and jug, the bootmaker by a boot, the auctioneer by a hammer, the doctor by a medicine bottle, the carpenter by a plane and the baker by a loaf.

The Violin.

Each instrument excels in some particular passage, the piano in scale passages, the harp in arpeggio, the mandolin in the rapid repetition of one note, the banjo in the rapid playing of broken chords, and so with other instruments; but the violin can beat them all on their own ground, while there is much violin music that can be played on no other instrument.

An Optimist.

"Blank started out to be a rose specialist, but the insects ate up his flowers so fast he had to give it up."

"Wasn't he discouraged?"

"No; he found so many interesting varieties of bugs he went in for that subject, and now he's just as enthusiastic over bugs as he was ever flowers!"—Detroit Free Press.

Nothing Doing.

"Miss May," began Mr. Hoamley, "would you—er—be mad if I were to kiss you?"

"Not necessarily," replied the bright girl, "but I would certainly be mad to let you."—Philadelphia Press.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. E. B. Bell, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says:—"I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

Kodol Digests What You Eat.

NATIVES ARE EXCITED.

France Has Stirred Up Hornet's Nest in Morocco.

EUROPEANS ARE IN DANGER.

Attack on Casablanca Resulted Disastrously—Natives Indulged in Looting and Murder — Tribesmen Fighting Outside Tangier.

Tangier, Aug. 9.—The horrors of the looting of Casablanca by native tribesmen are becoming known today, and their recital is inflaming the minds of the natives against all Europeans. The situation in various coast towns is worse. The natives are excited. A holy war is being preached at Rabat. Anti-foreign sentiment is growing as a result of the activities of fanatical agitators. There is fear of a general outbreak. A number of European families are preparing to flee from Tangier.

The Angera tribesmen in the immediate vicinity of Tangier are restless and may get out of hand. The Moorish authorities have practically no control of the situation.

There are many complaints among the Europeans that France acted ill-advisedly at Casablanca in bombarding the town before protection could be arranged for the Jews and Europeans there and elsewhere on the coast and in the interior.

Murder and Horror.

The news from Casablanca, while conflicting as to the situation there, unites in showing that the bombardment was continued for longer than was first supposed, and that the lack of an adequate French force to afford protection resulted in an opportunity for barbarous looting and pillage, with all the accompaniment of murder and horror. The first French landing parties could not control the situation. Moorish authority vanished with the first French gunshot and lawlessness reigned. It is now reported, however, that between two and three thousand French and Spanish marines and blue jackets are ashore at Casablanca and that order has been restored. The Europeans there are all safe. The loss of life among the Moors resulting from the bombardment appears to be much greater than was first indicated.

France and Spain, the two powers responsible for the maintenance of order, are sending in reinforcements; cruisers and transports are proceeding with all speed for Casablanca and other coast points. France, in order to restore security and order, may be forced to occupy a number of Moorish ports, and perhaps may even send a punitive expedition to Fez.

Another Port Bombarded.

There has been a native outbreak against the Kaid at Mazagan. This port has been bombarded by the French cruiser Du Chayla. A large portion of the town was destroyed. The consulates were not damaged. Many Jews are said to have been killed at Mazagan. The sultan of Morocco, it is reported, has not yet been informed of the gravity of the situation.

No further details have been received here as yet of the bombardment of Mazagan.

It is reported from Mogador that Maclanin, the fanatical priest, is marching on Mogador at the head of 800 excited followers.

Great anxiety prevails here regarding the situations in the various coast towns. The native troops are considered as unreliable, and if a general outbreak occurs the results are likely to be serious.

Moors Hate Christians.

It is rumored that the Angera tribesmen were close to Tangier and firing is audible. This has increased the general alarm. Thursday a Moor attempted to murder a christian woman. He was prevented only by the intervention of other Moors. This is an isolated case, but it shows the spirit of the natives toward the foreigners.

It appears that the bombardment of Casablanca was continued day and night throughout Monday and Tuesday and until 3 o'clock Wednesday morning. At this hour the French flagship gave the signal to cease firing and prepare to send in landing parties. A further force of 2,000 Frenchmen and a few Spaniards was sent ashore.

Indian's Body Found in Lake.

Ludington, Mich., Aug. 9.—The badly decomposed body of an Indian was found in Hamlin lake, about five miles from Ludington, Thursday morning. No one of the various Indian tribes about this locality is reported as missing. From the state of the body it is believed the man has been dead a week. He is thought to have drowned as a result of a spree.

STRIKE IN SYMPATHY.

Telegraphers Quit Western Union Offices in Chicago.

AID LOS ANGELES BROTHERS.

Refuse to Work With Non-Union Men at Other End of Wires—Local Union Acted Without Orders From National.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—The telegraph operators employed by the Western Union Telegraph Co., in Chicago went on strike last night at 12 o'clock. The trouble was precipitated by the Los Angeles strike, inaugurated two days ago.

Last night the local executive board of the Commercial Telegrapher Union of America met and passed resolutions requesting the men to refuse to work with the non-union operators in Los Angeles. All operators employed in the Overland division of the local office followed this request, and Assistant Night Chief Harry Price ordered all who refused to work to leave the office. He then went into other divisions and requested the men to go into the Overland division. In every case he was met with a refusal until over seventy men had been sent home.

All Leave Their Keys.

The grievance committee of the union notified Mr. Price that unless every man was reinstated by midnight every union man in the office would be called out. This demand was refused, and promptly at midnight a whistle was blown and every operator employed in the main office, with the ception of six wire and loop chiefs, including Night Manager Price and his two assistants, left their keys, and with a round of cheers, filed out of the office. The men employed by the company at various morning newspapers had been notified of the contemplated strike, and they also quit work.

The national officials of the union spent all day Thursday in an effort to prevent the "rank and file" of the organization from calling a premature strike. The men for weeks have maintained a sullen attitude toward the company. The Chicago force was dissatisfied with the settlement of the strike in San Francisco. Ever since then they have been visiting the office of National Secretary Russell seeking information. Yesterday his office was crowded with operators looking for news regarding peace negotiations in the west, but they were given little satisfaction.

"I am waiting to hear from President Small. Until I hear further, I can say nothing," he said.

Such replies, together with the fact that the men believe, according to their own statements, that President Small submitted to defeat at San Francisco, prompted the executive board of the local union to take action last night.

It was under these conditions that the strike was called without awaiting sanction from the national officials.

After the men had quit work Secretary Russell refused to talk about the controversy except to say that the men had taken matters in their own hands and undoubedly felt that they were capable of handling their own affairs.

Tired of Conditions.

Secretary Ulerich, of the local union, said:

"The men were utterly tired of the conditions under which they were working and could not stand it any longer. When the additional insult of asking them to work with non-union men in Los Angeles was put upon them, they refused to stand it and quit work. We could get no information of the situation on the Pacific coast from out national officials so we decided that it was up to us to take care of ourselves."

When General Superintendent Cook, of the Western Union, was informed of the strike, he declared that he was unable to say anything that would be of interest, and that he could not outline the action the company would take.

JURY IS SECURED.

Trial of William Schimmel Begins at Grand Haven.

ONE ATTORNEY QUITS CASE.

Lawyers Who Were Defending Prisoner Could Not Agree—One of Jurors Was Member of Would-Be Lynching Party in Early Eighties.

Grand Haven, Mich., Aug. 9.—A jury was secured Thursday afternoon to try William Schimmel, charged with the murder of Martin Golden, the Dennison postmaster and storekeeper, a year and a half ago. In summing up what they expect to prove Prosecuting Attorney Coburn stated that the people have a strong case against the respondent, and that while it was all circumstantial, every link in the evidence points to his guilt.

Surprise was created when it was announced that Charles G. Turner of Grand Rapids, principal counsel for Schimmel, has withdrawn from the case. Attorney L. L. Park of Grand Rapids will continue the case alone for Schimmel. Turner and Park have not agreed as to the proper conduct of the case. Thursday noon their troubles came to a climax when Turner dropped out.

Only three witnesses testified Thursday. They were men who had seen Schimmel in Nuncia saloons within three miles of Dennison on the day of the murder.

One of the jurors was a member of the would-be lynching party, which came to Grand Haven from up country in the early eighties to lynch Boscamp, who had killed a prominent Lamont farmer named Cady. The attempt on the murderer's life was frustrated by the Grand Haven company of state troops after the mob had broken down the doors of the jail.

Returns to Find Wife Married.

Traverse City, Mich., Aug. 9.—Returning after 14 years with his pockets bulging with wealth won in Canada, Jacob Upthegrove has found that his wife has married another man and that his children have long since believed him dead. Upthegrove left here, saying that he was after work. His wife heard nothing from him and thinking him dead married a man by the name of Westgate. When Upthegrove returned he was unable to locate his wife. He finally found his oldest boy and learned the story. He will make no trouble for the couple, but will seek a divorce. In the meantime he is visiting his children, who have practically forgotten him.

Cat Scratches and Poisons Her.

Vassar, Mich., Aug. 9.—Mrs. Frank Loranger, wife of a farmer residing north of Vassar, went to the chicken coop and caught a large cat that for some time had been killing her chickens. Grasping the cat she proceeded to throw him out, and in so doing was several times scratched by the cat. Her hands commenced swelling, and it was found necessary to call a doctor. Now blood poisoning has set in, and she is in a critical condition.

Saginaw Will Have "Music."

Saginaw, Mich., Aug. 9.—"Oh, listen to the band." There will be $2,000 worth of music on the desert air during the semi-centennial celebration here—at least the sounds they make will cost $ $2,000, whether the noises are musical or not. The music committee, making its report, says that the nine bands to be hired are among the best in the state.

Child Sues for Loss of Hand.

Bay City, Mich., Aug. 9.—Julius Rutvan, as next friend of his two-year-old daughter, Helen, has commenced suit against the Bay City Traction & Electric Co. for $20,000 damages. The suit is based on the fact that the little girl, on June 10, was knocked down by a street car and one of the wheels passed over her right hand, mangling it so that it had to be amputated at the wrist.

Once Well Off—Found Dead.

Ludington, Mich., Aug. 9.—Joe Ormsby, aged about 50 years, was found dead in the back room of a saloon here Thursday morning. Little is known of the man here, though it is said that he was at one time a resident of Detroit and well-to-do, and that he leaves a mother in that city.

Little Girl Fatally Burned.

Bay City, Mich., Aug. 9.—While playing about a bonfire Thursday afternoon, little Ida Sanback, aged four years, daughter of Louis Sanback, caught her dress afire and was so terribly burned that physicians say she will die.

FAILS AS PEACEMAKER.

Government Officials Unable to End Strike on Colorado and Southern Railroad.

Washington, Aug. 9.—The national government has failed as peacemaker in the strike of the switchmen on the Colorado and Southern railroad, and Labor Commissioner Charles P. Neill last night announced that all hope has been abandoned of bringing about a satisfactory adjustment of the differences between the railroad company and its striking employes. Mr. Neill, with Chairman Knapp, of the interstate commerce commission, undertook to act as mediator at the request of Vice-President Parker, of the Colorado and Southern, who claimed that in calling the strike, P. H. Morrissey, grand master of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, was violating the arbitration agreement signed at Chicago last year.

"It has been impossible to find any common ground upon which the contending parties can agree," said Mr. Neill, "and I do not see that there is anything further that the government can do."

The negotiations, he said, insofar as the government is concerned, are at an end.

The carrying out of Grand Master Morrissey's strike order, it is said, will mean a general tie-up of the freight traffic and the crippling of the passenger service from Greely, Colo., to Texline, Texas.

Denver, Aug. 9.—Vice-President A. D. Parker, of the Colorado and Southern railway, says the company hired twenty-five more men Thursday and that he will soon have the road in normal condition. Grand Master P. H. Morrissey, of the Railway Trainmen, says that the situation is unchanged. He maintains that the strikers are converting many of the strikebreakers and that most of the imported men leave the service of the company as soon as they learn of the strike. This the company denies.

Today showed a serious shortage of coal in Denver. The coal mines at Lafayette district are about to close down and twelve metalliferous mines in Gilpin stopped work.

THEIR LICENSE RESTORED.

Southern Railroad Reaches Agreement With State of Alabama.

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 9.—Gov. Comer and the officials of the Southern railroad reached an agreement late Thursday afternoon, and the license of the railroad in Alabama will be restored.

Beginning Sept. 1, the railroad and its allied lines will put into effect the two and a half cent passenger rate and the measure of reducing freight rates on 110 commodities.

The agreement was not reached without concessions being made by both sides; but in the main, it is a victory for the state. The laws in question will not be put into effect permanently.

The agreement declares that their operation is subject to judicial determination as to their constitutionality and reasonableness. Meanwhile, the other laws enacted by the legislature last winter affecting railroads, will remain under the injunction granted by Judge Thomas G. Jones of the federal courts. The railroad's representatives agreed that they would ask Judge Jones to modify the restraining orders issued two months ago, so as to permit of the immediate operation of the two acts in question.

The compromise affects only the Southern railroad. The other systems of the state were not parties to the conference.

FOUR TRAINMEN DEAD.

Head-On Collision Occurs on Georgia Railroad.

Dalton, Ga., Aug. 9.—Four trainmen were killed and three seriously injured in a head-on collision between freight trains on the Western and Atlantic railroad, one mile north of here Thursday afternoon. The dead:

J. H. Heggie, engineer, Dalton, Ga.; John Roach, fireman, Dalton, Ga.; C. F. Colbert, brakeman; Tom Bartenfield, brakeman, Dalton, Ga.

Fireman Suddeth, who escaped by jumping, said that the collision was caused by the failure of his train crew to read their orders.

Hay Crop Yielded $34,000,000.

Saginaw, Mich., Aug. 9.—Hay shippers of Michigan and buyers from various parts of the country are in convention here. The president's address showed that the total value of the crop of the state during the past year was $34,000,000.

Men past sixty in danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate gland. This is both painful and dangerous and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo. writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate glands and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am 91 years old." Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

A man doesn't have to wear good clothes if he can afford not to.

"We never repent of eating too little" was one of the ten rules of life of Thos Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule applies to every one without exception during this hot weather, because it is hard for food, even in small quantities to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach as much as possible by the use of a little Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Martin Hewitt, Investigator.

The Loss of Sammy Crockett.

By ARTHUR MORRISON.

Published by Arrangement With Harper & Brothers.

It was, of course, always a part of Martin Hewitt's business to be thoroughly at home among any and every class of people and to be able to interest himself intelligently, or to appear to do so, in their various pursuits. In one of the most important cases ever placed in his hands he could have gone out a short way toward success had he not displayed some knowledge of the more sordid aspects of professional sport.

The great case itself had nothing to do with sport and, indeed, from a narrative point of view was somewhat uninteresting, but the man who alone held the one piece of information we wanted was a keeper, backer or "gaffer" of professional pedestrians, and it was through the medium of his pecuniary interest in such matters that Hewitt was enabled to strike a bargain with him.

The man was a publican on the outskirts of Padfield, a northern town pretty famous for its sporting tastes, and to Padfield therefore Hewitt betook himself, and, arrayed in a way to indicate some inclination of his own toward sport, he began to frequent the bar of the Hare and Hounds. Kentish, the landlord, was a stout, bull necked man of no great communicativeness at first, but after a little acquaintance he opened out wonderfully, became quite a jolly (and rather intelligent) companion and came out with innumerable anecdotes of his sporting adventures. Good terms with Mr. Kentish was Hewitt's great desire, for the information he wanted was of a sort that could never be extracted by casual questioning, but must be a matter of open communication by the publican.

"Look here," said Kentish one day, "I'll put you on to a good thing, my boy—a real good thing. Of course you know all about the Padfield 135 yards handicap being run off now."

"Well, I haven't looked into it much," Hewitt replied. "Ran the first round of heats last Saturday and Monday, didn't they?"

"They did. Well"—Kentish spoke in a stage whisper as he leaned over and rapped the table—"I've got the final winner in this house." He nodded his head, took a puff at his cigar and added in his ordinary voice, "Don't say nothing."

"No, of course not. Got something on, of course."

"Rather! What do you think? Got any price I liked. Been saving him up for this. Why, he could win runnin' back'ards. He won his heat on Monday like—like—like that!" The gaffer snapped his fingers in default of a better illustration and went on; "You take my tip—back him for his heat next Saturday in the second round and for the final. You'll get a good price for the final if you pop it down at once. But don't go makin' a song of it, will you, now?"

"Thanks very much. It's awfully good of you. I'll do what you advise. But isn't there a dark horse anywhere else?"

"Not dark to me, my boy; not dark to me. I know every man runnin' like a book. 'Old Taylor—him over at the Cop—he's got a very good lad, and he's a tryer this time, I know, but, bless you, my lad could beat him without trying. You back him."

"I shall if you're as sure as that. But who is he?"

"Oh, Crockett's his name—Sammy Crockett. He's quite a new lad. I've got young Steggles looking after him. Sticks to him like wax. Takes his little breathers in my bit o' ground at the back here. I've got a cinder sprint path there over behind the trees. I don't let him out o' sight much, I can tell you. He's a straight lad, and he knows it 'll be worth his while to stick to me, but there's some 'ud poison him if they thought he'd spoil their books."

Soon afterward the two strolled toward the taproom. "I expect Sammy 'll be there," the landlord said, "with Steggles. I don't hide him too much—they'd think I'd got something extra on if I did."

In the taproom sat a lean, wire drawn looking youth with sloping shoulders and a thin face, and by his side was a rather short, thick set man who had an odd air, no matter what he did, of proprietorship and surveillance of the lean youth. Several other men sat about, and there was loud laughter, under which the lean youth looked sheepishly angry.

"'Tarn't no good, Sammy, lad," some one was saying, "you a-makin' after Nancy Webb. She'll ha' nowt to do with 'ee."

"What about Nancy Webb?" asked Kentish, pushing open the door. "Sammy's all right, anyway. You keep fit, my lad, an' go on improving, and some day you'll have as good a house as me. Never mind the lasses. Come out now." He nodded to Steggles, who rose and marched Sammy Crockett away for exercise.

On the following afternoon (it was Thursday) as Hewitt and Kentish chatted in the landlord's own snuggery Steggles burst into the room in a great state of agitation and spluttered out, "He—he's bolted; gone away!"

"What?"

"Sammy—gone! Hooked it! I can't find him."

The landlord stared blankly at the trainer, who stood with a sweater dangling from his hand and stared blankly back. "What d'ye mean?" Kentish said at last. "Don't be a fool! He's in the place somewhere. Find him!"

But this Steggles defied anybody to do. He had looked already. He had left Crockett at the cinder path behind the trees in his running gear, with the addition of the long overcoat and cap he used in going between the path and the house to guard against chill. "'Raggy,' ses he, 'it's blawin' a bit chilly. I think I'll ha' a sweater. There's one on my box, ain't there?' So in I coomes for the sweater, and it weren't on his box, and when I found it and got back he weren't there. They'd see nowt o' him in t' house, and he weren't nowhere."

Hewitt and the landlord, now thoroughly startled, searched everywhere, but to no purpose. "What should he go off the place for?" asked Kentish, in a sweat of apprehension. "'Tain't chilly a bit. It's warm. He didn't want no sweater; never wore one before. It was a piece of kid to be able to clear out. Nice thing, this is. I stand to win two years' takings over him. Here, you'll have to find him."

"Ah, but how?" exclaimed the disconcerted trainer, dancing about disjointedly. "I've got all I could scrape on him myself. Where can I look?"

Here was Hewitt's opportunity. He took Kentish aside and whispered. What he said startled the landlord considerably. "Yes, I'll tell you all about that," he said, "if that's all you want. It's no good or harm to me whether I tell or no. But can you find him?"

"That I can't promise, of course. But you know who I am now and what I'm here for. If you like to give me the information I want, I'll go into the case for you, and of course I shan't charge any fee. I may have luck, you know, but I can't promise, of course."

The landlord looked in Hewitt's face for a moment. Then he said: "Done! It's a deal."

"Very good," Hewitt replied. "Get together the one or two papers you have, and we'll go into my business in the evening. As to Crockett, don't say a word to anybody. I'm afraid it must get out, since they all know about it in the house, but there's no use in making any unnecessary noise. Don't make hedging bets or do anything that will attract notice. Now, we'll go over to the back and look at this cinder path of yours."

Here Steggles, who was still standing near, was struck with an idea. "How about old Taylor, at the Cop, guv'nor, eh?" he said meaningly. "His lad's good enough to win with Sammy out, and Taylor is backing him plenty. Think he knows anything o' this?"

"That's likely," Hewitt observed before Kentish could reply. "Yes. Look here. Suppose Steggles goes and keeps his eye on the Cop for an hour or two in case there's anything to be heard of. Don't show yourself, of course."

Kentish agreed, and the trainer went. When Hewitt and Kentish arrived at the path behind the trees, Hewitt at once began examining the ground. One or two rather large holes in the cinders were made, as the publican explained, by Crockett, in practicing getting off his mark. Behind these were several fresh tracks of spiked shoes. The tracks led up to within a couple of yards of the high fence bounding the ground, and there stopped abruptly and entirely. In the fence, a little to the right of where the tracks stopped, there was a stout door. This Hewitt tried and found ajar.

"That's always kept bolted," Kentish said. "He's gone out that way—he couldn't have gone any other without comin' through the house."

"But he isn't in the habit of making a step three yards long, is he?" Hewitt asked, pointing at the last footmark and then at the door, which was quite that distance away from it. "Besides," he added, opening the door, "there's no footprint here nor outside."

The door opened on a lane, with another fence and a thick plantation of trees at the other side. Kentish looked at the footmarks, then at the door, then down the lane, and finally back toward the house. "That's a licker!" he said.

"This is a quiet sort of lane," was Hewitt's next remark. "No houses in sight. Where does it lead?"

"That way it goes to the Old Kilns—disused. This way down to a turning off the Padfield and Catton road."

Hewitt returned to the cinder path again and once more examined the footmarks. He traced them back over the grass toward the house. "Certainly," he said, "he hasn't gone back to the house. Here is the double line of tracks, side by side, from the house—Steggles' ordinary boots with iron tips, and Crockett's running pumps. Thus they came out. Here is Steggles' track in the opposite direction alone, made when he went back for the sweater. Crockett remained. You see various prints in those loose cinders at the end of the path where he moved this way and that, and then two or three paces toward the fence—not directly toward the door, you notice—and there they stop dead, and there are no more, either back or forward."

"However," Hewitt resumed, "I think I'll take a little walk now and think over it. You go into the house and show yourself at the bar. If anybody wants to know how Crockett is, he's pretty well, thank you. By the bye, can I get to the Cop—this place of Taylor's—by this back lane?"

"Yes, down to the end leading to the Catton road, turn to the left and then first on the right. Any one 'll show you the Cop," and Kentish shut the door behind the detective, who straightway walked—toward the Old Kilns.

In little more than an hour he was back. It was now becoming dusk, and the landlord looked out papers from a box near the side window of the snuggery for the sake of the extra light. "I've got these papers together for you," he said, as Hewitt entered. "Any news?"

"Nothing very great. Here's a bit of handwriting I want you to recognize, if you can. Get a light."

Kentish lit a lamp, and Hewitt laid upon the table half a dozen small pieces of torn paper, evidently fragments of a letter which had been torn up.

The landlord turned the scraps over, regarding them dubiously. "These aren't much to recognize anyhow. I don't know the writing. Where did you find 'em?"

"They were lying in the lane at the back, a little way down. Plainly they are the pieces of a note addressed to some one called Sammy or something very like it. See the first piece, with its 'mmy?' That is clearly from the beginning of the note, because there is no line between it and the smooth, straight edge of the paper above; also, nothing follows on the same line. Some one writes to Crockett—presuming it to be a letter addressed to him, as I do for other reasons—as Sammy. It is a pity that there is no more of the letter to be found than these pieces. I expect the person who tore it up put the rest in his pocket and dropped these by accident."

Kentish, who had been picking up and examining each piece in turn, now dolorously broke out:

"Oh, it's plain he's sold us—bolted and done us. Me as took him out o' the gutter too! Look here—'throw them over.' That's plain enough. Can't mean anything else. Means throw me over and my friends—me after what I've done for him! Then 'right away'—go right away, I s'pose, as he has done. Then"—he was fiddling with the scraps and finally fitted two together—"why, look here! This one with 'lane' on it fits over the one about throwing over, and it says 'poor f' where it's torn. That means 'poor fool,' I s'pose—me—or 'fathead' or something like that. That's nice! Why, I'd twist his neck if I could get hold of him, and I will!"

Hewitt smiled. "Perhaps it's not quite so uncomplimentary, after all," he said. "If you can't recognize the writing, never mind. But if he's gone away to sell you it isn't much use finding him, is it? He won't win if he doesn't want to."

"Why, he wouldn't dare to rope under my very eyes. I'd—I'd"—

"Well, well, perhaps we'll get him to run, after all, and as well as he can. One thing is certain—he left this place of his own will. Further, I think he is in Padfield now. He went toward the town, I believe. And I don't think he means to sell you."

"Well, he shouldn't. I've made it worth his while to stick to me. I've put a fifty on for him out of my own pocket and told him so, and if he won that would bring him a lump more than he'd probably get by going crooked, besides the prize money and anything I might give him over. But it seems to me he's putting me in the cart altogether."

"That we shall see. Meantime don't mention anything I've told you to any one, not even Steggles. By the bye, Steggles is indoors, isn't he? Very well, keep him in. Don't let him be seen hunting about this evening. I'll stay here tonight, and we'll proceed with Crockett's business in the morning. And now we'll settle my business, please."

In the morning Hewitt took his breakfast in the snuggery, carefully listening to any conversation that might take place at the bar. Soon after 9 o'clock a fast dogcart stopped outside, and a red faced, loud voiced man swaggered in, greeting Kentish with boisterous cordiality. He had a drink with the landlord and said: "How's things? Fancy any of 'em for the sprint handicap? Got a lad o' your own in, haven't you?"

"Oh, yes," Kentish replied; "Crockett. Only a young un not got to his proper mark yet, I reckon. I think old Taylor's got No. 1 this time."

"Capital lad," the other replied, with a confidential nod. "Shouldn't wonder at all. Want to do anything yourself over it?"

"No, I don't think so. I'm not on at present. Might have a little flutter on the grounds just for fun; nothing else."

There were a few more casual remarks, and then the red faced man drove away.

"Who was that?" asked Hewitt, who had watched the visitor through the snuggery window.

"That's—Danby, bookmaker. Cute chap. He's been told Crockett's missing, I'll bet anything, and come here to pump me. No good, though. As a matter of fact, I've worked Sammy Crockett into his books for about half I'm in for altogether—through third parties, of course."

Hewitt reached for his hat. "I'm going out for half an hour now," he said. "If Steggles wants to go out before I come back, don't let him. Let him go and smooth over all those tracks on the cinder path very carefully. And, by the bye, could you manage to have your son about the place today in case I happen to want a little help out of doors?"

"Certainly; I'll get him to stay in. But what do you want the cinders smoothed for?"

Hewitt smiled and patted his host's shoulder. "I'll explain all my little tricks when the job's done," he said, and went out.

On the lane from Padfield to Sedby village stood the Plough beer house, wherein J. Webb was licensed to sell by retail beer to be consumed on the premises or off, as the thirsty list. Nancy Webb, with a very fine color, a very curly fringe and a wide smiling mouth revealing a fine set of teeth came to the bar at the summons of a stoutish old gentleman in spectacles who walked with a stick.

The stoutish old gentleman had a glass of bitter beer and then said in the peculiarly quiet voice of a very deaf man, "Can you tell me, if you please, the way into the main Catton road?"

"Down the lane, turn to the right at the crossroads, then first to the left."

The old gentleman waited with his hand to his ear for some few seconds after she had finished speaking and then resumed in his whispering voice, "I'm afraid I'm very deaf this morning." He fumbled in his pocket and produced a notebook and pencil. "May I trouble you to write it down? I'm so very deaf at times that I— Thank you."

The girl wrote the direction, and the old gentleman bade her good morning and left. All down the lane he walked slowly with his stick. At the crossroads he turned, put the stick under his arm, thrust the spectacles into his pocket and strode away in the ordinary guise of Martin Hewitt. He pulled out his notebook, examined Miss Webb's direction very carefully and then went off another way altogether toward the Hare and Hounds.

Kentish lounged moodily in his bar. "Well, my boy," said Hewitt, "has Steggles wiped out the tracks?"

"Not yet. I haven't told him. But he's somewhere about. I'll tell him now."

"No, don't. I don't think we'll have that done after all. I expect he'll want to go out soon; at any rate, some time during the day. Let him go whenever he likes. I'll sit upstairs a bit in the clubroom."

"Very well. But how do you know Steggles will be going out?"

"Well, he's pretty restless after his lost protege, isn't he? I don't suppose he'll be able to remain idle long."

"And about Crockett. Do you give him up?"

"Oh, no! Don't you be impatient. I can't say I'm quite confident yet of laying hold of him—the time is so short, you see—but I think I shall at least have news for you by the evening."

Hewitt sat in the clubroom until the afternoon, taking his lunch there. At length he saw, through the front window, Raggy Steggles walking down the road. In an instant Hewitt was downstairs and at the door.

All the way to Padfield town and more than half through it Hewitt dogged the trainer. In the end Steggles stopped at a corner and gave a note to a small boy who was playing near. The boy ran with the note to a bright, well kept house at the opposite corner. Martin Hewitt was interested to observe the legend, "H. Danby, Contractor," on a board over a gate in the side wall of the garden behind this house. In five minutes a door in the side gate opened, and the head and shoulders of the red faced man emerged. Steggles immediately hurried across and disappeared through the gate.

This was both interesting and instructive. Hewitt took up a position in the side street and waited. In ten minutes the trainer reappeared and hurried off the way he had come, along the street Hewitt had considerately left clear for him. Then Hewitt strolled toward the smart house and took a good look at it. At one corner of the small piece of forecourt garden, near the railings, a small, balze covered, glass fronted notice board stood on two posts. On its top edge appeared the words "H. Danby. Houses to be Sold or Let." But the only notice pinned to the green baize within was an old and dusty one, inviting tenants for three shops.

Hewitt pushed open the front gate and rang the doorbell. "There are some shops to let, I see," he said when a maid appeared. "I should like to see them, if you will let me have the keys."

"Master's out, sir. You can't see the shops till Monday."

"Dear me, that's unfortunate! I'm afraid I can't wait till Monday. Didn't Mr. Danby leave any instructions?"

"Yes, sir—as I've told you. He said anybody who called about 'em must come again on Monday."

"Oh, very well, then. I suppose I must try. One of the shops is in High street, isn't it?"

"Ah, I'm afraid that will scarcely do. But I'll see. Good day."

Martin Hewitt walked away a couple of streets' lengths before he inquired the way to Granville road. When at last he found that thoroughfare, in a new and muddy suburb, crowded with brick heaps, and half finished streets, he took a slow walk along its entire length. It was a melancholy example of baffled enterprise. A row of a dozen or more shops had been built before any population had arrived to demand goods. Would be tradesmen had taken many of these shops, and failure and disappointment stared from the windows.

There was little difficulty in identifying the three shops offered for letting by Mr. H. Danby. They were all together near the middle of the row and were the only ones that appeared not yet to have been occupied. A dusty "To Let" bill hung in each window with written directions to inquire of Mr. H. Danby or at No. 7. Now, No. 7 was a melancholy baker's shop, with a stock of three loaves and a plate of stale buns. The disappointed baker assured Hewitt that he usually kept the keys of the shops, but that the landlord, Mr. Danby, had taken them away the day before to see how the ceilings were standing and had not returned them.

To the Hare and Hounds Hewitt's pace was brisk. "Come," he said as he met Kentish's inquiring glance, "this has been a very good day, on the whole. I know where our man is now and I think we can get him by a little management."

"Where is he?"

"Oh, down in Padfield. As a matter of fact, he's being kept there against his will we shall find. I see that your friend Mr. Danby is a builder as well as a bookmaker."

Proposed Sewer System.

In submitting the proposed sewer system to the citizens of Tecumseh, we, the undersigned members of the council, desire to make the following statement:

This is an important matter, one that directly effects the interests and welfare of our citizens and the progress and development of our village. We are unanimous in our conclusions and opinions and in submitting this question to the people we desire to be perfectly fair, to explain every detail of this work, to have no misunderstanding, to answer all questions plainly, and to place before the public all plans and specifications and all the information in our possession. In return, we only ask for the same fair and reasonable treatment and just consideration of this question from our citizens.

We believe that now is the proper time to build this sewerage system if it is ever to be built, so that the present as well as future generations may receive its benefits. As members of your council we have given this matter much time, thought and study, and it has been our desire to propose a sewer system that will be complete in its benefits, effective and lasting in its operation, and at a reasonable cost to the people.

The system proposed is for a complete sanitary sewer system, entirely separate from storm water sewerage. We are strongly in favor of the separate system as advocated by all eminent engineers in this country and as adopted by nearly every city and village now constructing sewers. The plans we propose—which are now open for public inspection—will extend this sewer to every house in the village of Tecumseh, including Brown ville, thus giving every citizen an equal advantage and equal benefit. It is also guaranteed to be entirely adequate in size of pipe and efficient operation to serve a population of 12,000 people. The best grade and quality of material will be used throughout the entire construction, which will cover about nine miles in length. The total cost of this entire system is about $35,000. This includes an additional 10 per cent for contingencies and is based upon a high estimate on present prices of both material and labor, as compared with similar contracts recently let in other cities of Michigan and Ohio. We believe this cost should be spread as a general tax upon all the taxable property of the village, according to the property valuations, that the cost may be equal in proportion to the benefits derived. It has been our endeavor to prepare a plan whereby the cost of this entire system could be distributed over a term of years and in such manner that it would not be a hardship upon any taxpayer or any citizen. To this end, we would issue bonds for the required amount covering a period of 40 years at 5 per cent interest, and pay only the interest for the first 10 years. During this period at these estimates and based on the actual assessed valuation of the village at the present time it will cost $1.20 per $1,000 assessment, computed as follows:

1,000	"	$ 1 20 " "
5,000	"	6.00 " "
10,000	"	12.00 " "

During the next 20 years period $1,000 to be paid annually with the interest; during the last 10 years $2,000 annually with the interest. During this time, with the interest constantly decreasing in proportion to the payment of the principal, it will not entail a hardship upon any taxpayer at that time. It is our judgment that the payment of these bonds should be extended over so long a term of years as is proposed in order that the present generation shall only pay a just proportion of the amount and still receive the benefit of the sewers, and that the burden should be no heavier on the future generation, who would also receive an equal or greater benefit from them.

The estimated time required for the construction of this system is about seven months. If adopted by the people, work will be commenced at an early date by September 15 if possible.

In this matter it has been our earnest desire to work for the best interests of Tecumseh and to promote the welfare of all our citizens. We are unanimous in our desire for this sewer, in our desire to build up Tecumseh, and to put our fair village in the same class with scores of others (many of them smaller in size) who have made and are still making up-to-date improvements with modern sewer systems and first class pavements. We need this sewer system for the preservation of public health and to maintain a pure water supply; we need it also for the convenience and comfort of our citizens, and as an inducement to attract outside investors of capital to locate a factory or a home for their families. We need it to purify our alleys, to dispense with unsightly and unhealthy cesspools and vaults, and to make Tecumseh a clean, healthy, attractive and up-to-date village. We hope for an impartial and reasonable discussion of this question and that this proposition may be considered worthy of the support of every loyal, wide awake and public spirited citizen of Tecumseh.

BASE BALL.

The first of the series of games with Bay City was won Tuesday by Tecumseh, score 5 and 1. Doty and Parent were the opposing box men engaging in a pitcher's battle until the eighth inning, when four hits, a pass and a fly to left field scored 3 runs. They also scored 1 in the second and 1 in the 4th. Barney of Bay City, featured with a home run in the fourth.

Tecumseh easily won from Bay City yesterday on home grounds, Pinnance allowing ten hits which scored 8 runs for the Indians in the first three innings. He was replaced by McNutt in the 4th, who held them down to two hits. Bay City's only score came in the the 8th. Merkle featured in the game by a drive directly over the center field which was the longest ever made on local grounds. During the 7th inning Catcher Mitchell had his hand badly split by catching a foul ball which will disable him for some time. Martin of Grand Rapids, has been secured for a few days to fill his place.

Special Primary Election Notice.

To the qualified electors of the township of Tecumseh, county of Lenawee, Michigan, notice is hereby given that a special primary election will be held at township hall within said township on Tuesday, August 13, 1907, for the purpose of voting for the nomination of candidates for delegates to meet in convention for the purpose of making a general revision of the constitution of the state of Michigan, in accordance with the provisions of Act No. 272, Public Acts of 1907. Section 2 of said act provides that nominations for said delegates from the Senatorial District of which said township forms a part shall be made by direct vote by all political parties, as follows:

Section 2. Candidates of all parties for delegates to said convention in every senatorial district in this state, shall be nominated on the second Tuesday in August, nineteen hundred seven. In every senatorial district where in nineteen hundred six, in the nomination of a senator, at least one political party adopted and operated under the direct nominating system provided for in act number one hundred eighty-one of the Public Acts of nineteen hundred five, or under any local primary law, the candidates of all political parties for delegates to the constitutional convention shall be nominated in the same way: Provided, That the provisions of chapter two of act one hundred eighty-one of the Public Acts of nineteen hundred five, relating to party enrollment, shall not apply to nor be in force at such primary election, but every qualified elector shall have the right to receive from the inspectors, and vote, the party ticket he prefers without regard to any party enrollment, the general registration books of each election district being used at such primary election in place of the enrollment books.

The polls of said election will open at 7 o'clock in the forenoon and will remain open until 4 o'clock p

Coffee Value

If you are paying 25c a pound for coffee, you ought to be enioying good cup quality. The price you pay does not fix the quality you receive; different sellers give different qualities for the money.

LOWRY'S BLEND at 25c the pound, is a little bit better for the money. Years of experimenting has fixed our standard high and this coffee is now no experiment. Its increasing sale together with its ever repeating orders from old time users, is mighty convincing proof that it contains everything in the quality line that is claimed for it.

You are the judge. We ask your consideration of the evidence contained in a cup of this delicious coffee.

Don't "get along" with a coffee that doesn't suit your taste, because you think it is as good as you ought to expect for the money. Make your next order for LOWRY'S 25c BLEND.

FOR OUR READERS.

If there is any doubt in your mind as to the power of Hy-o-mei, the medicated air treatment, to cure all catarrhal troubles, the remarkable offer made by Wright & Son should expel that doubt. They give their personal guarantee with every dollar outfit of Hy-o-mei they sell to refund the money unless it gives satisfaction. They take all the risk of cure and no reader of the HERALD can afford to suffer longer with catarrh when an offer like this is made.

With every Hy-o-mei outfit is a neat pocket inhaler and Hy-o-mei breathed through it reaches the most remote air cells of the nose, throat and lungs, destroying all catarrhal germs and soothing the irritated mucous membrane.

Hy-o-mei really gives you a health-giving climate in your home so that when you breathe its medicated air your nose, throat and lungs will be filled with air like that on the mountains high above the sea level where grow balsamic trees and plants which purify the air with their volatile antiseptic fragrance so healing to the respiratory organs.

You will notice relief and benefit from the first use of Hy-o-mei and it will not take many days' treatment to convince you that in this remedy you have found a complete and lasting cure for all catarrhal troubles.

Other people's children are perpetual nuisance, our own only occasional.

ALL TECUMSEH

Saddened by the Death of

MARGARET FREEMAN

On Tuesday.

It has been said that the people of Tecumseh are very clannish and again they are likened sometimes to one large family. Anyway Tecumseh people are very much attached to and love each other and when trouble comes to one family all are affected, but our people were never more sad than when Tuesday afternoon they heard of the untimely death of bright, loving little Margaret Freeman.

There never was a child in Tecumseh more generally known than she, known on account of her unusual brightness. The taking away of one at her age just budding into womanhood is much more serious than as if she were older for she had seen so little of life and had yet so much to see.

To her parents, relatives and friends her taking away is sudden and sad. One week ago today she first complained of being ill and now all is over. Her trouble was called appendicitis and with no hopes to recover except by operation. Monday the operation was performed but she had not sufficient strength to stand the shock. All Tecumseh suffers with father and mother the loss of this bright, loving child that never can be replaced.

MISS MARGARET FREEMAN.

Margaret Anna Freeman was the younger of two daughters born to Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Freeman, and had she lived until Aug. 25th would have been 13 years of age. Her life has been spent in Tecumseh and she was looked upon by the entire community as one of Tecumseh's brightest and most promising girls. Her pleasant disposition and pleasing manner made her a general favorite among her schoolmates and companions and she was held in highest esteem by all who knew her. In her Christian associations she was a member of the Presbyterian church and Sunday school.

The funeral was held from the residence this morning, interment at Brookside, Rev. Dunning conducting the services.

Miss Almira Dart.

Miss Almira Dart died Tuesday night at the home of Mr. Mooney, aged 86 years, 5 months and 27 days. The funerel was held from the home yesterday afternoon. Remains were interred at Brookside.

THE CHURCHES.

Divine worship at the Baptist church at 10 o'clock and 7 p. m. B. Y. P. U. prayer meeting at 6 p. m. Mid-week prayer meeting Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Services at the Friends church as usual Sunday. Preaching at 10 a. m. with Bible school following. Junior C. E at 5 with Miss Merle Kenyon in charge. Young people's meeting at 6. Topic, "The Teaching of the Trees." These meetings are growing in interest and attendance. The evening preaching service in charge of the pastor. All are welcome.

NOON IN TECUMSEH.

What is going on in town when the clock strikes 12.

Noon, the dinner hour, the hour of comfort, of pleasure and relaxation—the one hour in the 24 which comes to men and women of every station with greater similarity than the hour of any other function in life.

Promptly as the clock strikes 12 in Tecumseh the shadows on anxious faces turn to lines of good will, and if villainous hot bread, pies, spices and other indigestibles were excluded there would be no such words as dyspepsia or indigestion in the dictionary.

But the contrary is true and medical science has to step in and aid the man or woman who has been too busy to pay proper attention to health.

The greatest step forward in medical discovery is Mi-o-na which cures all stomach and digestive troubles.

In hundreds of the best homes in Tecumseh and adjoining towns the handy little tablets, so pleasant to take, yet effective, have given quick and lasting relief in indigestion and that disagreeable full feeling after eating.

Mi-o-na acts very gently. Much of its wonderful power over indigestion comes from its uniform but sustaining action. The required stimulating and strengthening is given to the important organs of digestion without producing the slightest weakness or reaction.

A 50-cent box lasts for a couple of weeks and will ward off a dozen attacks of indigestion C. A. Wright gives a guarantee, absolute and unqualified, with every box of Mi-o-na to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

GEO. B. HORTON

Calls Attention to the Importance of the Coming

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

To the voters of the Fifth Senatorial District—Lenawee and Monroe—Greeting:

I am taking this means of direct communication to you. Having at the solicitation of many friends decided to enter the field as a candidate for delegate to the coming constitutional convention, I deem it a duty to make public announcement of my candidacy and to solicit the votes of all citizens in my behalf. I say "all citizens," for in the wisdom of the legislature, provisions were made to make the work of selecting delegates as near non-partisan as possible. While candidates will be classified under party headings, all enrollment features of the direct primary law are eliminated and this leaves it an open field for men of all parties to vote for the men of their choice. This plan is eminently correct, for the work of revising the constitution of a state is above all parties. While parties may come and go, the constitution as the basis of all governing laws must exist practically forever. About all I can say without semblance of egotism is that I have lived in the Fifth Senatorial district 54 years and during much of that time I have not only taken an active and earnest interest in the welfare of home, township and county, but throughout the whole state as well, have striven for higher standards of intelligence and better social conditions among the masses.

I have taken active interests in all affairs of state which tend to improvement and progress. The state as a whole with all its essential and varied interests comprise the field of thought and basis for my conclusions. I live in the country and love the fields and forests and all that surrounds country life, but my associations with the manufacturing and business world have been on the broad side. It is presumed that every citizen of the Fifth District is in sympathy with my ideals and I feel quite at ease in asking my friends one and all to support my candidacy. The date of the primary nominations is Tuesday, Aug 13 and the place is the regular polling place of your precinct. Aug. 13th occurs at a very busy time of the year but all citizens are urged because of the great and lasting importance of Constitutional revision to not forget the date and at some time during the day take the time to go to the polls and vote without fear of bias for the ones you desire to be the regular nominees for delegates to the constitutional convention. In the exercise of this citizen privilege and duty if you favor me I will be very grateful and if finally selected the work before the convention will receive my most profound study and consideration.

GEO B. HORTON.

Very truly,
GEO. B. HORTON.

Above is a picture of the Hon. Geo B. Horton, a man of brains well known in Lenawee county. About all we need for office in this age are honest men and as far as we know Geo. B. Horton fills the bill. It makes no difference to what party he belongs. He is honest, support him.

Mrs Mary J. Rice of Tipton, died at the home of her nephew, Dr. O. N. Rice, yesterday morning, aged 80 years. The funeral will be held Saturday morning from the residence in Tipton, burial at Medina.

Endorsed by the county.

"The most popular remedy in Otsego county and the best friend of my family writes Wm. Dietz, editor of the Otsego Journal, Gilberteville, N. Y., "is Dr. King's New Discovery. It has proved to be a sure cure for coughs and colds, making short work of the worst of them. We always keep a bottle in the house. I believe it to be the most valuable prescription known for throat and lung diseases." Guaranteed to never disappoint the taker by C. A. Wright & Son. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

WOMEN'S WOES.

Tecumseh women are finding relief at last.

It seems that women have more than their share of the pains that afflict humanity, they must keep up, must attend to household duties in spite of a backache, headache or dizzy spells, they must walk, bend and work with racking pains from kidney ills Kidneys cause more trouble than any other organ of the body. Keep them well and health is maintained. Read of a remedy endorsed by people you know.

Mrs Chas. Stevenson, of Wyandotte street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I am glad to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills as they have been of great benefit to me. When I was ill with malaria fever my kidneys were also in a terrible condition The nurse advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills as they were good for such troubles. I began using them and they at once gave me relief. In a short time the pains all left, the secretions became natural in color and the gravel stones which had bothered me for years, disappeared." I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills ever since and will continue to do so."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other.

Unless you strive for your rights you are apt to get left.

Bilious? Feel heavy after dinner? Tongue coated? Bitter taste? Complexion sallow? Liver needs waking up. Doan's Regalets cure bilious attacks. 25 cents at any drug store.

Brilliancy may be imparted to the complexion by powdering with diamond dust

Farmers, mechanics, railroaders, laborers rely on Dr Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Takes the sting out of cuts, burns or bruises at once Pain cannot stay where it is used

Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup is sold under a positive guarantee to cure constipation, sick headache, stomach trouble, or any form of indigestion. If it fails, the manufacturers refund your money. What more can any one do. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Fortunate is the milkmaid who has no kick coming.

It is as foolish to rejoice too much as it is unwise to mourn too long.

Those who have stomach trouble, no matter how slight, should give every possible help to the digestive organs, so that the food may be digested with the least effort. This may be done by taking something that contains natural digestive properties—something like Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia. Kodol is a preparation of vegetable acids and contains the very same juices found in a healthy stomach. It digests what you eat. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

RAPIDLY FAILING.

Venerable Hugh McCurdy In Very Poor Health.

Corunna, Mich., Aug. 9.—The venerable Hugh McCurdy, former head of the Knights Templar, and the Free Masons of the United States, is the source of much worry to his friends because of his serious condition. Although Mr. McCurdy is 78 years of age, he has, until a few weeks ago, enjoyed exceptional health.

However, since the beginning of hot weather he has been failing somewhat from week to week. It is believed that worry over his investments has much to do with Mr. McCurdy's condition. Within the last few years he has loaned a large part of his fortune to Shiawassee county and the sum now due him amounts to $30,000.

Two elections called upon the payment of this and similar loans have resulted in an overwhelming negative vote. Another special election has been called for next Tuesday and a heated discussion has been going on as to the advisability of paying the loan and the agitation and suspense have worn sadly upon Mr. McCurdy.

His friends hope that if the election is favorable he will recover his health.

Ancient Bond Turns Up.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 9.—After nearly 80 years, and in that time crossing the ocean twice, a bond of a face value of $3,000, has been presented to the auditor-general for payment. This bond is one of a series of $5,000,000 issued May 1, 1828, intended to pay for internal improvements in the state. Part of it went for the building of the Michigan Central railroad. The bond was owned in England and forwarded to Georgia and thence to Lansing. Of that series there is still $16,000 worth of bonds outstanding. The bond is signed by Stevens T. Mason, governor; Randolph Manning, secretary of state, and Robert Abbott, auditor-general. There is, however, an obstacle in the way of paying off the bond. Back in the legislative session of 1899, by a joint resolution, the auditor-general was directed to advertise for three months, calling on holders of outstanding bonds of this issue to present them for payment inside of that prescribed time, as after that time they would be null and void. Now this one has turned up, and faces the situation of a state repudiating its debts. The matter has been referred to the attorney-general for his decision.

Keweenaw Behind With Taxes.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 9.—The deputy auditor-general has sent word to the treasurer of Keweenaw county that the department will not accept his delinquent tax returns, and he must send in the entire amount of the state tax apportionment. Under the law the county treasurer is supposed to have his delinquent tax report in by May 1, but the auditor-general has authority to extend this time. In this case Keweenaw's county treasurer was behind several months last year, and had his time extended this year. Called to account for not sending his report, he wrote, saying he had sent it in. This was found to be untrue, and now it is made imperative that he send in every cent of the apportioned amount. The county will have to make it up in some way.

Road Had to Borrow Engines.

Bay City, Mich., Aug. 9.—There was a collision on what is known as the Lincoln branch of the Detroit & Mackinac railroad, north of Au Sable, Wednesday evening. A light engine ran into a passenger train and both engines were wrecked and Conductor Eastman slightly injured. The damage to the engines, coupled with the large amount of business the road is doing, has crippled its motive power to such an extent that it was obliged to borrow engines, and two were secured from the Michigan Central railroad.

Finds Part of Plunder.

Bay City, Mich., Aug. 9.—Arthur Sherman, who was arrested in Detroit Wednesday, was arraigned in police court Thursday on a charge of burglarizing the residence of Harry Tierney, well known local business man. He demanded an examination and his hearing was set for Friday. In default of $600 bail he was remanded to await trial. Detective Craig brought the man from Detroit, recovering a lot of the plunder in pawn shops and other places where it had been sold.

Japs and Mexicans Clash.

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 9.—A special from Mazatlan, Mex., says: A telegram received here late Wednesday night anounces that at El Fuerte, a construction camp on the Kansas City, Mexican and Orient railway, a fight occurred yesterday between Japanese and Mexican workmen in which three Japanese were killed and three seriously injured, and three Mexicans were mortally wounded and one killed. The trouble is said to have started in a dispute between a Jap and Mexican.

BUYS VALUABLES.

King of Siam Spends Fortune in Gold and Diamonds.

Berlin, Aug. 9.—King Chulalongkorn I. of Siam left Berlin today for Cassel, where he will be the guest of the German emperor and empress.

Stories of the extravagance of the Siamese king continue to excite and amuse Berlin. It is considered certain that he has bought $3,000,000 worth of diamonds and gold and silver ware. Two gold services among the selection cost $800,000 each.

The king is occupying nearly the entire floor of one of the principle hotels, several apartments of which have been given up to an exhibition of the jewels and precious metal work which were brought here from London, Paris and elsewhere by dealers expecting to sell most of the wares and who were rewarded for their enterprise, as the king took about half of all that was offered to him.

The king has shown unusual interest in the dispatches in the newspapers referring to the delimitation of the frontier of Siam and Cambodia, and received with extreme consideration the newspaper representative who brought him intelligence on the subject and who arranged for a news service from the Siamese capital during the king's sojourn in Germany.

Pardons Nancy Miller.

Washington, Aug. 9.—President Roosevelt has pardoned Nancy Miller, who was convicted about six years ago in Indian Territory of manslaughter for killing Alice Brake in a dispute over a gosling. The woman was sentenced to pay a fine of $500 and to serve 10 years in the Ohio penitentiary. She has been imprisoned for about six years and the president thought she had served sufficient time for her crime. The pardoned woman is the mother of six or eight children who need her help.

Nine Prussian Soldiers Drown.

Koginsburg, Prussia, Aug. 9.—A boat accident on the River Pregel Thursday resulted in the drowning of nine men, all members of the engineer corps of the army. The boat, with seventeen engineers aboard, was being towed by a steamer when it turned over. Eight succeeded in reaching the shore. The men who lost their lives were all good swimmers, but the current was too strong for them.

Enormous Lifting Power.

The shelless limpet pulls 1,984 times its own weight when in the air and about double when measured in the water. Fleas pull 1,493 times their own dead weight. The Mediterranean cockle, Venus verrucosa, can exert a pulling power equal to 2,071 times the weight of its own body. So great is the power possessed by the oyster that to open it a force equal to 1,319.5 times the weight of its shelless body is required. If the human being possessed strength as great in proportion as that of these shellfish the average man would be able to lift the enormous weight of 2,976,000 pounds, pulling in the same degree as the limpet. And if the man pulled in the same proportionate degree as the cockle he would sustain a weight of no less than 3,106,500 pounds.

Curiosities of Coffee.

Coffee, as experts are aware, has a very extraordinary property. It is one of the most absorbent matters in existence. Coffee beans placed in a damp room swell and absorb moisture till they nearly double their weight. Here is the chance of the dishonest grocer. Not content with the amount of profit made upon coffee, he places pails of water in a room with piles of uncovered coffee beans, and by swelling the coffee adds something like 50 per cent. to his profits. The flavor is ruined, but that does not matter to him. So absorbent is coffee, not only of moisture, but of gases and flavors, that shippers of Brazilian coffee always stipulate that the sacks of fresh Rio beans shall never be carried on a steamer which has raw hides as any part of her cargo. These will taint the coffee more surely than anything else and render it unfit for use. The useful side of this quality of coffee is that in a sickroom a handful or two of fresh roasted and ground beans act as an excellent purifier and deodorizer.—Washington Post.

A Little Different.

He—So your father asked you what you saw in me to admire? She—Oh, no; he asked me what I imagined I saw.

Secretary Wilson Ill.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 6.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, who arrived here Sunday, is ill at a hotel. He declines to see anyone. Casper Wilson, the secretary's son, said that his father contracted a severe cold on his trip from Puget sound to Portland.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

"Mr. S. S. Bell, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says—"I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

THE SEWER

An Article written by

JAS. W. WIGHTMAN.

An Article written by

PRESIDENT JOHN COMBS

And an Editorial.

Tecumseh, Mich., Aug. 8, 1907.

Replying to an open letter in the news of this date, and to an article in the news of Aug. 1st, I want to make a statement of the matter looked at from a different angle. In my judgement to put in a sewer system by levy of a general tax is very unfair, for illustration, take the stock's Harris & Hiteshue, McCann Bros., Spayde Shoe Co., Heesen & Heesen and J. J. Belcher, each of the above are paying rent for the store in which they are doing business and their aggregate assessments is $23,700 and the aggregate assessment of the stores in which they do business is $16,500, a fair estimate of the rental of the stores in which these gentlemen are doing business is $2,500 add to that a tax of $1 20 to each $1000 assessment and you have Harris & Hiteshu, McCan Bros., Heesen & Heesen, Spayde Shoe Co. and J. J. Belcher paying into the hands of gentlemen who own the stores, together with their taxes, aproximately, $3,000 and propably $10 per month more rent, for the reason that the stores occupied by them have all modern conveniences, is it fair to make these men pay $170 more taxes than the men who own the stores and then acquire nothing but a leasehold for which they pay an advance rental.

This open letter states, "We believe that now is the proper time to build this sewerage system if it is ever to be built." Now let us reason together, our village tax this year is nine and one half mills, or $9 50 on every $1000 assessment, and our township tax will be about one $1.25 on each $100 assessment. Let's see what that will be in the agregate $1.25 plus 95, that seems to be $2.20 on every $100 of assessment; now add $2,000 interest of sewer bonds until 1917, then add $1000 payment of first sewer bond, and an additional $1000 for maturing water bonds, and it would look to the uniniated that the camel's back will soon be broken.

I most heartily agree with the gentlemen whose names appear at the bottom of the open letter that we are in dire need of sewerage and I also believe that a majority of the tax payers of the village are in fevor of a sewer system being adopted, but I do not think that there is hardly a fair minority who favors building 9¼ miles of sewer at this time. Be reasonable gentlemen, cut out 80 rods across the flats that must of necessity back water every time the river rises above the normal, run the outlet into the race back of the creamery on Pottawatamie street.

Build from west side of Pearl street this year, tax benefits and frontage, tax the people for street crossings and if the people have a little surplus coin in 1908, go after them for another piece and in a few years your 9¼ miles is laid and very few people have been seriously injured by the extra taxation. But in the meantime make some arrangement to provide water for those who have paid taxes for 15 years for waterworks and not had the benefits of it. Remember gentlemen, it was taxation without representation that caused the Boston Tea Party.

Dundee, Milan, Blissfield, Morenci, nearly all of Hudson and Eaton Rapids have no sanitary sewerage. Eaton Rapids but a few weeks ago voted on the proposition, Hudson expended over $20,000 last year taking up their small sewer and putting down a bigger one. I do not wish to detract from the fame of Riggs & Sherman, but if any one of you should hire them as experts, would you be satisfied if they should tell you your work would cost $35,000, but to be sure you have $40,000 on hand to cover any miscalculation I may have made. No that would not do if it were an individual matter, then why as a public matter.

All the towns above named as having sewerage, have storm water sewers, and why? Because when the heavy rains come unless the water is quickly disposed of the mud is up to the 3rd rail of the fence and business at a standstill. Now one question and I have done, from what fund comes the money to pay for this sewer survey and by what authority do you draw on any fund for money, for any purpose other than for which the fund was raised, answer that and I will ask your attention to some sections of the charter lately published with your ordinances.

Respectfully,

J. W. WIGHTMAN,

If I may be allowed space in your valued paper, I wish at this time to state my reasons for supporting the complete sewer system as proposed by our village council. As president of this village I have endeavored to give this council most hearty support and assistance in preparing the plans now submitted to the people, and it may be my duty to explain to our citizens my reasons for so doing. I have always been in favor of a sewer for Tecumseh, I am in favor of it now and shall continue to favor it until it is built and established.

During my business experience and residence in Tecumseh I have been a close observer of local conditions effecting the welfare of this village and have also had an opportunity to compare the same with hundreds of other villages of similiar size in this and other states. This comparison leads me to believe most firmly that no town in the middle west has a higher standard of citizenship than Tecumseh; that its location is excellent and its beauty unquestioned; that its moral tone and influences are above the average, that its citizens are unusually prosperous and well-to-do; that its school facilities are good and that as a loyal home town it is not equaled anywhere. I am proud of these attainments and advantages found in Tecumseh, but I am not satisfied for I believe we are in need of other things to promote the future growth and welfare of our village. This is an age of developement and improvement and I do not believe that any town or any business can afford to stand absolutely still in this age of competition and business activity. Any industry or any business that fails to keep up with the times in proper equipment or modern business methods does not advance.

Any city or village that is not alive to its own interests and fails to establish up-to-date improvements and modern conveniences will never grow in size nor increase in business. There are many important reasons why we need this sewer system. We need it for the benefit of public health and to keep our water supply free from contamination. We need it to build up our town, to make it clean and healthful, to give our citizens the same advantages and conveniencies found in other towns all over this country. We need it to make us up-to-date and to attract outside people and induce them to locate factories and build homes in our midst for their families

The filthy condition of some of the private alleys in the business portion of our village has been a disgrace to our citizens. Filled as these alleys are with cesspools and vaults this condition in a large measure is unavoidable. I have actually witnessed the throwing of refuse and slops against board fences and on shed roofs, to drip into the alleys and form pools of stagnant water, breeding germs of disease. A trip through this section on a hot summer night will convince any sane man that Tecumseh needs a sewer. The stench arising from this condition and the close proximity of so many cesspools and vaults, with no place for waste water or refuse except to soak into the soil or boil in the hot sun, is not only a menace to public health, but is a reminder of the dark ages before the civilization of man. Why the citizens of Tecumseh have not waked up to this dangerous condition of affairs and demanded modern conveniences before this time, is something I am not able to understand.

This sewer system will eliminate this dangerous condition and at the same time give our citizens modern improvements to which they are entitled. The fact that we do not have these improvements in Tecumseh has brought upon us much criticism, comment and ridicule from neighboring towns and cities and from the traveling public generally. I have heard it in strongest terms for several years. I have heard it hundreds of miles away, as well as near at home. As a citizen of Tecumseh, proud of our beautiful village, I have rebelled and objected to this criticism from strangers and have then been forced to admit, with humiliation, that we are not up to date in this respect.

I am for Tecumseh, first, last and all the time. I can see no reason why we cannot be as ambitious and as progressive as other towns. Why are we not as worthy of modern conveniences as our sister villages? Why are we not as able to pay for them as Hudson, Dundee, Howell, Owosso, Midland, Albion, Coldwater, Hillsdale, Wauseon, Adrian and scores of other towns who are today extending sewer mains and building miles of pavement? What is the matter with us, with all the wealth and prosperity of this village, with an assessed valuation of one and a half million dollars, that we are afraid of a bonding proposition of less than 40,000 dollars?

The little town of Eaton, O., with a population of 3,000 bonded themselves a few days ago for 180,000 dollars for a sewer system most of which is built through solid rock. Dundee, with less than 1200 people, is now building a 2500 dollar pavement. Are we to remain in the same old rut forever? Must we always accept the criticism of our neighbors and sit idly by to watch them develop and advance with modern public improvements? I say NO. I have faith in the public spirit and pride of our citizens and I believe the time is not far distant when these improvements will be adopted and must be established. The proposition for a complete system as presented by our council is absolutely fair, reasonable and just. It is the greatest good for the greatest number. It extends this sewer system with equal benefits and equal privileges to every citizen in Tecumseh and provides that the entire expense be proportioned in the same equal manner.

It is entirely impossible to please or satisfy all the people. There are objections and there will be objections to this or any other plan that could possibly be arranged. Your council is unanimous in their support of the complete system as being the most fair and reasonable, giving all our people equal benefits at an equal cost. Now is the time to support and build this sewer and I ask all citizens to give this important matter careful consideration. I ask you to be fair and impartial in your criticisms. I ask you to be unselfish and loyal to your home town. If this plan is worthy and meets with your approval I ask you to give us your hearty support for a much needed public improvement for our village AND DO IT NOW.

JOHN H. COMBS.

This issue of the HERALD contains two articles about the sewer. Read them both and then decide how to vote when election day comes. With all the talk and agitation about the sewer question one fact seems to be SETTLED. Tecumseh must have a sewer, consequently it must be built either by frontage or general tax. Now the HERALD is much pleased to see an interest taken in both sides of the question and will do as much as possible to give publicity to all sides of the question but right here desires to state that the HERALD thinks that Tecumseh MUST HAVE A SEWER and thinks that she is as able to build it NOW as any time.

Now the question is whether it shall be built over the whole town by general taxation so all may share an equal benefit or whether it shall start near the center of Chicago street and run down through the business portion, letting the ones particularly benefited pay whether they want to or not. In my personal affairs I have never done anything by halves, my idea has always been that anything worth doing at all, is worth doing well. Two years ago Tecumseh would have ordered the building of a sewer had it not been for the circulation of a petition against it by Wightman. This sewer was to commence at the west end of Chicago street and empty into the river but when the final vote came before the council it could not carry and the measure was defeated.

Now Mr. Wightman thinks the frontage plan the only honest way, as he says in his article on this page. Perhaps in two years he has forgotton, anyway his position then was opposite to what it is now. Tecumseh needs a sewer system, now let us build it complete and borrow the money on long time so as to make the payments easy and let every property owner have an equal benefit. The only mistake made in putting in the water works was that it was not complete, now let us not make a like mistake with the sewer. No man makes more mistakes than the one who tries to do everything. I love Tecumseh first, last and all the time, perhaps in a way I am sentimental on this subject. I live in the home built by my father and lived in so many years by him.

When the question of building a railroad up Chicago street was aggitated the HERALD opposed it because I thought it dead wrong to spoil the best street in Lenawee county by an electric road which could come some other way. In two years if another road attempts to use Chicago street the HERALD will again oppose it "tooth and nail" if I run the HERALD and if I am alive I shall not forget my position like Wightman forgot his of two years since. In fact it looks to a man "up a tree" as if Wightman is a "knocker." When I desire to build a board fence I go to a carpenter, not to a blacksmith. When I support a man for election I stand by him afterwards unless he does wrong.

John Combs did not seek the office of president of the council, but the people desired that he should be president and is today the best president of as good a council as ever Tecumseh had. A council that has transacted more business so far this year than any other council has done in the whole year, Combs' way is to get the right way to do anything than push ahead and do it.

He has called upon the best authority possible for advice in the sewer question and this authority did not advise to empty the sewer back of the creamery into the race to save 80 rods of sewer pipe and then if the flood should take away the globe mill dam or fire should destroy the mill, spread the sewerage of Tecumseh over the flats or spend thousands of dollars to build a new sewer system. Tecumseh has a good ball team run by men whom the HERALD thinks know how to run it and we all know these men will do the best they can to make it a success and winner. The HERALD does not attempt to run the ball team or criticize the management.

John Combs is an honest man and is loyal to Tecumseh in every way. He has brains to use and they are used every minute to assist the council to work properly in this sewer matter. The HERALD has perfect confidence in John Combs and is only glad to assist not "knock" his efforts, thinking at all times to benefit my native town in which my home is located.

A Lover of Pigs.

For many years Lord Gardenstone was one of the characters of Edinburgh and as such received a place among the famous Kay's portraits. He was represented riding on an old horse, with a dog in front and a boy dressed in a kilt behind. A detailed account of the picture states that Kay portrayed him as, what he really was, a very timid horseman, mounted on an old hack, which he had selected for its want of spirit, preceded by his favorite dog Smash and followed by a highland boy, whose duty it was to take charge of the horse on arriving at parliament house. His eccentricity took the even stranger form of a strong affection for pigs. He became so much attached to one that he allowed it to share his bed, and when good feeding and rapid growth made it a rather cumbersome bedfellow it was still lodged in comfortable quarters in the apartment. During the daytime it followed him about like a dog. One morning a farmer had occasion to visit his lordship and, being shown into his bedroom, stumbled upon some object. That object gave vent to an uncompromising grunt and squeal of complaint, and from the bed there proceeded a voice, "It is just a bit sow, poor beast, and I laid my breeches on it to keep it warm all night."—Dundee Advertiser.

Eating Ants For Dessert.

Savages, we know, indulge in such luxuries as grubs and locusts, but for a civilized white man to finish up his dinner with a dish of raw ants seems too nasty to be credible. Yet in Mexico it is the custom—and a custom adopted by plenty of colonials and visitors. The ant eaten is called the honey ant and is perhaps as curious an insect as lives. With a tiny head and legs, it has a huge body as big as a large pea, and this is yellow and swollen with excellent honey. In each nest there are 300 or 400 of these honey ants, which are attended by thousands of others. The honey ants hang on to the roofs of the cells in the nest while the others feed them. They are, in fact, a moving storehouses of winter food. An observer says that if one of the honey ants falls from his perch a worker will go and pick him up and replace him. This feat is equivalent to a man walking up the face of a cliff carrying a large buffalo or cart horse on his back.

Truly Considerate.

A considerate patient had an artery opened by mistake for a vein by a French surgeon in the operation of bloodletting. The woman succumbed not long after to the effect of the blunder, but in her will left the surgeon a small yearly pension, "not only to comfort him, but so that he could live the rest of his life without doing vivisection any more." A similar historic occurrence is related in the Medical Times of a Polish princess who had had the same experience. She added a clause to her will expressing her forgiveness and leaving the surgeon a small pension to indemnify him for the "loss of reputation that may follow my sad catastrophe."

Men past sixty in danger

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Bennett, Rockport, Mo. writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate glands and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am 91 years old." MICHIGAN STATE FAIR OFFICERS

THOSE WHO ARE DETERMINED TO MAKE THE MICHIGAN STATE FAIR AT DETROIT AUGUST 29TH TO SEPTEMBER 6TH, 1907, THE BEST IN THE HISTORY OF THE STATE

HON. A. J. DOHERTY, Chairman General Superintendent — J. H. BUTTERFIELD, Detroit, Secretary — FRED POSTAL, Detroit, President — JOHN McKAY, Romeo, Treasurer — CHAS. A. FLOYD, Grand Rapids, Business Manager

NEW EXHIBITS FOR STATE FAIR.

Machinery and Implement Department Will Be a Hummer.

One of the most interesting exhibits at the State, Detroit, Aug. 29th to Sept. 6th, will be the machinery and implement department. This is in charge of Vincent V. Green, of Detroit. Mr. Green is Secretary and Treasurer of the Union Transfer and Storage Company and has spent years in the implement business, selling the jobbers and retailers, and his knowledge of the business will be of special value to the State Fair.

VINCENT V. GREEN
WHO IS BOOKING MANY NEW FEATURES FOR STATE FAIR

Last year there were about fifty-three exhibitors in this department, and this year, thirty days in advance of the opening of the fair, there were eighty-three applications for space, and no doubt the number will reach double that one year ago. The perplexing problem is where to find space to place them all.

Supt. Green has arranged with the Andrus Fence Co., of Detroit, to operate one of their power fence weaving machines on the grounds.

A new exhibit will be that of lightning rods. Two concerns will show by static machines, the action of lightning, and how to prevent damage from same.

Another exhibit which has never before been shown which will interest the potato grower, is the potato-bug annihilator, which catches the bugs and kills them. This takes the place of the boy with a stick and tin pan and Paris green.

Potato diggers, gasoline-power engines, cement block machines, threshers, traction engines, wind mills, shredders, corn huskers, ensilage, cutters, sugar beet machinery, hundreds of interesting labor saving devices for the farm will be shown.

"THE ERUPTION OF MOUNT VESUVIUS."

The recent tragic episode of "Mt. Vesuvius," which has been chosen by Henry J. Pain, the famous pyrotechnist, as the theme of his new great open-air spectacle, will be seen every evening at the State Fair.

Since that memorable day, when Vesuvius was born, and Pompeii died, there have been hundreds of eruptions, large and small. These have varied greatly in their physical character, at times being in a liquid and white-hot mass, that swept torrent-like down the mountain, at nearly a mile a minute, and was still so hot when it overwhelmed the surrounding cities and villages, seven and eight miles away, that it melted copper, silver and even flints.

Of the most recent eruption of Vesuvius, which occurred in 1906, the volcano hurled out blocks of stone 45 feet in circumference, sent small projectiles thousands of feet into the air, and flames and smoke many thousands of feet higher. The mountain roared and bellowed in a way that was deafening, and its fury shook the houses at Naples. Not only the crater but the black cone itself, half a mile in height, was cracked in all directions, and from these cracks and vents flames were spouting, hundreds of feet high, with lightning flashes and the air for miles was full of flying projectiles.

Looking at the bright and placid little cities now closely grouped about the Bay of Naples, it is difficult to realize that the dark looming up behind them is answerable for thousands of human lives and the recent terrible earthquake disaster, which wiped our own beautiful city of San Francisco out of existence, has aroused world-wide interest in these and former catastrophes.

The graphic destruction of Vesuvius, like Pain's fireworks, has no duplicate in the realm and thrilling production of a tragic historical episode ever conceived by man. It is a veritable pyrotechnic triumph that must be seen to be fully appreciated.

The attraction is organized, equiped and presented on a scale of magnitude that almost appals, to an outsider. First and foremost, with everything bearing the "PAIN" trade mark is, of course, the fireworks, and it is safe to say that nothing more elaborate in this line has ever been witnessed in this city.

The circus features are represented in the large number of sensational aerial acrobatic performances and various hippodrome attractions.

The scenic equipment of the big open-air exhibition shows enough massive, beautifully-painted mountains, palaces, buildings and streets, to extravagantly stock a hundred of the most elaborate stage productions, but the immense interest reported from all points proves the wisdom of the managements enterprise, as in most ventures, it is the "big things" that win.

This is by far the greatest attraction ever shown at any fair in the United States. The expense in securing the great attraction is a small fortune, and yet the State Fair management propose that everyone who attends shall have the greatest value for the money. The fair will be open every evening and the "Eruption of Mt. Vesuvius" will be seen from the grand stand every evening during the fair, commencing Saturday, August 30th, and ending Saturday evening, September 7th.

THE STATE FAIR IS YOUR FAIR.

The Michigan State Fair is a state institution. It is owned by and conducted for the good of all the people in Michigan. The money earned is used to meet the expense in conducting same and the balance is used to improve and beautify the grounds, build new buildings and when property is made better the people of Michigan profit by it.

Those behind this great fair are not connected with it for personal gain, as but few are paid for time actually spent, say nothing of the personal sacrifice made in diverting their time and best thought from their business to make a success of the State Fair. It is the duty of every loyal citizen to help make the Michigan State Fair the greatest in the United States. If you have nothing to exhibit you should attend and see what others are showing. There is no possible place where you could spend a few days to a better advantage than to attend the State Fair, from an educational standpoint. Everything new under the sun will be shown at the fair. The best live stock, poultry, machinery, etc., will be there.

The management hopes to have the support, attendance and kind words of every loyal citizen in Michigan. Nothing compared with the coming fair has ever been shown in Michigan.

STATE FAIR WANDERLUST.

The Midway of the State Fair, Detroit, Aug. 29th to Sept. 6th, will be known under a new name this year coined by General Manager Floyd. The name by which it will be known is the "Wanderlust."

More prominent among the features thus far obtained is the McKay European Circus; Trained Animal Show; Ostrich Farm with a fine collection of birds; the midget horse, the smallest one in the world, standing only 26 inches high, and weighing only 93 pounds; Donaldson's Museum of Natural History; the Old Plantation Minstrel Show; the largest Ferris Wheel in use; Allan's Ideal Entertainers; the Electric Theatre; Jack and Jill, the fat children; Zero, the gorilla; Hugo, the big snake; Kekreko's Oriental Performers; Gotesingers' Exhibition of War Relics; and a number of other attractions which cover every available inch that it is possible to allot on the grounds to the "Wanderlust."

The management of the Michigan State Fair does not intend to have the grounds in an unsanitary condition during the big Fair, which will be held from Aug. 29th to Sept. 6th, as they have just completed arrangements for the proper disinfecting of not only all the buildings, but also the grounds of the Fair and the stock on exhibition at an expense of nearly $1,000.

BEST HORSE EXHIBIT EVER.

All Breeds and Classes to Be Shown at State Fair.

Judge L. C. Holden, of Sault Ste. Marie, who has the superintendency of the horse department of the Michigan State Fair, Detroit, Aug. 29th to Sept. 6th, is meeting with splendid results in his campaign for a complete exhibition of the different breeds and classes of horses at the coming fair. Among those exhibited which will come in for their share of the great interest usually shown, which have already been secured, will be the roadster and light harness horses, saddle horses, high school and exhibition horses, the famous French and German coach horses, the high-stepping American carriage horse, which is becoming such a general favorite; the heavy draft horses, including Percherons from LaPerche, France; the Clydesdale from Scotland, the shire of England, Belgium horses and a very large exhibition of shetland ponies. One exhibitor alone will bring fifty handsome ponies from his Indiana stock farm. The mule, the "Asel," will be shown in large numbers.

JUDGE L. C. HOLDEN
WHO IS GETTING A FINE LOT OF ENTRIES FOR HORSE DEPARTMENT

Judge Holden has already arranged with many importers of European horses to show their classes at the coming fair, and from the present indications the coming exhibition will be way ahead of any ever made in Michigan.

Four-in-hands will give a free exhibition in front of the grand stand each day, and it is also probable that the famous six-in-hand owned by Armour & Co., of Chicago, will also make an exhibition.

Ample provisions have been made at the State Fair in Detroit for the accommodation of thousands of visitors who will visit the State Fair from August 29th to September 6th. All the hotels and boarding houses are preparing to take in extra people, and to give them good care, and no unreasonable prices will be charged.

A THREE-LEGGED ROOSTER.

Never was there a time when there was so much interest centered on poultry raising as at the present time, and it is because for the money invested and the time and attention required, it is a most profitable business. The farmer, the factory workman, and others regardless of their wealth, are engaging in poultry raising either for profit or as a hobby.

The poultry exhibit at the Michigan State Fair, Detroit, Aug. 29th to Sept. 6th, will be the largest ever shown in the state. Enough entries have already been received to fill every nook and corner of the building assigned exclusively for this department. Every kind of poultry will be exhibited, also incubators, brooders and poultry supplies. Supt. Daniel Thomas, of Pontiac, who has charge of the Poultry Department, says that one of the attractions of the poultry show this fall will be a freak rooster which has three developed legs, two of which are used for scratching and digging while the third maintains an equilibrum. The bird differs from the ordinary three-legged variety, in that each of the three legs is fully developed.

HALF MILLION PEOPLE WILL ATTEND.

The Michigan State Fair is becoming famous throughout the country on account of the excellent exhibition given each year. At the coming fair August 29th to September 6th, inclusive, all buildings will be beautifully decorated with flags of all nations and American colors. All stock barns and exhibition buildings will be crowded with exhibits.

The organization for this year's fair will be perfect in every respect. Each department will be run separately and distinct under the general head. The different employes will be carefully drilled so that the whole operating and of the fair will move like clock-work. This is a stupendous task when you consider that a half a million people are handled and cared for during the eight days of the fair.

This year there will be no congested concession stands. There will be no gambling, nor games of chance, the shows will be clean, wholesome and educational, and whatever profits there may be through the operation of the fair of 1907, will be used in the construction of new buildings and increased facilities.

GOOD NEWS FOR EXHIBITORS.

For years the exhibitors at the State Fair have been greatly inconvenienced and delayed because of the insufficient railroad facilities for unloading and reloading their exhibits. The last year the fair was held at Pontiac some of the exhibitors were two days getting away after the fair closed and since the fair was located in Detroit there has also been cause for complaint.

Determined to give the exhibitors no cause to complain this years, the management, at a very great expense, has arranged for three additional side tracks, each 800 feet long, making five side tracks with a capacity of 100 cars. The tracks will be so arranged that two will be used exclusively for live stock, two for machinery and one for miscellaneous exhibits. The platforms will be erected with the view of unloading and loading quickly. D. R. Hurst, who has been yardmaster for the Grand Trunk Railroad for a number of years, has been appointed Supt. of Transportation, and will be on the grounds constantly to take care of the wants of the exhibitors.

Passengers arriving in Detroit, via the Grand Trunk Railroad, will be unloaded at the grounds if they desire, as all trains on that road will stop at the grounds during the fair.

GREAT LIVE STOCK EXHIBIT.

C. A. Tyler, of Nottawa, Mich., a member of the Michigan Live Stock Commission, is superintendent of the cattle department of the Michigan State Fair.

C. A. TYLER
SUPERINTENDENT OF THE CATTLE DEPARTMENT

This cattle exhibit of this year will be the largest in the history of the association. Many herd will be exhibited from outside the State as well as every well known herd in Michigan.

One of the new features this year will be the cattle parade, which will take place at least four times during the fair. The plan is to put every prize winner in the parade and show the people the excellent grade of cattle which come to the State Fair.

The judges have been selected from some of the best known cattle men in the country, which insures a fair deal for every exhibitor. Special attention will be given to furnishing suitable sleeping quarters for the stockmen, an innovation which will be welcomed by those who do so much to make the Fair a success.

Superintendent Tyler will be on the grounds three days in advance of the Fair prepared to take care of all exhibitors, and furnish such information as may be required.

Question For a Question.

SAND LAKE.

Web Kay of Tecumseh, spent Saturday here.

Mr. and Mrs. Swian, Miss Florence Eccles and Roy Huddleston went to Jackson Thursday in their automobile.

The Tecumseh, Franklin and Cambridge farmers' clubs held their annual picnic here Saturday. A program was rendered, Tipton band furnishing music.

Misses Nelle Stringham, Luella Williamson, Mae and Ethel Garlinghouse, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Heesen, Lester Heesen, Otto Garlinghouse, Roy Codling, Raynor Brewer, Percy and Elmer Slayton of Tecumseh, spent Sunday here. The three latter also attended the dance here Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Teachout spent Saturday in Brooklyn.

A party of 25 people from Marysville, O., are occupying the Willett and Howland cottages for two weeks.

Miss Marjorie Kock and Jas. Klein of Cleveland, who have been spending several weeks at Hotel Putnam, have returned home.

Jas. Eccles and family, who have been staying at the Witherell cottage, returned home Sunday.

The Allens, VanDusens and Dixons of Toledo, at the Gates cottage, returned home Sunday.

Fred Teachout left the lake Monday morning for New Bremen, O., where he races his horses this week.

Family Reunion.

One of the pleasant events of last week was the family reunion at the home of Mrs. F. D. Rector, Thursday, Aug. 8. A very appetizing picnic dinner was served at noon under the trees on the lawn. Thirteen families were represented, numbering thirty six persons.

Guests from away were Edward Doty wife and daughter of Sedgwick, Kan., Geo. Humphrey and wife of Madison, Wis., Mrs. H. Chatfield of South Haven Mich., Willis Chatfield of Adrian, the Rogers' and Whitmarsh families of Lenawee Junction, Dewey families from Cambridge and Doty families from Holloway.

The afternoon was spent in story telling, guessing games and visiting while the gentlemen and younger ladies attended the ball game. Near the close of the afternoon Miss Grace Hillman took a camera photograph of the group.

The oldest member present was Mrs. Dwight Rogers 86 years of age and the youngest, Master Raymond Whitmarsh 2½ years. Thus another pleasant day has become a memory but it will linger long as a pleasant one with the visiting guests.

The limit of life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that limitation of human life is far below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 50 is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed by O. A. Wright & Son. 50c.

STATE FAIR FREE ATTRACTIONS.

Among the free attractions which will be shown at the State Fair, Detroit, Aug. 29th to Sept. 6th, in front of the grand stand each and every day, is the show troupe of performing Arabian horses, which will be shown by D. H. Harris of Mendon, Mich., and which were trained and are handled by Madam Marantette. Saint Patrick, ridden by Madam Marantette, holds the world record for high jumping. Master Johnnie Harris will ride the small jumping ponies and exhibition Shetlands. Six Arabian horses will be shown on exhibition, both in saddle and harness. King Edward, pronounced one of the handsomest horses in the world, and Prince Rowland, who has never been defeated in the show ring, will together give an exhibition showing 12 different gates and saddles, keeping perfect time with the music while doing their different acts. Chief Geronimo and Sunflower will be driven to a buggy by Madam Marantette.

The Sugimoto troupe of Japanese will give an exhibition of daring athletic feats and contortions, also juggling features. There will also be an exhibition of high divers and aerial gymnastics, trained animal shows and other features which will make a big hit before the grand stand.

Babcock of Barnum & Bailey's fame, will give his death defying thrilling stunt—"The Death Trap."

SPECIAL STATE FAIR DAYS.

The Michigan State Fair at Detroit opens on Thursday, August 29th, and closes Friday, September 6th. The grounds will not be open on Sunday. Saturday, August 31st, has been set aside for "Children's Day;" Monday, September 2nd, is "Labor Day," and will be fittingly observed by the laboring people of Michigan. It is expected that the attendance will be very large on this day, as it is a general holiday, for all laboring men. Tuesday is "Fraternal Day," and Wednesday will be known as "Michigan Day." Invitations have been sent to the United States Senators, the Governor and other State Officers and members of the Legislature, inviting them to attend on "Michigan Day." Thursday will be "Detroit Day," at which time it is expected that Mayor Thompson, members of the City Council and City Officers will be present.

The Detroit United Railway is preparing to take care of the great number of people who will attend the Michigan State Fair, Detroit, the coming month. The fair grounds are located on Woodward avenue, north of the city limits, and is reached by double track line, and passengers are carried to the grounds for the small fare of 5 cents.

GASOLINE ENGINE POWER

The gasoline engine exhibit promises to be the largest and most interesting ever made at any Fair, as most of the leading manufacturers have already applied for space in which to show.

The power question has become a very important one, not only in the cities and villages but on the farm. Thousands of Michigan farmers have given this important problem a careful study, and decided that they could use a gasoline engine on the farm, and save a very great amount of labor and at a very moderate operating expense. The opportunity for investigating the various makes and determining the special advantage of each, should not be overlooked.

THE VEHICLE EXHIBIT.

Superintendent Stevenson of the Vehicle Department of the State Fair says that the exhibit in his department will be larger than any in the history of the State Fair. Exhibitors with one exception have already arranged for space, and six new firms have applied for and been granted space in the vehicle row. Mr. Stevenson says that if other department of the State Fair show as much improvement over previous years as will the Vehicle Department, that it will be a great fair.

PROSPECTS VERY ENCOURAGING.

Never in the history of the Michigan State Fair, which extends over a period of fifty-eight years, were there so many entries made by the time the Fair opened as were received this year, four weeks in advance of the first day. The indications are that in nearly every department the number of entries will be doubled, and the perplexing problem is how to set aside ample space for each. Exhibitors will have to content themselves with less space than one year ago, in order to accommodate the great increase. It was thought that ample provisions had been made for the anticipated increase, by extensions and additions, but even with the largely increased space alloted to each division the management is still devising every possible means to care for all who come.

One evidence of the popularity of the State Fair is the fact that it is known as an institution of the State of Michigan, and many organizations, such as churches, benevolent societies, fraternal organizations, etc. will have rest tents and booths on the ground, and some of them will conduct dining halls, and restaurants, assuring the visitors that they will be well cared for while visiting the big Fair. The State Fair association is naturally desirous of encouraging this.

The Indians were blanked in a fast and exciting game with Battle Creek Saturday.

Score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E

Bay City's rejuvenated exiles lost a splendid 10-inning game to Tecumseh Sunday afternoon. An error by Newcomb in the fifth and an exceedingly questionable decision by Corlett in the seventh, which killed two baserunners, were practically responsible for the loss of the game

"Bo Slear opened up with a home run in the third. In the tenth Wagner singled and scored on Preston's sacrifice and a pretty bingle by Doty, while Bay City went out in one, two, three order, through sharp fielding. Blair's two bagger scored Newcomb, who had walked, for Bay City's first run and in the 4th a single by Lovett, sacrifice by Dorsch and Haye's single scored the locals last runs. Pennance was a trifle off, but pitched a good game.

Score by innings:

Tecumseh	0	0	1	0	1	0	0	0	0	1	3	8	0

Runs, Slear, Martin, Doty, Hayes, Newcomb; first base on balls, off Doty 2; left on bases, Tecumseh 7, Bay City 5; first base on errors, Tecumseh 2; two-base hit, Blair, home run, Slear; struck out, by Doty 2, Pinnance 5; hit by pitcher, Somerlott, Blair; sacrifice hits, Preston, Slear, Doty, McNutt 2; Dorsch 2, Pinnance; stolen bases, Slear, Wagner, Hillinger, Somerlott; umpire, Corlett; attendance, 1160; time, 2 hours.

The Bay City team defeated Tecumseh at Bay City yesterday by a score of 5 to 1. Both Richardson and Teal were hit hard but the stick work won the game for Bay City. Wolfe featured by a home run.

Score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

Runs, Blair, McNutt Weirich, Lovett, Newcomb, Wolfe; two-base hits, Preston, Lovett, Hayes; sacrifices, Slear, Lagoe; left on bases, Bay City 10, Tecumseh 5; 1st base on balls, off Richardson 3, off Teal 2; struck out, by Atkins 9, Richardson 5; Teal 3; hit by pitcher, Hildinger; umpire, Corlette.

NOON IN TECUMSEH.

What is going on in town when the clock strikes 12.

Noon, the dinner hour, the hour of comfort, of pleasure and relaxation—the one hour in the 24 which comes to men and women of every station with greater similarity than the hour of any other function in life.

Promptly as the clock strikes 12 in Tecumseh the shadows on anxious faces turn to lines of good will, and if villainous hot bread, pies, spices and other indigestibles were excluded there would be no such words as dyspepsia or indigestion in the dictionary.

But the contrary is true and medical science has to step in and aid the man or woman who has been too busy to pay proper attention to health.

The greatest step forward in medical discovery is Mi-o-na which cures all stomach and digestive troubles.

In hundreds of the best homes in Tecumseh and adjoining towns the handy little tablets, so pleasant to take, yet effective, have given quick and lasting relief in indigestion and that disagreeable full feeling after eating.

Mi-o-na acts very gently. Much of its wonderful power over indigestion comes from its uniform but sustaining action. The required stimulating and strengthening is given to the important organs of digestion without producing the slightest weakness or reaction.

A 50-cent box lasts for a couple of weeks and will ward off a dozen attacks of indigestion C. A. Wright gives a guarantee, absolute and unqualified, with every box of Mi-o-na to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

Almira Dart.

Almira Dart was born in Truxton, New York in February 1827 and died in Tecumseh, Mich., Aug. 6, 1907, over 80 years of age. For over 50 years she has resided in Tecumseh and for many years she has been a member of the M. E. church though prior to that she had been a Baptist.

For a number of years past she has been in poor health and for the last 14 months has been confined to her bed. She bore her affliction with great patience and earnestly desired her release, dying with bright hope and anticipation of the future.

The funeral services were conducted at her late residence Aug. 8 by Rev. W. M. Ward. Burial at Brookside.

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire to express our sincere thanks to the friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted at the death and burial of our beloved sister-in-law and aunt and to our pastor who came with words of comfort, also for the floral offerings and to the singers.

Endorsed by the county.

The most popular remedy in Otsego county and the best friend of my family writes Wm. Dietz, editor of the Otsego Journal, Gilberteville, N. Y., "is Dr. King's New Discovery. It has proved to be a sure cure for coughs and colds, making short work of the worst of them. We always keep a bottle in the house. I believe it to be the most valuable prescription known for throat and lung diseases." Guaranteed to never disappoint the taker by C. A. Wright & Son. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

A Twentieth Century Exhibition.

Lyman H. Howe is beyond dispute, the most famous exhibitor of moving pictures in the world today. For many years his exhibitions have been an unfailing source of pleasure and profit to many thousands throughout the entire United States. The secret of his success is no mystery. Added to his rare faculty of selecting only pictures of absorbing interest, is his unusual ability for reproducing them so vividly and graphically that his exhibition is not approached by any other in this county or abroad. He reproduces every scene and event with every detail exactly as it is or happened, so that you virtually see and even hear it yourself. The new program to be shown in the New Bradley opera house Monday, Aug. 19, comprises just those living, vital things in which we are all most interested at this moment. It is par excellence the exhibition of today, of this 20th century. It is the easiest and cheapest way to enjoy the same pleasure and derive the same knowledge that comes to the traveler only after incurring great expense.

Mrs. Albert B. Boyce.

Mrs. Anna Hisley Boyce died at King's hospital, Detroit, Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock of blood-poisoning. Besides her husband, Albert Boyce, and two daughters, Albertine, age 14 and Baby Anna, six weeks old of Detroit, she leaves a mother, Mrs. J. R. Hisley, and sisters, Mrs. F. O. Tefft and Mrs. Albert Rector and brother, Frank Hisley of this place, and sister, Mrs. Louise Hisley—Wood of Palo Alto, Cal. to mourn her loss. Funeral to be held in Tecumseh at the home of B. J. Rector Wednesday at 1 o'clock.

FOR OUR READERS.

To prove that Hyomei will cure catarrh the Herald readers can have special guarantee.

If there is any doubt in your mind as to the power of Hy-o-mei, the medicated air treatment, to cure all catarrhal troubles, the remarkable offer made by Wright & Son should expel that doubt. They give their personal guarantee with every dollar outfit of Hy-o-mei they sell to refund the money unless it gives satisfaction. They take all the risk of cure and no reader of the HERALD can afford to suffer longer with catarrh when an offer like this is made.

With every Hy-o-mei outfit is a neat pocket inhaler and Hy-o-mei breathed through it reaches the most remote air cells of the nose, throat and lungs, destroying all catarrhal germs and soothing the irritated mucous membrane.

Hy-o-mei really gives you a health-giving climate in your home so that when you breathe its medicated air your nose, throat and lungs will be filled with air like that on the mountains high above the sea level where grow balsamic trees and plants which purify the air with their volatile antiseptic fragrance so healing to the respiratory organs.

You will notice relief and benefit from the first use of Hy-o-mei and it will not take many days' treatment to convince you that in this remedy you have found a complete and lasting cure for all catarrhal troubles.

DR. BOUCHELLE

Dr. L. B. Bouchelle of Thomasville, Ga., a physician well known in the South, is very enthusiastic over the cod liver oil preparation Vinol. He says: "I have used Vinol in my family and in my general practice with the most satisfactory results. It is exceedingly beneficial to those afflicted with bronchial or pulmonary diseases and to create strength."

The reason Vinol is so far superior to old fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions, is because it is a real cod liver preparation from which all the useless oil has been eliminated and tonic iron added.

We ask every weak, thin, run-down, nervous and aged person in town, and all those suffering from chronic colds, coughs and weak lungs, to try Vinol on our guarantee.

IT'S ALWAYS BAD.

The best of backs are bad when they ache, and Tecumseh people know it.

A bad back is always bad.
Bad at night when bedtime comes,
Just as bad in the morning.
Ever try Doan's Kidney Pills for it?
Know they cure backache—cure every kidney ill?

If you don't, some Tecumseh people do.

Read a case of it

Mrs. Geo. Teachout, living on Oneida street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. Last fall I began to have a great deal of trouble with my kidneys causing intense pains in the small of my back and extending to my shoulder blades. At times when I would bend over, sharp stitches of pain would catch me and I would not be able to straighten for a few seconds. At night I could not rest on account of the frequent action of the kidneys. I doctored awhile with a physician but received no benefit to speak of. I heard a great deal about the good results effected by Doan's Kidney Pills so I got a box and began using them. I soon noticed the good effects and I continued taking them until I was entirely cured. I cheerfully recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to any one afflicted with kidney trouble.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other.

Warning to Bearded Men.

"It is well that old men should wear beards," said a physician, "for when one becomes old one should be spared the exertion of daily shaving. But I would like to issue a warning to all beard wearers. I would like to shout 'Keep your beards dry' in a voice loud enough to be heard around the world. Were those words heeded many cases of sore throat, cold and influenza would be avoided, and many deaths would be indefinitely put off. So many men with beards neglect when they wash their faces to wipe their beards dry! A beard a foot long demands a lot of toweling. It should be toweled after every wash a good five minutes. Otherwise it is damp. The owner goes about with this damp thing upon his delicate and sensitive throat. Then, if he takes tonsilitis or influenza, he blames the American climate. There are too many damp beards among us. Too many men, washing their faces three or four times a day, have their beards damp and clammy a good three hours daily."—New York Press.

Maine's Female Warrior.

During the war between the states when it became necessary to draft men for the army a recruiting officer, Parker Mears by name, went to an Island off the coast of Maine called Loud's island. It claimed to be a plantation. As the boat neared the shore a tall, brawny female, the mother of several stalwart sons, appeared on the rocks and as the officer set foot on shore sternly demanded his business.

"After men for Uncle Sam," he answered.

She immediately began to pelt him with big, hard potatoes, and they came so fast and furiously that he was obliged to flee to the boat and row away as fast as possible. Mr. Mears, when a little excited, stuttered badly. Relating the experience, he ended with, "G-g-give her po-po-po-po-tatoes enough a-a-and sh-sh-she'll t-t-take Ri-Ri-Richmond."—Boston Herald.

Earthquakes.

No prediction can be made safely as to future earthquakes in any particular region. If any conjecture is warranted, it is merely that regions which are known to have contracted the earthquake habit are, on the whole, more likely to quake in the future than are regions which have long been free from seismic disturbances. No part of the continent seems less likely to be shaken than the Mississippi basin. Yet there were disastrous earthquakes about the mouth of the Ohio river in 1811-13. Regions covered with thick layers of clay, sand, gravel, glacial drift, etc., like much of the basin of the upper Mississippi, are less likely to suffer severely than those where solid rock comes to the surface, for the loose material acts as a cushion to deaden the vibrations which come to the surface from the solid rock below.—The World Today.

Wore Out His Finger.

There was a brakeman on the Colorado Midland railroad who years ago lost his index finger on his right hand. One day a lady passenger who had been much interested in the wonderful works of nature the brakeman had pointed out to her along the road noticed the stub finger. When the conductor came through the car she said to him:

"Excuse me, sir, but can you tell me how the brakeman lost his forefinger? He seems to be such an accommodating fellow."

"Yes, mum, that's just it. He is so accommodating that he wore that finger off pointing out the scenery along the line," said the conductor.—Denver News.

Contracted Quarters.

The sort of conversation in which Martha Hackett often indulged was peculiarly trying to her cousin, Mr. Lane. "Martha's been here all the morning," said Mrs. Lane wearily at dinner one night. "She talked on and on about things that didn't amount to anything and were all disconnected. I endured it as well as I could, but it does seem sometimes as if she was wandering in her mind."

"Well, there's one thing," said Mr. Lane grimly, "you needn't ever worry about her going far if that's where she's wandering."—Youth's Companion.

Modest French Salaries.

Figures recently showing the daily salaries of certain magistrates have astonished some of our readers. The judge of the Seine receives, in fact, 8,000 francs ($1,600) a year and the procurator of the republic 20,000 francs ($4,000). But in the small tribunals the salaries are as follows: Judge, 3,000 francs ($600); paid substitute, 1,500 francs ($300); substitute (juge suppleant), nothing.—Paris Figaro.

The Age of Fishes.

The age of fishes is seldom measured by a definite period of years. Most of them grow as long as they live, and apparently live until they fall victims to some stronger species. It is reputed that carp and pike have lived for a century, but the evidence needs verification.

Needless Suffering.

"Tommy," said Mr. Tucker, laying him across his knee and vigorously applying a large and muscular paternal hand, "it almost breaks my heart to do this."

"Then why don't you let maw do it?" yelled Tommy.—Chicago Tribune.

Bad Luck.

"Do you believe in the bad luck of thirteen?"

"Do I? I was refused by twelve girls, and the thirteenth took me."—Stray Stories.

You may depend upon it that he is a good man whose intimate friends are all good.—Lavater.

Cleopatra's Mummy.

Where does Cleopatra's body rest? Scarcely a layman who would not answer, "Why, in Egypt!" After her cajoleries, her wiles, her life of intense if not very exalted loves, Cleopatra was laid in one of the loveliest tombs that has ever been fashioned by the hand of man. But what a change 2,000 years has brought about! Today an ugly mummy, with an emblematic bunch of decayed wheat and a coarse comb tied to its head—a mere roll of tightly swathed dust—lies crumbled in a hideous glass case at the British museum. It is Cleopatra, the once great queen, a Venus in charm, beauty and love.—London Spectator.

Those who have stomach trouble, no matter how slight, should give every possible help to the digestive organs, so that the food may be digested with the least effort. This may be done by taking something that contains natural digestive properties—something like Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia. Kodol is a preparation of vegetable acids and contains the very same juices found in a healthy stomach. It digests what you eat. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

What "Paste" Is.

"Paste" from which imitation precious stones are made is widely known, but few are acquainted with the ingredients, though it is generally understood that the paste gains its brilliance from the lead it contains. Formulas vary for the paste, but all contain rock crystal, red lead, carbonate of potash, borax and white arsenic. It is required that these articles shall be of a high grade of purity, as there is a considerable waste, so that the gems made from "strass," as the composition is technically known, are by no means inexpensive. The lead gives to the strass its brilliancy, while the rock crystal contributes brilliancy. A paste diamond cannot scratch glass and is thus easily detected, but colored stones are made of crystal alone that are considerably harder than glass. In the making of these a crystal stone is hollowed out and filled with some colored liquid, the orifice being closed with a plug of crystal, which is ground down so that there is no trace of the junction.

Why the Eggs Didn't Hatch.

A famous Michigan egg raiser occasionally sells some of his product to his grocer, and some smart town people who thought they could get his eggs for hatching cheaper by buying from the grocer were disappointed when they found that none of the store eggs hatched out. Some one told the old man about the disappointment, and he expressed no surprise. He only said: "They should come to me for their setting eggs. Whoever hear o' buying settin' eggs in a grocer shop? When I sell eggs for eatin' I just dip the ends in boiling water—kill the germ. Them was eatin' eggs the grocer had. If these people want settin' eggs they should come to me honest like."

Eating Snails.

Four Britons ate snails at a French restaurant in Brighton, England, not long ago. Their experiences are described as follows: "In due course the plates appeared, each bearing half a dozen snail shells of a dingy white. A slender two pronged fork accompanied each dish. With this the snails were jerked out, their big black horns coming first, accompanied by a small eruption of gravy. One of the experimenters looked critically at the uninviting object at the end of his fork, then he shut his eyes and popped it into his mouth. His teeth met on something yielding, but tough, rather suggestive of india rubber. All four epicures manfully ate their six snails."

Baking Bread.

The action of yeast on dough converts some of the starch into sugar. Then the sugar is made into carbonic acid gas and alcohol. When the dough is baked the alcohol is driven off. If the bread is underbaked some of the yeast may remain unkilled, and such bread by being kept may have more of its starch changed into sugar. Thorough baking kills all yeast, and keeping of such bread does not cause any ripening. Stale bread is more digestible than new bread solely because it is more easily masticated.

Children and Influences.

The reason why children so easily contract the mien, gestures and habits of their surroundings is that they have no power of resistance—everything outside them is stronger than themselves, and they have to borrow from all outward influences for their own growth; hence they are good, cheerful and contented or bad, morose and discouraged, just according to their surroundings.—Marenholtz-Bulow.

Wakeful?

Sleeplessness Is a Sign of Nerve Trouble and Should Be Looked To.

There are three different manifestations of sleeplessness.

First, hardly to sleep a wink all night, second, to lie awake a long time before falling asleep; third, to fall asleep soon, waking up after several hours and then find it hard to sleep again.

They mean that somewhere in the nerve fibres, somewhere in the brain cells, somewhere in the blood vessels that carry blood to the brain, something is radically wrong, and must be righted, or the end may be worse than death.

To right it, take Dr. Miles' Nervine.

They indicate diseases which may lead to Epilepsy, Fits, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervous Prostration, Paralysis, Insanity.

"My husband had been sick for weeks, could not sit up to have his bed made. With all the medical help we could get he continued to grow worse. He could neither sleep or eat. Our baby girl was sent away, and all callers barred, because he could not stand a bit of talking. I read of a case of nervous prostration cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. We began giving it to him, and in a few days he was able to be dressed. From that time he steadily improved. Nervine saved his life."—MRS. A. G. HASKIN, Freeville, N. Y.

Breaking the News.

"Alaska is a land of adventure and romance," said a gold miner. "Many queer things have happened in Alaska," he continued, smiling, "many wretched things. Sometimes it has been necessary to break sad news to mothers at home, and sometimes this news has been broken with wonderful skill.

"An Alaskan called on a woman in New Hampshire to tell her of her son's death in the Klondike.

"'Yes, lady," he said to the weeping mother, "I was with him to the end. I seen him die. And I tell ye, ma'am, as he wuz dyin' he looked jest like an angel.'

"'Did he?' the mother sobbed.

"'He certainly did, ma'am,' said the Klondiker. 'Swingin' back'ards and for'ards in the air thar ye'd 'a' thought he had wings.'"—Kansas City Journal.

For Umbrella Forgetters.

"Lost umbrellas, forgotten umbrellas," said the lost and found clerk, "pay my salary. We sell all that are unclaimed, you know, deriving from this odd source $100 a month. Nearly all lost umbrellas are left in trains. There is a thing to do with an umbrella on entering a train that will assure you of not leaving it. I'll tell you what that thing is. When you sit down in the car place the umbrella on the outside, between yourself and the aisle. Thus the umbrella is a fence. It bars you in. When you jump up hastily to get off at your station you fall over it. You can't forget it whether you would or not."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Boring of Glass.

Strong glass plates are bored through by means of rotating brass tubes of the necessary diameter, which are filled with water during boring. To the water there is added finely pulverized emery. It is said that thinner glass can be perforated with holes in an easier manner by pressing a disk of wet clay upon the glass and making a hole through the clay of the width desired, so that at that spot the glass is laid bare. Then molten lead is poured into the hole, and lead and glass drop down at once. This method is based upon the quick local heating of the glass, whereby it obtains a circular crack, the outline of which corresponds to the outline of the hole made in the clay. The cutting of glass tubes, cylinders, etc., in factories is based upon the same principle.

Moderation In Exercise.

It is better to be lazy than dead, and it is probably just as comfortable. For obvious reasons the prescription to take moderate exercise is misleading and unsatisfactory. Most of us are constitutionally incapable of exercising moderately. We begin violently and end quickly. And what is moderate exercise? One philosopher who tried it for twenty years arrived at this conclusion: "Keep a pair of Indian clubs in your bedroom. Look at them frequently. Exercise by their suggestion." This has the merit of moderation. It is the same as to walking. Smell the morning, look down the long way that separates you from your business. Then take a car.—Detroit Free Press.

Honest About It.

Kind Lady—Poor man! Are you really anxious to earn a good dinner? Truthful Thomas—I'm more 'anxious fer de dinner dan I am t' earn it, ma'am.

Jack Tar, Humorist.

There's never any telling what our bluejackets will do when "out for a lark." A number of them were in Londonderry a week or two ago, and a couple of them, walking along Foyle street, noticed a woman standing on the footpath with a baby in her arms. One of the "tars" in passing snatched the baby out of her arms and made off at full speed toward the Great Northern railway. For a moment the astonished mother stood in bewilderment. She then raised an alarm and ran screaming after the bluejacket. He was joined by others, who seemed to appreciate the joke immensely. The whole body rushed through street after street, the mother still pursuing. In Ferryquay street the "tars" halted, dashed into a shop, bought a perambulator, placed the child in it and retraced their steps at a rattling pace until they met the infuriated mother. They then pulled up, quieted her fears and handed her over her child in the handsome new perambulator, which she wheeled off in pride and triumph, the bluejackets meantime cheering.—London Answers.

Anticipating Him.

"Katharine," said Bob as he brought his club chums down to the depot platform, "these are all my friends."

"Glad to meet you, gentlemen," replied the bride sweetly, "and I am so sorry that you are going to be sick."

"Sick!" echoed the crowd in astonishment. "Why should you think we are going to be sick?"

"Oh, because soon after the honeymoon a married man always finds a great many sick friends to sit up with."—Columbus Dispatch.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Ball, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says—"I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

BOYS ARE IN CAMP.

Twenty-Two Hundred Soldiers at Ludington.

KNOWN AS CAMP M'GURRIN.

Light Maneuvers Began at Once—A Sham Battle Next Week—Governor Expected Monday — Major Barlow Elected Lieutenant-Colonel.

Ludington, Mich., Aug. 16.—About 2,200 soldiers are in Camp McGurrin, the last company arriving late Wednesday night without baggage and being forced to sleep in the open, wrapped in their blankets.

Company B, Detroit Light Guards, which did not accompany the rest of the troops, because of the lack of a separate car, arrived on the regular passenger an hour later than the special. Although ordered aboard the special by Major Barlow, Capt. Busch objected, because his company could not be cared for if the men were separated in various cars, and refused to order them aboard.

The camp, carefully laid out by Col. Walter G. Rogers, assistant quartermaster-general, is rectangular in form. The tent of the governor's staff is situated on the southern line of the grounds, brigade headquarters to the west; regimental headquarters to the north, and the railroad is on the east. Beyond the camp, to the north, lies the rifle range.

Light maneuvers were begun Thursday morning, extended order drills by squads and companies being the program for the day. The drills will be gradually enlarged to battalion and regimental maneuvers, and next Tuesday will occur the first battle, an attack on an entrenched position.

Army Officers.

The following officers of the regular army have been detailed to watch the maneuvers: Col. A. Lovering, umpire; Col. Charles Booth, senior inspector; Capt. George O. Cress, Fourth cavalry, assistant umpire and inspector; Capt. Frederick Fuger, Thirteenth infantry, assistant umpire and inspector; Capt. Robert S. Welsh, Second field artillery; Lieut. W. N. Hughes, Thirteenth infantry, with the signal corps; Lieut. J. A. O'Connor, Engineer corps.

Maj. Walter Barlow, of the Detroit Light infantry, was last evening elected lieutenant-colonel of the First regiment, to succeed Ross Granger of Ann Arbor, resigned. The vote was close, the regimental officers lining up on the first ballot 14 for Barlow, 11 for Major Bersey and 12 blank.

The blank were cast by the third battalion, the officers on which wished to ascertain the sentiment of the Detroit men before casting a vote; he second resulting in the election of Major Barlow 21 to1 4, with one vote for Major Britton of Ypsilanti, and one blank.

Maj. Barlow served for a time in the Ypsilanti Light Guard, 21 years ago. Eeighteen years ago he enlisted in Co. D, Fourth infantry. He was first sergeant of Co. K, of the Thirty-second Michigan when that regiment went to Tampa during the Spanish-American war and on returning was made captain of Co. K of the Second infantry, which later became Co. F, of the First Michigan. February 22, 193, he was commissioned major of the First battalion.

A dispatch has been received stating that Gov. Warner will arrive in camp at 5:35 Monday afternoon.

The artillery and signal corps occupied the parade grounds Thursday afternoon, a number of resorters from Epworth watched the drill.

Custer's Veterans in Reunion.

Monroe, Mich., Aug. 16.—The people of Canadaigua, N. Y., will Aug. 21, see what is worth going far to behold. On that day, and in their town, are to meet as many of the veterans of all the commands of Gen. George A. Custer as are able to make their way to the place of meeting. One common badge will distinguish these men—the red necktie which is endeared to the heart of every follower of the gallant Custer. To meet them there—at the first reunion she has ever attended—will be Mrs. Custer, the devoted wife of the general. The full list of Custer's commands is as follows: First Michigan cavalry, Sixth Michigan cavalry, First Connecticut cavalry, Second Ohio cavalry, First New Hampshire cavalry, First Vermont cavalry, Second West Virginia cavalry, First New York cavalry, Fifth New York cavalry, Twenty-fifth New York cavalry, Fifteenth New York cavalry, Batteries B and L, United States artillery; Batteries G, F and K, Third United States artillery; Fifth Michigan cavalry, Seventh Michigan cavalry, First West Virginia cavalry, Eighth New York cavalry, Twenty-second New York cavalry, Seventh United States cavalry.

SEVEN HOTELS BURN,

Big Fire Occurs In Old Orchard, Maine.

ONLY ONE PERSON IS KILLED

Soda Water Tank Explodes—Others Injured—Sixteen Cottages Also Consumed by Flames — Burned Buildings Were All Wooden.

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 16.—Seven summer hotels, sixteen summer cottages and a score of buildings occupied by stores, were burned last night in a fire which swept the eastern section of the town, along the shore, causing a loss estimated at half a million dollars. The insurance is $150,000. An unknown man was killed, and two others injured severely by a soda water tank which exploded in a burning drug store and shot out among a group standing on the street. There were no other casualties.

The burned buildings were of wooden construction, and, therefore, an easy prey of the flames which spread with remarkable swiftness, reducing to ashes a section of half a hundred acres within a few hours. The burned area extends from Old Orchard avenue eastward between Milliken street and the beach for nearly half a mile, and in it were included some of the finest guest houses and private residences of this popular resort. The fire started just before eight o'clock and was under control at 11:40.

The hotels burned include the following: Florida house, Olympia house, Hotel Emerson, Hotel Emerson annex, Cleaves house, Hotel Alberta, Hotel Irving, Hotel Fiske, Linwood house, Vesper house, Hotel Arvine, Lawrence house, Lewiston house, Boyden house, Hotel De Bernier, New Palmer house and Seashore house.

Thread Mills to Close.

New York, Aug. 16.—The Clark Thread Co., which employs several thousand hands in its mills on both sides of the Passaic river, have posted a notice to the effect that the Newark mill will close down from Aug. 24 until Sept. 3, while the mill in Kearny will close on the same day and remain closed until Sept. 10. The demand for vacations has become so great that the company finds it would almost empty the mills to grant all the applications, so it has decided to let all hands rest at once.

Schimmel Jury Disagreed.

Grand Haven, Mich., Aug 16.—After being out all night, the jury in the case of William Schimmel, charged with the murder of Martin Golden, the Dennison storekeeper, reported that they had disagreed, and were discharged. They stood nine for conviction and three for acquittal. Schimmel, who was certain of being found not guilty, was remanded to jail and will doubtless be given a new trial some time in the fall.

Deadlock Continues.

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 16.—Fifty-six more ballots were taken Thursday by the ninth district convention in a fruitless attempt to select delegates to the constitutional convention. There is no prospect of a break, although the contest is good-natured.

Dies of Yellow Fever.

Washington, Aug. 16.—The yellow fever situation in Cuba is disclosed in the following cablegram to the war department from Chief Surgeon Taylor, dated Marianao, Thursday: Private, Roland Shepperd, first class hospital corps, Cienfuegos, died of yellow fever last night, no new case. In garrison, two new cases in this city."

Evelyn Thaw Goes Abroad.

Yarmouth, N. S., Aug. 16.—Mrs. Evelyn Thaw, accompanied by a young man said to be her brother, has arrived here on the steamer Prince Arthur of New York. Mrs. Thaw is going to a quiet place between Liverpool and Shelburn, where she will stay several weeks in an effort to recuperate her health.

A Safety Match.

"Papa, what is a safety match?" Mr. Henpecked (looking carefully about to see if his wife is within hearing distance)—A safety match, son, is when a baldheaded man marries an [illegible] woman.

"Regular as the sun"

Is an expression as old as the race. No doubt the rising and setting of the sun is the most regular performance in the universe unless it is the action of the liver and bowels when regulated by Dr. King's new life pills. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son, 25c.

IS NOT FORTHCOMING

No Order Yet for General Strike of Telegraphers.

SMALL HAS WITHHELD IT.

Union's President Confers With President Gompers in Chicago—Board of Trade Gets Better Service — Wall Street Operators Won't Strike.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—An order for a general strike of all union telegraphers, which President Small, of the telegraphers' union, promised would be sent out ten minutes after his arrival in Chicago, did not make its appearance last night. Mr. Small arrived in Chicago early in the evening, and an hour later was in conference with Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, Geo. W. Perkins, president of the cigarmakers' union, and Wesley Russell, national secretary of the telegraphers' union.

Labor Commissioner Neil will leave for Washington this afternoon. He took no part in last night's conference, and said he would make no effort to do so until a request for such action had been made.

During the day both telegraph companies made a material increase to their board of trade force, and the accession was greeted with lusty cheers by the traders.

New York, Aug. 16.—There are no developments in the telegraphers' strike in this city and at nearby points. All sides to the controversy continued optimistic in their public expressions.

"The strike is over," declared President Clowry, of the Western Union. "It has just begun," commented Deputy National President Percy Thomas, of the Commercial Telegraphers' union. Vice-President Nally, of the Postal Telegraph Co., who has before said that the strike was ended so far as the Postal was concerned, declared last night that his company was doing business practically as before the strike and anticipated no further trouble. Press matter has been moved with less inconvenience, and this feature of the strike has lost much of its importance.

The Wall street brokers and their operators were eliminated from the contest last night when the local telegraph union met and for the second time tabled a resolution calling upon the operators of the financial district to go out.

The strikers continue their picketing, but in an inoffensive manner.

Pittsburg, Aug. 16.—Conditions in the telegraph strike situation in the Pittsburg district are considerably improved, and all telegraph business, both commercial and press, is being handled without delay.

Cannot Awaken Him.

Toledo, O., Aug. 16.—Willard Beck, aged 22, and a member of the firm of Marks & Beck, boat builders of this city, is baffling the medical men of Toledo. He has been sleeping for the past four days and there are no signs of his awakening. Beck passed into his present condition Monday afternoon at 1:15, and while all the organs of his body seem to be performing their natural functions, all efforts to revive him have failed. Lying down in Sickles' boat house, he fell asleep. When evening came all attempts to awaken him proved futile. He continued to sleep and was carried into the residence of Mr. Sickles, where he now lies. Physicians called have been unable to do anything to awaken the man.

Los Angeles Celebrates.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 16.—The anniversary of the founding of the city of the city by Spanish padres 126 years ago, was celebrated Thursday under the auspices of the Society Lau Reina De Los Angeles. General Jose Aguilar, who commanded the Spanish forces at Pueblo and surrendered to General Fremont, was in charge of the exercises which consisted of cannon salutes, religious services and a festival. Last night a celebration reviving all the old Spanih customs of the city, named by the padres in 1781, La Nuestra Reina de Los Angeles, was held.

Toledo "Bees" Win High Honors.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 16.—Toledo company, Captain Julius Geleor, Buckeye division, was yesterday declared to be the best drilled company in the uniformed ranks Knights of the Maccabees of the World, now in biennial encampment at the Jamestown exposition. He was awarded the $800 silver trophy offered in the Maccabees contest which occurred Wednesday with Toledo, Cleveland and Auburn, N. Y., companies participating.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

Man Kills Wife, and Daughter Kills Him.

New York, Aug. 16.—George Wasser, a German, 57 years of age, murdered his wife and was in turn slain by his daughter, Mrs. Langlotz, at the home of the women in Harlem, Thursday. Wasser fired upon his wife and then exchanged shots with the daughter. The latter was not wounded. Mrs. Wasser soon succumbed to her injuries and her husband died a little later. The daughter was arrested. She asserted that the father had persistently practiced cruelties upon his family.

When Mrs. Langlotz was arraigned before Magistrate House for shooting her father, she said:

"My father was shooting at my mother, so I sent Annie, my younger sister, to fetch a revolver. My father was still firing at my mother when I was given the revolver, and it was not until I saw the burning clothes on my mother's breast and heard her cries that I raised my revolver and fired at the man. I fired four shots at him as he sneaked through the rooms. I don't care what happens to him or me."

No one had told her that her mother had died. Magistrate House was in tears. He directed that the probation officer find some home for Mrs. Langlotz and her sister until the coroner needed her. The magistrate said he would not send her to prison and told her he would aid her all he could.

BACKS INTO CAR.

Train Causes Bad Wreck and Death to Three on Crossing.

New York, Aug. 16.—A work train on the Long Island railroad backed into a crowded street car at a crossing on Coney Island avenue, Brooklyn, on Thursday, hurling the trolley from its tracks and causing the death of three passengers and the injury of sixteen others. The dead:

Oscar Johnson, aged 19 years, killed outright; Mrs. Anna Cohan, aged 40 years, died while being removed to a hospital; unidentified man, about 22 years old, believed to be a painter, died while being taken to a hospital.

Of the injured, James Ducey, Fritz Gerhardt, Herbert Rex and Mary Sellich required hospital treatment. The others were attended by ambulance surgeons. The crossing at this point is hidden from distant view on the one side by a high board fence and on the other by a row of trees. Stationed at the crossing is a flagman, who, according to the motorman of the car and the engineer of the work train, signaled each a clear track. All three men were arrested.

The conductor of the trolley car could not be found following the accident. He is charged by the contractor for whom the work train was being operated, with having violated the rules of the street car company in having failed to run ahead and make sure that the way was clear before sending his car over the crossing.

Mysterious Envelope.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 16.—Among the papers which were laid before the state board of revenue commissioners at their meeting Thursday, was a sealed envelope which has been in the possession of the state treasurer since 1881. This envelope was sent to the capitol in that year, and is marked "Contract of C. F. McKay with the Girard Title and Trust Co." It bears the injunction that it is not to be opened until July 4. 2000, when the proceeds are to be applied to the state debt, and indorsed across the face, in the handwriting of ex-Gov. Hoyt, is an order that the request shall be honored. It is said that the envelope contains an order to turn over to the state $20,000 worth of state bonds held by that company. The commissioners ordered that the envelope be kept as directed.

Two Monarchs Meet.

Ischl, Austria, Aug. 16.—King Edward arrived here Thursday on his visit to Emperor Francis Joseph. The exchanges between the two monarchs were cordial and certain political matters were discussed and cleared up satisfactorily. Emperor Francis Joseph met his guests at the Gmunden railroad station and greeted them heartily. The emperor then boarded the train which had brought the king, and the suites of the two monarchs were introduced. The train bearing the two sovereigns came in here at noon. This royal visit is marked with an entire absence of official display. After a formal exchange of visits the emperor took his guest to a family breakfast at the imperial villa.

A young widow has a peculiar way of seeing a man without looking at him.

Men past sixty in danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure seould be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo. writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate glands and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am 91 years old." Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh

A man doesn't have to wear good clothes if he can afford not to.

"We never repent of eating too little" was one of the ten rules of life of Thos. Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule applies to every one without exception during this hot weather, because it is hard for food, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach as much as possible by the use of a little Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Some men stand just inside the door ready to grasp opportunity by the back of the neck when it knocks.

Hay fever and summer colds.

Victims of hay fever will experience great benefit by taking Foley's Honey and Tar, as it stops difficult breathing immediately and heals the inflamed air passages, and even if it should fail to cure you it will give instant relief. The genuine is in a yellow package. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh

It's advice when you give it and a lecture when you receive it.

John Riha, a prominent dealer of Vining, Ia., says: "I have been selling DeWitt's kidney and bladder pills for about a year and they give better satisfaction than any pill I ever sold. There are a dozen people here who have used them and they give perfect satisfaction in every case. I have used them myself with fine results. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

A real good man doesn't have to use words to tell it.

Warning.

If you have kidney and bladder trouble and do not use Foley's Kidney Cure, you will have only yourself to blame for results, as it positively cures all forms of kidney and bladder diseases. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Many a man has been forced to ask for a handout because he was unable to get his hand in.

Don't accept a cough cure that you may be told is just as good as Kennedy's laxative cough syrup, because it isn't just as good—there is quite a difference. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup acts gently upon the bowels and clears the whole system of coughs and colds. It promptly relieves inflammation of the throat and allays irritation. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

What a New Jersey editor says.

M. T. Lynch Editor of the Phillipsburg, N. J. Daily Post writes: "I have used many kinds of medicines for coughs and colds in my family but never anything so good as Foley's Honey and Tar. I cannot say too much in praise of it. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Two Types of Biographical Writing.

It is an interesting fact in the history of literary genres that two of the great examples of biographical writing occur almost side by side. Less than a decade separates the completion of Johnson's "Lives of the Poets" from the publication of his own life by Boswell. Yet with the latter book a new type of biography came into being. Johnson, in the main, had, like most of his predecessors, followed a simple narrative and expository method, prefixing a plain story of the poet's life to a systematic account of his character and a critical estimate of his works. He gathered his facts and impressions together and spoke for the author and for himself. Boswell, on the other hand, making use of a more dramatic method, succeeded in his attempt to let the author reveal himself, and, instead of an exposition of character, painted a picture of personality to which his own comments were subordinate. What we see as a type of mind and character in Johnson's work we see as a living man in Boswell.—William T. Brewster in Forum.

Wise Girl.

Now, there was a certain girl, and she had three wooers. The first wooer said she was the whole world to him, but she frowned upon his suit. The second wooer said she was the sun, moon and stars to him, but she bade him be on his way.

"To me," said the third, "you are a young woman of agreeable manners, with eyes that might be a little bluer, with a nose that is a wee bit puggy and with a few freckles and an annoying habit of blurting out your thoughts."

She married the third wooer. Being pressed for an explanation of her conduct, she said:

"My goodness! I think I was sensible. I married the only one that had courage enough to tell me of my faults before marriage, instead of waiting to throw them up to me afterward."—Life.

Slashing of Salads.

Too many people who are well bred in nearly every other respect are guilty of the solecism—to call it by the mildest name—of cutting up their salad on the plate. Of course salad has sometimes to be reduced to lower dimensions, so to speak, but it need not be done by the wholesale or quite in the businesslike fashion practiced by some. Grasping a knife in one hand and a fork in the other, they slash away at the inoffensive green stuff with a vigor and a noise of a miniature mowing machine until the bruised leaves are converted into shreds of their former selves. There is common sense in the convention that prohibits such a course. Nearly all green salads are broken into pieces of convenient size before sending to the table. Even when these are too large the leaf should be quietly divided with a fork.

Famous Boys.

A boy used to crush the flowers to get their color and painted the white side of his father's cottage in Tyrol with all sorts of pictures, which the mountaineer gazed at as wonderful. He was the great artist Titian.

An old painter watched a little fellow who amused himself making drawings of his pot and brushes, easel and stool, and said, "That boy will beat me some day." So he did, for he was Michael Angelo.

A German boy was reading a blood and thunder novel. Right in the midst of it he said to himself: "Now this will never do. I get too much excited over it. I can't study so well after it. So here goes!" And he flung the book out into the river. He was Fichte, the great German philosopher.

Monkeys Have No Fleas.

It is curious that monkeys should be thought to be infested with what naturalists call the Pulex irritans and what ordinary people know as the flea. As every zoologist is aware, monkeys have neither fleas nor any other parasite whatsoever, in which of course they differ vastly from man. As a matter of fact, when monkeys begin to pick each other about in the friendly way we have all observed they merely detach bits of hardened sebaceous matter which has been excreted by the glands, and the flea idea is entirely fabulous.

Her Sun Spots.

Sir Robert Ball on one occasion, after delivering a lecture on "Sun Spots and Solar Chemistry," met a young lady who expressed her regret that she had missed hearing him on the previous evening. "Well, you see," he said, "I don't know that it would have interested you particularly, as it was all about sun spots." "Why," she replied, "it would have interested me extremely, for I have been a martyr to freckles all my life."

Portuguese Bullights.

At Portuguese bullights not only are the points of the bulls' horns sawed off, but the stumps that remain are carefully padded. The horses also are ridden with consummate skill, and every precaution is taken to prevent the bull touching them. Banderillas are used by the men on foot and on horseback and are planted in the neck of the bull, which irritates the bull, but cannot be described as torture. Just as much skill is shown as in a Spanish bullfight, and there may be just as beautiful a display of costumes, but there is no killing either of the bull or Clever Mother Wood Duck.

How does the mother wood duck get her brood of twelve to eighteen ducklings from her hollow tree to the creek? Hunters, fishermen and nature students have tried to answer this question, and many are the guesses at the riddle. Mr. William Brewster watched an American golden eye that had a nest in the hollow tree overhanging the water until he heard her, after she had made an inspection of the surroundings, utter a "quack" that brought her brood pellmell out of the tree and tumbling down into the water. A magazine writer says he has seen the young ducks climb out of the hollow down the tree and walk to the water, which was near by. Others believe that the mother carries them in her bill, taking them by their wings; others that she carries them on her back.—Country Life in America.

Origin of "the Levant."

Nowadays "the Levant" means solely the eastern Mediterranean region. But it really signifies the east in a general sense—the region of the rising sun, in fact—being derived from the French "lever," to rise. By "the high Levant" Bacon meant the far east. In the eighteenth century Chambers' Encyclopedia explained that "Levant" applied to any country to the eastward of one, and in this sense Evelyn wrote of "more Levantine parts than Italy." "Levant," indeed, was interchangeable with "orient," just as "ponent" was with "occident." So we find Milton writing of "Levant" and "Ponent" winds.—London Chronicle.

A Curious Watch.

In the year 1764 a handsome and curious present was made to George III. by Arnold, a celebrated London watchmaker. It was a repeating timepiece, set in a ring, and was about the size of an old fashioned silver three cent piece. Though it weighed less than five pennyweights, it was composed of 120 different pieces and was provided with the first ruby cylinder ever made. For this little mechanical marvel Arnold received from the king a present of 500 guineas.

The Tailor Knew.

"I should like," the man cautiously explained to his tailor, "to have a little pocket, a very, very small pocket, one you could hardly see, you know, put somewhere, say in the hem of my trousers or in the waistband, eh, where it couldn't be so easily found. You understand?"

"I see," said the tailor. "You are married now."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

BASE BALL

In an evenly contested game Tuesday at Lansing Tecumseh lost to the Senators by a score of 2 to 0. Both Teal and Todd, the opposing twirlers, pitched shut-out ball. The latter received magnificent support while an error by Wolfe allowed the winning runs in the fourth. Teal started the run-getting by giving Kearney transportation with one out. Lawrence hit for two sacks.

With runners on second and third Wolfe threw over Bradley' head in an effort to catch the runner at the plate and two runs resulted.

Score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E

Two base hits, McDermitt, Lawrence, Palmer, Preston; sacrifice hits, Slear, Bradley; stolen bases, Morrissey; first base on balls, off Teal 2, off Todd 3; first base on errors, Lansing 1, Tecumseh 1; left on bases, Tecumseh 3, Lansing 5; struck out, by Teal 5, by Todd 3; umpire O'Toole; attendance 475.

Hard hitting and fast fielding marked the game at Lansing Wednesday, both teams meeting the ball well. Hughey had two bad innings in which Tecumseh scored four runs. Lansing opened good but was unable to touch Railing for only one run after the first inning, three of her runners being caught at the plate.

Score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E

Two base hits, Preston, Slear, Wagner, Kearney, Mauch, Todd; three base hit, Bradley; sacrifice hits, Slear, McDermitt, 2, Agler; stolen bases, Wagner, Wolfe, Burns, Hughey; first base on balls, off Railing 4, off Hughey 1; hit by pitcher, Wolfe, Burns 2; left on bases, Tecumseh 7, Lansing 11; struck out, by Railing 6, by Hughey 3; umpire O'Toole; attendance 575.

Tecumseh won a 1 to 0 victory from Lansing yesterday by a great ninth inning rally. With runners on first and second and two out, Preston hit a two bagger to right that scored Bradley and won the game. Wolfe was caught at the plate attempting to score also on the play, Kearney making a great throw to Pierce, who relayed it to Mauch ahead of the runner. Pierce pitched the most spectacular game seen this season, getting out of many tight places by the grandest kind of work. Doty pitched steady ball and received fine support. The Senators also fielded finely.

Run, Bradley; two base hits, Lawrence, Preston; sacrifice hits, Hillinger, Doty, Pierce; stolen bases, Hillinger, Somerlott, McDermott, Morrissey, Kearney; first base on balls, off Doty 3, off Pierce 4; hit by pitched ball, Wolfe; first base on errors, Tecumseh 2, Lansing 1; left on bases, Tecumseh 8, Lansing 8; struck out, by Doty 4, by Pierce 10; double play, Wolfe (unassisted); umpire, O'Toole; attendance 375.

The limit of life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that limitation of human life is far below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 50 is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son. 50c.

Coffee Value

If you are paying 25c a pound for coffee, you ought to be enioying good cup quality. The price you pay does not fix the quality you receive; different sellers give different qualities for the money.

LOWRY'S BLEND at 25c the pound, is a little bit better for the money. Years of experimenting has fixed our standard high and this coffee is now no experiment. Its increasing sale together with its ever repeating orders from old time users, is mighty convincing proof that it contains everything in the quality line that is claimed for it.

You are the judge. We ask your consideration of the evidence contained in a cup of this delicious coffee.

Don't "get along" with a coffee that doesn't suit your taste, because you think it is as good as you ought to expect for the money. Make your next order for LOWRY'S 25c BLEND.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM WIGHTMAN.

Tecumseh, Mich., Aug. 14, 1907.

EDITOR TECUMSEH HERALD:—

With your permission I will say a few words to the public, in reply to what yourself and my friend Combs says in your issue of August 13th. Now I am going to say to the public that I think Mayor Combs is just as good a fellow as you picture him to be. But I do not want the people to believe that because he is a good fellow he cannot be mistaken. The mayor is supposed to be a creature of the statutes and has no power other than he derives from the charter and the charter says, chapter VII (86) Sec. 1, "Every village subject to the provisions of this act shall, in addition to such other powers as are conferred, have the general power and authority granted in this chapter and the council may pass such ordinances in relation thereto as it may deem proper, namely to restrain and prevent vice and immorality;

Sub division 9. To abate nuisances and preserve the public health; under chapter XV (s) page 161 of ordinances, Public Health and Nuisances, Sec. 564, page 164. Just read the 11 subdivisions of this section relating to nuisances and the punishment for neglect of their observance, a penalty of $25 may be enforced. And the mayor says, "I have actually witnessed the throwing of refuse and slops against board fences and on shed roofs." Now I am astonished, the mayor appoints the health officer, the health committee, the marshal and policemen to carry these ordinances into effect and he says he has seen these things, but he has not set his officers in motion.

Did the mayor when he took his oath of office, swear to publish stories of violations of the laws and ordinances? No his oath of office says to enforce the laws and ordinances of the village of Tecumseh to the best of his ability. He is the moving power, he can say to the health officer, go abate that nuisance, or to the board of health, go order those people to desist and use the marshall and police to enforce his orders.

But a more serious matter is being divulged since this agitation has begun. The Chapter says the council shall make an estimate of the necessary expenses of the village, each fund to be specified, and the amounts so specified, shall be certified by the president and clerk to the assessor who shall ascertain, the rate per cent, and spread the tax. and as I remember it, there was so much for general fund and so much for road fund, no other fund created: I am told by President Combs that $1600 worth of water pipe has been purchased this year. In the proceedings of June 17th a resolution to pay Riggs & Sherman $375 to make necessary plats of the village for a complete sewer system from what fund came this money.

Section (195) page 50 of Charter says, "No money shall be drawn from the treasury except in persuance of the authority and appropriation of the council, and upon the warrant of the clerk, countersigned by the president such warrant shall specify the fund from which it is payable, and shall be paid from no other fund, no warrant shall be drawn upon the treasury after the fund from which it should be paid has been exhausted, and such warrant shall be void as against the village. The records do not show an appropriation by the council for such fund; don't it look Mr. Mayor and clerk, as if there might some day be a personal liability. Wake up your village attorney, and find out what you have a right to do at the expense of the public. Now as to the criticism I am receiving by way of editorial mention, and from our mutual friend, E. R. Mead, I do not care to reply, at least until you move into and become a voter in the village and Mead gets upon the assessment roll, at least $3 for a female dog; I am open for discussion with residents, who have a financial interest in the sewer.

Yours for fair play,
JAS. W. WIGHTMAN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Messrs. Zerlant & Vedder

Will on or about Sept. 1, 1907, engage in a general carriage repair and paint shop. All workmanship will be fully guaranteed. The shop will be located in Tecumseh on Pearl street in the first building south of Thos. Elliott's blacksmith shop.

THE MASK OF HEALTH.

Few people are really as well as they look. Cause and remedy.

Many people in Tecumseh both men and women, who believe themselves to be in perfect health are often in the greatest danger.

Indigestion, which is so common a trouble, is the principle cause of the greater share of the general poor health. It has misleading symptoms that seem to have no reference to the stomach, such as headache, sleeplessness, specks before the eyes, pains in the back and side, etc.

The success of physicians everywhere with the prescription that is now embodied in Mi-o-na stomach tablets, has made this remedy in the last few years the acknowleged specific for the treatment of stomach diseases. The secret of this success lies in the fact that Mi-o-na is prepared expressly to strengthen the digestive organs and its use for a few days puts the whole digestive system in such shape that it can care for all of the food that is eaten without pain or distress.

Simply take a Mi-o-na stomach tablet before each meal and on retiring, and it will so strengthen the stomach that you can enjoy a hearty meal without the least fear of distress or suffering.

C. A. Wright & Son give an absolute unqualified guarantee that your money will be refunded unless Mi-o-na cures. They take the whole risk and the remedy will not cost you a penny unless it cures you.

SALE OF ALL SALES.

S. W. Anderson & Son.

On Monday and Tuesday the store of S. W. Anderson & Son will be closed in order to make the final arrangements for their mamonth money-saving sale which opens Wednesday at 9 a. m. Over $25,000 worth of high grade merchandise will be sold at astonishing low prices.

There are ten days only for you to take advantage of these tremendous sacrifices. Watch for the red canvass signs and the name of S. W. Anderson & Son.

Frayer Reunion.

The first annual reunion of the Frayer family was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Frayer on Kilbuck street Wednesday afternoon. Sixty eight guests were present from Battle Creek, Marshall, Grand Ledge, Dayton, O., Coldwater, Olivet, Deerfield, Britton, Saginaw and Eaton Rapids to help make this occasion one never to be forgotten.

At noon a sumptuous dinner was served under a tent on the lawn, all doing justice to the tempting viands placed before them. A short business meeting followed and officers were elected for the ensuing year.

Pres.—M. Frayer.

Sec and Treas.—F. H. Tunison.

Among the guests present were H. H. Frayer of Dayton, O., and sister, Mrs. Nancy Nye of Girard, Mich., who met for the first time during an absence of 48 years.

Mock Wedding.

Miss Ernestine Anderson was hostess to a company of friends at her home Tuesday evening, a mock wedding being the principle feature. Promptly at 9 o'clock to the strains of Lohengrin wedding march played by Miss Ethel Ames of Bay City, the groom, Miss Grace Neeley, and best man, Miss Hazel Zimmerman, stationed at the foot of the stair case, awaited the approach of the bride, Miss Edith Shull, and her maid of honor, Miss Stella Zimmerman.

Following them came Miss Lula Aylesworth, carrying the ring on a silver tray and Miss Ruth Keeney, who spoke the impressive words. After congratulations a dainty luncheon was served. Other guests present were Misses Florence Rosacrans, Nell Stringham, Alice Combs, Margaret Elliott.

Endorsed by the county.

"The most popular remedy in Otsego county and the best friend of my family writes Wm. Dietz, editor of the Otsego Journal, Gilberterville, N. Y., "is Dr. King's New Discovery. It has proved to be a sure cure for coughs and colds, making short work of the worst of them. We always keep a bottle in the house. I believe it to be the most valuable prescription known for throat and lung diseases." Guaranteed to never disappoint the taker by C. A. Wright & Son. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

Lyman Howe's Exclusive Views.

The magnitude, novelty and gorgeousness of the Elks' parade and decorations at Philadelphia are admirably reproduced in Hyman H. Howe's new program to be seen at the New Bradley opera house Monday, Aug. 19. As Mr. Howe was so fortunate as to be granted special facilities to photograph these scenes from the official reviewing stand, the audience will see the parade from the same commanding viewpoint from which Mayor Reyburn saw it. Another picture which could also be secured only through special concessions granted by the Minister of State Railways of Austria, shows Switzerland as seen from the front of a locomotive. The crowning feature of the new program, could be secured again only through most important concessions granted by no less authority than the Lords of the Admiralty, England. Naturally this great series can be seen only at this exhibition as Mr. Howe controls the sole American rights. It reveals the complex machinery and the splendid majesty of modern battleships as it never has been revealed before. They are shown ploughing the deep at full speed, the very personification of terrible strength.

LITTLE POCKET PHYSICIAN.

Hyomei is guaranteed by C. A. Wright to cure catarrh.

Thousands who have been cured by Hy-o-mei call the inhaler that comes with every outfit the "Little Pocket Physician," as it is so small that it can be carried in the pocket or purse.

There is really no excuse whatever for anyone having catarrh now that Hy-o-mei is so readily obtainable. If you have any doubt about its value, C. A. Wright will let you have a complete outfit, with the understanding that unless it cures catarrh, it will not cost you a cent.

Do not delay longer the use of Hy-o-mei if you suffer with catarrh. This is a purely local disease and Hy-o mei goes right to the spot where the catarrh germs are present, destroys them, soothes and heals all inflammation and makes a permanent and lasting cure.

The complete Hy-o-mei outfit consists of the "Little Pocket Physician" and a bottle of Hy-o-mei and costs only $1.00, making it the most economical as well as the only guaranteed treatment for the cure of catarrh. Remember that Hy-o-mei cures catarrh without stomach dosing, applying the medication and healing where the disease germs are present.

IT'S ALWAYS BAD.

The best of backs are bad when they ache, and Tecumseh people know it.

A bad back is always bad.
Bad at night when bedtime comes,
Just as bad in the morning.
Ever try Doan's Kidney Pills for it?
Know they cure backache—cure every kidney ill?

If you don't, some Tecumseh people do.

Read a case of it

Mrs. Geo. Teachout, living on Oneida street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. Last fall I began to have a great deal of trouble with my kidneys causing intense pains in the small of my back and extending to my shoulder blades. At times when I would bend over sharp stitches of pain would catch me and I would not be able to straighten for a few seconds. At night I could not rest on account of the frequent action of the kidneys. I doctored awhile with a physician but received no benefit to speak of. I heard a great deal about the good results effected by Doan's Kidney Pills so I got a box and began using them. I soon noticed the good effects and I continued taking them until I was entirely cured. I cheerfully recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to any one afflicted with kidney trouble.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's, and take no other.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The Tucaloosa cotton mills at Cottondale, Ala., were destroyed by fire Thursday. Loss $300,000.

Miss Kate McKnight of Pittsburg, prominent as a club woman and philanthropist, and president of twenty women's clubs about the country, died at Danville, Pa., Thursday.

Assistant Secretary of War Oliver, who has been spending his vacation at Murray Bay, Canada, has returned to Washington and resumed his duties at the war department. He will act as secretary of war during the absence of Secretary Taft on his Philippine trip.

Miss Zela Gibbs, daughter of the late Stanton Gibbs of South Carolina, a sister of the late Mrs. John Jacob Astor, and aunt of William Waldorf Astor, died at her home in Newport, R. I., Thursday. She was 75 years old and well known in New York and Newport society.

Seven employes at the South End Gasometer works of the Boston Consolidated Gas Co., in Boston, had their clothes practically torn from their bodies and were terribly burned late Thursday, when in some unknown manner an explosion of gas occurred at one of the boiler rooms. The condition of the victims is critical.

Designs for a coin to be minted in Philadelphia, which Augustus St. Gaudens, the distinguished sculptor made shortly before his death, have been found unsuitable in their present shape for execution with the machinery in use at the mint. Hence, contrary to a current report, the government has not accepted any of them. The general approval which was expressed by the president is not conclusive in an official sense.

Theodore Olson, former Danish vice-consul at Omaha, Neb., and at at one time city comptroller of Omaha, is missing from the city, and it is alleged that his accounts with the Danish government are short about $13,000. The shortage is on account of estates in Nebraska which came into Olsen's hands as trustee for the government of Denmark. Consul Oldenberg of Chicago is making an investigation of Olsen's affairs and has taken steps to find him.

The typhoid fever epidemic at the state hospital for the insane in Trenton, N. J., was responsible for the death of Dr. Edward Evans, a distinguished graduate of Princeton university. Dr. Evans was 28 years of age. He had been an inmate of the asylum for several years as the result of overstudy and overwork following his graduation from Princeton. While at Princeton he won more prizes than any other student ever registered at the institution.

FOR PILFERING MAILS

Prominent Jackson Man Arrested and Taken to Detroit.

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 16.—Frank P. Van Horn, for years a trusted employe of the Jackson postoffice, now occupying the position of superintendent of carriers, a prominent Elk, a hale fellow well met, living in one of the fashionable residence districts of the city and father of a beautiful and talented young lady, has been arrested on a charge of pilfering from the mails.

Van Horn was arrested Thursday by Postoffice Inspector Birdseye of Detroit, but so quietly was the entire matter carried out that the local authorities were unaware of the arrest and it came as a stunning blow to the few friends who were made aware of the facts.

For some time letters containing money have been missed from the local office and the postoffice inspector had been detailed on the case.

Wednesday, decoy letters addressed to the Magic Footdraft Co., of Jackson, and containing marked bills were sent through the mails. They were not delivered and the inspector had the entire night force at the postoffice searched in a locked room in the postoffice, but found nothing. Later the day force was subjected to the same search, but as before it proved fruitless. Later an envelope which had contained the bills was found on Van Horn's desk.

The inspector then went to a cigar store which Van Horn is said to be in the habit of frequenting, and found him.

Van Horn was taken to Detroit on Thursday afternoon. He protests his innocence and says he will be able to explain all.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 16.—Van Horn was arraigned before Commissioner Carrie Davidson in Detroit, pleaded not guilty and was released on his own recognizance to appear to furnish bail Saturday. The preliminary hearing will take place Aug. 24. The release was allowed on recommendation of Inspector Birdseye and agreed to by Assistant United States District Attorney J. V. D. Wilcox. Van Horn returned to Jackson last night.

NAVAL RESERVES GROWL.

Some of Them Object to Treatment on Austria Trip.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 16.—Too much work and a sudden change from the usual dining-room courses to navy rations, is said to have been the cause of complaint among many of the naval reserves who went east and brought the Don Juan de Austria into Detroit waters. It is said that some of the men who went with an idea that it was to be a vacation trip had the illusion dispelled shortly after the homeward trip began. There was plenty of work for every member of the crew. There was also some complaint because the crew was not given shore leave at Montreal, but it is said this liberty was dispensed with because it was feared the 20 regulars might not return to the boat on time.

KILLS HUSBAND.

Tragic Affair Takes Place in Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 16.—Jas. A. Conley was shot and killed at 88 Commerce street Thursday afternoon, by Madeline Conley, his wife. The man came home at 2 o'clock and found the door of the house locked. He started to climb into a window, and got inside when the woman shot him. He ran outside and fell dead. She ran after him, and held his head in her lap trying to revive him, repenting of her crime as soon as it was committed. It is said another man was the cause of the trouble. The woman was immediately placed under arrest.

Little is known of the couple, who moved into the house only last week.

Finds $1,000 Pearl.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 16.—W. F. Russell, an express wagon driver, who for several years has spent his summer vacation clamming in this vicinity, was rewarded in his search when he picked from a mussel a perfect pearl worth $1,000. He secured also several imperfect gems, aggregating in Taft Will Visit Japan.

Washington, Aug. 16.—Secretary Taft will spend three or four days at Yokohama, Japan, on his way to the Philippines. He will disembark from the regular line steamer at Yokohama and remain there until the time for the departure of the steamer for Manila, which leaves from Kobe, to which place the secretary will go by rail from Yokohama.

Want Longer Vacation.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 16.—Though they have a week more this summer than they have had in other vacations, there is no sign that the boys and girls of Detroit are in any hurry to hear the school bell ringing on Monday, Sept. 9. Indeed, Supt. Martindale has received scores of letters, begging him to back up the opening day to Sept. 16 or 23.

Dowager Empress to Abdicate.

London, Aug. 16.—Dispatches from Shanghai contain the interesting news that Tsi Hsu, the empress dowager of China, has announced her determination to abdicate at the next Chinese new year. She desires to hand over the care of state to the emperor, and, it is stated, a secret decree has been issued calling a meeting of the Grand council to make the change. The dowager empress, now 72 years old, has been supreme in Chinese affairs for many years.

Two Epitaphs.

An epitaph from a cemetery in Bridgton, Me.:

She was—words are too feeble to tell what,
Think what a wife should be;
She was all that.

This from Bar Harbor, Me.:

I reach my arms out fondly,
But they clasp the open air.
There is nothing of my darling
But the shoes he used to wear.

The Good and Beautiful.

To see the good and the beautiful and to have no strength to live it is only to be Moses on the mountain of Nebo, with the land at your feet and no power to enter. It would be better not to see it.—Olive Schreiner.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

MICHIGAN STATE FAIR

DETROIT
August 29, 30, 31 and Sept. 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6

THE 1907 STATE FAIR will be the largest and best ever held in Michigan. There will be double the usual number of exhibits and amusements, hundreds of which are new and were never before shown at any fair. Every building will be filled to its utmost capacity. Every inch of room for exhibits will be taken, and the total number of exhibits will almost double that of any previous year.

The grounds will be open every evening. There will be something doing every minute. Every known convenience has been installed at a great expense for the comfort of the people who will attend this great exhibition.

The live stock and poultry exhibits will be equal to that shown at any fair in the United States. The best stock in the State and a number of show animals from other States will be shown. One of the interesting features will be the live stock parade, in which all prize winners will take part.

The fruit exhibit promises to be one of the best ever shown, many of the more prominent fruit growing counties have arranged to make special county exhibits.

Every available inch of space in the Machinery Section has been taken, and many new machines and devices never before shown, will be seen at the State Fair.

The vehicle exhibit will be larger than ever.

The race programme covers a period of six days and the purses total $9,600, as follows:

Saturday, Aug. 31st
Free-for-All Pace $500
2:23 Pace 500
2:30 Trot 500
3-year-old stake for Trotters 300

Monday, Sept. 2nd

2:20 Pace 500

Friday, Sept. 6th
2:35 Pace $500
2:35 Trot 500
2:25 Trot 500

There will be a number of interesting free attractions in front of the Grand Stand every day.

The "Wanderlust" will fairly bulge with good, clean attractions, such as animal shows, ostrich farm, theatres, Ferris wheel, merry-go-round and a score or more of clean attractions which have withstood the test given by Manager Floyd to entitle them to a place in that section.

No gambling, fakes or "Skin" games will be allowed on the grounds.

There will be plenty of places to eat, sleep, drink and rest.

Come to the State Fair at Detroit. Meet your friends here. You cannot afford to stay away. A good time and a fountain of valuable knowledge will be yours if you come.

Reduced rates on all railroads. Arrange now for this trip. You owe yourself this vacation where you can combine knowledge-getting with pleasure.

We urge you all to come.

RAIN HAMPERS BOYS.

Soldiers Forced to Postpone Maneuvers and Target Work.

GOVERNOR MADE SHORT CALL

Secretary Shumway, of State Board of Health, Investigates Sanitary Conditions—Finds Them Satisfactory—Insufficient Water Supply.

Camp McGurrin, Ludington, Mich., Aug. 20.—Although Monday promised well for the maneuvers a severe rain came up early in the afternoon, and the soldiers returned from outpost duty thoroughly soaked. On account of the storm the pistol contest for the Thielman trophy and the military order of foreign wars prize was postponed until Tuesday.

F. W. Shumway, secretary of the state board of health, inspected the camp Monday morning, and expressed himself as being greatly pleased with the sanitary conditions. He found, however, that the water supply was inadequate and recommended the installation of more hydrants. The recommendation of Col. Henkel concerning garbage disposal met with hearty approval.

Gov. Warner arrived at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon and proceeded to the Stearns hotel, as the weather did not permit of his visiting the camp.

A reception was held at the Elks' club early in the evening, followed by a ball at the Stearns. The governor leaves today for Thompsonville, but he will return Wednesday for the brigade review.

Where Is Sunshine's Mamma?

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 20.—With a baggage check pinned on her little dress, a pretty, blue-eyed miss about four years old was taken off a G. R. & I. passenger train from the north, Sunday, and placed in charge of the depot matron. The babe lisped that she expected mamma to meet her; but no mamma came and after waiting some time the child was taken to police headquarters. Now the police matron is puzzling about to the strange little traveler. Blue eyes says her name is Vivian Sunshine Witt. The conductor who carried the child from his train says a woman got on the car with her at Lake City, but got off at Leroy, leaving the babe alone. At the police station little Sunshine plays with her callers as though she might be in her own private nursery. The authorities are investigating.

Whistles Blow; Bells Ring.

Saginaw, Mich., Aug. 20.—At one o'clock Monday afternoon every whistle and bell in the city was turned loose to signalize the formal inauguration of the social festivities in connection with the semi-centennial of the municipal life of Saginaw in conjunction, too, with Old Home week. The city is in gala attire and the elaborate decorations in national colors with the civic colors of black, white and yellow representing the coal, salt and pine, together with the magnificent electrical display, has never been approached in this section of the state.

M. A. C. Professor Dies.

Michigan Agricultural College, Mich., Aug. 20.—As the result of an operation for appendicitis, Prof. E. E. Bogue, head of the forestry department, died at his home here early Monday morning. Prof. Bogue had suffered previous attacks of this malady, but none appeared so serious as this last illness. Prof. Bogue was 42 years old, and a native of Ohio. He was graduated from the Ohio State university, and became professor of forestry and kindred subjects in Oklahoma. He came from Oklahoma here. He leaves a widow and an adopted daughter.

Fall From Car Fatal.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 20.—Injuries received Sunday night when he was brushed from the running board of a Trumbull line car by a passing trolley, near Michigan avenue and Cass street, resulted in the death of Willie Shea, aged 12, of 129 Howard street. The little boy's skull was fractured. He expired in Emergency hospital about 2 o'clock yesterday morning. Coroner Parker is investigating the circumstances attending the accident.

Falls Off Dock and Drowns.

Marine City, Mich., Aug. 20.—The seven-year-old daughter of Joseph Blattert, while playing with a few companions at the foot of Broadway, fell off the dock and was drowned about 7 o'clock Monday evening. The accident happened just as the steamer City of Toledo was passing on her north-bound trip. Dragging the river commenced immediately and the body was recovered.

MAKING THE DIRT FLY

Canal Workers Could Use More Funds Than Appropriated.

CHANCE TO MAKE A SAVING.

Time of Its Construction May Be Shortened by Government Advancing Funds and Then Letting Congress Make Up Deficiency.

Washington, Aug. 20.—Conditions on the Panama canal have reached a state of gravity due to the fact that construction work is developing faster than was contemplated when the estimates for expenditures during the fiscal year 1908 were made nearly a year ago.

The estimate is made that about $8,000,000 in excess of the appropriations could be used to advantage in pushing forward the work during the present year, and Col. Goethals, the engineer in charge, thinks it would be in the interest of true economy to proceed along this basis and ask congress at its next session to make good the deficiency, as the argument is made that with the present organization and progress, the waterway can be completed more rapidly than by restricting expenditure within the appropriations now available.

Already reports show that the monthly estimated expenditure for labor is being considerably exceeded and work at the Gatun dam has progressed faster than was anticipated. In a statement on the subject given out at the office of the Isthmian Canal commission, the situation is outlined as follows:

"The work on the locks and dams on each terminus of the canal has been opened and will be pushed vigorously during the year, while very little was expended at those places during the fiscal year which terminated June 30, 1907.

"The time of completion of the canal appears to depend now upon work at Gatun, rather than the work of excavation which has hitherto been generally taken as the determining feature. The progress in this direction has been faster than anticipated and the money available would not be sufficient to supply the necessary plant to begin laying the concrete in the locks and dams during the next fiscal year, although progress already made indicates that such a beginning is advisable.

"If the funds requested are not provided it will of course be necessary to reduce the rate of expenditure to keep within the appropriations on hand."

Japs Find Seal Islands.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 20.—The Japanese engaged in the delimination of the boundaries to be recognized in the new Russo-Jap treaty, discovered five islands hitherto unknown, each swarming with fur seal. They are near Walrus island, north Saghalien, and will now become the care of Japan, which owns one other seal island, Robben bank, secured from Russia after the war. She is protecting the islands with gunboats.

Yellow Jack Claims Another.

Washington, Aug. 20.—Under Monday's date, Chief Surgeon Taylor, at Mariano, Cuba, reporting on the fever situation, says Private Robert Wallace died Sunday from the disease. He adds that with the exception of two serious cases the others are doing well and there are no new cases in the command.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Rev. A. T. Ferguson, presiding elder of the Grand Traverse district, had his foot badly crushed by an incoming Pere Marquette train at Traverse City Monday evening. He was standing on a car platform and was caught between cars when the train was stopped.

James Harper will be brought to Owosso from Defiance, O., to answer to the charge of the theft of a fine dog from William Whitehead. It is alleged that Harper forced an entrance to the house through a window while the family was away.

Albert Sigler, an escaped patient of the Northern Michigan Insane asylum at Traverse City, was captured in a haystack by Sheriff Clinger, three miles from Muskegon, and returned to the institution. Sigler was headed for Bay City afoot. He burrowed his way into the hay or straw stacks and slept days and made his way nights.

AFTER LABOR LEADERS

Injunction Asked for American Federation Men and Others.

PRACTICALLY A TEST CASE

Manufacturers Hope to Prevent Any Further Boycotting and "Unfair Listing of Their Concerns—Proceedings Instituted in Washington.

Washington, Aug. 20.—A significant legal action was begun in the supreme court of the District of Columbia Monday by James W. Van Cleave, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, to enjoin Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and other officers of the American Federation of Labor, and several of its subsidiary organizations, from using the boycott and so-called "unfair list."

Mr. Van Cleave institutes the suit in the name of a large manufacturing company in St. Louis, whose products are alleged to have been declared unfair by the labor unions; but the significance of the action lies in its being a test case wherein Mr. Van Cleave, as head of the manufacturers' association, seeks to permanently enjoin organized labor from using the "unfair" or "we don't patronize" lists in its fight against firms and individuals.

The papers were filed here in order that personal services might be immediately obtained against a large number of the labor leaders named in the complaint who are in Washington in attendance upon a general conference.

Those He Would Enjoin:

The bill asks for a permanent injunction against: Samuel Gompers and Frank Morrison of Washington; John V. Lennon of Bloomington, Ill.; James Duncan of Quincy, Mass.; John Mitchell of Indianapolis; James O'Connell of Washington; Max Morris of Denver; Dennis A. Hayes of Philidalphia; Daniel J. Keefe of Detroit; William D. Huber of Indianapolis; Joseph F. Valentine of Cincinnati, all of the American Federation of Labor; also; R. L. Thixton, Co. Buckington, P. C. Poppe, A. J. Cooper and E. L. Hickman, as individuals and as officers of the Electrotype Moulders and Finishers' union No. 17, and members of the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' union. The complainant is the Bucks Stove and Range Co., of St. Louis.

The plaintiff asks that the defendants be enjoined on nine special points, first alleging a conspiracy unlawfully to injure its business.

The complaint goes on to state that the American Federation of Labor has repeatedly declared boycotts against the business and product of the customers of numerous individuals and concerns, and has actively prosecuted them by using its combined power for that purpose to wage destructive attacks upon any person or business "under its ban," and that this power is now being directed maliciously against the business of the plaintiff.

Outcome of Strike.

The steps leading up to this action are set forth in the complaint to be the outcome of a strike. According to the complaint, Aug. 29th, 1906, without previous notice, the members of the Metal Polishers' union No. 13, of St. Louis, in the employ of the stove company, struck in a body and without notice to or conference with the company, or waiting for an adjustment of grievances which is set forth to have been in violation of an agreement between the International Union of Metal Polishers' and Stove Founders' National Defense association, of which the Bucks company is a member and under which all differences have for fourteen years been successfully adjusted by a conference committee.

On the failure of the strike, the International Union of Metal Polishers declared a boycott against the Bucks company and its products.

The complaint says that the federation has greatly diminished and in many places destroyed the company's trade.

The sweeping nature of this action is indicted by a partial list of national and international unions and state federations that will be directly affected if the injunction is granted, which includes 173 names of organizations.

Farmer Shoots Self.

Bay City, Mich., Aug. 20.—William Friday, a farmer living about two miles from Bentley, committed suicide Monday morning by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. Despondency resulting from ill-health is supposed to have been the cause. He was about 45 years old and leaves a widow and three children in fairly good circumstances.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE

For the Consideration of State and Local Taxation.

Columbus, O., Aug. 20.—A national conference for the consideration of the subject of state and local taxation will be held under the auspices of the National Tax association, in this city, on Nov. 12, 1907. The president of the association, Allen R. Foote, has invited all auditors or comptrollers of state; all members of the state tax commissions, boards of equalization and state tax commissioners; the presidents and professors of economics and public finance of all universities, and a large number of persons prominent in public and business affairs throughout the country, to attend and participate in the deliberations of the conference.

Gov. Harris has formally requested the governors of the divers states of the Union to appoint three commissioners to represent their respective states at this conference.

The purposes of the conference are: To secure an authoritative and an exhaustive discussion of the subject of state and local taxation in all of its details; to produce a volume of proceedings containing the best thought of those who, by reason of their special educational training and practical experience, are qualified to speak with authority upon the specific branch of the subject they may elect to discuss; to furnish to the members of the legislatures of the several states a concrete, up-to-date statement of the economic and business principles that should be applied in state and local tax legislation, to be used as a guide for their action when considering proposals to improve the tax laws of their respective states and in the administration of the same; to secure the application of correct economic and business principles in all tax laws of the several states; and by securing uniformity in tax laws, to eliminate the evil of changes in legal residence and in the location of business undertakings induced by differences in in state tax laws, and to create conditions of high value in aid of the effective and economical management of the financial affairs of all state and local governments.

HIS CAMPAIGN OPENER.

Taft's Speech Before Columbus Republicans Considered Such.

Columbus, O., Aug. 20.—Wm. H. Taft, secretary of war, made what he was pleased to term his "Political confession of faith," at Memorial hall last night. The auditorium, which has a seating capacity of over 5,000, was packed to the doors and several thousand people who came to hear the secretary speak were unable to gain admittance. The secretary spoke under the auspices of the Buckeye Republican club, and the address was notable from the fact that it is regarded as the platform upon which he will make his campaign for the republican nomination for president.

Mr. Taft made no formal announcement for his candidacy, but he was introduced by Gov. Harris as the "Next president of the United States," which was the signal for a prolonged outburst of applause.

Special interest was manifested in Secretary Taft's utterances on the tariff. He reiterated his previous declarations in favor of revision and declared that it would be both unwise and unsafe for the republican party to fail to pledge itself to revise the Dingley law as soon after the next presidential election as possible.

Mr. Taft also declared in favor of imprisonment of individuals responsible for violations of the anti-trust law and for the giving and accepting of rebates, as more effective than fines. His defense of President Roosevelt's policies evoked enthusiastic applause.

Secretary Taft arrived in Columbus early in the morning, conferring with Governor Harris and A. L. Vorys regarding his presidential campaign. Business houses were decorated in his honor and everywhere he was received with enthusiastic demonstrations. In the afternoon he held a reception at the Chittenden hotel.

He left for Cincinnati this morning.

Ogden, Utah, Aug. 20.—Word has reached Ogden that James Chapman, a passenger engineer on the Union Pacific railroad, was killed Sunday by a bear near Evanston, Wyo., his home. Chapman was with a party of friends camping out. He wandered away from camp. His dead body was found in a thicket. His face and neck had been clawed by the bear, and death had resulted from the severing of an artery in the neck. Tracks of the bear were all about the spot, but the animal had disappeared.

"Everybody should know"

A young widow has a peculiar way of seeing a man without looking at him.

Men past sixty in danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo. writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate glands and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am 91 years old." Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh

A man doesn't have to wear good clothes if he can afford not to.

"We never repent of eating too little" was one of the ten rules of life of Thos. Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule applies to every one without exception during this hot weather, because it is hard for food, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach as much as possible by the use of a little Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Some men stand just inside the door ready to grasp opportunity by the back of the neck when it knocks.

Hay fever and summer colds

Victims of hay fever will experience great benefit by taking Foley's Honey and Tar, as it stops difficult breathing immediately and heals the inflamed air passages, and even if it should fail to cure you it will give instant relief. The genuine is in a yellow package. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh

It's advice when you give it and a lecture when you receive it.

John Riha, a prominent dealer of Vining, Ia., says: "I have been selling DeWitt's kidney and bladder pills for about a year and they give better satisfaction than any pill I ever sold. There are a dozen people here who have used them and they give perfect satisfaction in every case. I have used them myself with fine results. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

A real good man doesn't have to use words to tell it.

Warning.

If you have kidney and bladder trouble and do not use Foley's Kidney Cure, you will have only yourself to blame for results, as it positively cures all forms of kidney and bladder diseases. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Many a man has been forced to ask for a handout because he was unable to get his hand in.

Don't accept a cough cure that you may be told is just as good as Kennedy's laxative cough syrup, because it isn't just as good—there is quite a difference. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup acts gently upon the bowels and clears the whole system of coughs and colds. It promptly relieves inflammation of the throat and allays irritation. Sold by B. J. Pulver

Supplements to the Decalogue.

Our social organization has developed to a stage where the old righteousness is not enough. We need an annual supplement to the Decalogue. The growth of credit institutions, the spread of fiduciary relations, the enmeshing of industry in law, the interlacing of government and business, the multiplication of boards and inspectors, beneficent as they all are, they invite to sin. What gateways they open to greed! What fresh parasites they let in on us! How idle in our new situation to intone the old litanies! The reality of this close knit life is not to be seen and touched; it must be thought. The sins it opens the door to are to be discerned by knitting the brows rather than by opening the eyes. It takes imagination to see that bogus medical diploma, lying advertisement and fake testimonial are death dealing instruments. It takes imagination to see that savings bank wrecker, loan shark and investment swindler in taking livelihoods take lives. It takes imagination to see that the business of debauching voters, fixing juries, seducing lawmakers and corrupting public servants is like sawing through the props of a crowded grand stand.—E. A. Ross in Atlantic.

Living in Coral Houses.

The church built of coral is one of the curiosities of the Isle of Mahe, one of the Seychelles islands, in the Indian ocean. The Seychelles islands, which are supposed by many to be the site of the Eden of the Old Testament, form an archipelago of 114 islands and are situated about 1,400 miles east of Aden and 1,000 miles of Zanzibar. They rise steeply out of the sea, culminating in the Isle of Mahe, which is about 3,000 feet above the level of the ocean and is nearly the center of the group. All these islands are of coral growth. The houses are built of a species of massive coral hewed into square blocks, which glisten like white marble and show themselves to the utmost advantage in the various tinted green of the thick tropical palms, whose immense fernlike leaves give pleasant and much needed shade. These palms grow as high as 100 feet or more, overtopping both the houses and the coral built church. They line the seashore and cover the mountains, forming in many places extensive forests.

A Woman's Revenge.

It is perfectly incomprehensible how man can go on wearing the clothes he does—how he can balance on his head a huge black jam pot with a ledge to it, incase his limbs in long, tight sacks of dingy hue and wear round his manly throat something resembling a shining metal band. Every new fashion for man that comes out appears to me uglier than the last.—Spinster in M. A. P.

A Lofty Death.

Asama is a volcano in Japan. A young man of that country grew despondent the other day and threw himself into the crater, leaving this letter: "Suffering a feeling of despair impels me to throw myself into the crater of vehement Asama, thus winning a splendid death and ascending the mountain's smoke to a lofty life above the sky."

Not of Much Account.

The lord chief justice of England used to sing in the choir of a parish church. A woman once asked the verger to point out Sir Richard Webster as he then was. The verger replied, "Well, ma'am, that's the vicar and them's the curates and I'm the verger, but as for the choir, as long as they does their dooty we don't inquire into their hantecedents!"

"As Told in the Hills."

Among those who saw the first performance of "As Told in the Hills," which will play an engagement at the Bradley opera house Friday, Aug. 23, was an Indian named "Little Fox" who was graduated from the Indian school at Carlisle five years ago. One of the prominent characters in the play is named Little Fox, who as a child saved the lives of a party of emigrants by taking a message asking for relief from a nearby fort when the emigrants were surrounded by a band of hostile Indians.

The most prominent character in the play is that of Pamnena, the daughter of an Indian chief, who was adopted by James and Mrs. Howard and reared as their own child as was the little Fox of the play. The Little Fox in real life who saw the first performance of the play, was naturally very much interested. He met Mr. Sinn, the author of the play, and asked him where he got his idea of a play for the plot and on being told that it was taken from an old Indian legend that the author had heard while visiting the southwest, being told to him by a medicine man of the Moqui tribe who claimed to be more than 100 years old.

Little Fox asked if the character had been named for any particular person. He was told that the name was selected at random and he said he wished to regard it as a compliment that so noble a character in the play bore his name. It is especially gratifying to see such characters as Little Fox and Oamena in your play presented and interpreted as well as they are and the good that the general presentation of the play will do my race can hardly be over estimated.

The limit of life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that limitation of human life is far below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 50 is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son. 50c.

A boost when needed is better than a pull that isn't.

Once in a while the voters get busy and elect an honest man.

BASE BALL

The members of the Flint team worked a lot of bad base ball out of their systems Friday afternoon and stood about as much show to win from Tecumseh as Custer's command had at the battle of the Little Big Horn. The score was 12 to 2. Krapp was not in his usual good form and retired at the end of the fifth in favor of Schaefer. The game was lost, however, as Flint was powerless at the bat.

In the fifth inning Tecumseh scored five runs. Merkle featured the game with his stick work, getting a home run, two bagger and two singles out of five times up.

Score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Flint	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	1	0	2	5	3

Three base hit, Hillinger; hits, off Krapp 7 in 5 innings, off Schaefer 6 in 4 innings; first base on balls, off Railing 4 off Krapp 4, off Schaefer 1; struck out, by Railing 7, by Krapp 4, by Schaefer 3; sacrifice hits, Preston, Slear; stolen bases, Hillinger, Merkle, Somerlot, Currie; left on bases, Tecumseh 7, Flint 8; double plays, Wagner and Merkle; Wolfe, Wagner and Merkle.

Tecumseh was the victim of a shut out at Kalamazoo Sunday, the score being 10 to 0. The winning run being made in the 7th on a poor throw from Bradley to Wolfe.

Hillinger gained applause by making a long run for Walsh's foul fly, grabbing it just as he fell and then rolling a couple of rods through the gravel. Hale and Webster figured in a pretty double play, Hale grabbing Somerlot's pop fly in time to catch Merkle out at second and then passing it on to the first baseman in time to catch the other runner out. Tecumseh came near scoring in the 8th when Sommerlott lammed the leather for a three sacker, but there were three out at the time and Bradley's fly was gathered in.

Score by innings:

Run, Taylor; two base hit, Taylor; three base hit, Somerlott; double play, Webster and Hale; hit by pitched ball, Bell; struck out, by Railing 6, by Method 6; sacrifice hit, Hale; umpire, Gallagher; attendance 3,500.

Supporting Maire in superb style and slamming Doty for ten hits, Kalamazoo won the second game in the series with Tecumseh yesterday afternoon by the score of 3 to 1. It was anybody's game until the sixth inning when Kalamazoo reaped the first run.

Blake smote to right and stole second, scoring on Taylor's two base hit to center. Two more runs were gained in the seventh when Bell was hit and Furlong reached first safely on an error by Wagner. Webster got on first on a fielder's choice and Bell scored on Walsh's single. Maire hit safely and Andrews reached first on fielder's choice, Walsh scoring on the play. Tecumseh made its only run in the last inning, Doty hitting to left and advancing to second on Preston's single to right.

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

25c

Coffee Value

If you are paying 25c a pound for coffee, you ought to be enioying good cup quality. The price you pay does not fix the quality you receive; different sellers give different qualities for the money.

LOWRY'S BLEND at 25c the pound, is a little bit better for the money. Years of experimenting has fixed our standard high and this coffee is now no experiment. Its increasing sale together with its ever repeating orders from old time users, is mighty convincing proof that it contains everything in the quality line that is claimed for it.

You are the judge. We ask your consideration of the evidence contained in a cup of this delicious coffee.

Don't "get along" with a coffee that doesn't suit your taste, because you think it is as good as you ought to expect for the money. Make your next order for LOWRY'S 25c BLEND.

Your money back if you are not satisfied.

E. R. MEAD

Makes Reply to JUDGE J. W. WIGHTMAN'S

Article of last week.

Referring to a recent article over the signature of our notorious village knocker and sore head, J. W. Wightman, I can see no reason for this taxpayer (?) continually knocking public improvements in this village, also knocking citizens and tax payers who can see the necessity and desirability of having them.

Possibly it is the desire to detract from the glory of our present most excellent board of trustees, in other words, personal spite, owing to the fact, that they, showing their usual wisdom, turned down the village knocker's most fond aspirations to be village attorney, or it may possibly be his reason is not soreness, simply a selfish self-interest from a professional standpoint.

Is it possible he desires to combat the sewer proposition with the idea that eventually our water supply will be so contaminated, that a serious epidemic in our village will result, giving him opportunity to practice his advertised profession, selling estates and any consequent crumbs that might fall to his share, certainly it is hard to believe, but what can be the reason? It cannot be financial as his property holdings are not sufficiently large to affect his taxes in a degree to warrant the time he is wasting in street wrangles and writing sore-head articles for our local press, without,—oh, perish the thought—his time, as the article would indicate, is worthless.

The writer, much to his regret, will not appear on the tax roll, as the owner of a $3 female dog, owing to the recent death of this most intelligent animal. The writer, while not appearing on the village tax roll directly, has sufficient corporation holdings, which unfortunately, are not exempt from taxation, indirectly qualifying him, perhaps, to as much voice in the welfare of our village as the renowned knocker, if not, then suffice to place it on a public improvement basis.

The failure to carry out the sewer proposition, ultimately can result in but one thing—a harvest for the doctors, undertakers and lawyers, who are sufficiently fortunate to escape an epidemic. Aside from the luxury incidental with the proposed complete system of sewerage' consider the commercial advantages which will reimburse, many times any additional taxes which will be occasioned by the installation of this sewer system.

Why should the "Biggest little town" be the only one of commercial importance without modern improvements? Are we poor? Are we helplessly in debt? If so let us improve our village and make it desirable and possible to attract outside capital. The first questions asked by representatives of industries contemplating a change of location, are: Have you sewers, water works and what are the banking facilities.

There must be good and excellent reasons for these questions. Stop and consider, do not listen to the mutterings of our village knocker but seek information. Why do other towns with a greater indebtedness increase their bond issue and make these improvements?

One of the arguments of our knocker is, "Why vote for a sewerage system before we have adequate water facilities to flush these sewers." Cannot we leave these details to our village council? In electing them we certainly demonstrated our faith in their business capabilities, furthermore, they have consulted prominent engineers, skilled in this work, who have outlined and completed plans for the successful completion of this service at a given price.

Let us place confidence in this body of men whom we have elected to represent us. At least let us not knock uninformed, be from "Missouri and ask to be shown." I think you will find President Combs or any member of the Board of Trustees perfectly willing to explain in detail. In conclusion permit me to add my most hearty endorsement to the letters of President Combs and Editor Stacy appearing in the HERALD of Aug. 13th and suggest that all who have not read these articles make an effort to do so.

This is certainly a most important question, do not listen to the mis-statements of the knockers, but find out the true facts, make inquiry and ascertain how much it will increase your taxes, then inform yourself on the complete plan and see if the small individual expenditure is not thoroughly warranted and justified.

Respectfully,
E. R. MEAD.

Judge J. W. Wightman,

DEAR SIR:—I was much surprised at the tone your article addressed to the mayor and myself, published in the HERALD of Aug. 16 because usually you are a good-natured chap and in this article you allow yourself to get a little cross and mix up the mayor, Mead's dog and myself so thoroughly that I am at loss to tell what you meant. But I will venture to state that I personally pay twice the corporation tax that you do and will be pleased at any time to print both tax receipts in the HERALD. Hence if this is the rule to go by I have as good right to talk about the improvement of village property as any man.
GEO. N. STACY.

Having plenty of good advice seems to be one thing that ails many erratic people.

Lots of men are willing to be insured against the payroll by marrying an heiress.

Mrs. Anna Hialey-Boyce.

Anna Hialey—Boyce, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Hialey, who departed this life in Detroit, Mich., Sunday, Aug. 11, 1907, was born in Tecumseh June 8, 1870, all of her life being spent in this place until her marriage to Albert B. Boyce Sept. 7. 1892. She was a graduate of the Tecumseh high school of the class of '89 and united with the First Presbyterian church then under the guidance of the late Rev. Wm. H. Babbitt. During her short married life she was ever a very devoted wife and mother, giving all to her family interests her last words and thoughts being for her children.

She leaves beside her husband, Albert B. Boyce, two daughters, Albertine, age 14 years, and Baby Anna Madeline of six weeks, her mother, Mrs. J. R. Hialey, sisters, Mrs. F. O. Tefft and Mrs. Albert Hector and brother, Frank Hialey, of Tecumseh, sister, Mrs. Louisa Hialey-Wood of Palo Alto, Cal., and brother, Lavern Hialey.

THE MASK OF HEALTH.

Few people are really as well as they look. Cause and remedy.

Many people in Tecumseh both men and women, who believe themselves to be in perfect health are often in the greatest danger.

Indigestion, which is so common a trouble, is the principle cause of the greater share of the general poor health. It has misleading symptoms that seem to have no reference to the stomach, such as headache, sleeplessness, specks before the eyes, pains in the back and side, etc.

The success of physicians everywhere with the prescription that is now embodied in Mi-o-na stomach tablets has made this remedy in the last few years the acknowleged specific for the treatment of stomach diseases. The secret of this success lies in the fact that Mi-o-na is prepared expressly to strengthen the digestive organs and its use for a few days puts the whole digestive system in such shape that it can care for all of the food that is eaten without pain or distress.

Simply take a Mi-o-na stomach tablet before each meal and on retiring, and it will so strengthen the stomach that you can enjoy a hearty meal without the least fear of distress or suffering.

C. A. Wright & Son give an absolute unqualified guarantee that your money will be refunded unles Mi-o-na cures. They take the whole risk and the remedy will not cost you a penny unless it cures you.

Money Saving Sale.

The store of S. W. Anderson & Son which has been closed for the past two days, is now in perfect readiness for their great sale which commences tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. With the aid of a number of extra clerks the store presents a fine appearance.

All winter as well as summer goods has been placed on their counters at a great reduction and new fall stock has arrived that will be sold at an astonishing low price. Go early tomorrow and take advantage of this money saving sale.

Conklin-Wood.

Relatives and friends of Miss Helen Conklin have received the following announcement:

Mr. Merritt E. Conklin announces the marriage of his daughter, Helen Edith, to Mr. Edward Olin Wood Jr., on Saturday, Aug 17, 1907.

Mr. Wood is from Champaign, Ill., at which city the happy couple will reside.

The Great Western Manure Spreader.

Some of its advantages. Form is made of oak, not pine or maple, has endless apron with its many advantages, no cranking back by hand or reverse gears, wheels track like a wagon, carries as much load on front axle as on hind axle, makes easy draught on machine, makes only two tracks not four, you can top dress corn or spread on corn stubble, a machine with narrow axle in front is "up against it" in the corn field. Examine the machine before you buy. Sold by C. H. Bramble.

LITTLE POCKET PHYSICIAN.

Hyomei is guaranteed by C. A. Wright to cure catarrh.

Thousands who have been cured by Hy-o-mei call the inhaler that comes with every outfit the "Little Pocket Physician," as it is so small that it can be carried in the pocket or purse.

There is really no excuse whatever for anyone having catarrh now that Hy-o-mei is so readily obtainable. If you have any doubt about its value, C. A. Wright will let you have a complete outfit, with the understanding that unless it cures catarrh, it will not cost you a cent.

Do not delay longer the use of Hy-o-mei if you suffer with catarrh. This is a purely local disease and Hy-o mei goes right to the spot where the catarrh germs are present, destroys them, soothes and heals all inflammation and makes a permanent and lasting cure.

The complete Hy-o-mei outfit consists of the "Little Pocket Physician" and a bottle of Hy-o-mei and costs only $1.00, making it the most economical as well as the only guaranteed treatment for the cure of catarrh. Remember that Hy-o mei cures catarrh without stomach dosing, applying the medication and healing where the disease germs are present.

Old People

NEED VINOL

It strengthens and vitalizes

With old age comes feebleness and loss of power; the blood is thin and digestion weak.

Vinol repairs worn tissues and checks the natural decline. It tones up the digestive organs, aids assimilation, makes rich, red blood, and strengthens every organ in the body. In this natural manner Vinol replaces weakness with strength.

Vinol contains all the medicinal elements of cod liver oil in a concentrated form, taken from fresh cods' livers, the useless oil eliminated and tonic iron added.

Try it on our guarantee.

RHEUMATIC FOLKS.

Are you sure your kidneys are well?

Many rheumatic attacks are due to uric acid in the blood. But the duty of the kidneys is to remove all uric acid from the blood. Its presence there shows the kidneys are inactive.

Don't rally with "uric acid solvents." You might go on till doomsday with them, but until you cure the kidneys you will never get well. Doan's Kidney Pills not only remove uric acid, but cure the kidneys and then all danger from uric acid is ended. Here is Tecumseh testimony to prove it.

Mrs Sarah Austin, living on Pearl street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's kidney Pills and think very highly of them. About a year ago I was bothered with my kidneys accompanied by dropsical bloatings which made me feel miserable. I had distressing pains in my hips and rheumatism bothered me a great deal. At night I was restless on account of the frequent action of the kidneys. I passed a great deal of gravel in my secretions and at times it was almost impossible to stand the pain. I doctored a great deal with different physicians but only received temporary relief. Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention and I began taking them. The results have been more than satisfactory the bloating has subsided, the pains have ceased, in fact, I believe they have effected a complete cure. I am glad to endorse such a reliable remedy as Doan's Kidney Pills.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's—and take no other.

In spite of all our undertakings the professional undertaker gets us at last.

A specific for pain—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, strongest, cheapest liniment ever devised. A household remedy in America for 25 years.

The man who sings into a phonograph is apt to be timid about facing the music afterward.

Those who have stomach trouble, no matter how slight, should give every possible help to the digestive organs, so that the food may be digested with the least effort. This may be done by taking something that contains natural digestive properties—something like Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia. Kodol is a preparation of vegetable acids and contains the very same juices found in a healthy stomach. It digests what you eat. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Your Heart.

When Your Heart Fails to Pump Your Blood, Trouble Results.

Have you heart trouble?

You have, if you find it hard to breathe after walking up stairs, exercising, etc. If you have pain in your left side in chest, back or shoulder. If you suffer from cold extremities, pale face, blue lips, dry cough, swollen ankles.

If you have fainting spells, breast pain, palpitation, redness of the face, discomfort in sleeping on one side.

The only scientific treatment for this whole train of troubles is Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is the prescription of a famous specialist, whose great success in treating obstinate nervous heart disease has made his name pre-eminent in the medical and scientific world.

The medicine will cure you. We know it. We want you to prove it. If first bottle does not benefit, your druggist will give you back your money.

"I have for several years suffered at times with heart trouble. I got so badly I could not sleep half the night, and had to sit up on the side of the bed lots of times to get breath. Three of my brothers have died of heart trouble and I thought I was going the same way—but about two and a half years ago I got a pamphlet about Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and thought I would try a few bottles. After using them I recovered, and have had better health since then than before for several years. I can heartily recommend them for heart trouble."—REV. JERRY HURT, Pastor Baptist Church, Hurt, Kans.

A LETTER

Written by O. D. Hurrey Describing his tour of

THE ORIENT

Aki Maru, July 21, 1907.

DEAR MR. EDITOR:—Five months' touring in the Orient amid a great variety of sights and smells and noises makes one a better patriot and the sight of American soil most precious to his eager eyes. Now that we have returned safely to the homeland it may be of interest to some of your subscribers to read a brief, general description of the principal points visited.

Seven days out of San Francisco on the 27,000 ton steamship "Mongolia" brought us to anchor in the peaceful harbor of Honolulu and one day there of driving and strolling amidst the beauties of tropical vegetation made us eager to spend months exploring such fascinating islands. Before dark, however, we steamed out for Japan, accompanied by some very charming new passengers and stores of fresh pineapples, bananas, cocoanuts, strawberries and other delicacies which never fail to tickle the palate of the steady sailor, who has no time for such paraphrasing as that perpetrated by a recent victim:

"My breakfast is spread o'er the ocean
My dinner lies over the sea,
My supper is all in commotion
Don't talk about eating to me."

Eight days more of constant plowing through the trackless sea amply prepared us for such a change of scenery as awaited us in fair Nippon. Never will we forget our strange impressions as for the first time we were treated to a ride in the famous jinrikshas of Yokohoma over to the train which in 30 minutes was to transport us to Tokyo, the great capital city. It was indeed a pleasant three weeks that we spent in the Sunrise Kingdom visiting many temples and stores, schools and colleges and meeting people of high official standing, among whom were the mayor of Tokyo and his wife, Count Okuma, Baron and Baroness Goto, Viscount Hyashi and American Ambassador Wright.

Reluctantly did we embark for Manchuria after doing Kyoto, Nikko, Kobe, Moji and other cities that dot the garden empire, but if we were to get even a glimpse of Korea and China we had to be moving. The most vivid memories of Korea are the modern American railway that runs from Fusan to Seoul, the barrenness and poverty of the country, the dirty white dress and cute little top knots of the people and their utter lack of the blessings that enrich Japan. Everywhere in Korea there is a feeling of unrest while the sturdy Japanese are flocking into their land to occupy and ultimately to possess it.

You will pardon me if I say little about our passage over the Yellow sea for it was memorable chiefly for the six meals a day of badly prepared food, but to arrive safely in Dalnq was worth all it cost. Here we wandered for two days over historic places, climbing to the summit of 203 Metre Hill and among the pulverized ruins of the "impregnable" fortifications of Port Arthur, 40 miles distant from Dalnq. Even such a warrior as Sherman would stand speechless in attempting to describe war if he were to pick his way as we did among the bleaching bones of the sons of Japan. There is too much to be told in one letter so let me hasten to give the roughest outline of the remainder of our journey.

We went by rail to Newchwang over the vast plains of Manchuria, thence on to Shauhaikwan, where for the first time we ascended the wonderful old wall, centuries old, that forms the northern boundary of China. In modern English and French coaches we sped on to Tientsin and Peking, where the terrible Boxer rebellion became a reality to us. Two days of good running over the Hankow-Peking railway brought us to Hankow, where we took the boat down the Yangtze for a restful two days to historic old Nanking. After five days of sightseeing and hunting pheasant and deer, we went on to Shanghai, the most European of Chinese cities. When our sojourn of four days was ended we enjoyed a fine voyage to Hongkong, hot and humid, but withal the most beautiful of Chinese cities.

A few days of sweltering and sweating here and at Canton, 90 miles up the river, warned us to lay in a good supply of white clothing that "cumbereth not" before we set sail for Manila. Never did American men, women and children charm me as they did that first day in Manila after a most uncomfortable trip across the China sea. There are no such noble soldiers and policemen as those that march for Uncle Sam. Long may the star spangled banner wave in the Philippines, where, as in all parts of the world, it is the emblem of liberty, culture and prosperity.

We spent a busy month in Manila and then retraced our path, avoiding a month at sea by a brief visit to Formosa, calls at the leading ports of China and Japan and thence via the far northern route near the Aleutian Islands to Victoria and Seattle. After a little visit with recently acquired relatives in South Dakota we hope once more to see the "best little city on earth" for there's no place like home.

Faithfully yours,

CHAS. D. HURREY.

Telegraphers and Employers Still on the Outs.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Developments in the Telegraphers' strike Monday comprised the calling out of leased wire operators in six Chicago brokerage houses and the issuing of a number of conflicting statements regarding the progress of the strike by officers of the union and by those of the telegraph companies. Both sides claim victory. The telegraph companies are certainly increasing the number of men at work, and both had on the board of trade a larger number of operators than any time since the strike began.

Early in the day the union announced to a number of brokerage houses that they would give them until 1 o'clock to sign the union scale, or strikes would be called. Six large houses refused to sign and their men were called out. In one of the offices however, three men continued at work.

Many messenger boys, who struck on the day following the walk-out of the operators, returned to work Monday.

All efforts by outside parties looking toward adjustment of the trouble have been abandoned.

"Legging" a Canal Boat.

Throughout England there are a number of tunnels cut for canals where boats have to be pushed through by a laborious process called "legging." This is about the only work on the canal women do not do, and they used to do even this. One may see the process in operation near London at the Maida Hill tunnel, which is some 272 yards in length. Sometimes when the roof is low one man can "leg" an empty boat by lying down on his back on top of the cabin and pushing the roof with his feet. With a broad boat "legging" is performed by two men, one on each side of the boat, who lie down on the fore end and push against the tunnel sides with their feet. If the tunnel is too wide boards projecting over the boat's side, termed "wings," are brought into use for them to lie on. At tunnels where traffic is good professional "leggers" are in attendance.

Preferred Death to Poor House.

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 20.—Mrs. Clystie Carl, aged 81, committed suicide at her home in Yorkville, Gull lake. One week ago her husband, Horace Carl, died of [illegible] and the shock bereft the aged woman of her reason. She intimated that she was to be taken to the county poor's home at Marshall, and she immediately planned self-destruction. Dispossessing her caretaker, Mrs. Dolly Hoppel, to leave her as she wished to rest, the aged woman took a dose of strychnine and was found dead when Mrs. Hoppel returned. So far as known, the dead woman has no relatives.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most importam organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

An old soldier writes about ARIOSA Coffee: "Your coffee is the best and richest coffee I ever drank since I left the service, from '61 until I received your coffee yesterday." A soldier knows coffee by the taste, and the way it makes him feel, and would sooner go without his bread than without his coffee. Arbuckles' ARIOSA was the first roasted, packaged coffee, packaged for protection of consumers, roasted and the pores of each berry sealed with a coating of fresh eggs and pure sugar, to hold the goodness in and make the coffee settle clear and quickly. Better than "fresh roast." Warming a little develops the flavor and makes the grinding easy. Our enormous coffee business, exceeding the next four largest firms in the world together, reduces our average cost per pound, and enables us to give you better coffee for your money than you can buy in any other way. There are more packages of ARIOSA sold in the United States than all the other Coffee packages combined.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Sisk, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says—"I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

Kodol Digests What You Eat.

Ten years in bed

"For twenty years I was confined to my bed with disease of the kidneys," writes R. A. Gray, I. P. of Oakville, Ind. "It was so severe that I could not move part of the time. I consulted the best medical skill available, but could get no relief until Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended to me. It has been a Godsend to me." For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

VOL. LVIII NO. 42 — TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN FRIDAY AUGUST 23 1907 — WHOLE NO. 785

MICHIGAN STATE FAIR

DETROIT
August 29, 30, 31 and Sept. 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 :: :: ::

THE 1907 STATE FAIR will be the largest and best ever held in Michigan. There will be double the usual number of exhibits and amusements, hundreds of which are new and were never before shown at any fair. Every building will be filled to its utmost capacity. Every inch of room for exhibits will be taken, and the total number of exhibits will almost double that of any previous year.

The grounds will be open every evening. There will be something doing every minute. Every known convenience has been installed at a great expense for the comfort of the people who will attend this great exhibition.

The live stock and poultry exhibits will be equal to that shown at any fair in the United States. The best stock in the State and a number of show animals from other States will be shown. One of the interesting features will be the live stock parade, in which all prize winners will take part.

The fruit exhibit promises to be one of the best ever shown, many of the more prominent fruit growing counties have arranged to make special county exhibits.

Every available inch of space in the Machinery Section has been taken, and many new machines and devices never before shown, will be seen at the State Fair.

The vehicle exhibit will be larger than ever.

The race programme covers a period of six days and the purses total $9,600, as follows:

There will be a number of interesting free attractions in front of the Grand Stand every day.

The "Wanderlust" will fairly bulge with good, clean attractions, such as animal shows, ostrich farm, theatres, Ferris wheel, merry-go-round and a score or more of clean attractions which have withstood the test given by Manager Floyd to entitle them to a place in that section.

No gambling, fakes or "Skin" games will be allowed on the grounds.

There will be plenty of places to eat, sleep, drink and rest.

Come to the State Fair at Detroit. Meet your friends here. You cannot afford to stay away. A good time and a fountain of valuable knowledge will be yours if you come.

Reduced rates on all railroads. Arrange now for this trip. You owe yourself this vacation where you can combine knowledge-getting with pleasure.

We urge you all to come.

Gen. Myer Refers to "Shooting Up" of Brownsville.

NO GARRISON THERE NOW.

Commander of Department of Texas Also Desires Return of Canteen and More Pay for Soldiers—Makes His Annual Report.

Washington, Aug. 23.—An echo of the "shooting up" of Brownsville, Tex., last August by the negro troops of the 25th infantry, is found in the annual report of Brig.-Gen. Albert L. Myer, commanding the department of Texas for the fiscal year 1907, who refers to it as "a lamentable occurrence which is still shrouded in mystery to a great extent." He adds:

"However, it seems to have been established that on the night in question, a few enlisted men of the First battalion, Twenty-fifth infantry, then garrisoning Fort Brown, did go armed into Brownsville and do some promiscuous firing, resulting in the death of one civilian, one horse and the wounding of one policeman. It has been impossible to identify the individuals who actually did the firing. Undoubtedly there was at that time mutually bad blood between a part of the garrison of Fort Brown and some of the citizens of Brownsville, and this fact must, to some extent, account for the occurrence."

As a result of the occurance, Fort Brown has been deprived of garrison and the reservation has been temporarily transferred to the department of agriculture. In line with other department commanders, Gen. Myer takes the ground that the pay of enlisted men should be increased, particularly that of non-commissioned officers. He favors legislation increasing the infantry by at least ten regiments of full peace strength, and he declares that the continuing absence of so many officers renders more apparent and evident the necessity for some legislation giving two officers at least to a company of troops at all times.

Gen. Myers renews the recommendation of most of his predecessors relative to the removal of the canteen restrictions on the sale of malt liquors. He says there has been about eight per cent decrease in the number of trials by court martial, and the number of trials for desertion far exceeds that of any other crime or charge.

THREE SERIOUS FIRES.

Heavy Losses.

Pittsburg, Aug. 23.—Two fires Thursday caused by the explosion of gasoline in clothes pressing establishments caused damage estimated at $250,000 and for a time threatened the entire east end section of this city. The first fire broke out shortly before noon in the Club Pressing and Cleaning Co., at 6339 Penn avenue. The three-story brick building was destroyed and fourteen employes were rescued from the windows by firemen.

The second fire was more serious and before it was controlled, seven buildings were wiped out. The blaze started in the Enterprise Pressing company's shop at 5975 Center avenue, about 2 o'clock and spread with great rapidity east and west.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 23.—Fire which threatened the entire block bounded by Hunt, Broadway streets and East Court streets, last night caused damage estimated at a million dollars. The fire started at the plant of the Eagle White Lead Co., 103 Broadway.

Among the buildings destroyed were the B. H. Krenger grocery warehouse; Aetna Smelting Co.; Morrison & Snodgrass Planing company, and E. Robert's Lumber Co. The firemen succeeded in saving several other buildings in the block.

Taft Speaks at Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 23.—Secretary of War Taft Thursday opened the republican state campaign with a discussion of the race problem, general political issues from the southern standpoint and an appeal to Kentuckians to aid the republican party in support of those principles.

Threw Him into Hot Cinder Pit.

Washington, Penn., Aug. 23.—Jim. Jack and Charles Davis, employes of the Standard Tin Plate Co., at Canonsburg, near here, quarreled in the mill Thursday, and as a result, Davis is not expected to recover from burns he received. Jack, who is of powerful physique, seized his antagonist and carried him bodily to a cinder pit where he hurled the man into a mass of red-hot cinders. Jack was placed under arrest [illegible] the result of Davis' injuries.

A PERMANENT COURT.

That Is What Hague Conference May Virtually Become.

PROPOSITION IS COMPLETED.

Comes Up for Discussion August 28—Judges Will Serve Terms of Twelve Years' Duration—Elaborate Provisions Made for All Conditions.

The Hague, Aug. 23.—The text of the American proposition for the establishment of a permanent court of arbitration has been completed in agreement with Germany and Great Britain and will come up for discussion Aug. 28. It consists of 26 articles. The first article records the desire of the signatory powers to organize an "international high court of justice, easily accessible and free of charge, with judges representing the various systems of laws of the world and capable of ensuring a continuation of arbitration by jurisprudence."

The second provides that the judges must be "juris-consults of known competence in international law, selected so far as possible from the members of the present court of arbitration."

To Get 12-Year Term.

According to the third and fourth articles, the judges are appointable for terms of 12 years, and will enjoy diplomatic privileges and immunities while exercising their functions.

Article provides that the court shall consist of 17 judges, nine forming a quorum.

Article 6 allots the appointments to the various nations.

Article 7 provides that the high court yearly shall appoint three judges with three substitutes, constituting a special tribunal which can, if necessary, try cases elsewhere than at The Hague.

Article 8 says that the president of the court shall be elected every three years by a majority of the votes.

Article 9 deals with the payment of the judges. The amounts are not fixed, but the proposal contemplates a fixed yearly salary, besides special remuneration when engaged in cases, and traveling expenses.

Article 10 forbids judges from receiving remuneration from their own or other governments for services in connection with the high court.

Article 11 says that the court shall sit in The Hague except in cases of force majuere and the special instances provided for by Article 7.

Article 12 and 13 deal with secretarial matters.

Court to Meet Twice Yearly.

Article 14 states that the high court shall sit once or twice yearly, in July and January.

Article 15, 16 17 and 18 relate to cases which the high court is competent to try.

Article 19 provides that each party shall be entitled to have its own judge to participate in the trial of cases submitted to the court. If a special tribunal acts as a commission of inquiry even a person not connected with the court can participate in a trial."

Articles 20, 21 and 22 deal with the court procedure and the calling of witnesses.

Articles 23 and 24 empower the court to make its own rules.

Article 25 proposes the ratification of the convention at The Hague as quickly as possible.

Article 26 proposes to establish the duration of the convention, but the term is not yet fixed. Any signatory power is entitled to denounce the convention by notifying the Dutch government two years before the expiry of each period, but the convention remains intact for the other powers.

President Neldoff has informally interviewed the presidents of the committees on the advisability of postponing the discussion of the proposed permanent court of arbitration until the opening of the next conference, recommending that the powers in the meanwhile study the question.

No decision in the matter has yet been arrived at.

Chaplain Jones Fired.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 23.—President Roosevelt Thursday approved the sentence of dismissal from the navy of Chaplain Jones, who was tried recently by court-martial for financial irregularities.

"Regular as the sun"

MAN ATTACKS CHILD.

Little Jackson Girl Brutally Assaulted in Daylight.

SEVERAL SUSPECTS CAUGHT.

Former Mayor Todd Offers Reward of $50 for Capture of Criminal—City Thoroughly Searched by Police and Citizens.

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 23.—While walking along the Michigan Central railroad tracks Thursday morning in broad daylight, within a stone's throw of numerous houses, Stella Jensen, 11 years of age, was brutally assaulted by an unknown man, who escaped. In her hysterical condition the child can give but an incoherent description of the man. Physicians regard her condition as critical.

Chief Boyle has ordered the entire police force out and every possible hiding place has been searched. The little girl's clothes were torn to shreds and she was terribly beaten.

Ex-Mayor Todd has offered a reward of $50 for the capture of the brute, and many prominent citizens have taken interest enough in the matter to assist in the thorough search now going on.

Every nook and corner of the city was searched and a big bunch of suspects gathered in. Included in the list being a number of ex-convicts. One of the number, a hobo, was brought here last night from Ann Arbor, but he is not thought to know anything about the matter.

This crime has come in succession to a number of criminal proceedings, principally burglaries, and has brought many to the conclusion that the Jackson police force is unable to cope with the run of wrong going in in the city. The total force numbers 24, and agitation has been started to increase it at least a dozen.

Bad Men at Ann Arbor.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 23.—The barber shop of John Projasowski was robbed between 12 and 1 o'clock on Thursday and every razor and pair of shears and $3 in money were taken. The entrance was gained through the rear of the building, where a screen in a cellar window was broken. Footprints show that but one man did the job and it is evident that the party was familiar with the place. The reign of crime continues here and every effort is being made by the police to check it. Thursday night police headquarters was besieged with telephone calls from people who complained that suspicious looking persons were hanging around.

Nude Man Chases Women.

Belleville, Mich., Aug. 23.—A man in a state of entire nudity has on two occasions chased and badly frightened two ladies within the past week. All the man wears is a mask over his face. He chased a young lady residing a short distance west of the city and in broad daylight. The woman's screams attracted the neighbors, when the unknown man got away. Just a week ago the same lady's sister was chased by a man dressed in light underclothing. His haunts are on the Marshall road. It is thought the man must be insane, and residents of that vicinity are in terror.

German Editor and Author Weds.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 23.—The marriage of Theophil Stranger, formerly editor of the Hausfreund und Post, of this city, and now traveling representative of the Volksblatt, of Cincinnati, to Miss Anna Moehler of Indianapolis, took place in this city Wednesday night. The double ring service of the German church was used and all the customs were of the church, including the wreath of myrtle which the bride wore. Mr. Stranger is the author of the libretto of the opera which was produced here some time ago under the name of the "Crusaders."

Terrible Crime Uncovered.

Palermo, Aug. 23.—The finding Thursday of two half-burned chests containing portions of a human body, in the forest of Bello Tampo not only brought to light a brutal murder, but also led to the discovery of an extensive plant for the manufacture of spurious bank notes. Italy has recently been flooded with this counterfeit money. The victim of the murder has been identified as Henry Francois, a deserter from the French army. He had been decapitated and then dismembered. A local engraver, his wife and two merchants have been arrested, both as the assassins and as counterfeiters. The motive for the crime is alleged to have been the fear of betrayal by Francois, who was a member of the gang.

SUPPRESS BUCKET SHOPS.

Pittsburg Banker Makes This Suggestion to President.

Pittsburg, Aug. 23.—Clarence V. Tiers, vice-president of the Dollar Savings bank, Thursday sent to President Roosevelt a letter of suggestion tending to the suppression of combinations of organized wealth to create panicky conditions, and thereby causing lack of confidence and hampering the prosperity of the country. Mr. Tiers is a publicist and economist and his suggestions have been received in this city with more than passing interest. In the letter he says:

"As a possible means to protect the legitimate business interests, the wage-earner and bread-winners of the whole country from untold injury due to industrial stagnation, I respectfully suggest that the necessary steps be taken to prevent the interstate transmission and publication of stock exchange quotations.

"As stock exchange quotations are very largely the reports of mere gambling transactions, I believe their wide transmission and publication could be legally prohibited in the same manner and upon the same grounds as Louisiana lotteries and all other such gambling transactions are now prohibited by the national government.

"There will probably be no better opportunity than at present to practically put an end to the 'bucket shops' and stock exchanges and the whole chain of consequent evils.

"Believing that this would be an effective remedy for many evils, I sincerely urge you to consider the above suggestion. "Respectfully,

"CLARENCE V. TIERS."

Insane Prisoners Attempt Escape.

Schnectady, N. Y., Aug. 23.—A special Thursday to the Gaette says: One of the worst outbreaks among the insane prisoners in the history of Clinton prison at Dannemora, occurred last night. As result Isaac Dubois, one of the inmates, is dead, shot through the heart by a guard. The insane prisoners were being marshalled for bed, when, at a given signal, they rushed into the two big lower dormitories and slammed the doors in the faces of the guards. Having locked the doors they proceeded to set about making their escape by smashing the doors and sawing the bars. Some of the less violently insane, however, helped the jailers. Seeing that the struggling convicts could not be reached through the steel doors, the guards turned on them from the windows streams of water from the fire hose. This kept them at bay, but did not subdue them. The guards were finally obliged to use rifles and pistols and it was after midnight before the uprising was quelled. Besides Dubois, who was killed, several other prisoners were seriously wounded.

Miners Entombed.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 23.—Five men were entombed Thursday by a fall of rock in number 14 tunnel of the mine at Fort Blanchard near here, operated by the Erie Coal Co. Michael Naughton, one of the men caught in the fall, after several hours' effort crawled from under the debris badly injured. He reported that four other men were caught in the fall. Of these it is believed that James Boyle of Inkerman was killed, and that John Eustice of Plainville and two unidentified Germans are on the other side of the fall and may have escaped serious injury. A rescuing party which is working in the tunnel expects to reach the men before many hours.

Artist Marion Story Kills Self.

New York, Aug. 23.—Marion Story, the artist, and brother of Julian P. Story, who was divorced by Mme. Emma Eames, committed suicide at his home, Brook farm, near Port Chester last night by shooting. The only other persons in the house at the time where his servants. Mrs. Story, who had not lived with her husband for about a year, is said to be somewere in the south.

Prince Wilhelm at Newport.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 23.—The Swedish armored cruiser Fylgia, with Prince Wilhelm of Sweden on board, arrived here Thursday from Jamestown, Va. The prince was entertained at dinner by Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish last night, and later attended a dance given by Mrs. Edward J. Berwind.

Merriman Assessment Sustained.

Menominee, Mich., Aug. 23.—Judge W. B. Quinlan of Marinette, has sustained the decision of Appraiser John Correy, of the Merriman estate. The estate consisting of property in Michigan, Wisconsin, California and other states, is worth $1,320,703 67. Marinette county will levy an inheritance tax of $1,154 51 on the property.

A young widow has a peculiar way of seeing a man without looking at him.

Men past sixty in danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo. writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate glands and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am 91 years old." Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh

A man doesn't have to wear good clothes if he can afford not to.

"We never repent of eating too little" was one of the ten rules of life of Thos. Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule applies to every one without exception during this hot weather, because it is hard for food, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly active should also help the stomach as much as possible by the use of a little Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Some men stand just inside the door ready to grasp opportunity by the back of the neck when it knocks.

Hay fever and summer colds.

Victims of hay fever will experience great benefit by taking Foley's Honey and Tar, as it stops difficult breathing immediately and heals the inflamed air passages, and even if it should fail to cure you it will give instant relief. It's advice when you give it and a lecture when you receive it.

John Riba, a prominent dealer of Vining, Ia., says: "I have been selling DeWitt's kidney and bladder pills for about a year and they give better satisfaction than any pill I ever sold. There are a dozen people here who have used them and they give perfect satisfaction in every case I have used them myself with fine results. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

A real good man doesn't have to use words to tell it.

Warning.

If you have kidney and bladder trouble and do not use Foley's Kidney Cure, you will have only yourself to blame for results, as it positively cures all forms of kidney and bladder diseases. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Many a man has been forced to ask for a handout because he was unable to get his hand in.

Don't accept a cough cure that you may be told is just as good as Kennedy's laxative cough syrup, because it isn't just as good—there is quite a difference. DROWNED IN WELL.

Aged Man Found With His Head Stuck in the Bottom.

Temperance, Mich., Aug. 23.—Daniel Archer, for 24 years a resident of Detroit, was drowned in a well at the home of his brother, Pierce Archer, with whom he had been living since May 16.

Archer, who was 66 years of age, had been suffering from dropsy for a number of years and for some time had been unable to lie in a bed. He was missed about 4:30 Thursday afternoon and a search was started, resulting in the finding of the body half an hour later.

The aged man's head was stuck in the bottom of the well and his feet and ankles were straight above the surface of the water.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 23.—Mr. Archer was born in Monroe, Mich., and came to Detroit in 1832 and made his residence in this city until three months ago, when he went to Temperance for his health. He was a cooper by trade, and was engaged at his business until about five months ago when his health forced him to retire. Mr. Archer leaves besides a widow, a son and daughter.

An Immense Sale.

S. W. Anderson & Son's special sale, is one of the largest sale ever conducted in Tecumseh and is still continuing. Not only Tecumseh people, but large numbers from other towns are daily taking advantage of the many bargains to be found in their store. The sale was well advertised all over the county, people knowing that whatever they advertised would be done.

The extra clerks assisting are, Florence Bryan, Ione Sisson, Margaret Waldron, Bess Brotherton, Bonnie Billington of Tipton, Mabel Waring, Nina Skinner, Alma Tansley, Florence Linton, Olive Burke, Mrs. Ed Sisson, Mrs. Will Kingman, Sant Cutting, Arnet Garlinghouse and Harry Temple.

The limit of life.

The most eminent medical scientists are unanimous in the conclusion that limitation of human life is far below the attainment possible with the advanced knowledge of which the race is now possessed. The critical period seems to be between 50 and 60; the proper care of the body during this decade cannot be too strongly urged; carelessness then being fatal to longevity. Nature's best helper after 50 is Electric Bitters, the scientific tonic medicine that revitalizes every organ of the body. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son. 50c.

Resolutions.

Resolutions adopted by Macon Grange No 167.

Inasmuch as our Heavenly Father in his infinite power and wisdom has seen fit to remove from us by death one of our number, Julia D. Russell, who in her love for God and mankind ever stood ready like those of old to help sustain the hands of truth, and righteousness that humanity might receive benefits blessings and victory.

Therefore be it, Resolved That it is but a just tribute to the memory of the departed to say that in regretting her removal from our midst we mourn for one who was in every way worthy of our respect and regard.

Resolved, that we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family and commend them in their sorrow to "One who doeth all things well."

Resolved, a copy of these resolutions be presented to the family, placed on the Grange record and published in the Tecumseh HERALD and Michigan Patron.

25c

Coffee Value

If you are paying 25c a pound for coffee, you ought to be enioying good cup quality. The price you pay does not fix the quality you receive; different sellers give different qualities for the money.

LOWRY'S BLEND at 25c the pound, is a little bit better for the money. Years of experimenting has fixed our standard high and this coffee is now no experiment. Its increasing sale together with its ever repeating orders from old time users, is mighty convincing proof that it contains everything in the quality line that is claimed for it.

You are the judge. We ask your consideration of the evidence contained in a cup of this delicious coffee.

Don't "get along" with a coffee that doesn't suit your taste, because you think it is as good as you ought to expect for the money. Make your next order for LOWRY'S 25c BLEND.

Your money back if you are not satisfied.

D. GRATZ & SON.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Emerson of Raisin, entertained at dinner and supper Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hanford, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Smallidge and Miss Grace Hillman of Tecumseh. The day was pleasantly spent in visiting and music.

Mr. Farmer, in laying in your year's supply of flour, is it not worth something to you to know that the flour you get has been treated by a system that your flour will not get lumpy, sour or musty and will keep any length of time. Bring your grist to the Quaker Mill and get your flour purified, aged and whitened by electricity, also see this wonderful little machine electrically treating flour.

Commencing today we will close out one lot of wool dress goods worth from 80c to 1.00 per yd. for 19c per yd. Just what you want for suits, waists and skirts. Come at once, get first choice.
Respectfully
HARRIS & HITESHU.

When buying a sack of flour is it not worth something to know that the flour you get has been milled by all the very latest improvements for the manufacture of flour? Try a sack of Blue Ribbon flour that has been purified by electricity and the story is told.

Three hundred were present at the joint picnic of the Tecumseh and Tipton K. of P. lodges held at Sand lake yesterday. A ball game played in the morning resulted in a score of 11 to 10 in favor of Tecumseh, while Tipton won in the Blue Rock shoot. Sailing and a dance claimed the attention of many in the afternoon. Tipton band furnishing music during the day.

Fall and Winter Woolens.

Without a doubt the finest line we have ever shown. Newest colorings, latest designs, patterns that dazzle the eye and make every one that sees them say, "lay this one out for me." We have never seen costumers grab them so fast before. The worst trouble they have is to know which one to take, they are all so nice, not a poor one in the lot. Get the fever, come in and look at them and you will surely buy. Glad to show them.

The Great Western Manure Spreader.

Some of its advantages. Form is made of oak, not pine or maple, has endless apron with its many advantages, no cranking back by hand or reverse gears, wheels track like a wagon, carries as much load on front axle as on hind axle, makes easy draught on machine, makes only two tracks not four, you can top dress corn or spread on corn stubble, a machine with narrow axle in front is "up against it" in the corn field. Examine the machine before you buy. Sold by C. H. Bramble.

Endorsed by the county.

"The most popular remedy in Otsego county and the best friend of my family writes Wm. Dietz, editor of the Otsego Journal, Gilberteville, N. Y., "is Dr. King's New Discovery. HAVE YOU CATARRH?

Breathe Hyomei and relief and cure will be guaranteed.

If you have catarrh, with offensive breath, burning pains in the throat, difficulty in breathing, raising of mucous, discharge from the nose, tickling or dropping from the back of the throat, coughing spasms, etc., begin the use of Hy-o-mei at once.

Hy-o-mei is made from nature's soothing oils and balsams and contains the germ-killing properties of the pine woods. Its medication is taken in with the air you breathe, so that it reaches the most remote part of the respiratory organs, killing all catarrhal germs and soothing any irritation there may be in the mucous membrane.

The complete Hy-o-mei outfit costs but $1.00 and C. A. Wright & Son gives his personal guarantee with each package that money will be refunded unless the treatment does all that is claimed for it.

You can always rely upon your friends—if you have money enough.

Being dignified as a profession has been the making of many a professional man.

BASE BALL.

Splendid ball pitched by Teal and his fine support by the whole team won the game for Tecumseh Tuesday afternoon from Lansing. The visitors' runs came in the 8th, resulting from three hits while Tecumseh made their three scores in the sixth, mostly the result of errors and a passed ball.

Score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E

Runs, Burns, Pierce, Slear, Hillinger, Merkle; sacrifice hit, Somerlott; first on balls, off Pierce 2, off Teal 4; hit by pitcher, Thomas; first base on errors, Tecumseh 1; left on bases, Lansing 5, Tecumseh 3; struck out, by Pierce 12, by Teal 9; double play, Teal, Mitchell and Merkle; passed ball, Mauch; time 1:28; umpires, Hughey and Landry; attendance, 250.

Lansing won from Tecumseh Wednesday in a ten inning game by a score of 3 to 1. Tecumseh's only run came in the 2nd when Merkle reached first on a fielder's choice, stole second and scored on Mauch's throw to center field. For 9 innings Lansing got only two hits off Richardson but in the 9th losing the chance to start a double play and an error by Wagner tied the score. In the 10th two singles and a bad throw by Somerlott gave the Senators two runs and the game.

Score by innings:

Lansing	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	2	3	4	3

With Railing in the box yesterday Tecumseh shut out Kalamazoo to the tune of 4 to 0. Railing allowed but two hits, only two men getting to first base, while Maire was hit frequently and timely. Tecumseh scored two runs in the first on a hit by Preston, a steal to second and Slear's single. Slear went to 2nd on a wild pitch and scored on Billinger's single. In the third Slear again scored on a sacrifice and Wagner's three base hit. Hillinger and Slear singled in the 8th, Wagner's outfield fly to Blake, bringing Slear to the home plate.

Score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E

THE NEW REMEDY.

Take it now that vacation days are fast approaching.

Thousands of men and women are anxiously looking forward to the vacation days that come in June, July and August—not so much for the pleasure or enjoyment as for the chance of getting rid of their ill-health.

To thoroughly drive away troubles of the stomach most people think they have to make a business of it with dieting, exercise and perhaps a vacation.

But the Mi-o-na stomach taken with regularity, in a very few days will drive away indigestion, dizzy spells, distress after eating, headaches, sleeplessness, and the many other symptoms of bad digestion and sluggishness of the digestive organs that keep people from enjoying themselves.

Day after day, at work behind desks or in the factory with poor sunlight and air, soon results in sluggishness of the entire physical and mental apparatus. The first slight symptom of indigestion can be easily cured, but when they are allowed to increase without any help, then the stomach complaints become hard to shake off.

Strengthen the whole digestive system with Mi-o-na and you will soon find that both stomach and bowels do their work as they should.

C. A. Wright & Son sell Mi-o-na in 50c boxes and guarantee to refund the money if the remedy does not give complete satisfaction.

RHEUMATIC FOLKS.

Are you sure your kidneys are well? Many rheumatic attacks are due to uric acid in the blood. But the duty of the kidneys is to remove all uric acid from the blood. Its presence therefore shows the kidneys are inactive.

Don't dally with uric acid solvents. You might go on till doomsday trying them, but until you cure the kidneys you will never get well. Doan's Kidney Pills not only remove uric acid, but cure the kidneys and then all danger from uric acid is ended. Here is Tecumseh testimony to prove it.

Mrs. Sarah Austin, living on Pearl street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and think very highly of them. About a year ago I was bothered with my kidneys so much that I was miserable. I had distressing pains in my hips and rheumatism bothered me a great deal. At night I was restless on account of the frequent action of the kidneys. I passed a great deal of gravel in my secretions and at times it was almost impossible to stand the pain. I doctored a great deal with different physicians but only received temporary relief. Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention and I began taking them. The results have been more than satisfactory. The bloating has subsided, the pains have ceased, in fact, I believe they have effected a complete cure. I am glad to endorse such a reliable remedy as Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

In spite of all our undertakings the professional undertaker gets us at last.

A specific for pain: Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, strongest, cheapest liniment ever devised. A household remedy in America for 25 years.

The man who sings into a phonograph is apt to be timid about facing the music afterward.

Those who have stomach trouble, no matter how slight, should give every possible help to the digestive organs, so that the food may be digested with the least effort. This may be done by taking something that contains natural digestive properties—something like Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia. Kodol is a preparation of vegetable acids and contains the very same juices found in a healthy stomach. It digests what you eat. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Those who are fancy free are free to fancy what they please.

"I have been somewhat costive, but Doan's Regulets gave just the results desired. They act mildly and regulate the bowels perfectly." Geo. B. Krause, 306 Walnut Ave., Altoona, Pa.

Having plenty of good advice seems to be one thing that ails many erratic people.

Council chamber, village of Tecumseh

Adjourned meeting held August 14, 1907.

President Combs in the chair.

Present: Trustees Heesen, Lowry, Sherman, Magers, Slater. Absent: Teachout.

It was moved and supported that the following resolution be accepted and adopted:

Resolved, that the Common Council of the village of Tecumseh does hereby require that a new sidewalk be constructed along that portion of the east line of VanBuren street in this village which lies along and adjoining the west line of that parcel of land situate in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee county and state of Michigan, and described as follows: House and lot bounded north by DeWitt's lot, east by Swan lot, south by Williams street, west by VanBuren street.

Said walk to be four feet in width, on the established grade, of Portland cement, sand and gravel, the portion of cement to be used being not less than one-fourth and not more than one-half of the total material. Said sidewalk to be not less than four inches in thickness and the surface made of clean, sharp sand and said cement at least one inch in thickness.

And the owners and occupants of said lots and premises are hereby required to do the necessary grading therefor and to construct said sidewalk according to the provisions of this resolution, under the supervision of the street commissioner, said walk to be completed within 10 days from personal service, upon the owner or occupant of said described land, of a copy of this resolution; and in case of any default in the construction and completion of said walk as herein directed, the street commissioner is hereby ordered to have the said walk constructed, and payment thereof shall be required of the owner of said above described land, and the expense thereof assessed and levied upon said land in the same manner as other taxes.

Ayes—Heesen, Slater, Lowry, Sherman. Nays—none. Carried.

Celebration Ends With Picnic.

Brighton, Mich., Aug. 23.—A dozen wagons, each with a small load of hay and a large load of "homecomers," visitors from afar to attend the town's celebration, was the unique feature of the program here. The wagons, led by a band, paraded the town. There are about 3,000 visitors. Seven or eight states are represented. There was a reminiscence meeting at the opera house, various homecomers telling of the old days. Thursday noon was held the big picnic dinner in the school grounds, ending the celebration.

Dog Severely Bites Little Lad.

Owosso, Mich., Aug. 23.—Frank Drew, aged nine, of Mt. Pleasant, was seriously injured by being bitten by a dog tied to a baggage truck at Owosso Junction Thursday. The lad was climbing on the truck when the animal attacked him. The dog, which is owned by a Cleveland man, was taken on its way by the owner, but a message was sent Durand to send the canine back. It is the intention of the local authorities to shoot it, but the owner will fight against it, claiming that the boy crawled over his valises, which the dog was watching.

A Hair Dressing

Nearly every one likes a fine hair dressing. Something to make the hair more manageable; to keep it from being too rough, or from splitting at the ends. Something, too, that will feed the hair at the same time, a regular hair-food. Well-fed hair will be strong and will remain where it belongs—on the head, not on the comb!

The Fields of Peace.

It was the belief of the ancient Egyptians, according to a recent writer, that everything, material and immaterial, had its immortal double. Out of this grew the idea of a life in the future state of perfect happiness in the "fields of peace." For a long time the common people regarded these "fields of peace" not as a celestial place, but as situated in the fertile and well watered regions of the Nile delta in the northwest of Egypt, where the blessed ever breathed the cool north wind. Here they lived an ideal form of their life upon earth. They plowed their fields and grew the grain which supplied them with the "bread which grew not stale and beer that never became sour." Here was situated the duplicate of their earthly towns or villages.

Milk Drivers' Union Robbed.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Through the defalcations of a trusted secretary-treasurer, the Milk Drivers' union, one of the strongest labor organizations in Chicago, has, it is alleged, been plunged from affluence to temporary poverty. By means of duplicate books and juggling the official, it is stated, has secured in the course of a year possession of all the union's funds, something over $20,000. Where the money has gone, whether it has been spent or invested in such a manner that all or part of it may be returned, the 1,700 members of the union are hoping to learn. A special meeting of the union has been called to consider what action to take.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Bell, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says:—"I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

A THOROUGH AND JUST

Discussion of the

SEWER QUESTION

At the Same Time a Plain and Courteous Answer to J. W. Wightman's Letters.

Tecumseh, Mich., Aug. 19, 1907.

Mr. Editor:—It is with a great deal of reluctance that I ask for space in your paper and with greater reluctance that I enter the list and become a factor in the sewer controversy. But some statements made in the articles signed by Mr. Wightman in the recent Tecumseh papers seem to me to be so grossly misleading, where they have any foundation in fact, and so utterly false in some assumptions of fact, and so utterly unfair in the personal attacks that he has chosen to make, and being myself, as a taxpayer, interested as every other taxpayer is in this question, I must plead the foregoing as my apology, desiring a full discussion of this proposition upon its merits, that every voter may vote HONESTLY and INTELLIGENTLY, and whatever the result may be, being willing to abide by the issue.

As I understand it, I think no one of fairness can dispute the fact that the common council are not in any way attempting to choke this down the throats of the taxpayers, and I fail to see where they have taken any action in this matter whatever that is arbitrary. There has been for a long time a sentiment on the part of many of the taxpayers strongly desiring the sewer system. It is also known that there may be opposition to it. But whatever the individual views of the members of the council may be, the council as a body have simply taken the necessary steps to put this question to the people whom they represent that THEY may decide; and there the decision will rest. With this view of the case, what excuse can be found for wilful misrepresentation or vilification of those with whom we disagree. My only excuse for this article is that, so far as in me lies, I may aid in an intelligent decision by each voter, whether he be with me or against me in his own judgment and that none may be mislead so far as lies in my power.

In one of his articles Mr. Wightman, for no other reason than that Mr. Stacy has opposite views of the question, choses to attack Mr. Stacy in utter disregard of the courtesies shown him by Mr. Stacy in permitting his use of the HERALD and to carry to his audience the idea that this is a question in which Mr. Stacy has no interest. As a matter of fact, Mr. Stacy is the owner of the HERALD building, assessed this year at $2100. Mr. Stacy is the owner of the HERALD and stands a village assessment on personal property of $1000. Mr. Stacy is also assessed upon the village rolls for a house and lot, formerly owned by Jehiah Bramble, at the figure of $1100. Compare this with Mr. Wightman's assessment. Now Mr. Wightman, you knew this and knowing it, why did you attempt to give the false impression that you sought to convey? And, Mr. Wightman, if you did not know it, what prompted you to give that impression to the public without first ascertaining the true facts?

Mr. Mead, whom Mr. Wightman brings into this controversy, with no excuse whatever, has invested in the Anthony Fence Co. more thousands of dollars than any assessing officer has ever been able to trace to Mr. Wightman. And, Mr. Wightman, if you really know one tenth of the law that you pretend to know, you know that the property of the Anthony Fence Company simply represents the investment of the owners of its capital stock; and that when the Anthony Fence Company pays its taxes, the tax is paid on all the investment of its stockholders. Now, Mr. Wightman, you knew this if you are to be credited with any degree of intelligence; what was the animus of your false and apparently wilful assault on Mr. Mead? Mr. Combs is another gentleman, whom with the clerk you have singled out, and whom you have insinuated have been derelict in their public duties and have laid themselves liable for some kind of action; what kind I know not, but I imagine from the drift of your remarks it would even be criminal. Neither of these gentlemen needs any defense at my hands; they are both men who have the universal respect of this community. Mr. Combs has been a patient, painstaking, intelligent and thorough official. Where he has observed violations of the law the attention of the proper officers has been called to the matter and since that time, so far as known the offenses have stopped, even though some poor woman has not been haled before "Judge" Wightman for an "infliction" of justice. So much for a portion of the personal phase which you have seen fit to inject into the present issue, Mr. Wightman. Let us take up the other topics which this wise man chooses to use as arguments.

First, in the letter of August 8th, is a complaint that stocks of goods should not be taxed for this improvement. This begs a very large question,—that of how fair and equitable it is to tax personal property,—the question agitated by the single taxer. But, however that may be, and I will say for myself, that I recognize much force and fairness in the argument of the single taxer still so long as the law of the land prescribes in what manner and upon what property taxes shall be levied, so long must good citizens submit; and when taxes are to be raised, raise them in the manner provided by law.

It seems to me that no argument, whatever, is needed to impress upon the readers of this paper the desirability and importance of having a sewer system; and that its benefits are vitally important to every INHABITANT of the community, regardless of the question as to whether all inhabitants are taxpayers or not. This must bring us to the conclusion that the benefits are not confined solely to the real estate having access to the sewer. Then, if the benefits are not confined to the land alone and are benefits to ALL INHABITANTS, the tax should not be confined solely to the abutting property. And, as our legal methods permit no per capita or HEAD TAX, then we have left, in an effort to distribute this burden equitably, the only method the law has left,—which is to spread it upon ALL taxable property of the community, and this must include personal property of ALL KINDS, as well as real estate. But let us go a little further.

We will assume now that it is too selfish for our purposes to argue that the land alone should pay for this improvement; but, in passing, if it is unfair that stocks of goods should be assessed for a part of this benefit, then, it is eminently unfair that stocks of goods should be assessed for any other public benefit unless, perhaps, the matter of fire protection; and if stocks of goods should be exempt, then, certainly, the taxpayer whose funds are invested in mortgages has as good a reason for claiming exemption. But, isn't it fair that the man whose investments are in securities and moneys loaned should stand the share of this burden that the amount of his mortgages draw? If it is not fair, as our wise friend, Mr. Wightman, would assume, then the taxpayer who owns a home of a valuation of a thousand dollars on the tax roll should pay his thousand dollar share of the cost of this improvement, regardless of the fact that the gentleman from whom he borrowed $500, $600, $700 secured by a mortgage on this home, pays nothing though the owner may actually own less than a half interest in the property.

By the way, Mr. Wightman, whom do you represent in this matter? Are you stirring up all this row simply because of the burden that YOU would have to bear? I find that you are on the tax roll for a house and lot assessed at $600, not quite ⅓rds of one thousand dollars. Now, a bond issue which would appear in the taxes of succeeding years at an annual cost of one dollar per thousand dollars would cost you annually less than two-thirds of a dollar or less than sixty-seven cents. Are you really making all this hubbub about an annual tax of 60c and have you become so selfish that you voluntarily step into the limelight, only to look like thirty cents? Now, Mr. Wightman, if this burden is too great for you to carry, we will chip in and help you out. Or, if you do represent clients, who are they, that they employ such talents as you have? And by the way, do you sell your principles with your talents? And who are they who behind you stand for the falsehood and misrepresentations that you are springing upon us as arguments? I wish to say in this connection, that I believe I know the merchants you mention too well to believe that they approve of your methods.

Well, now, Mr. Wightman, next you have some involved method of finding that this tax is going to be an immense amount of money and perhaps, in this connection I better touch also on what you say about the recommendations of Riggs & Sherman, "that the sewer would cost $35,000 but that we better raise $40,000." Again Mr. Wightman you are wrong. It is for you to answer whether you are deliberately and wilfully wrong, or whether you are trying to teach us something that you know absolutely nothing about. The statement that Riggs & Sherman said the sewer would cost $35,000, but that we better raise $40,000 is absolutely and unqualifiedly false. At the time the resolution was drawn to which you refer, the estimate of the entire cost of the sewer had not come in. It is true that an estimate of the larger sewer came in the same evening that the resolution was drawn, but when the resolution was passed, the exact amount of the entire estimate was not known. The council, desiring a full, honest and intelligent expression by every voter, was interested more in giving the voters an idea of how the payments of the bonds and interest thereon should be met than in an attempt to state the cost exactly, but the language of the resolution was, "NOT EXCEEDING $40,000." And limiting in the same resolution the bond issue to the COST of the sewer, intending to start the discussion and state the POSSIBLE amount of the bonds OVER rather than UNDER, their amount as finally to be determined.

The proposition now is, and it is the belief of the council, that a bond issue of $29,000, which is the limit permitted by the statute under which the council deem it most wise to proceed in this matter, together with the premium which it is hoped and believed the bonds will produce on their sale, and an amount to be raised by taxes next year before the first installments of interest on the bonds will mature, will be sufficient. And that the amount on the water bonds and the taxes for the payment of the same, may be materially reduced, and that the people of this village, as township taxpayers, may have paid for the new bridge across the river before placing upon them the taxes for the payment of the principal of the sewer bonds, the council deem it wise to recommend that nothing but the interest shall be paid upon the $29,000 sewer bonds for a period of ten years. Then and for a period of ten years, pay the sewer bonds at the rate of a thousand dollars a year and interest, paying the balance after this second ten year period at $2,000 per year until they are fully paid. The interest at five per cent on $29,000 will be the sum of $1,450 and the assessed valuation of the village being $1,458,230 in adopting this proposition the taxpayer during the next ten years will pay for the sewer (which will have been his to enjoy from the beginning) JUST THE SUM OF $1 ON EVERY THOUSAND DOLLARS OF HIS ASSESSMENT and this for that period will be an immense amount that he imposes upon himself for the sake of the sewer.

On the eleventh year, in addition to this dollar to meet interest charge, the taxpayer will have to stand his shore of an additional $1,000 of the principal of the sewer bonds, which will be, roughly estimated, 70c more per thousand on his assessed valuation. Then on the eleventh year, the sewer costs him $1.70 per thousand of valuation, tremendous amount! Is this large sum to continue for ten years? No, he gets the benefit each year of a reduction from the fact that each thousand paid no longer draws interest so this tremendous sum of $1.70 per thousand of his valuation will diminish during that ten year period. Now when the 21st year comes, the principal of the bond has been reduced to $19,000 on which the interest for that year will be $950, and this, with $2,000 of the principal, will make the sewer cost that year $2,950 or a fraction under $2 for each thousand of assessed valuation. My but doesn't this drive us into bankruptcy? Think of it. Will this continue long? Yes, about ten years but each year this $2 on each thousand of valuation will diminish at the rate of the interest on $2,000 paid each year. Horrible to relate! So the long and short of it is that this elderly guide, philosopher and friend of ours, who travels in our midst by the name of "Wightman" has in his man of straw one member not stuffed sufficiently to withstand the sunlight. Riggs & Sherman never recommended one dollar of the amount of the bonds to be issued by the village. In giving the people an idea of how, as to time and rate of interest, and how much of the bonds each year should mature, the council simply fixed a MAXIMUM AMOUNT until further information should crystalize it in accordance with the absolute needs and which later investigation has reduced to the sum of $29,000.

Now another thing, Mr. Wightman, of what stuff were your dreams composed when you told us that Hudson expended over $30,000 last year taking up their smaller sewer and putting down a bigger one? Really, Mr. Wightman, do you want us to think that you are playing knave or fool? Knave in that you would deliberately lie to us in order to mislead our wavering footsteps as we stagger along your line of thought? (and if a man lying to the extent of a dollar is a prevaricator, how many times a prevaricator is he if it is $30,000?) Or were you so foolish as to think that a statement of such astounding importance would not be looked into by your readers interested in finding out the truth: the fact being, which it would have cost you to ascertain just a 2c postage stamp or a 10c telephone fee, that Hudson within the knowledge of her present mayor, Orrin Howes, who has lived there for years, has not expended one penny in digging up any sewer to replace larger; that Hudson had a portion of her village sewered many years ago under the method of former years, discarded now, and that in modernizing her system and enlarging the territory sewered, she is using this old system except for an outlet of a few hundred feet, which it is now found was originally laid not with sewer pipe, but with the ordinary SOFT TILE used in farming in surface drainage; and even this has not been and will not be dug up.

Again, in this connection, Milan, Blissfield and Morenci have no sanitary sewerage, towns much smaller than this; whether they have storm sewers or not, I know not. In this, Mr. Wightman you may be right. But Hudson has of sanitary sewerage, four miles in use, one mile now building and another mile ordered. Dundee with a population of 1135, has one and one half miles of sanitary sewer mains, and Eaton Rapids has two and one half miles of sanitary sewerage in use. For Heavens' sake, get the motes out of your eyes and stop that busy pen until the truth will flow from it.

Well, we will have to dig a little further, I suppose. Is it not astounding, the number of mare's nests a poor, old fault-finder can dig up. Did you (gentle reader) ever realize how little intellect it takes to furnish a fault-finder with business for every shining hour, especially if his legitimate employment is of small enough importance to be entirely laid aside for the fault-finding business?

Now, in the communication dated Aug. 14, by the way, Mr. Wightman, have you any more of this to impose upon us; if so, for heavens sake get it out of your system, for we cannot spare from our midst such an interesting subject as you make with your mask of owlish wisdom. And by the way, on what figure shall we gaze if, in a moment of abstraction, you ever remove that mask and let us see you face to face. In this communication of Aug. 14th, you took up a great deal of space with quotations from the village charter. Well now, Mr. Wightman, we have no time to run a law school for your benefit, but I will say to you that I have read more than once all the sections you quoted, and also all the others with which these sections are to be construed. Neither would the public be interested in an article on a purely law question of the length that will be necessary to let a little legal light into a brain, that up to the present time, has been groping in legal darkness.

But your method of quotation reminds me of the method of an eminent London devine who in ancient days to reprove the ladies of the city in their method of dressing their hair, preached a vigorous sermon from the text, "Top-knot, come down;" and when later challenged as to the location of his text, read the whole verse, "Let those upon the housetops not come down." I desire to say here and now, not to you, because I do not care what your opinion is, but to all the public, that every official act of the common council, president and clerk, in relation to this sewer matter, has been strictly within the law, and that the future action of the council will also be strictly as directed by the law.

I do not think I am quite up to the proposition of fathoming your idea of what an "appropriation" is; but if it is as foggy and as hard for you to recognize, as it is for you to recognize a legal proposition, I should judge, based solely upon your own utterances, that you would not know an appropriation if you met it face to face in broad sunlight in the middle of a broad, public highway.

We have four funds, the water fund, the cemetery fund, the highway fund and the general fund. There is no need of making any appropriation for the benefit of the water fund, or of the cemetery fund, so long as these funds are self suppporting; therefore, when water pipe is purchasad, even to the extent of $1,600 for which there is sufficient money in the fund, it is paid out of that fund and needs no appropriation. And the water and cemetery funds being self supporting at the time the estimates were made up, they did not need consideration; but when the

A young widow has a peculiar way of seeing a man without looking at him.

Men past sixty in danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure scould be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo. writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate glands and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am 91 years old." A man doesn't have to wear good clothes if he can afford not to.

"We never repent of eating too little" was one of the ten rules of life of Thos. Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule applies to every one without exception during this hot weather, because it is hard for food, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach as much as possible by the use of a little Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Mr. Mousoud

By HOWARD FIELDING

Copyright, 1906, by Charles W. Hooke

IT had been a bad Saturday for Billy Allenwood. Somebody hadn't come downtown that day. Somebody else, a bookkeeping creature for the other, had no authority to advance money on uncompleted serial stories. Billy made the rounds, but there was no money anywhere, and when he went to take Dorothy Vincent to dinner he had only $3 in his pocket.

Dorothy was an orphan and an heiress. She received a check on the first of every month, but, though there are few characters so strong as not to be affected by security and regularity of income, Dorothy remained a good bohemian and as reckless with money as you could wish your dearest friend to be. She raveled in rich and dainty fabrics, which she transformed by her own art and labor into the most bewitching garments. On this particular evening she wore a tenderly exquisite creation in a gray tone, and carried a little gray purse which contained her all, the sum of 35 cents. This purse was intrusted to Billy's care.

A strange subject of discussion occupied them at dinner and on the way to Dorothy's house. Billy had an opportunity to join with two other men in starting a magazine, of which he was to be editor, but they stipulated that he should contribute $1,500 to the capital. Impossibility is not defined in any dictionary so adequately as by that statement. Billy could not have raised 1,500 cranberries at a dollar a bushel, but Dorothy could raise dollars, and she insisted that she should be permitted to disturb her meager patrimony to the extent required and become a partner in the enterprise. She would lend the money to Billy and go shares with him. To him, however, her little fortune was the only redeeming feature of a world otherwise ill ordered beyond the power of language to describe. He knew what miseries she thus escaped—few men knew better than Billy—and he would sooner have disturbed the law of gravitation which holds us to the world than have dislodged the anchor of Dorothy's safety.

He was telling her so in very eloquent language as they strolled along, when they were suddenly aware of a flurry in the throng and the quick gathering of a crowd. A man had fallen from the platform of a crowded car and now sat on the curbstone, dazed and bleeding. It seemed that there had been an attempt to pick his pocket and that the thief, detected, had pushed his intended victim to the street. As usual, the car had gone on, leaving only the most contradictory rumors in its wake.

The man was under middle age and of a very prosperous appearance, a gentleman evidently, for he showed himself superior to his mishap, even though it had bereft him of a good share of his consciousness. Before any one had raised a hand to help him he got upon his feet with a certain dignity, though the dullness of his eyes showed that his wits were whirling. He found a cardcase in his pocket, after somnambulous fumbling; gave a card to a cabman, and when the door of the vehicle had been opened got in unassisted. Cabby mounted to the box and drove away.

It was only a few blocks from that spot to Dorothy's house. At the door she said, "You have my purse, Billy."

But, alas, he hadn't it.

"Never mind," said she cheerily. "There was next to nothing in it. Good night."

Billy said "Good night" and walked down the street.

"I must have dropped it where that fellow was hurt," said he to himself, and the recollection that the purse was gray, the tint of asphalt paving, gave him absurd encouragement. So he returned to the scene of the accident, praying for a miracle, but he did not find the purse. Instead, he found a sealed envelope, set up against the curb as if by design and most excellently placed to avoid observation. There was nothing either printed or written upon the envelope except this:

Mr Mousoud

Billy held it as almost a certainty that this was a note which had been dropped by the man who had been hurt. Probably it had been dislodged from his pocket when he fell and had remained caught in his clothing while he dragged himself to the curb. So far as Billy could judge, it was precisely in the right spot to fit this hypothesis. He put the note into his pocket and the next moment had forgotten it.

Sunday's papers contained no mention of the accident to Mr. Mousoud. The city directory did not contain his name. In Monday morning's papers Billy placed a small advertisement among the "Lost and Found," but there was no response. All inquiries failed, and in the course of the week Billy put the note away in a drawer of his writing table and forgot it. Far more pressing matters claimed his attention. Dorothy was called to her home in the west, and a harrowing fear tormented Billy that, despite the positive commands that he had laid upon her, she had gone to get money for the magazine. Meanwhile the scheme boiled.

One afternoon, following a conference upon the all important topic, Billy returned to his home so elated with enthusiasm that, happening to find the lean, old serving maid dusting his room, he began to deliver an oration to her on the subject of magazine publication. His eloquence produced an unexpected effect, for the woman became wildly excited and finally fell to the floor in a sort of fit. Then Billy ran for the landlady, with whose assistance he carried the hysterical servant to her room.

Returning to his own place after this unusual exercise he sat down to reflect upon the strange happenings that had recently varied the monotony of his existence and was presently confronted by one that overtopped the others—topped everything he could remember to have seen outside of dreamland. There was upon the desk a paperweight of painted porcelain, a Christmas present from Dorothy and very dear to his heart. Protruding from beneath it he now beheld something green, and this green substance proved to be four bank notes, each of the denomination of $500.

"Dear, dear little girl," he said aloud, and the tears rushed into his eyes. This was not money any more, it was her love, and he laid down his head on these poor counters in the pretty game of trade and kissed them.

Presently he arose, put the money into his safest pocket and strode away to Dorothy's house, where he was informed that Miss Vincent had not yet returned to town. Billy knew better. He perceived a trick and instantly formulated one of his own. He telegraphed to Dorothy in the west (though he knew she wasn't there) as follows:

In the early evening came this reply:

You must. But how did you find out about it? DOROTHY.

To which he responded:

I have the money and will hold it for you. I cannot use it as you wish.

At 1 o'clock in the morning the doorbell clanged, and Billy received this telegram:

Billy had not money enough to continue this correspondence by wire without breaking one of the $500 bills, so he wrote a long letter which he mailed about daybreak, and by the last delivery that afternoon he received Dorothy's letter, full of subtle persuasion and inclosing her check for $1,500. Three days later came Dorothy herself, and in the thrilling conversation which ensued she denied in the most explicit manner all knowledge of the larger sum.

It will be remembered that Louis XI. of France had many solemn forms of adjuration, only one of which he held to be binding, and he would never tell which of them it was. Few men have been so clever as Louis, but nearly all women are. Protestation with mental reservation is the natural weapon of the sex. As a student of human nature Billy Allenwood knew this, and, though he held Dorothy to be the flawless pearl of womanhood, he still could not free his mind of the notion that the four big bank notes had once been hers. It was therefore with an indefinable disfavor, a sense of something gone from his own soul, that he at last paid down the $2,000 into the capital of the great scheme.

The $1,500 which was confessedly Dorothy's was placed in bank, but in the early days, when the scheme seemed surely winning, Billy lost his balance wheel, veered to the delusion that he had foolishly shut Dorothy out from the greatest opportunity of her life and at last permitted her to invest her money. Then came the later days, the days of disappointment, of expenses marvelously swollen and receipts miraculously shrunk.

On the blackest of black days, when Billy had left the office merely to get away from it and not because his work was done, he was aware of a remembered face in the crowd, and a name leaped into his mind.

"I beg your pardon, sir," said he. "Are you Mr. Mousoud?"

"No," replied the stranger, with a touch of excellent courtesy even in so small a matter.

"I happened to be present when you met with an accident two or three months ago," said Billy, "and afterward I found a letter on the spot," and he described the occurrence.

"It was mine," said the other, who seemed surprised and even more amused. "May I ask what has become of it?"

"I have it at my rooms," answered Billy. "Would you care to come with me and get it?"

"If you were on your way there, yes," said he.

There followed an introduction whereby it appeared that this man was Julian Winser, president of the old Livingstone bank, in which position he had recently succeeded his father, as Billy knew from newspaper reports. Bankers were not popular with Billy just then, for the officials of the bank where the magazine kept its dwindling account had turned a deaf ear to all pleas for accommodation. Yet Mr. Winser seemed a very decent fellow, despite his occupation.

When they came to Billy's room he could not at first remember where he had put the Mousoud envelope, and it was by accident that he found it in a drawer which he had not opened since it was put away.

"WE KNOW THAT YOU OPENED THIS ENVELOPE."

The envelope had been torn and was empty.

Dazed and ashamed, Billy laid it upon the desk without a word, and the two men looked into each other's eyes a moment.

"You have no idea who did this?" said Winser.

Billy shook his head.

"What was in it?" he asked, with the dull manner of a discouraged man, and he made a vain search of the drawer.

Winser had not replied. He was bending over the envelope and smiling.

"There is a strange thing about my penmanship," said he at last. "It is always legible, but usually not in the right way. Yes; that's Mr. Mousoud sure enough, but when I wrote it I supposed that it was 'two thousand.'"

The breath went out of Billy in a gasp. He took the envelope out of Winser's hand and stared at the writing.

"Two thousand?' Not two thousand dollars?"

"Yes," responded Winser. "I put the money into an envelope and wrote the amount on the outside because I had another—two others, in fact, with different sums."

"I found $2,000 on this desk," said Billy, "and I've lost it."

"In a weekly magazine—Truth. Probably you haven't seen a copy. It's a failure."

"You surprise me. It certainly looks prosperous. Did you invest my money there?"

Upon this Billy told the whole story, and it sounded to him like a lie, but Winser gave no sign of disbelief.

"Of course I should not have used the money without knowing where it came from," said he in conclusion, "but I persuaded myself that somebody had been my good angel. There are two or three men in this city who were close friends of mine in college and are now very rich. Miss Vincent had often heard me speak of them, and though she knew that the acquaintance had been entirely broken off because of the difference of our circumstances she might have found means to communicate my need to one of them. The theory was wild, but so extraordinary an event seemed to excuse a little dreaming. Of course I never connected this money with the Mousoud letter, which I had practically forgotten."

"The money," said Winser, "must have been left on your desk that afternoon when you found it. Had any one been here?"

"I questioned the servant as soon as she was well. She said that a man had called for me twice, but she described a poor devil of an artist—a friend of mine who had been here before. He wasn't the man, however."

Winser took some seconds for reflection and then said:

"I am a good questioner. May I see this servant?"

"Certainly," said Billy, and he rang the bell.

The meager servitor answered the summons promptly.

"Madam," said Winser, "we know that you opened this envelope and took out the money and put a part of it under that paperweight. What did you do with the rest of it?"

She stood rigid for an instant, facing Winser, and then turned to Billy in a blaze of wrath.

"You lie!" she screamed. "You got it—all of it. I never got nothin', and you know it. You came in here that day, and I never was out of the room till you came. That's the truth, and I don't care what you say. The money was in my hand, and I put it on the desk, and you took it, and"—

"That is all that we require," said Winser, and with Billy's help he succeeded in persuading the woman that she was charged with no crime.

"And now, Mr. Allenwood," he resumed when they were alone, "we have cleared up this simple mystery, and the matter stands between us two alone. It seems that I am in a sense a partner in Truth, a very excellent magazine to read, but not to own, as I judge from what you have said. May I venture to intrude a little further into its affairs?"

Billy gave a clear statement of the condition of the magazine, and this was the first of several conferences between them. The final result was that Winser agreed to loan a certain sum of money, with the proviso that he should name a new business manager. What share of the ultimate success of Truth should be credited to Winser's appointee and what share to his financial backing I would not wish to decide, but the magazine is a great property today, as everybody knows. The shares held by Allenwood and Miss Vincent are worth a good deal of money, and there are salaries as well as profits. These interests were recently consolidated by the marriage of the parties, and one of the most prized and most valuable of the wedding presents was from Julian Winser, who assumed for that occasion the name of "Mr. Mousoud."

Much Exaggerated.

"Tell me," said the inquisitive foreigner, "do American girls affect men's clothes?"

"No," replied the gallant native, "not to any extent."

"Well, well, is that really true?"

"Well, of course, a little rouge may stick to the shoulder of a fellow's coat occasionally, but then it's easily brushed off."—Philadelphia Press.

Chess and Intellect.

It is doubtful whether a great chess player is often, we are sure he is not of necessity, to be regarded as a man of powerful intellect. It has never been shown that the greatest masters of the game were men with big brains for anything but chess.—London Saturday Review.

Her Plea For Delay.

"Will you be my wife, Jane?"

For Hygienic Reasons.

Mistress—Why have you not swept this morning? Servant—For hygienic reasons. Madame raises the dust sufficiently with the train of her skirt. We must give the microbes a little rest.—Paris Armales.

When men are friends there is no need of justice, but when they are just they still need friendship.—Aristotle.

Ancient Locks.

Locks were used in the time of the pharaohs. At Karnak the visitor is shown the sculptured representation of a lock which is almost exactly like one kind of lock used in Egypt at the present day. Homer says that Penelope used a brass key to open her wardrobe. He adds that it was very crooked and had an ivory handle. A Greek writer who lived in the last half of the twelfth century explains that such keys were undoubtedly very ancient, although still to be seen in Constantinople and elsewhere. Roman locks, like the Egyptian, required a partial sliding of the key. They were, however, more intricate.

Darwin and Books.

Of Darwin it is affirmed that he seemed unaware of the difference in the value of books and would treat a Zaehnsdorf binding with the same scant courtesy that he exercised toward a penny pamphlet. Covers appeared to him a useless weight and decidedly in the way, and he often got rid of them by ripping them off. Sometimes the book was borrowed. It is said that in the end his friends used to give him any book which he wished to borrow, for they knew that, if it were ever returned, its usefulness as a book would be at an end.

Have a Definite Aim.

No life amounts to much until it has a programme—something definite, something particular. Nothing else can take the place of it. Education cannot, talent cannot, genius cannot, hard work cannot. Until there is a definite aim the energies will run to waste, the ability be squandered. The faculties deteriorate when working without a definite aim.

Peanut Trade Secrets.

Some peanuts that are bought ready roasted are of a light yellow color. Others, however, are pronounced brunettes. There is a reason for this. The great American peanut will remain crisp only a day or two after roasting and in damp weather only a few hours. It absorbs moisture rapidly, so that two days after roasting the finest nuts lose their crispness and are to all intents and purposes as though they had never been cooked. The Italian and Greek peanut men freshen up their stocks by roasting again and reroasting. When the process has been repeated three or four times, though, the peanut begins to take on a tawny hue, which is considered objectionable by those who have stands in the better parts of town. These much roasted goobers are therefore sold at a discount to Greeks and Italians who have stands near railroad stations and the cheaper resorts, who can roast, reroast and re-reroast them indefinitely until they are finally sold.—New York Press.

A Camera Fiend.

A well known criminal lawyer one day sauntered into a police court just as a case was called. It appeared that the defendant had no attorney, and the judge glanced about the room to see whom he might assign to the case.

"I'll take it, judge," the late comer said, wishing to pass away the time.

"By the way, what is the man charged with?" the attorney presently asked.

"He's a camera fiend of the worst sort, Mr. Brown," the judge said, with a slight smile. "I expect to send him to the workhouse for about three months."

"What?" the lawyer shouted indignantly. "Your honor must be joking. Send a man to the rock pile for three months for a little harmless amusement like taking pictures?"

"Well," the judge said mildly, "he doesn't take pictures much—it's the cameras he takes."—New York Times.

A Wonderful Escape.

Fieschi tried to assassinate King Louis Philippe of France in July, 1835. The king was riding along the lines of the national guard in the Boulevard du Temple. There came a crash and a rush of bullets. Louis Philippe's arm was grazed, his horse was shot in the neck, Marshal Morfier fell dead and about thirteen other people were killed and thirty wounded. Fieschi had taken the upper floors of a house several weeks before and there rigged up an oaken frame four feet by three feet six inches, supported on four posts of oak and itself supporting twenty-five gun barrels fixed in grooves at various angles so as to command an area of twenty-five feet in length and ten feet in height. When he fired the train of powder that let off his battery the king would have been killed if four barrels had not burst and two missed fire.

A Forest of Giants.

It is almost impossible for one who has seen only the eastern or Rocky mountain forests to imagine the woods of the Pacific coast. Pictures of the big trees are as common as postage stamps, but the most wonderful thing about the big trees is that they are scarcely bigger than the rest of the forest. The Pacific coast bears only a tenth of our woodland, but nearly half of our timber. An average acre in the Rocky mountain forest yields one to two thousand board feet of lumber; in the southern forest, three to four thousand; in the northern forest, four to six thousand. An average acre on the Pacific coast yields fifteen to twenty thousand. Telescope the southern and Rocky mountain forests, toss the northern on top of them and stuff the central into the chinks, and, acre for acre, the Pacific forest will outweigh them all.—American Magazine.

Stains on Books.

Ink stains may be removed from a book by applying with a camel's hair pencil a small quantity of oxalic acid diluted with water and then using blotting paper. Two applications will remove all traces of the ink. To remove grease spots lay powdered pipeclay each side of the spot and press with an iron as hot as the paper will bear without scorching. Sometimes grease spots may be removed from paper or cloth by laying a piece of blotting paper on them and then pressing the blotting paper with a hot iron. The heat melts the grease, and the blotting paper absorbs it.

The Little Toe to Go.

A comparative anatomist says that the little toe has got to go; that it is a useless appendage, already showing signs of degeneration or withering away. It is proved that the horse, in the course of several centuries, has dropped four toes and now travels on one, and some think that man's pedal extremities are bound to follow a similar line of evolution. In the horse it is the middle digit which has survived as the fittest. In man it will be the first or great toe.

In No Hurry.

An old citizen who had been henpecked all his life was about to die. His wife felt it her duty to offer him such consolation as she might and said:

"John, you are about to go, but I will follow you."

"I suppose so, Manda," said the old man weakly, "but so fur as I am concerned you don't need to be in any blamed hurry about it!"

Past, Present and Future.

Mrs. D. Vorcee—If I could only forget the past! But, alas, it is ever before me! Mrs. Oldun—You'll have a sad future with your past always present. Take my advice and leave the past behind for the present and live in the future for the future and not in the past.—Life.

With Lightning Rapidity.

"Wonderful eye that boy of mine's got," said the proud father.

"That so?" mechanically replied the man who was trying to get away.

"You never saw such a sense of proportion," cried the proud father. "Pass that boy the cake dish and he'll spot the biggest piece on it every time."

A Political Pointer.

Bragley—Restaurant waiters would make strong candidates if they were in politics. Don't you think so? Wigway—I don't see how. Bragley—Haven't you noticed that they carry everything before them?

Proof Positive.

Impertinent Neighbor—Do you think Mr. Smith is in love with your sister Alice? Children—Oh, no! Us children are allowed to go in the parlor when he is calling.—New York Times.

Serious.

Dashaway—Don't you think that for such a wealthy chap Duffins takes his pleasures seriously? Cleverton—He has to. They are all he has to worry about.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM WIGHTMAN.

Tecumseh, Mich., Aug. 21st, 1907.

EDITOR HERALD—If I should attempt to reply to the vituperation of the fellow who signs a statement in your issue of August 20th, I would have to get down to the level of the person who signs himself E. R. Mead, but as he said nothing, I think I will do as Ben Butler did when his rival in a trial had concluded his speech, Mr. Butler arose and said, "Your Honor, inasmuch as the attorney for the defendant has said nothing to the jury, I will not take the time of the court to make an argument."

Respectfully,
JAS. W. WIGHTMAN.

P. S. With perfect good feeling toward everybody, I am still willing to discuss the sewer question for the benefit of the taxpayers of Tecumseh.

Blue Ribbon Flour a Leader.

Why? Because it pleases the most discriminating people; it is really the flour of flours and superior to the others with which it competes, in price. It is not a cheap flour for cheap people.

Mrs. Delia A. Strong.

Mrs. Delia A. Strong, wife of the late J. S. Strong of this place, died in Kalamazoo Monday morning, aged 81 years. The remains were brought to Tecumseh last evening accompanied by Mrs. B. F. Snyder, who was called there yesterday. The funeral will take place from the family residence Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. DeSpelder will officiate. Burial at Brookside.

Through passenger coach to Grand Rapids.

Effective Aug. 24th, Lake Shore Ry. established through coach service daily except Sunday from Toledo to Grand Rapids on train leaving Tecumseh at 8:57 a. m. and returning on evening train from Grand Rapids, leaving at 5:10 p. m.

"Regular as the sun"

An Experiment.

Suburbanite (to visitor)—Oh, how are you? Come right in! Don't mind the dog. Visitor—But won't he bite? Suburbanite—That's just what I want to see. I only bought that watchdog this morning.—Paris Rire.

Nothing in It.

First Burglar—Did Bill git much out uv dat last burglary? Second Burglar—No; he got so little dat his lawyer advised him ter plead guilty.—Judge.

"Culture," said a college president, "is what remains when what you learned in college has been forgotten."

Egyptian Onions.

Egypt has been regarded by some people as the land of pyramids and mummies only, but it has from time immemorial had a reputation for onions. Ancient Egyptians swore by the onion and regarded the plant as sacred. The inscription on the pyramid of Cheops tells us that the workmen had onions given to them, and from the Bible we learn that the Hebrews, when slaves under Pharaoh, enjoyed these bulbs, and that when far away they remembered "the leeks and the onions and the garlic." The Egyptian onion is a handsome and useful vegetable, and by selecting the best strains of seed the quality tends, year by year, to improve. The Egyptian knows two varieties, the "Baali" and the "Miskaoui," but supplies of the latter kind are seldom sent abroad, as they absorb so much moisture from the frequently irrigated ground in which they are grown that they do not stand a sea voyage well. The "Baali" onion is the more popular Egyptian onion and is grown in yellow soil, which is sparingly watered while the bulbs are maturing, in order that the onions may stand a lengthy sea voyage with little risk of sprouting.

Cheap Living in Norway.

"It is a good scheme," said a rich man, "to spend the summer in Norway. The Norwegian climate is superb, the scenery is grand and the living is cheap—a dollar a day at the hotels and carriages at a half dollar a day. One fine thing about Norway is that in the summer the night only lasts a couple of hours, and if you go as far as the North cape there is no night at all, but the sun circles round and round the horizon and never sinks below. The Norwegian rivers abound in fish, and any one is free to angle for trout in them. The salmon rivers, though, are strictly preserved. Some of the salmon rivers are very fine and rent for as much as $2,000 a year. I know a man who has a river only two miles long that he pays $1,800 for. He often gets fish sixty or seventy pounds. The day I called on him his wife came in with a forty pounder, a twenty-two pounder and a fifty-one pounder that she had caught herself within three hours."

"Sis in New York."

"Sis in New York" is the title of the offering which comes to the New Bradley on Aug. 30 and it reveals the merry Hoosier lass in a new role. A visit to the great metropolis permits many chances for fun and Sis runs the gamut from shaking hands with "Oscar" of the Waldorf-Astoria, mailing a souvenir post card in the fire alarm box and nearly causing a riot, in trying to stop the trolley cars by standing on the track. She takes with her the characters that have followed her through her laughing adventures since the author discovered her down in Posey county, Ind. Sis in her new play ought to be a winner.

Mrs. Hosea Hall.

Mrs. Hosea Hall died at her home south of town Sunday morning of cancer, aged 61 years. The funeral was held from the house this afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Ward conducting the services. Burial at Gurnee school.

Hunt-Schupp.

The marriage of Miss Luella Hunt to Mr. Schupp of Toledo, takes place this evening, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hunt in Tipton.

Election Notice.

Notice is hereby given that a special village election will be held at the council building, in the village of Tecumseh, on the 9th day of September, A. D. 1907, the polls being open at 7 o'clock in the morning of that day, or as soon thereafter as may be and kept open until 5 in the afternoon, for the purpose of determining whether a loan of $29,000 on the faith and credit of said village, for the purpose of constructing a sewer system therein, shall be authorized, in accordance with a resolution adopted by the Common Council of said village, at their regular meeting held on the 19th day of August, A. D. 1907 of which the following is a true copy.

Resolved, That the proposition to raise the sum of Twenty-nine Thousand dollars by a loan on the faith and credit of this village, for the purpose of constructing a sewer system in said village, according to the plans and specifications prepared by Rigg & Sherman and now on file in the office of the clerk of this village, be and the same hereby is submitted to the vote of the electors of this village at a special village election, now and hereby called for that purpose, to be held at the Council Building in said village on the 9th day of September, A. D. 1907 at which election the votes shall be by ballot the contents of which shall be as follows, viz:

The ballot for those voting to authorize said loan to read as follows:—

☐ Shall a village loan of Twenty-nine Thousand dollars for sewer purposes be authorized; Yes."

The ballot for those voting not to authorize said loan shall read as follows:—

That said special village election be conducted in every respect, in the manner provided by law for special village elections, and that the village clerk is hereby directed to give notice of said election by having a copy of this resolution published in each the Tecumseh HERALD and the Tecumseh NEWS, at least twice before said election and by posting notices of said election containing copies of this resolution in six of the most public places in this village at least two weeks before the date of said election.

BASE BALL

Tecumseh shut out Kalamazoo again Friday through the fine pitching of Teal, who allowed but three hits. He received errorless support. Tecumseh scored her two runs in the first inning. Preston struck out, Somerlott, Slear and Hillinger singled, Somerlott scored and Slear scored on Furlong's poor throw to third in trying to catch him.

Score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E

Runs, Somerlott, Slear; hits, off Brannick 3, Method 1; 2 base hit, Blake; sacrifice hit, Blake; base on balls, off Teal 1; left on bases, Kalamazoo 2; struck out, by Method 4, by Teal 5; double play, Somerlott to Merkle; umpire, Gallagher; attendance, 500.

Finding Heiney Steiger for 3 hits, two of them double scokers Tecumseh won Sunday at Battle Creek by 2 to 1. Steiger pitched good ball until the 9th when Mitchell hit for a two-sacker and Doty put out a single. Preston hit for two bases, Mitchell scoring but Cross threw Doty out at plate. Tecumseh scored in the 5th on Merkle's single, Wolfe's error and Mitchell's grounder. Battle Creek's only run was caused by a free ticket for Hessberger and a 2-bagger by Cross.

Score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Battle Ck	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	1	5	4
Tecumseh	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	1	*	2	8	0

Bases on balls, off Doty 4; two base hit, Cross, Landry, Mitchell, Preston; double plays, Wagner to Merkle; struck out, by Doty 2; by Steiger 5; sacrifice hits, Wolfe, Doty, Thomas; stolen, Somerlott, Hildinger; left on bases, Battle Creek, 7; Tecumseh 9; umpire, Gallagher; time 1:45; attendance 2,000.

By hitting Richardson when hits meant runs and scattering hits off McCain, Battle Creek defeated the Indians 4 to 1 yesterday. It was a pretty game in which McCain pulled out of tight holes several times.

Henderson featured with the stick, with three hits, one bringing in two runs. In the 3rd Thomas singled and Cross' sacrifice went for a hit. McCain flew out, Stewars fanned, when Reardon, usually a poor sticker, hit for two sacks. Tecumseh followed in the 4th by a similiar action, Hildinger singling and scored on a hit secured by Bradley, also a catcher and ordinarily a poor sticker.

In the 8th Battle Creek cinched the game when Stewart and Landry singled, and were scored by Henderson's swift one past Somerlott.

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

WHY?

The International Manure Spreader is the most satisfactory all around Spreader sold.

1. It is made, sold and looked after, after it is sold, by the International Harvester Co.

2. It has practically no gearing compared with other spreaders.

3. It has one lever only, that does the same work that other machines require six for.

4. It has a self-feed vibrating rake which pulverizes and levels the load.

5. It has more than double the feed changes of any other machine.

We have several endless and Apron Return Spreaders set all the time. Please call and talk it over.

The "Huskin' Bee" has become a thing of the past and there is only one spot where they still observe it and that's in Southern Indiana, perhaps more especially in Posey county, where they are still buying gold bricks and can't tell for sure who is President. But despite old Posey's hayseed ways, she has furnished material that the playwright's hands has arranged and made millions laugh. "Sis" was caught down there and transferred to the stage and she has made a world of friends. Advertising is out now telling of her coming with her company on Aug. 30.

Fall and Winter Woolens.

Without a doubt the finest line we have ever shown. Newest colorings, latest designs, patterns that dazzle the eye and make every one that sees them say, "lay this one out for me." We have never seen costumers grab them so fast before. The worst trouble they have is to know which one to take, they are all so nice, not a poor one in the lot. Get the fever, come in and look at them and you will surely buy. Glad to show them.

HAVE YOU CATARRH?

Breathe Hromei and relief and cure will be guaranteed.

If you have catarrh, with offensive breath, burning pains in the throat, difficulty in breathing, raising of mucous, discharge from the nose, tickling or dropping from the back of the throat, coughing spasms, etc., begin the use of Hy-o-mei at once.

Hy-o-mei is made from nature's soothing oils and balsams and contains the germ-killing properties of the pine woods. Its medication is taken in with the air you breathe, so that it reaches the most remote part of the respiratory organs, killing all catarrhal germs and soothing any irritation there may be in the mucous membrane.

The complete Hy-o-mei outfit costs but $1.00 and C. A. Wright & Son gives his personal guarantee with each package that money will be refunded unless the treatment does all that is claimed for it.

council made its estimates the estimates made constituted an appropriation of a certain amount, which was directed to be raised for highway purposes, and of a another and larger amount for the general fund, to meet the general expenses of the village and out of this fund are paid the general expenses of the village which do not properly belong to water, cemetery or highway, and from this fund will be paid the expense involved in getting the necessary information permitting the council to submit to the qualified voters of this village the question of whether or not we shall have the sewer.

Possibly your idea would be that nothing of this kind could be expended until we had spread a tax and raised a sewer fund. Will any sensible taxpayer insist that any tax should be spread for any sewer until we knew that we want a sewer, what we want in the way of a sewer, and what its cost would be? 'Who buildeth a tower until he has estimated the cost thereof." I suppose that you would insist that if a bill for $13.17 came in for services that some one had rendered or something that had been purchased, your construction would be that before that bill was paid, the council with all the solemnity that rests upon the brows of our village fathers must deliberately make an appropriation of that amount and then pass the bill and direct the payment thereof. Why did you not have them do it while you were village attorney, but you are wrong again. I have no hesitancy in saying that every order drawn by the president and clerk has been paid from and charged to the proper fund, and if it is in the power of the council to make an appropriation from the general fund to meet a shortage in any other fund, that appropriation will be made when that shortage occurs, but that is a condition that we have not yet had to face.

After the foregoing had been handed to the paper, but luckily before it was published, your article of the 15th inst. appeared in the "News," Mr. Wightman.

Can you never be fair, Mr. Wightman? It is true that we have something upwards of $20,000 outstanding in water bonds, but we have been paying these up for a number of years past and I doubt if more than one-quarter of the taxpayers realize it in their taxes, and they will be finally paid and out of the way in 1923 with no greater hardship than we have felt in the past.

It is not true that we owe $15,000 in bridge notes. The total expense of the bridge in round numbers is $15,500, of that the village portion of $1,500 has already been paid into the village treasury; of the remaining $14,000, $3,500 will be paid by the TOWNSHIP taxpayers this coming December and January before one penny of the sewer tax will have matured, reducing the future bridge cost to $10,500, which is distributed on the TOWNSHIP roll in the next four years as follows: $3,000 January, 1909; $2,500 January, 1910; $2,500 in 1911, and $3,500 in 1912. And again this $10,500 is spread on the TOWNSHIP VALUATION which is $2,011,800, resulting in a tax of each year running from one mill to less than two mills on the dollar and will be paid and gone before the first sewer bond principal matures, and during which time, as already shown, the sewer, though already enjoyed, will have cost but one dollar on each one thousand dollars of village valuation per year.

Concerning the new school house that is giving Mr. Wightman the nightmare, no expense will be made until the taxpayers of this school district permit; in other words, that question will be in our own control when the emergency comes, if ever. In the matter of the extension of water mains, the council have pledged so far as in them lies to provide all the inhabitants with access to the water; the expense of this can hardly be the sum mentioned by Mr. Wightman, for very few streets are yet to be supplied, and those principally cross streets with small laterals, but the water fund is now more than self supporting, and the extensions can reasonably be expected to be made from that fund with scarcely any help by tax levy, and this in the almost immediate future. But Mr. Wightman is unfair in OVERSTATING the figures that he uses, in stating them IN GROSS, when in fact they are spread out in installments, in mixing village and township charges, and in including in his statement large items which have no right to be used. Still take his figures as a whole, wrong though they be by $12,000 at least, and $81,000 imaginary, and misleadingly applied to the VILLAGE assessment, and we have then an indebtedness of $159,000, which scattered through the years to come isn't very serious on a valuation of a million and a half dollars; not more serious than for a man worth $100 to borrow $10; at that his total of $159,000 must be cut to $66,000, or $6 to $145, to fit the facts.

It seems to me that the justice of spreading the sewer tax at large and upon the general valuation rather than upon the abutting property needs no further argument in this article; but just for a sample, how fair will it be to tax by frontage, as advised by our wise friend, and tax the owner of a lot six rods by twelve rods, lying on a corner, three times the amount that his neighbor pays on an interior lot also six rods wide and of the same value?

And now, Mr. Wightman, if in the heat of argument I have been led into being unjustly personal, I desire to apologize, for I have not wished to be personal, though I cannot too strongly denounce the fallacy of your claims.

Will the reader permit just a little more trial of his patience for me to say that I cannot believe that any argument I can advance will make more clear the desirability and importance of having the sewer? Its benefits and necessity must be clearly understood and appreciated by all. I might suggest, however, that the poison and corruption of some cesspool will in time penetrate to and contaminate the water supply of our whole village as surely as time is passing. When that time will come no man can determine. It may be years hence and it may be within the present month; but to me a single life lost in the resulting epidemic of illness is worth more than the entire cost of the proposed sewer and that death is as likely to happen in your home as mine. And, for a selfish view, there is no piece of property that would not be enhanced in value, if a sewer were accessible, even though not connected, far beyond the cost of the sewer to the owner of that property.

I fully recognize the fact that as yet, and I fear for a considerable time in the future, no scheme of taxation devised by man will ever divide the burden of public improvements in a way absolutely just and equitable; we must simply do the best we can with the methods provided for us. And I say with all honesty that for an improvement of this nature no better means are offered under existing laws, in my judgment, than to provide the benefit for ALL, and spread the expense upon ALL taxable property.

Won't you, every taxpayer who may read this article, examine your latest tax receipt, or otherwise ascertain the amount of your assessed valuation, carefully estimate the cost that this proposition means to you with the figures that I have furnished, and, reasoning honestly with yourself, see if you can reach any other conclusion than that the known benefits will be worth to you more than their cost? And won't you, the good mother in the home, to whom order, cleanliness and the health of your children mean so much, also look into this matter and advise the husband, son or brother who will vote in your stead?

For the voter who disagrees with me, but who has reached his decision thoughtfully and WITH HONESTY TO HIMSELF, I have nothing but respect, for he is exercising the same right that I demand for myself; but this question is of vital interest TO YOU, reach YOUR OWN decision thoughtfully and carefully and we will, like good citizens, abide the result.

Respectfully,
FRED B. WOOD.

THE NEW REMEDY.

Take it now that vacation days are fast approaching.

Thousands of men and women are anxiously looking forward to the vacation days that come in June, July and August—not so much for the pleasure or enjoyment as for the chance of getting rid of their ill-health.

To thoroughly drive away troubles of the stomach most people think they have to make a business of it with dieting, exercise and perhaps a vacation.

But the Mi-o-na stomach taken with regularity, in a very few days will drive away indigestion, dizzy spells, distress after eating, headaches, sleeplessness, and the many other symptoms of bad digestion and sluggishness of the digestive organs that keep people from enjoying themselves.

Day after day, at work behind desks or in the factory with poor sunlight and air, soon results in sluggishness of the entire physical and mental apparatus. The first slight symptom of indigestion can be easily cured, but when they are allowed to increase without any help, then the stomach complaints become hard to shake off.

Strengthen the whole digestive system with Mi-o-na and you will soon find that both stomach and bowels do their work as they should.

C. A. Wright & Son sell Mi-o-na in 50c boxes and guarantee to refund the money if the remedy does not give complete satisfaction.

The Old Time Buccaneer.

Mr. Masefield's book, "On the Spanish Main," presents the old time buccaneer in a less abhorrent light than that in which most people have regarded him. He even had religious beliefs. No buccaneer was allowed to hunt or to cure meat upon a Sunday. No crew put to sea on a cruise without first going to church to ask a blessing on their enterprise. No crew got drink on the return to port after a successful trip until thanks had been declared for the dew of heaven they had gathered. After a cruise the men were expected to fling all their loot into a pile, from which the chiefs made their selection and division. Each buccaneer was expected to hold up his right hand and to swear that he had not concealed any portion of the spoil. If after making oath a man were found to have secreted anything he was bundled overboard or marooned when the ship next made the land. Each buccaneer had a mate or comrade, with whom he shared all things and to whom his property devolved in the event of death. In many cases the partnership lasted during life. A love for his partner was usually the only tender sentiment a buccaneer allowed himself.

Blowing the Nose.

Medical experts are calling the attention of the public to the importance of performing the nose blowing operation in a scientific and hygienic manner. First one nostril and then the other should be blown without undue violence. Doctors state that the two nasal passages should never be closed at the same time. If they are obstructed, as in the case of a cold, the back of the throat is filled with compressed air, and this, together with the discharge and the microbes which it contains, may be driven through the eustachian tube into the middle ear and lead to serious results. A great authority on the subject used to forbid his patients to blow their noses when suffering from a cold. The course is hardly one which will commend itself to those in the habit of catching colds. The best advice would seem to be that when it is necessary to blow the nose the blowing should be done gently.—London Mail.

Obedient, but Indignant.

"Norah," said the literary woman, "I wish you would go down to the library and bring me 'Flavius Josephus.'"

The new girl left the room to execute the commission.

Presently a terrific noise was heard on the stairway, and Norah pushed the door open with her foot a moment later, dragging in by the collar a large and reluctant Newfoundland dog.

"Here he is, Mrs. Dinnis," she said, "but ye oughtn't to have sint me for 'im. It's a man's job. The baste thried to bite me, an' I had to fight 'im ivery fut o' the way."—Chicago Tribune.

Sailors' Knives.

Sheath knives that great sailors carry with them are, it is said, so highly magnetized as to be capable, if brought within eighteen inches of the compass, of deflecting the needle two points either way. It is suggested that no man should be allowed to wear one of these knives while steering a vessel or while on the lookout in the bridge house.

Spanish Sheep.

There are said to be 10,000,000 migratory sheep in Spain, which travel on occasions as much as 200 miles from the plains to the mountains. They are known as transhumantes, and their march, resting places and behavior are governed by special regulations dating from the fourteenth century. At certain times no one may travel the same route as the sheep, which have the right to graze on all open and common land on the way.

A Queer Cure.

"Riding on an elephant in Ceylon, behind a native prince on a hunting expedition," said a clergyman, "the conversation chanced to turn on indigestion, to which I said I was subject. The prince at once pulled out a black leather button kind of thing, which he was wearing on a string round his neck under his clothes.

"'What's this?' said I.

"'A hyena's snout,' was the startling reply.

"'What for?'

"'To cure indigestion.'

"'How can it do this?'

"'It is very simple. A hyena gets its living by digging up and crunching old bones. Now, it possesses in its snout this peculiar virtue—that when its nose approaches anything hard, such as bones, these tough substances instantly grow soft and enable the animal to eat them with comfort and benefit. So you will find that if you keep this charm hanging round your neck the proximity of the hyena's nose, though dried up and lifeless, will soften your food, however indigestible, to such an extent that you will never again suffer from indigestion.'"

Populous Cheese.

A professor of the Swiss Dairy school at Sonntal, has compiled statistics of the number of micro organisms found in cheese. His experiments lead to the conclusion that every gram (one-thirtieth part of an ounce) of fresh Emmenthaler (Swiss) cheese contains between 90,000 and 100,000 living germs. After two months the number has increased to 800,000. Cream cheese contains a still larger number of animalculae, a gram harboring after three weeks 750,000, rising to 2,000,000 after a month and a half. These figures apply only to the center of the cheese, while close to the rind families numbering 5,500,000 bacteria may be found in every gram of cheese. In about one and a half pounds of cream cheese, the professor estimates, there are as many germs as there are human beings on the face of the globe. It is supposed that all or most of these microbes are "friendly" ones and assist in the digestive process. We hope so. —Grocery.

King's Duty and King's English.

Exhibited in the window of a watchmaker's shop in Manchester is a faded letter of Nelson's. It tells an old, old story, reminding us of the time when, to defend the shores of their native land, Englishmen had to beg and implore for the bare material means to do it. It was so in the days of the armada and in Nelson's day. It has been so in our own. The letter reads:

My Dear Sir—If you will order the Agamemnon to be supplied with 200 fathoms of three inch rope and 100 fathoms of two inch rope purchases will be rove to drag the guns. We have not a fathom of rope in the ship. If you could spare us two threefold blocks and two twofold blocks I am to be much obliged. Yours most faithfully, HORATIO NELSON.

Evidently in his care of the king's ship the national hero was at the time somewhat careless of the king's English.—London Chronicle.

Why Thunder Sours Milk.

To many persons the curdling of milk in a thunderstorm is a mysterious and unintelligible phenomenon. Yet the whole process really is simple and natural. Milk, like most other substances, contains millions of bacteria. The milk bacteria that in a day or two under natural conditions would cause the fluid to sour are peculiarly susceptible to electricity. Electricity inspirits and invigorates them, affecting them as alcohol, cocaine or strong tea affects men. Under the current's influence they fall to work with amazing energy, and instead of taking a couple of days to sour the milk they accomplish the task completely in a half hour. With an electric battery it is easy on the same principle to sour the freshest milk.

All travel has its advantages. If the passenger visits better countries he may learn to improve his own, and if fortune carries him to worse he may learn to enjoy his own.—Johnson.

For Pain

Take a Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pill, and the Pain will disappear Like Magic.

Not by paralyzing the nerves and glands, like opium, morphine, cocaine, and other dangerous drugs, but by increasing the natural secretions.

This action is obtained as a result of modern discoveries in medicine, making it possible to relieve pain without bad after-effects.

You can safely depend upon Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills to relieve and cure such pains as Neuralgia, Headache, Stomachache, Menstrual Pains, Rheumatism, Backache, Toothache, etc.

They will also, by their calming action on the nerves, almost instantly relieve such distressing feelings as Dizziness, Car-Sickness, Indigestion, Irritability, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, etc.

Not merely do they relieve, but they also absolutely cure, because by persevering in their use, you do away with the cause.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are guaranteed that first package will benefit, or your money back. Never sold in bulk.

"I am thankful for the good Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have and are doing me. Ever since the war I have had spells of severe throbbing headache, caused by catarrh, until six years ago, I began taking Anti-Pain Pills, the only remedy that ever gave me relief. Since then I have not had one hard attack, because I take a Pill and it overcomes the difficulty.—GEO. BAUNDERS, Greensburg, Ind.

A Sailor on Sea Pictures.

"I'll take a sailor along with me the next time I buy a marine painting," said a millionaire. "I bought two marines last month, and yesterday my old friend Captain Salthorse had a look at them.

"Salthorse said:

"'In this first picture we've got a trading schooner in charge of a tug towing away from a rock bound coast through a fearful jumble of sea. The schooner's maintop mast is gone, and all sails are lowered except her staysail, which is kept hoisted, though she is towing head on to the gale. Why that hoisted staysail? All hands, I suppose, are drunk.

"'In the second picture,' continued Captain Salthorse, 'the principal boat, an eighteen footer, is racing, yet has no flag flying. That's as incorrect as it would be for you to go to a dinner party minus a shirt. The crew of this boat are getting in the spinnaker, and, if they lower away, both spinnaker and boom will be in the water, for they have neglected to let the boom go forward. But I know what the trouble is with them. They, too, are drunk.'"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

His Visits to the Earl.

There is a well known English bishop who writes a very bad hand. This bad hand caused a sad error to happen some years ago. A young clergyman had written to the bishop to inquire about a vacant curacy, and the reply that the young man got informed him that the salary was small and the work difficult. But there was one mitigating circumstance. The incumbent, among his other duties, would visit the earl every morning and spend two hours there. The curate would have rejected the post but for the daily visit to the earl. That attracted him. There would, no doubt, he told himself, be many fashionable dinners to which he would naturally be invited. He would make many friends among the rich and powerful. These friends would be able to help him in his career. The earl, perhaps, had daughters. One of them—who knows?—stranger things had happened. And so the curate accepted the difficult and poorly paid curacy to discover on his first visit to the town that he had misread the bishop's letter and that his daily two hours' visit was not to the earl, but to the jail.

Ingersoll on Napoleon.

A little while ago I stood by the grave of the great Napoleon—a magnificent tomb of gilt and gold. I saw him take an empire by the force of his genius. I saw him upon the frightful field of Waterloo, when chance and fate combined to wreck the fortunes of the former king, and I saw him at St. Helena with his hands crossed behind him gazing out at the sad and solemn sea. I thought of the orphans and widows he had made, of the tears that had been shed for his glory, and of the only woman who had ever loved him pushed from his heart by the cruel hand of ambition, and I said I would rather have been a French peasant and wear wooden shoes. I would rather have been that peasant with my loving wife by my side, knitting as the day died out in the skies, with my children upon my knees and their arms about me. I would rather have been that man and gone down to the tongueless silence of the dreamless dust than to have been that impartial impersonation of force and murder known as Napoleon the Great.—Woman's Home Companion.

Too Lively.

He was a solemn Scotchman, with an equally solemn and somewhat downtrodden wife. The fact that they were receiving an excellent price for their "second pair front" from an American lodger did not blind them to her failings.

"Dear me, Mr. Macleod," said the lodger, one Sunday afternoon, when an errand took her to the parlor, where the family sat, "I should think you and your wife would be stifled sitting indoors this hot day with the windows shut. If you'd just open one and get some fresh air, I'm sure it would do Mrs. Macleod good; she looks pale."

Mr. Macleod looked at her with his usual stern and unbending gaze.

"We can hae fresh air ony day," he said calmly. "We're no need to hae it rushing aboot the house on the Sabbath."

Germany the Modern Rome.

Let the German people keep a lesson from antiquity before their eyes. Once before an England and a Germany of no less different character have confronted each other. They were Carthage and Rome. And old Rome with its policy of force and power finally conquered the cash politics of Carthage and raised itself to the position of the first power upon earth. We have historical example when we say that the German people must return from the imitation of the un-German Carthaginian-British finance policy and must go back to the Roman-German policy of power and might. In no other way can a really great Weltpolitik be promoted in the hope perhaps of making ourselves ultimately the leading people in the world.—Berlin Grenzboten.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Bell, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says: "I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

Kodol Digests What You Eat.

BASE BALL.

Tecumseh increased her lead at Mt. Clemens Tuesday, taking a fine pitchers battle from Mt. Clemens. The game was one of the fastest ever seen in Mt. Clemens. It was a remarkable contest in that no bases were given or stolen and only three on each side died on bases.

Tecumseh scored one in the 2nd. After Hildinger struck out, Ragan threw badly to first on Wagner's bounder. He went to second on a wild pitch and reached third when Merkle struck out, Cadman dropping the ball and being forced to throw to first. Mitchell hit one over Wenger for two bases, scoring Wagner, but was out trying to make third.

The run in the 8th was earned on Wolfe's hit, Teal's sacrifice and Preston's single to right.

Ragan made several pretty stops at third and Daringer occupied the spotlight several times by fielding that cut off two sure hits.

Score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Mt. Cle'ns	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	3	2

Runs, Wagner, Wolfe 2; two-base hit, Mitchell; sacrifice hit, Teal; struck out, by Chelsman 6, by Teal 5; left on bases, Mt. Clemens 3; Tecumseh 3; first base on errors, Tecumseh 2; wild pitch, Chelsman; passed ball, Cadman; time 1:20; umpire, Whalen; attendance 544.

It was up to Mr. Irving Gough to stop to stop the Indians on their wild chase after the pennant and he acquitted himself in finished style. Every man on the team except Wagner struck out at least once.

Tecumseh was never dangerous. Not a man reached first on balls or errors and the four hits were scattered. Mt. Clemens earned its first run on two-sackers by Thomas and Chiesman. Richardson gave them three more in the 7th. Two scored and Eberts was caught off third and when he slid home Mitchell dropped the throw. Wenger drew the second pass of the inning and Dillon sent him home with a smash against the fence. He was thrown out trying to make third.

Clemens 6, Tecumseh 4; wild pitche, Gough; umpire, Whalen; time, 1:35; attendance 671.

Tecumseh hit "Heine Steiger" of Battle Creek freely yesterday, winning by the score of 7 and 1. A sensational catch by Hillinger, pulling what would have been a three base hit, off the right field fence was a feature. Doty allowed but five hits.

CHINA IS WEAK.

Brow-Beaten by Japan and France for Her Rights.

Pekin, Aug. 30.—China made a protest on Aug. 19 to France and Japan against the covenant of their recent agreement providing for interference in the vast regions of the sovereign Chinese domain. The protest has resulted in a remarkable suppression by the authorities of public matters. It is claimed that China has been brow-beaten from her rights, owing to the cowardice of the present Chinese government, the cowering position of the throne and its overlording by Japan.

The protest, which the Wai-Wu-Pu, or board of foreign affairs, for the purpose of not giving offense modified to a mild character, is to the effect that the agreement of China's allied opponents is "not to be considered as right." The protest has aroused the indignation of the Japanese who have ignored it, leaving the French here to persuade the Wai-Wu-Pu to drop it.

While China's resentment at the patronage of Japan, which country is assuming the position of her protector, is increasing, the government is yet too weak and alarmed to combine the assistance of the empress with official action, preferring the dangerous policy of secrecy.

The attitude of foreigners here has reached a stake of pronounced antagonism to the Japanese, especially among those belonging to the nations which are the allies of the Japanese. This antagonism has been largely provoked by Japan's constant success both in Korea and Manchuria.

A new movement headed by Chang Chin Tung has been started among the Chinese to promote native enterprises in Fukien, for the purpose of offsetting the efforts of the Japanese to obtain a foothold in that province.

Election Notice.

Notice is hereby given that a special village election will be held at the council building, in the village of Tecumseh, on the 9th day of September, A. D. 1907, the polls being open at 7 o'clock in the morning of that day, or as soon thereafter as may be and kept open until 5 in the afternoon, for the purpose of determining whether a loan of $22,000 on the faith and credit of said village, for the purpose of constructing a sewer system therein, shall be authorized, in accordance with a resolution adopted by the Common Council of said village, at their regular meeting held on the 19th day of August, A. D. 1907 of which the following is a true copy.

Resolved, That the proposition to raise the sum of Twenty-nine Thousand dollars by a loan on the faith and credit of this village, for the purpose of constructing a sewer system in said village, according to the plans and specifications prepared by Riggs & Sherman and now on file in the office of the clerk of this village, be and the same hereby is submitted to the vote of the electors of this village at a special village election, now and hereby called for that purpose, to be held at the Council Building in said village on the 9th day of September, A. D. 1907 at which election the votes shall be by ballot the contents of which shall be as follows, viz:

The ballot for those voting to authorize said loan to read as follows:—

"☐ Shall a village loan of Twenty-nine Thousand dollars for sewer purposes be authorized; Yes."

The ballot for those voting not to authorize said loan shall read as follows:—

"☐ Shall a village loan of Twenty-nine thousand dollars for sewer purposes be authorized; No."

That said special village election be conducted in every respect, in the manner provided by law for special village elections, and that the village clerk is hereby directed to give notice of said election by having a copy of this resolution published in each the Tecumseh HERALD and the Tecumseh News, at least twice before said election and by posting notices of said election containing copies of this resolution in six of the most public places in this village at least two weeks before the date of said election.

Date:—Village of Tecumseh, Michigan August 23, A. D., 1907.

GOOD FOR FIRST DAY.

Was Attendance at State Fair in Detroit.

EXHIBITORS ARE HUSTLING.

Some Attractions Were Not In Place—Chemical Engine Guards Against Fires—Rest Tents Supplied—Large Number of Horses Entered.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 30.—A good attendance for the first day made the opening day, Thursday, of the state fair a complete success despite the fact that many of the exhibits were not in shape, and the crowd took everything with good humor and seemed satisfied with things just as they were.

By dint of great effort on the part of the management and the employment of a large number of men, the exhibits in the main buildings were made fairly presentable by noon.

The shows on the "Wanderlust" were in readiness quite early, but little attempt was made to solicit patronage, the proprietors preferring to wait for the afternoon and evening crowds. The merry-go-round, however, was soon in full career and discordant music from machines of every description made the place sound like a true fair.

The Igorrote village attracted no little attention from early visitors. The canvas walls were not yet in place when the brown natives from the Philippines arrived and spectators saw the show for nothing.

A chemical engine has been installed on the grounds and everything is ready in case fire breaks out.

Prize Cow on Rampage.

A huge prize cow with a tremendous spread of horns caused considerable excitement in the morning by breaking loose and running amuck about the grounds. Taking a sudden aversion to the stable, she broke loose, bolted for the door and started for the open country, pursued by a crowd of stable boys and spectators. She was captured after a hard run clear across the ground—a flight in which a fence was knocked down, but no other damage was done.

Rest tents have been erected in the grove in which the band stand is situated, and were well patronized during the heat of the day. Most of them have been erected by benevolent organizations, the Maccabees and the W. C. T. U. The grounds are literally plastered with tents in which all kinds of food and drink may be obtained and no one with the price of a meal about him need go hungry for want of a place to provide a luscious hamburger and the long, bent hot dog.

Judge L. C. Holden of Sault Ste. Marie, superintendent of the horse department, reports that his entries number 451. This is 165 beyond the capacity of the barns, which are as large as any at any state fair in this country. The overflow is being taken care of in a tent in which stalls have been made for the horses.

Many Breeds Exhibited.

The entires of the different breeds are as follows: Standard bred trotters, 41; non-standard light harness horses, 30; roadsters, standard and non-tandard, 24; saddle horses, park, high school, etc., 48; carriage and coach horses, 81; American coach horses, 2; hackneys, 22; Percherons, including 20 just imported from France, 85; Clydes, 11; Shires, 8; Belgians, 10; grade drafts, farmers' and breeders', 38; Shetland ponies, breeding stock, 49; mules and jackasses, 3.

Judge Holden says that the judging of the horses for the prizes will be started Saturday morning, and will be continued each morning during the fair. The judging will be done in front of the grandstand, so the visitors to the fair can see the horses "put through their paces." The prizes in the different contests this year will amount to between $7,000 and $8,000.

Yantic Goes to Hancock.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 30.—With a few farewell toots that sounded harsh and discordant in the early morning, the training ship Yantic, which so long served the local naval reserves, hoisted anchor in the river, just below Belle Isle, at 4 o'clock in the morning, and started for Hancock, where she will serve the reserves of that port. When word was received at Hancock that the Yantic had been assigned to that division, preparations were made at once to take charge of her, and the entire fifth division of the naval reserves arrived in Detroit Wednesday morning. They were met by Commander F. D. Standish, of the local reserves, who with the aid of several of the Detroit divisions spent the day and evening entertaining their guests. When the start for Hancock was made early Thursday morning.

NEW BRIDGE FALLS.

Portion of Structure Across St. Lawrence Collapses.

EIGHTY-FOUR LIVES LOST.

Men Working on its Construction Carried Down to Their Deaths—Enormously Expensive Piece of Work Lies Tangled Mass at River Bottom.

Quebec, Aug. 30.—The great Quebec bridge collapsed late Thursday afternoon, and now the vast mass of steel work lies a tangled wreck across the St. Lawrence channel. A careful estimate places the loss of life at 84. The bridge fell at exactly twenty-three minutes to six last evening, just as many of the workmen were preparing to leave. The accident was so terrible in its effectiveness in wiping out the lives of the men employed that very little is known as to the cause of the disaster.

The bridge was about a mile and a half in length, and half of it, from the south shore to midstream, crumpled up and dropped to the water. Ninety-two men were at work on this section of the structure and the whistle had just blown at 5:30 for the men to quit work for the day, when there came a grinding sound from the bridge midstream. The men turned to see what had happened and an instant later the cry went up "the bridge is falling."

The men made a rush shore-ward, but the distance was too great for them to escape. The fallen section of the bridge dragged others after it, the snapping girders and cables booming like a crash of artillery. Terror lent fleetness to the feet of the frightened workmen as they sped shoreward, but only a few of them reached safety before the last piece of iron work on the south shore was dragged into the river.

Eight Rescued.

Near the shore the wreckage of the bridge did not go below the surface of the water and eight workmen who remained above water, were rescued and taken to the hospital at Levis.

The steamer Glenmont had just cleared the bridge when the first section fell. The water thrown up by the debris came clear over the bridge of the steamer. The captain at once lowered boats. The small boats plied backward and forward over the sunken wreckage for half an hour, but there was no sign of life. The twisted iron and steel had its victims in a terrible death grip. A few floating timbers and the broken strands of the bridge toward the north shore were the only signs that anything unusual had hapened.

All the men drowned were employes of the Phoenixville Bridge Co., and sub-contractors of Quebec and Montreal.

The Quebec bridge was begun about seven years ago, and it was to be finished in 1909. Subsidies had been granted by the federal and provincial governments and the city of Quebec, the estimated cost of the work was $10,000,000.

The Phoenixville Bridge Co., of Pennsylvania, had the contract for the construction of the bridge, and were working from both sides of the river.

Of the 84 missing, 16 have been taken from the water dead. The horror of the situation was increased by the fact that there are a number of wounded men pinned in the wreckage near the shore. Their groans and shrieks could be plainly heard by the crowds who had gathered at the water's edge, but for a time nothing could be done to rescue them or relieve their sufferings.

Revives, Gives Name and Dies.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 30.—After lingering unconscious since last Saturday, the young man picked up three miles west of Fuller station by a Grand Trunk railroad crew and taken to the county infirmary at Coopersville, Ottawa county, is dead. The officers are inclined to believe he was slugged and robbed. Just before dying the man became rational long enough to murmur the words "George Warren—father—lives in Boston." The stranger was well dressed, and the belief is that he was a picture frame agent. He was between 25 and 30 years of age. Kent county officers are working with the Ottawa sheriff to unravel the mystery.

A young widow has a peculiar way of seeing a man without looking at him.

Men past sixty in danger

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo. writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate glands and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am 91 years old." Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh

A man doesn't have to wear good clothes if he can afford not to.

"We never repent of eating too little" was one of the ten rules of life of Thos. Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule applies to every one without exception during this hot weather, because it is hard for food, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach as much as possible by the use of a little Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Some men stand just inside the door ready to grasp opportunity by the back of the neck when it knocks.

Hay fever and summer colds.

Victims of hay fever will experience great benefit by taking Foley's Honey and Tar, as it stops difficult breathing immediately and heals the inflamed air passages, and even if it should fail to cure you it will give instant relief. Martin Hewitt, Investigator.

The Quinton Jewel Affair.

By ARTHUR MORRISON.

Published by Arrangement With Harper & Brothers.

By some means which I never quite understood Hewitt managed to keep abreast of the very latest fashions in the ever changing slang dialect of the criminal fraternity, and he was a perfect reader of the more modern and diluted form of Romany, the gypsy.

In the Quinton jewel affair Hewitt came into contact with a very accomplished thief. The case will probably be very well remembered. Sir Valentine Quinton before he married had been as poor as only a man of rank with an old country establishment to keep up can be. His marriage, however, with the daughter of a wealthy financier had changed all that, and now the Quinton establishment was carried on on as lavish a scale as might be.

Lady Quinton's jewels made quite a collection, and chief among them was the great ruby, one of the very few that were sent to this country to be sold (at an average price of somewhere about £2,000 apiece, I believe) by the Burmese king before the annexation of his country. Well, this great ruby, which was set in a pendant, by the bye together with a necklace, brooches, bracelets, earrings—indeed, the greater part of Lady Quinton's collection—was stolen. The robbery was effected in the usual time and in the usual way in cases of carefully planned jewelry robberies. The time was early evening dinner time, in fact and an entrance had been made by the window to Lady Quinton's dressing room, the door screwed up on the inside and wires artfully stretched about the grounds below to overset anybody who might observe and pursue the thieves.

On an investigation by London detectives, however, a feature of singularity was brought to light. There had plainly been only one thief at work at Radcot Hall, and no other had been inside the grounds.

Some few days passed, and although the police had made various arrests they appeared to be all mistakes, and the suspected persons were released one after another. I was talking of the robbery with Hewitt at lunch and asked him if he had received any commission to hunt for the missing jewels.

"No," Hewitt replied, "I haven't been commissioned. They are offering an immense reward, however—a very pleasant sum, indeed. I have had a short note from Radcot Hall informing me of the amount and that's all. Probably they fancy that I may take the case up on speculation, but that is a great mistake."

We talked of other things, and presently rose and left the restaurant, slowly toward home. Some little distance from the Strand and near our own door, we passed an excited Irishman—without doubt an Irishman by appearance and talk—who was pouring a torrent of angry complaints in the ears of a policeman. Something interesting in our conversation made me stop for a little while at Hewitt's office door on my way up, and while I stood there the Irishman we had seen in the street mounted the stairs. He was a poorly dressed but sturdy looking fellow, apparently a laborer, in a badly worn best suit of clothes. His agitation still held him and without a pause he immediately burst out:

"Which of ye jintlemen will be Misther Hewlit, sor?"

"This is Mr. Hewitt," I said. "Do you want him?"

"It's protecshin I want, sor—protecshin! I spake to the polls, an' they laff at me, begob. Folve days have I lived in London, an' 'tis nothin' but battle, murdher an' suddhen death for me here all day an' ivery day! The polls say I'm dhrunk, but, begob, I b'lieve they think I'm mad. An' me being thracked an' folleyed an' dogged an' waylaid an' poisoned an' blandandhered an' kidnaped an' murdhered, an' for why I do not know!"

"And who's doing all this?"

"Sthrangers, sor—sthrangers. 'Tis a sthranger here I am meslif. They're layin' for me in the sthreet now, I misdoubt not."

This, I thought, must be one of the very common cases of mental hallucination which one hears of every day—the belief of the sufferer that he is surrounded by enemies and followed by spies.

"But what have these people done?" Hewitt asked, looking rather interested, although amused. "What actual assaults have they committed, and when? And who told you to come here?"

"Who towld me, is ut! Who but the payler outside—in the street below! I explained to 'um, an' sez he: 'Ah, you go an' take a slape,' sez-he; 'you go an' take a good slape, an' they'll all be gone whin ye wake up.' 'But they'll murdher me!' sez I. 'Oh, no!' sez he, smilin' behind av his ugly face. 'Oh, no, they won't! You take ut aisy, me frind, an' go home!' 'Take ut aisy, is ut, an' go home!' sez I. 'Why, that's just where they've been last, a-ruinationin' an' a-turnin' av the place upside down, an' me strook on the head onsensible a mile away. Take ut aisy, is ut, ye say, whin all the demons in this unholy place is jumpin' on me ivery minut' in places promiscuous till I can't tell where to turn, decendin' an' vanishin' marvellious an' onaccountable? Take ut aisy, is ut?' sez I. 'Well, me frind,' sez he, 'I can't help ye. That's the marvellious an' onaccountable departmint up the stairs forninst ye. Misther Hewlit ut is,' sez he, 'that attends to the onaccountable departmint, him as wint by a minut' ago. You go an' bother him.' That's how I was towld, sor."

Hewitt smiled.

"Very good," he said, "and now what are these extraordinary troubles of yours? Just say in ten words, if you can, what they've done to you."

"I will, sor. Wan day had I been in London, sor—wan day only—an' a low scuff thried to poison me dhrink. Next day some udther thief av sin shoved me off av a railway platform undher a train, malicious and purposeful. Glory be, he didn't kill me, but the very doother that felt me bones thried to pick me pockut, I du b'lieve. Sunday night I was grabbed outrageous in a darrk turnin', rowled on the ground, half strangled an' me pockuts nigh ripped out av me trousles, an' this very blessed mornin' av light I was strook onsensible an' left a livin' corpse an' me lodgin's penethrated an' all the thruck mishandled an' brvk up behind me back. Is that a paljandhery for the polls to laff at, sor?"

Hewitt appeared strangely interested.

"Did they steal anything?" he asked.

"Divil a-shtick but me doorkey, an' that they tuk home an' lift in the door."

Hewitt opened his office door.

"Come in," he said, "and tell me all about this. You come, too, Brett."

The Irishman and I followed him into the inner office, where, shutting the door, Hewitt suddenly turned on the Irishman and exclaimed sharply, "Then you've still got it?"

He looked keenly into the man's eyes, but the only expression was one of surprise.

"Got ut?" said the Irishman. "Got fwhat, sor? Is ut you're thinkin' I've got the horrors as well as the polis?"

Hewitt's gaze relaxed. "Sit down, sit down!" he said. "You've still got your watch and money, I suppose, since you weren't robbed?"

"Oh, that? Glory be, I have ut still."

"Now," said Hewitt, "I want a full, true and particular account of yourself and your doings for the last week. First, your name."

"Leamy's my name, sor—Michael Leamy."

"Lately from Ireland?"

"Over from Dublin this last blessed Wednesday."

"Looking for work?"

"That is my purshuit at prisint, sor."

"Did anything noticeable happen before these troubles of yours began—anything here in London or on the journey?"

"Sure," the Irishman smiled, "part av the way I thraveled first class by favor av the gyard, an' I got a small job before I lift the train."

"How was that? Why did you travel first class part of the way?"

"There was a station fwhere we shtopped afther a long run, an' I got down to take the cramp out av me joints an' take a taste av dhrink. I overshtayed somehow, an' whin I got to the train, begob, it was on the move. There was a first class carr'ge door opin right forninst me, an' into that I gyard crams me holus-bolus. There was a juce of a foine jintleman sittin' there, an' he stares at me umbrageous, but I was not dishcommoded, bein' onpashful by natur'. We thraveled along a heap av miles more till we came near London. Afther we had shtopped at a station where they tuk tickets we wint ahead again, an' prisintly as we rips through some udther station up jumps the jintleman opposite, swearin' hard under his tongue, an' looks out at the windy. 'I thought this train shtopped here,' sez he."

"Chalk Farm," observed Hewitt.

"The name I do not know, sor, but that's fwhat he said. Then he looks at me onaisy for a little, an' at last he sez, 'Wud ye loike a small job, me good man, well paid?'

"'Faith,' sez I, 'tis that will suit me well.'

"'Then, see here,' sez he, 'I should have got out at that station, havin' particular business; havin' missed, I must sen' a telegrammer from Euston. Now, here's a bag,' sez he, 'a bag full of important papers for my solicitor, an' I want 'em tuk on to him. Take you this bag,' he sez, 'an' go you straight out wid it at Euston an' get in a cab. I shall stay in the station a bit to see to the telegrammer. Dhrive out av the station, across the road outside, an' wait there five minuts by the clock. Ye ondershtand? Wait five minuts, an' maybe I'll come an' join ye. If I don't, 'twill be bekase I'm detained onexpected, an' then ye'll dhrive to my solicitor straight. Here's his address, if ye can read writin,' an' he put ut on a piece av paper. He gave me half a crown for the cab, an' I tuk his bag.'

"One moment—have you the paper with the address now?"

"I have not, sor. I missed ut afther the blayguards overset me yesterday, but the solicitor's name was Hollams, an' a liberal jintleman wid his money he was, too, by that same token."

"What was his address?"

"'Twas in Chelsea, and 'twas Gold or Golden something, which I know by the good-token av fwhat he gave me, but the number I misremember."

Hewitt turned to his directory. "Gold street is the place, probably," he said, "and it seems to be a street chiefly of private houses. You would be able to point out the house if you were taken there, I suppose?"

"I should that, sor; indade, I was thinkin' av goin' there an' tellin' Misther Hollams all my throubles, him havin' been so kind."

"Now, tell me exactly what instructions the man in the train gave you and what happened?"

"He sez: 'You ask for Misther Hollams, an' see nobody else. Tell him ye've brought the sparks from Misther W.'

"'Sparks?' sez I. 'Yes, sparks,' sez he. 'Misther Hollams will know. 'Tis our jokin' word for 'em. Sometimes papers is sparks when they set a lawsuit ablaze.' And he laffed. 'But be sure ye say the sparks from Misther W.,' he sez again, 'bekase then he'll know ye're jinuine, an' he'll pay ye hau'some. Say Misther W. sez you're to have your reg'lars if ye like. D'ye mind that?'

"'Aye,' sez I, 'that I'm to have me reg'lars.'

"Well, sor, I tuk the bag and wint out of the station, tuk the cab an' did all as he towld me. I waited the foive minuts, but he niver came, so off I druv to Misther Hollams, and he threated me han'some, sor."

"Yes, but tell me exactly all he did."

"'Misther Hollams, sor?' sez I. 'Who are ye?' sez he. 'Mick Leamy, sor,' sez I, 'from Misther W. wid the sparks.' 'Oh,' sez he, 'thin come in.' I wint in. 'They're in here, are they?' sez he, takin' the bag. 'They are, sor,' sez I, 'an' Misther W. sez I'm to have me reg'lars.' 'You shall,' sez he. 'What shall we say now—a finnip?' 'Fwhat's that, sor?' sez I. 'Oh,' sez he, 'I a'pose ye're a new hand. Five quid—onder-and that?'

"Begob, I did ondershtand it, an' mighty plazed I was to have come to a place where they pay five pun' notes for carryin' bags. So whin he asked me was I new to London an' shud I kape in the same line av business I towld him I shud for certin or anythin' else payin' like it. 'Right,' sez he. 'Let me know whin ye've got anythin'. Ye'll find me all right. I've a smart family about me,' sez he, 'an' I treat 'em all fair an' liberal.' Thin he asked me where I was livin' in London, an' whin I towld him nowhere he towld me av a room in Musson street, here by Drury lane, that was to let in a house his fam'ly knew very well, an' I wint straight there an' tuk ut, an' there I do be stayin' still, sor."

I hadn't understood at first why Hewitt took so much interest in the Irishman's narrative, but the latter part of it opened my eyes a little. It seemed likely that Leamy had, in his innocence, been made a conveyer of stolen property. I knew enough of thieves' slang to know that "sparks" meant diamonds or other jewels; that "regulars" was the term used for a payment made to a brother thief who gave assistance in some small way, such as carrying the booty, and that the "family" was the time honored expression for a gang of thieves.

"This was all on Wednesday, I understand," said Hewitt. "Now tell me what happened on Thursday—the poisoning or drugging, you know?"

"Well, sor, I was walkin' out an' toward the evenin' I lost mesilf. Up comes a man, seemin'ly a sthranger, an' shmacks me on the showldher. 'Why, Mick!' sez he. 'It's Mick Leamy, I du b'lieve!'

"'I am that,' sez I, 'but you I do not know.'

"'Not know me?' sez he. 'Why, I wint to school wid ye!' an' wid that he hauls me off to a bar, blarneyin' an' minowdherin'.

"'Can ye rache me a polpe loight?' sez he, an' I turned to get ut, but, lookin' back suddent, there was that onblushin' thief av the warl' tippin' a paperful av powdher stuff into me glass."

"What did you do?" Hewitt asked.

"I knocked the dhirty face av him, sor, an' got away home."

"Now the next misfortune?"

"Faith, that was av a sort likely to turn out the last av all misfortunes. I wint that day to the Crystial Palace. Comin' home at night there was a juce av a crowd on the station platform, conseking av a late train. Shtandin' by the edge av the platform at the fore end, just as the thrain came in, some onvisible murdherer gives me a stupenjus dhrive in the back, an' over I wint on the line, midbetwixt the rails. The engine came up an' wint half over me widout givin' me a scratch, bekaze av my centraleous situation, an' then the porther men pulled me out, nigh sick wid fright, sor, as ye may guess. A jintleman in the crowd sings out, 'I'm a medical man!' an' they tuk me in the waitin' room, an' he investigated me, havin' turned everybody else out av the room. There wuz no bones bruk, glory be, an' the docthor man he was tellin' me so, after feelin' me over, when I felt his hand in me waistcoat pockut.

"'An' fwhat's this, sor?' sez I. 'Do you be lookin' for your fee that thief's way?'

"He laffed an' said: 'I want no fee from ye, me man, an' I did but feel your ribs,' though on me conscience he had done that undher me waistcoat already. An' so I came home."

"What did they do to you on Saturday?"

"Saturday, sor, they gave me a whole holiday, an' I began to think less av things, but on Sunday night in a dark place two blayguards tuk me throat from behind, nigh choked me, flung me down an' wint through all me pockets in about a quarter av a minut'."

"And they took nothing, you say?"

"'Faith,' sez I, 'tis that will suit me well.'

"'Then, see here,' sez he, 'I should have got out at that station, havin' particular business; havin' missed, I must sen' a telegrammer from Euston. Now, here's a bag,' sez he, 'a bag full of important papers for my solicitor, an' I want 'em tuk on to him. Take you this bag,' he sez, 'an' go you straight out wid it at Euston an' get in a cab. I shall stay in the station a bit to see to the telegrammer. Dhrive out av the station, across the road outside, an' wait there five minuts by the clock. Ye ondershtand? Wait five minuts, an' maybe I'll come an' join ye. If I don't, 'twill be bekase I'm detained onexpected, an' then ye'll dhrive to my solicitor straight. Here's his address, if ye can read writin,' an' he put ut on a piece av paper. He gave me half a crown for the cab, an' I tuk his bag."

WHY?

The International Manure Spreader is the most satisfactory all around Spreader sold.

1. It is made, sold and looked after, after it is sold, by the International Harvester Co.

2. It has practically no gearing compared with other spreaders.

3. It has one lever only, that does the same work that other machines require six for.

4. It has a self-feed vibrating rake which pulverizes and levels the load.

5. It has more than double the feed changes of any other machine.

We have several endless and Apron Return Spreaders set all the time. Please call and talk it over.

Purity in flour ought to be an important consideration in your family. Pure flour really does not cost any more than flour that isn't strictly pure. In making Blue Ribbon flour it is sifted through delicate silk cloths and is purified by clean electrified air before it is sacked. Absolute purity is thus insured. Ask your grocer for Blue Ribbon flour.

We wish to call your particular attention to another column in which sewer facts and figures, unmixed with personal sarcasm, are given a prominent position. These figures are absolutely incontestable and if you will apply them to your own assessment you will be surprised at the very modest sum which the expense of the sewer will inflict upon you, certainly not a sum which even the most humble amongst us will refuse to contribute to assist in making Tecumseh one of the foremost residential villages of the state.

Commencing today we will close out one lot of wool dress goods worth from 80c to 1.00 per yd. for 19c per yd. Just what you want for suits, waists and skirts. Come at once, get first choice. Respectfully Harris & Hitesho.

What the Sewer Will Cost You

Per Annum for Each $100 of Your Assessment.

The 1st Ten Years,	- -	10 Cents
The 2nd Ten Years,	- -	15¼ Cents
The 3rd Ten Years,	- -	16¼ Cents

An average of only 14 cents per annum.

The total assessed valuation of the village is $1,450,000.00, and as there are 721 tax-payers in the village, the average assessment is but $2,000.00, entailing an average payment for the sewer, by each tax-payer of only $2.80 per annum, or an average for each person in our village of only 80 cents.

In view of these FACTS, can any reasonable person contend that Tecumseh can afford to exist without a sanitary sewer?

Fall and Winter Woolens.

Without a doubt the finest line we have ever shown. Newest colorings, latest designs, patterns that dazzle the eye and make every one that sees them say, "lay this one out for me." We have never seen costumers grab them so fast before. The worst trouble they have is to know which one to take, they are all so nice, not a poor one in the lot. Get the fever, come in and look at them and you will surely buy. Glad to show them.

J. M. Jones & Son, The Leading Tailors.

The Great Western Manure Spreader.

Some of its advantages. Form is made of oak, not pine or maple, has endless apron with its many advantages, no cranking back by hand or reverse gears, wheels track like a wagon, carries as much load on front axle as on hind axle, makes easy draught on machine, makes only two tracks not four, you can top dress corn or spread on corn stubble, a machine with narrow axle in front is "up against it" in the corn field. Examine the machine before you buy. Sold by C. H. Bramble.

Ninety-nine Reasons why You should use Blue Ribbon Flour.

2nd, It is pure and wholesome.

3rd, It is always the same.

4th, Bread made from it is moist and spongy.

5th, It makes quality bread, different from common bread.

6th, It never varies.

8th, The bread will keep moist and sweet for a week.

The other 92 reasons you will easily discover by a trial of the flour itself. Once used, you will never be satisfied with any other.

Ida B. Rector.

Miss Ida B. Rector died at her home in this village this morning at 3 o'clock. Funeral will be held from the house Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Dunning officiating. Private burial at 3:30.

RIGHT BREATHING CURES CATARRH.

If you cut your finger you don't attempt to heal it by swallowing a pill or a dose of medicine.

It is just as foolish to try and cure catarrh of the nose and throat with pills and stomach dosing, for catarrh is a local disease and needs special local healing treatment.

The only natural and common sense method known for the cure of catarrhal troubles is Hy-o-mei. It is breathed through an ingenious pocket inhaler, so that its medicated air reaches the most remote air-cells of the nose, throat and lungs, killing all catarrhal germs, soothing the irritated mucous membranes and restoring a healthy condition.

If you suffer from catarrhal troubles, such as offensive breath, raising of mucous, frequent sneezing, husky voice, discharge from the nose, droppings in the throat, loss of strength, spasmodic coughing, or a feeling of tightness across the upper part of the chest, you should begin to use Hy-o-mei at once. It will destroy all disease germs in the nose, throat and lungs and provide the blood with additional ozone.

The complete Hy-o-mei outfit with inhaler costs but $1.00. So strong is C. A. Wright & Son's faith in the power of Hy-o-mei to cure all catarrhal troubles, that with every dollar outfit they give an iron clad guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

THE WOMAN'S SIDE

To the

SEWER QUESTION

A Clear Letter that is right to the Point.

Editor Herald:—It seems to a few housewives in this community as if yourself, the honorable Common Council, the attorney who occupies the front page of your last issue with his misquotations of scripture, and a few other of the learned litigants in this sewerage question, have not struck the right key in solving this (we may not say burning, perhaps we may say flushing) problem. Now, whom does the sanitary measures taken and the constructing of proper ways to carry out these measures most concern in this village of twenty-five hundred souls?

The woman who carries the dish water twenty-one times a week and empties it as near as she can to the neighbor's back fence, washes the baby and warms the water for her husband's bath, does the laundry work for a "Roosevelt family" and gets the vegetables ready for a Saturday dinner in time to get down and pay her taxes before the bank closes—why not ask her whether she would like a voice in the sewer question, why not ask her opinion of whether a sewer down her street would lessen her labor as much as it increases her taxes.

Did it ever occur to the learned lawyer with the military title and to the belligerent ex postmaster and to the Lord Chesterfield of the Anthony Fence Co., the president of the village and the editor of the Herald who so glibly bandy words about the "Cause of the Boston Tea Party" that consistency is a jewel (non-taxable of course) which does not seem to be included among the worldly possessions which they see fit to boast of in the papers.

Now it has been related that our village fathers (?) in their wisdom can and do grant permission to property owners to shoot song birds on their own premises with a gun while a village youngster with a sling shot who kills a robbin may be haled before the powers that be and threatened with punishment if the offence is repeated. Now if this wise body can so discriminate against enforcing the laws of the state, why can they not set aside any state law to suit a village necessity in the sewer case and allow all women taxpayers to vote for a measure which would give us cleaner alleys, a healthy atmosphere and a more up-to-date means of keeping the good reputation which our village has everywhere gained for cleanliness and beauty.

Wightman's Letter.

In my hands is a communication from Judge Wightman, but as it does not contain a word about the sewer, it will be printed the first issue after election.

David McNair.

The remains of David McNair, who died last Tuesday at his home in Denver, Colo., arrived here today at 11 o'clock. The funeral was held from the residence of Misses McNair at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Burial at Brookside.

Tecumseh Man very Popular.

E. N. Satterthwaite, one of two brothers operating a hardware store at Tecumseh, Mich., was much pleased at Mudlavia and expects to return in the future. He earned the title of "Tecumseh" and was perhaps the most popular man at the Indiana health resort. Tecumseh looked to be a hearty youth of 28 or so, but while his years are more than that, it's a sure thing that his friends told him that he lost at least ten of them when he arrived home.—Mudlavia News.

"BLUE DEVILS."

Get rid of indigestion and things will look bright and joyous.

Even in the present era of prosperity and good times everything appears black to those people who are suffering wretchedly from some form of indigestion. Where digestion is quick, complete and easy there is a joyous and hopeful outlook, but indigestion causes depression.

The want of a safe, effective cure for sick headache, indigestion and stomach troubles, was always felt until the prescription known as Mi-o-na stomach tablets was put up in popular form and proved its invariable success in the many forms of indigestion.

After a few days use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets the headache, dizzy feeling, drowsiness, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, nervousness, sleeplessness, distress after eating—all these symptoms of a week stomach—will disappear and perfect digestion and a good skin will show that the vital machinery is once more running smoothly.

Mi-o-na is to be taken before each meal and it will stimulate the secretive and digestive juices and strengthen the whole of the digestive system so that the unpleasant full feeling will be absent and indigestion prevented.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets are sold only in a neat metal box convenient for the vest pocket and costs 50c. C. A. Wright & Son have seen so many cures made by Mi-o-na stomach tablets they give a guarantee with every box that the money will be refunded if the remedy fails to give satisfaction.

Buy Hair at Auction?

At any rate, you seem to be getting rid of it on auction-sale principles: "going, going, g-o-n-e!" Stop the auction with Ayer's Hair Vigor. It certainly checks falling hair; no mistake about this. It acts as a regular medicine; makes the scalp healthy. Then you must have healthy hair, for it's nature's way.

The woman's household cares,
Are a strain on the kidneys.
Backache, headache, sideache.
Kidney troubles will follow.
Read how to cure them all.

J. H. Welch, living on Union street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as they have been of much benefit to me. Years ago while working on a barn, I strained myself and tore one of my kidneys loose. I began treatment at once but the remedies did not take effect. At night my rest was disturbed by the frequent action of the kidneys. Finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and I now feel better than I have for several years. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to a number of friends who have used them with the same satisfactory results.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

"Mr. S. S. Bell, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says—"I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

Labor Day Has Its Strenuous Scenes in Two Cities.

FIERCE RIOTS IN 'FRISCO,

Union Men on Parade Attack Street Car Men for Butting Into Their Line—Young Women in Steubenville, Ohio, Are Heroines.

San Francisco, Sept. 3.—The labor union parade Monday resulted in the shooting of two men by employes of the United Railroads at noon. The carmen were attacked by the paraders and in self defense, opened fire.

The trouble started at Ferry, where it is stated a Sutter street car broke through the line of parade. A mob of labor union men followed the car and at the junction of Sutter street the members attacked a car. The motorman seeing that his life was in danger, opened fire and wounded one of his assailants in the leg. A block further up an inspector was attacked by the mob. He was suddenly struck in the face and ran from his assailants. They followed him to the corner of Sutter and Montgomery streets, where they overtook him. He drew a pistol and aimed at a burly labor union man who carried bricks in his hands. The inspector opened fire and shot the man through the groin. Six shots were fired.

A riot call was sent into the police and fire departments and a force of police and firemen were soon on the scene. The men who did the shooting were arrested, but several rioters who were seized by the police were released.

The labor union men who were in the parade evidently thought they had the right of way over the streets of San Francisco, for when the cars of the United Railways attempted to break through the procession, there was trouble.

The two wounded men were removed by the police to the Harbor police station. When the police jumped in to quell the riot a number of them as soon as they made arrests were set upon by the labor union paraders and mobbed. One policeman said afterward: "It took 20 officers to make a single arrest."

Steubenville, O., Sept. 3.—A labor day riot that bid fair to end in a tragedy had it not been for the bravery of two young women employed in the telephone exchange, occurred here Monday afternoon. The victims of the crowd's rage were Joseph Harbison, who received a fractured skull, and John Hatton, who was cut and bruised; while in shielding the men, Miss Mary Mageo and Eula Rooke received cuts and bruises about the head and body, and are in a serious condition.

Harbison and Hatton came here from St. Louis to work in a mine where a strike is in progress. Monday, as they left the telephone office, they were set upon by a crowd, and were being badly beaten when the girls rushed into the thick of the fray and frantically pushing and shoving their way through about 50 men, reached the two victims to whom the young women were strangers.

The girls threw themselves on the prostrate men, protecting their heads and receiving on their own bodies the kicks and blows of the mob. One of the men who was wielding a piece of iron struck Miss Magee on the head. Another piece of iron almost broke Miss Rooke's arm.

In a momentary let-up in the attack police reached the scene and rescued Harbison and Hatton. Only one arrest was made.

Three Killed by Autos.

New York, Sept. 3.—Three killed and 12 injured, several probably fatally is the result of Sunday's auto accidents. At Elmira, N. Y., a touring car ran over a 15-foot embankment, killing H. B. Smith of Tioga, Pa., and seriously injuring four others. At Jamestown, N. Y., the four-year-old son of Albert Reynolds was run down and killed. In trying to avoid the child James Forman of Erie, Pa., ran his car into the ditch and was injured himself. At Wilbraham, Mass., the 12-year-old daughter of James M. Otis was killed. W. D. Lynch ran into a buggy near Mineola, L. I., and seven people were injured.

Sir Robert Hart to Resign.

Shanghai, Sept. 3.—It is circumstantially reported that Sir Robert Hart, director-general of Chinese customs is about to tender his resignation on account of ill-health. The local customs officials, however, decline to either deny or confirm the rumor.

A MURDER MYSTERY.

Prominent Cleveland Man Killed in His Home.

NO ONE SAW THE DEED.

Believed Crime Was Committed by Burglar—Victim Would Not Permit Wife to Summon Physician—Police Unable to Find Any Clue.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 3.—John J. Phillips, a prominent coal operator, and heavily interested in various commercial enterprises, was killed in his home in Mount Union street, East Cleveland, at an early hour Monday and the police made a rigid investigation of the tragedy, with the result that the mystery surrounding the case at first has not been cleared.

Phillips was dead when the police arrived, but according to the statements of Mrs. Phillips, her husband just before he expired, told her that he was awakened by a noise in the lower part of his home, and on going down stairs he was shot by a burglar who escaped.

Mrs. Phillips says she found her husband lying upon the floor mortally wounded, and that he cautioned her not to call a physician, saying he was not badly hurt. Shortly after the shooting, Mrs. Phillips says she saw a man hiding near a tree. She says she called for help, but could not be heard owing to the storm that was raging outside.

Mr. Phillips formerly was a business partner of Congressman Beidler, but recently had been in business by himself, and it is said had suffered heavy financial reverses.

Notorious Criminal Caught.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 3.—James Clark, arrested on suspicion of safe-blowing, Monday was identified as Marion Hudspeth, said to be one of the most notorious criminals in the United States. Hudspeth fifteen years ago was a member of the Sly and Wilson gang of highwaymen. Dick and Charles Wilson, Sly and Hudspeth robbed a Missouri Pacific train near Omaha of $50,000. Later they were charged with holding up another Missouri Pacific train near St. Louis for $75,000. Hudspeth and Sly were captured in Los Angeles and the Wilsons in Syracuse, where they killed a detective. Dick Wilson died in the electric chair and Charles is now in Sing Sing. Hudspeth and Sly went to the Missouri penitentiary for aiding in suppressing a mutiny.

Only Troops Cheer Czar.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 3.—For the second time since "Red Sunday" (Jan. 22, 195). Emperor Nicholas entered the capital—to attend the consecration of a church erected as a memorial to his grandfather, Alexander II., who was assassinated in March, 1881, on the site of the new edifice. Gendarmes were stationed in every window facing the route over which the imperial procession passed, and owners of houses were orbidden to open windows under pain of a heavy fine. Bridge and river traffic was entirely suspended; the banks of the Neva were lined with marine guards and torpedo boats patrolled the river. The emperor's arrival was announced by cheers from the troops, the public looking on indifferently.

Letter Carriers Parade.

Canton, O., Sept. 3.—It took the national letter carriers two hours and a half to make the line of march yesterday afternoon. Officers of the National Letter Carriers' association, committees in charge and visiting members of the National Letter Carriers' association auxiliary were taken over the route in carriages. There were carrier bands at the head of the various divisions from Brooklyn, Pittsburg, Chicago and St. Paul; a bugle corps from Detroit, and several drum corps from nearby places. Pittsburg and Allegheny sent the largest delegation of uniformed carriers. In the march Pittsburg's postmaster headed the division.

BRUSHED FROM CAR.

Two Young Lansing Men Are Instantly Killed.

A THIRD IS BADLY HURT.

While on Way to Pine Lake Paving Brick Alongside of Track Knocks Them From Their Footing and Crushes Them to Death.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 3.—Edgar Damon and Edward A. Moers were killed Monday by being crushed against a pile of paving brick standing close to the street railway tracks, while the young men were riding on the running board of an open street car.

The accident happened just inside the city limits as the crowded car was proceeding to Pine lake, and the young men were on their way to join their families at the lake. A number of crowded cars had passed the paving bricks in the forenoon without accident.

The two young men were sitting down on the running board and the brick were piled so close to the right of way that as the car passed them the young men were brushed off and Damon and Moers instantly killed. Their bodies were badly crushed by contact with the paving brick.

Wenchweski is suffering from internal injuries. He was removed to the city hospital, where he lies in a critical condition.

Damon was 18 years old, and the son of a prominent contractor. Moers was 19 years old, and the son of a well-known foundryman.

The brick was piled alongside the track by employes of the city last Saturday afternoon. Cars had passed them all day Sunday, and it is claimed that the car on which the accident happened was somewhat wider than the others.

A coroner's jury has been impaneled and will investigate the tragedy, the inquest to be held Thursday night.

FIRE AT THE FAIR.

Tommy Burns, the Heavyweight, Loses His Outfit.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 3.—The first untoward event to mar the quiet progress of the state fair occurred about 2:15 Monday afternoon, when fire destroyed the tent on the "Wanderlust" occupied by Tommy Burns, the heavyweight champion, and his moving picture exhibit.

The tiers of seats in the tent were well filled with spectators when the fire broke out, but all escaped without injury and without panic. As soon as the fire started the sides of the tent were raised and the crowd rushed out in all directions.

Several persons claim that the fire originated from a match held by some careless individual in the highest row of seats, who endeavored to light a cigar and who held the lighted vesta too near the canvas roof of the tent. The dry covering took fire easily, and in a few moments the entire tent was ablaze.

The whistles of farm engines on exhibition in the vicinity soon brought the chemical engine stationed on the grounds, and quick work in tearing down canvas walls and dragging away inflammable material prevented the fire from spreading very far. The Igorrote village, however, lost its west wall and the thatched roof of one hut turned into ashes before the fire was checked.

The fair was well attended Monday.

Old Home Week at Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 3.—"Old Home Week," as the celebration of the 75th anniversary of the incorporation of Buffalo as a city is known, was ushered in at daybreak Monday by a salute of 100 guns fired from the different public parks. Notwithstanding the threatening aspect of the weather the labor men turned out in full force, and their parade was probably the greatest labor pageant ever seen in this city, upwards of 10,000 men being in line. Another event of interest was the dedication and presentation to the city of the Verdi monument at Niagara, Morgan and Mohawk streets, by the Italian societies of Buffalo. A parade of the societies preceded the dedication.

LABOR DAY.

Union Organizations in Several Michigan Cities Parade.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 3.—Fully five thousand union men made their customary parade through the streets of Detroit Monday, and fully 10,000 persons witnessed the interesting spectacle. After the procession the organization went to Belle Isle where a picnic was held followed by speeches and athletic sports.

Ionia, Mich., Sept. 3.—Labor day was observed here with one of the best industrial parades ever promoted in Ionia. The labor organizations of the city were largely represented, and many floats were in the line of march. The parade was nearly a mile long, it was followed by an address by L. W. Smith on Court House square.

In the afternoon, 4,000 people assembled on the fair grounds, where the games and sports took place. In a good game, Ionia won the ball game from Sheridan, 10 to 1, and the day closed with a balloon ascension in the evening.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Sept. 3.—Kalamazoo celebrated Labor day with a large attendance from nearby towns, including principally Battle Creek, Jackson and Albion. The parade was a very creditable one and was watched by the largest crowd for a similar occasion seen in this city in many a day. A program of sports was carried out at Oakwood park in the afternoon. There was no disorder of any kind to mar the day.

Bay City, Mich., Sept. 3.—A monster Labor day parade here was followed by speeches and field day sports at Wenona beach. E. S. McCullough, president of this district of the mineworkers, was the speaker of the day.

Jackson, Mich., Sept. 3.—The labor unions of Jackson celebrated Labor day with a picnic and athletic carnival at Hague park. A large crowd was in attendance.

Bay City Planing Mill Burns.

Bay City, Mich., Sept. 3.—Fire that started about 6:30 Monday evening at W. D. Young & Co.'s hardwood planing mill spread from the dry kiln to the planing mill and thence to the saw mill, the entire plant being destroyed with the exception of the lumber warehouses causing a loss estimated at from $100,000 to $150,000, fully covered by insurance.

Drowns in Long Lake.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Sept. 3.—Andrew Rineveld, aged 38 and unmarried, was drowned in Long lake while boating Monday evening. Rineveld was sitting in the back of a boat which was being rowed by John Schrader, a friend, and fell out in 30 feet of water some 60 feet from shore. He could not swim.

Prince Leaves New York.

New York, Sept., 3.—Prince Wilhelm of Sweden bade good-bye to New York last night. If he has missed anything of interest during his week's visit, New Yorkers do not know what it is. He has beaten all previous sight-seeing records. He visited fire headquarters and saw the fire department at work; he climbed six flights to the top of a model tenement house and thoroughly inspected the building and talked with the occupants; he saw the Labor day parade, inspected the Swedish emigration bureau at the Barge office; rode on a municipal ferry; took luncheon on Staten Island; visited the emigrant receiving station at Ellis Island, and late last night left for Niagara Falls, after being the guest at a dinner of the Old German Students' association at the Arion club.

MacLean Still With Raisuli.

Tangier, Sept. 3.—Anxiety expressed here regarding the safety of Caid Sir Harry MacLean, due to the protracted absence of direct news from the general, was relieved Monday by the arrival of letters from MacLean. He is in good health and is with Raisuli in the Ben Iarous territory. Letters from Raisuli to the British minister here, laying down the terms upon which the bandit chief will release MacLean were also received. Raisuli suggests that an emissary be sent to Ben Iarous to negotiate with him.

Deafness cannot be cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's catarrh cure. Send for circulars free.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

A young widow has a peculiar way of seeing a man without looking at him.

There are a great many people who have slight attacks of indigestion and dyspepsia nearly all the time. Their food may satisfy the appetite but it fails to nourish the body simply because the stomach is not in fit condition to do the work it is supposed to do. It can't digest the food you eat. The stomach should be given help. You ought to take something that will do the work your stomach can't do. Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia, a combination of natural digestants and vegetable acids, digests the food itself and gives strength and health to the stomach. Pleasant to take. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

A man doesn't have to wear good clothes if he can afford not to.

One of the worst features of kidney trouble is that it is an insidious disease and before the victim realizes his danger he may have a fatal malady. Take Foley's Kidney Cure as the first sign of trouble as it corrects irregularities and prevents Bright's disease and diabetes. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Some men stand just inside the door ready to grasp opportunity by the back of the neck when it knocks.

Occasional headache, belching, bad taste in the mouth, lack of appetite and slight nervousness are symptoms of indigestion which, when allowed to go uncured for, will develop into a case of dyspepsia that will take a long time to get rid of. Don't neglect your stomach. At the first indication of trouble take something that will help it along in its work of digesting the food you eat. Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia will do this. Kodol will make your food do you good and will enable you to enjoy what you eat. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

The new pure food and drug law.

We are now pleased to announce that Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not effected by the national pure food and drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs, and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

A real good man doesn't have to use words to tell it.

The way to get rid of a cold, whether it be a "bad cold" or just a little one, is to get it out of your system through the bowels. Nearly all cough cures, especially those that contain opiates, are constipating. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup contains no opiates and acts gently on the bowels. Pleasant to take. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Many a man has been forced to ask for a handout because he was unable to get his hand in.

Cured hay fever and summer colds.

A. J. Nusbaum, Batesville, Ind., writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed to only aggravate my case. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package and it quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and tar with the same success." Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Martin Hewitt, Investigator.

The Affair of the Tortoise.

By ARTHUR MORRISON.

Published by Arrangement With Harper & Brothers.

VERY often Hewitt was tempted to the fascination of some particularly odd case to neglect his other affairs to follow up a matter that from a business point of view was of little or no value to him. As a rule, he had a sufficient regard for his own interests to resist such temptations, but in one curious case, at least, I believe he allowed it largely to influence him. "There is nothing in this world that is at all possible," I have often heard Martin Hewitt say, "that has not happened or is not happening in London."

The case I have referred to occurred some time before my own acquaintance with him began. He had called one Monday morning at an office in regard to one of his cases, when he was informed of a most mysterious murder that had taken place in another part of the same building on the previous Saturday afternoon.

The building was one of a new row in a partly rebuilt street near the National gallery. The whole row had been built by a speculator for the purposes of letting out in flats, suits of chambers and, in one or two cases on the ground floor, offices. The rooms had let very well and to desirable tenants as a rule. The least satisfactory tenant, the proprietor reluctantly admitted, was a Mr. Rameau, a negro, single, who had three rooms on the top floor but one of the particular building that Hewitt was visiting. His rent was paid regularly, but his behavior had produced complaints from other tenants. He got uproariously drunk and screamed and howled in unknown tongues. He fell asleep on the staircase, and ladies were afraid to pass. He bawled rough chaff down the stairs and along the corridors at butcher boys and messengers and played on errand boys brutal practical jokes that ended in police court summonses. He once had a way of sliding down the balustrade shouting "Ho! ho! ho! yah!" as he went, but as he was a big, heavy man and the balustrade had been built for different treatment, he had very soon and very firmly been requested to stop it. He had plenty of money and spent it freely; but it was generally felt that there was too much of the light hearted savage about him.

How much longer the landlord would have stood this sort of thing, Hewitt's informant said, was a matter of conjecture, for on the Saturday afternoon in question the tenancy had come to a startling full stop. Rameau had been murdered in his room, and the body had disappeared in the most unaccountable fashion.

The strongest possible suspicion pointed to a man who had been employed in shoveling and carrying coals, cleaning windows and chopping wood for several of the buildings and who had left that very Saturday. The crime had, in fact, been committed with this man's chopper, and the man himself had been heard again and again to threaten Rameau, who in his brutal fashion had made a butt of him. This man was a little Frenchman, Victor Goujon by name, who had lost his employment as a watchmaker by reason of an injury to his right hand.

There was a tortoise living in the basement, of which Goujon had made rather a pet, and the negro would sometimes use this animal as a missile, flinging it at the little Frenchman's head. On one such occasion the tortoise struck the wall so forcibly as to break its shell, and then Goujon seized a shovel and rushed at his tormentor with such blind fury that the latter made a bolt of it.

Goujon, after correspondence with a relative in France who offered him work, gave notice to leave, which expired on the day of the crime. At about 3 that afternoon a housemaid proceeding toward Rameau's room met Goujon as he was going away. Goujon bade her goodby and, pointing in the direction of Rameau's rooms, said exultantly, "Dere shall be no more of the black pig for me; vit 'im I 'ave done for." And he went away.

The girl went to the outer door of Rameau's rooms, knocked and got no reply. Concluding that the tenant was out, she was about to use her keys when she found that the door was unlocked. She passed through the lobby and into the sitting room and there fell in a dead faint at the sight that met her eyes. Rameau lay with his back across the sofa and his head drooping within an inch of the ground. On the head was a fearful gash, and below it was a pool of blood.

The girl must have lain unconscious for about ten minutes. When she came to her senses she dragged herself, terrified, from the room and up to the housekeeper's apartments, where, being an excitable and nervous creature, she only screamed "Murder!" and immediately fell in a fit of hysterics that lasted three quarters of an hour. When at last she came to herself, she told her story, and, the hall porter having been summoned, Rameau's rooms were again approached.

The blood still lay on the floor, and the chopper, with which the crime had evidently been committed, rested against the fender, but the body had vanished! A search was at once made, but no trace of it could be seen anywhere. It seemed impossible that it could have been carried out of the building, for the hall porter must at once have noticed anybody leaving with so bulky a burden.

When Hewitt was informed of these things on Monday, the police were, of course, still in possession of Rameau's rooms. Inspector Nettings, Hewitt was told, was in charge of the case.

Nettings was pleased to see Hewitt and invited him to look around the rooms. "Perhaps you can spot something we have overlooked," he said, "though it's not a case there can be much doubt about."

"You think it's Goujon, don't you?"

"Think? Well, rather! Look here! As soon as we got here on Saturday we found this piece of paper and pin on the floor. We showed it to the housemaid, and then she remembered—she was too much upset to think of it before—that when she was in the room the paper was lying on the dead man's chest—pinned there, evidently. It must have dropped off when they removed the body. It's a case of half mad revenge on Goujon's part, plainly. See it. You read French, don't you?"

The paper was a plain, large half sheet of note paper, on which a sentence in French was scrawled in red ink in a large, clumsy hand—thus: "Punl par un vengeur de la tortue."

"Punl par un vengeur de la tortue," Hewitt repeated musingly. "'Punished by an avenger of the tortoise.' That seems odd."

"Oh, he's mad—mad with Rameau's continual ragging and baiting," Nettings answered. "Anyway, this is a plain indication—plain as though he'd left his own signature. Besides, it's in his own language—French. And there's his chopper too."

"Speaking of signatures," Hewitt remarked, "perhaps you have already compared this with other specimens of Goujon's writing?"

"I did think of it, but they don't seem to have a specimen to hand, and, anyway, it doesn't seem very important. Handwritings are easily disguised."

"Have you got Goujon?"

"Well, no. We haven't. There seems to be some little difficulty about that. But I expect to have him by this time tomorrow."

Hewitt's interest in the case was roused; and he determined to examine the rooms. By the side of the lobby was a bathroom, and in this was fitted a deep washbasin, which Hewitt inspected with particular attention. Then he called the housekeeper and made inquiries about Rameau's clothes and linen. The housekeeper remembered one heavy black ulster, which Rameau had very rarely worn—only in the coldest weather. The ulster had disappeared.

At this moment a clerk from the landlord's office arrived and handed Nettings a paper. "Here you are," said Nettings to Hewitt. "They've found a specimen of Goujon's handwriting at last, if you'd like to see it. I don't want it. I'm not a graphologist, and the case is clear enough."

Hewitt took the paper. "This," he said, "is a different sort of handwriting from that on the paper. The red ink note about the avenger of the tortoise is in a crude, large, clumsy, untaught style of writing. This is small, neat and well formed—except that it is a trifle shaky, probably because of the hand injury."

"That's nothing," contended Nettings. "Handwriting clews are worse than useless, as a rule. Say now yourself, can any fiddling question of handwriting get over this thing about 'avenging the tortoise'—practically a written confession? To say nothing of the chopper and what he said to the housemaid as he left."

"Well," said Hewitt, "perhaps not, but we'll see. Meantime"—turning to the landlord's clerk—"possibly you will be good enough to tell me one or two things. First, what was Goujon's character?"

"Excellent, so far as we know. We never had a complaint about him except for little matters of carelessness—leaving coal scuttles on the staircases for people to fall over, losing shovels, and so on."

"The tortoise is dead now, I understand?"

"Yes."

"Have you a lift in this building?"

"Only for coals and heavy parcels; it goes into the basement."

"And are the coals kept under this building?"

"No. The store for the whole row is under the next two houses. The basements communicate."

"Do you know Rameau's other name?"

"Cesar Rameau he signed in our agreement."

"Did he ever mention his relations?"

"No. That is to say, he did say something one day when he was very drunk, but of course it was all rot. Some one told him not to make such a row—he was a beastly tenant—and he said he was the best man in the place and his brother was prime minister and all sorts of things. He came here on a banker's reference."

"Thanks. I think that's all I want to ask. You notice," Hewitt proceeded, turning to Nettings, "the only ink in this place is scented and violet, and the only paper is tinted and scented, too, with a monogram—characteristic of a negro with money. The paper that was pinned on Rameau's breast is in red ink on common and rather grubby paper, therefore it was written somewhere else and brought here. Inference, premeditation."

"Yes, yes. But are you an inch nearer with all these speculations? Can you get nearer than I am now without them?"

"Well, perhaps not," Hewitt replied. "But you don't offer an opinion as to who removed Rameau's body."

"Who was it?"

"Come, try and guess that yourself. It wasn't Goujon; I don't mind letting you know that. But it was a person quite within your knowledge of the case. You've mentioned the person's name more than once."

Nettings stared blankly. "I don't understand you in the least," he said. "But of course you mean that this mysterious person you speak of as having moved the body committed the murder?"

"No, I don't. Nobody could have been more innocent of that."

"Well," Nettings concluded, with resignation, "I'm afraid one of us is rather thick headed. What will you do?"

"Interview the person who took away the body," Hewitt replied, with a smile. "Probably the person will be a most valuable witness."

"Do you mean you think this person, whoever it is, saw the crime?"

"I think it very probable indeed."

"Well, I won't ask you any more. I shall get hold of Goujon; that's simple and direct enough for me. I prefer to deal with the heart of the case—the murder itself—when there's such clear evidence as I have."

"I shall look a little into that, too, perhaps," Hewitt said, "and, if you like, I'll tell you the first thing I shall do."

"What's that?"

"I shall have a good look at a map of the West Indies, and I advise you to do the same. Good morning."

Nettings was better than his word, for within two hours of his conversation with Hewitt Goujon was captured and safe in a cab bound for Bow street. He had been stopped at Newhaven in the morning on his way to Dieppe and was brought back to London. But now Nettings met a check.

Late that afternoon he called on Hewitt to explain matters. "We've got Goujon," he said gloomily, "but there's a difficulty. He's got two friends who can swear an alibi. Rameau was seen alive at half past 1 on Saturday, and the girl found him dead about 3. Now, Goujon's two friends, it seems, were with him from 1 o'clock till 4 in the afternoon, with the exception of five minutes when the girl saw him, and then he left them to take a key or something to the housekeeper before finally leaving. They are men employed near the place and seem to have good characters. I wish you'd explain a bit as to what led you to look at a map."

"See, now," quoth Hewitt, "you remember what map I told you to look at?"

"The West Indies."

"Right! Well, here you are." Hewitt reached an atlas from his book shelf. "Now, look here: the biggest island of the lot on this map, barring Cuba, is Haiti. You know as well as I do that the western part of that island is peopled by the black republic of Haiti and that the country is in a degenerate state of almost unexampled savagery. Perhaps the very worst of the presidents in recent times has been the notorious Domingue, who was overthrown by an insurrection, as they all are sooner or later, and compelled to fly the country. Domingue and his nephews, one of whom was chief minister, while in power committed the cruelest bloodshed, and many members of the opposite party sought refuge in a small island lying just to the north of Haiti, but were sought out there and almost exterminated. Now, I will show you that island on the map. What is its name?"

"Tortuga."

"It is. 'Tortuga,' however, is only the old Spanish name. The Haitians speak French—Creole French. Here is a French atlas—now see the name of that island."

"La Tortue!"

"La Tortue it is—the tortoise. Tortuga means the same thing in Spanish. But that island is always spoken of in Haiti as La Tortue. Now, do you see the drift of that paper pinned to Rameau's breast?"

"Punished by an avenger of—or from—the tortoise or La Tortue—clear enough. It would seem that the dead man had something to do with the massacre there, and somebody from the island is avenging it."

"And now listen. The name of Domingue's nephew, who was chief minister, was Septimus Rameau."

"And this was Cesar Rameau—his brother, probably, I see."

"I think the relationship probable. Now you understand why I was inclined to doubt that Goujon was the man you wanted."

"Of course, of course! And now I suppose I must try to get a nigger—the chap who wrote that paper. I wish he hadn't been such an ignorant nigger. If he'd only have put the capitals to the words 'La Tortue,' I might have thought a little more about them, instead of taking it for granted that they meant that wretched tortoise in the basement of the house. Well, I'll be after that nigger."

"And I, as I said before," said Hewitt, "shall be after the person that carried off Rameau's body."

There was a cab rank and shelter at the end of the street, and that evening a man approached it and hailed the cabman and the waterman. Any one would have known the newcomer at once for a cabman taking a holiday. The brim of the hat, the birdseye neckerchief, the immense coat buttons and, more than all, the rolling walk and the drinkled trousers, marked him.

"Watcheer," he exclaimed affably, with the self possessed nod only possible to cabbies and busmen, "I'm a-lookin' for a bliker. I'm told one o' the blokes off this rank carried 'im last Saturday, and I want to know where he went. I ain't 'ad a chance o' gettin' 'is address yet. Took a cab just as it got dark, I'm told. Tallish chap, muffled up a lot in a long black overcoat. Any of ye seen 'im?"

The cabbies looked at one another and shook their heads. It chanced that none of them had been on that particular rank at that time, but the waterman said: "'Old on! I bet 'e's the bloke wot old Bill Stammers took. Biggish chap in a long black coat, collar up an' muffled thick. Soft wide-awake 'at, pulled over 'is eyes, and he was in a hurry too."

"Was his arm in a sling?"

"Aye, it looked so. Had it stuffed through the breast of his coat, like as though there might be a sling inside."

"That's 'im. Any of ye tell me where I might run across old Bill Stammers? He'll tell me where my precious bliker went to."

As to this there was plenty of information, and in five minutes Martin Hewitt, who had become an unoccupied cabman for the occasion, was on his way to find old Bill Stammers. That respectable old man gave him exact particulars as to the place in the East End where he had driven his muffled fare on Saturday.

At about 3 on Tuesday afternoon, as Nettings was in the act of leaving Bow street police station, Hewitt drove up in a four wheeler. Some prisoner appeared to be crouching low in the vehicle, but, leaving him to take care of himself, Hewitt hurried into the station and shook Nettings by the hand. "Well," he said, "have you got the murderer of Rameau yet?"

"No," Nettings growled. "Unless—well, Goujon's under remand still, and, after all, I've been thinking that he may know something"—

"Poob, nonsense!" Hewitt answered. "You'd better let him go. Now, I have got somebody." Hewitt laughed and slapped the inspector's shoulder. "I've got the man who carried Rameau's body away!"

"The deuce you have! Where? Bring him in. We must have him"—

"All right. Don't be in a hurry. He won't bolt." And Hewitt stepped out to the cab and produced his prisoner, who, pulling his hat further over his eyes, hurried furtively into the station. One hand was stowed in the breast of his long coat, and below the wide brim of his hat a small piece of white bandage could be seen, and, as he lifted his face, it was seen to be that of a negro.

"Inspector Nettings," Hewitt said ceremoniously, "allow me to introduce Mr. Cesar Rameau!"

Nettings gasped. The negro looked round nervously and shrank further from the door.

"Yes," he said. "But please not so loud—please not loud. Zey may be near, and I'm 'frald."

"You will certify, will you not," asked Hewitt, with malicious glee, "not only that you were not murdered last Saturday by Victor Goujon, but that, in fact, you were not murdered at all? Also, that you carried your own body away in the usual fashion, on your own legs?"

"Yes, yes," responded Rameau, looking haggardly about; "but is not sizis not publique? I should not be seen."

"Nonsense!" replied Hewitt rather testily. "You're safe enough."

"I suppose, then," Nettings remarked slowly, like a man on whose mind something vast was beginning to dawn, "I suppose—why, hang it, you must have just got up while that fool of a girl was screaming and fainting upstairs and walked out. They say there's nothing so hard as a nigger's skull, and yours has certainly made a fool of me. But, then, somebody must have chopped you over the head. Who was it?"

"My enemies—my great enemies—enemies politique. I am a great man"—this with a faint revival of vanity amid his fear—"a great man in my countree. Zey have great secret club s'cieties to kill me—me and my fren's; and one enemy coming in my rooms does zis—one, two"—he indicated wrist and head—"wiz a choppa."

Rameau made the case plain to Nettings, so far as the actual circumstances of the assault on himself were concerned. A negro whom he had noticed near the place more than once during the previous day or two had attacked him suddenly in his rooms, dealing him two savage blows with a chopper. The first he had caught on his wrist, which was seriously damaged as well as excruciatingly painful, but the second had taken effect on his head. His assailant had evidently gone away then, leaving him for dead; but, as a matter of fact, he was only stunned by the shock and had only a very bad scalp wound, the bone being no more than grazed. He had lain insensible for some time and must have come to his sense soon after the housemaid had left the room. Terrified at the knowledge that his enemies had found him out, his only thought was to get away and hide himself. He hastily washed and tied up his head, enveloped himself in the biggest coat he could find and let himself down into the basement by the coal lift, for fear of observation. He waited in the basement of one of the adjoining buildings till dark and then got away in a cab, with the idea of hiding himself in the East End. He had had very little money with him on his flight, and it was by reason of this circumstance that Hewitt, when he found him, had prevailed on him to leave his hiding place, since it would be impossible for him to touch any of the large sums of money in the keeping of his bank so long as he was supposed to be dead. With much difficulty and the promise of ample police protection, he was at last convinced that it would be as safe to declare himself and get his property, and then run away and hide wherever he pleased.

"Well, Mr. Hewitt," Nettings said to Hewitt aside, "this case has certainly been a shocking beating for me. I must have been as blind as a bat when I started on it. And yet I don't see that you had a deal to go on even now. What struck you first?"

"Well, in the beginning it seemed rather odd to me that the body should have been taken away, as I had been told it was, after the written paper had been pinned on it. Plainly that indicated that the person who had carried away the body was not the person who had committed the murder. But as soon as I began to examine the place I saw the probability that there was no murder at all. First, although there was a good deal of blood on the floor just below where the housemaid had seen Rameau lying, there was none between that place and the door. This seemed to hint that the corpse might have come to itself, sat up on the sofa, stanched the wound and walked out. I reflected at once that Rameau was a full blooded negro, and that a negro's head is very nearly invulnerable to anything short of bullets. Then, if the body had been dragged out—as such a heavy body must have been—almost of necessity the carpet and rugs would show signs of the fact, but there were no such signs. But beyond these there was the fact that no long black overcoat was left with the other clothes, although the housekeeper distinctly remembered Rameau's possession of such a garment. I judged he would use some such thing to assist his disguise, which was why I asked her. Why he would want to disguise was plain, as you shall see presently. There were no towels left in the bathroom—inference, used for bandages. Everything seemed to show that the only person responsible for Rameau's removal was Rameau himself. Clearly, Rameau was afraid of another attack from some implacable enemy whom he was anxious to avoid—one against whom he feared legal complaint or defense would be useless. This brought me at once to the paper found on the floor. If this were the work of Goujon and an open reference to his tortoise, why should he be at such pains to disguise his handwriting? He would have been already pointing himself out by the mere mention of the tortoise. And, if he could not avoid a shake in his natural, small handwriting, how could he have avoided it in a large, clumsy, slowly drawn, assumed hand? No, the paper was not Goujon's.

"The evidence of the chopper was very untrustworthy, especially when I had heard of Goujon's careless habits.

"It is quite possible, by the way, that the man who attacked Rameau got away down the coal lift and out by an adjoining basement, just as did Rameau himself; this, however, is mere conjecture. The would be murderer had plainly prepared for the crime: Witness the previous preparation of the paper declaring his revenge. In regard to the use of small instead of capital letters in the words 'La Tortue' on the paper, I observed, in the beginning, that the first letter of the whole sentence—the 'p' in 'punl'—was a small one. Clearly, the writer was an illiterate man, and it was at once plain that he may have made the same mistake with ensuing words.

"The rest of the job was not very difficult. I found out the cabman who had taken Rameau away, and from him got a sufficiently near East End direction to find Rameau after inquiries. I ventured, by the way, on a rather long shot. I described my man to the cabman as having an injured arm or wrist, and it turned out a correct guess. You see, a man making an attack with a chopper is pretty certain to make more than a single blow, and as there appeared to have been only a single wound on the head, it seemed probable that another had fallen somewhere else—almost certainly on the arm, as it would be raised to defend the head. At Limehouse I found he had had his head and wrist attended to at a local medico's, and a big nigger in a fright, with a long black coat, a broken head and a lame hand, is not so difficult to find in a small area. How I persuaded him up here you know already. I think I frightened him a little, too, by explaining how easily I had tracked him and giving him a hint that others might do the same. He is in a great funk. He seems to have quite lost faith in England as a safe asylum."

The police failed to catch Rameau's assailant—chiefly because Rameau could not be got to give a proper description of him, nor to do anything except get out of the country in a hurry. In truth, he was glad to be quit of the matter with nothing worse than his broken head. Little Goujon made a wild storm about his arrest, and before he did go to France managed to extract £20 from Rameau by way of compensation, in spite of the absence of any strictly legal claim against his old tormentor.

Failure to hit Railing when hits meant runs cost Kalamazoo the game Sunday afternoon by a score of 2 to 0. Tecumseh started in the run getting business in the first round when Preston was hit and scored on Somerlott's two bagger. The last tally was made in the 4th. Hillinger grounded out, via Hale to Webster and Wagner hit safely. Merkle poked one at Bell, who threw Wagner out at second. Mitchell then hit for three bases, scoring Merkle.

Kalamazoo had men on bases in nearly every inning but the necessary hit was not forthcoming. In the 2nd Hale singled to right and Bell fouled Merkle. Hale went down on the play and was easily safe but Corlett called him out.

Score by innings:

The afternoon game was more spectacular despite the fact that it was not over time. After no scoring Battle Creek opened the 7th with a pass for Steiger, Thomas was called out on what looked like a ball and Reardon was thrown out at first. Cross, lightweight hitter, smashed a two-bagger into right field for Steiger's run. In the 8th Wolfe badly juggled Landry's infield grounder and Deneau's triple scored Landry.

The nearest Tecumseh had at scoring was when Preston ripped off a two bagger and made 3rd on Hessberger's inability to pick up the ball. Somerlott hit to Henderson, who held Preston on third while he pegged to first. Then Slear popped an infield fly.

WHY?

The International Manure Spreader is the most satisfactory all around Spreader sold.

1. It is made, sold and looked after, after it is sold, by the International Harvester Co.

2. It has practically no gearing compared with other spreaders.

3. It has one lever only, that does the same work that other machines require six for.

4. It has a self-feed vibrating rake which pulverizes and levels the load.

5. It has more than double the feed changes of any other machine.

We have several endless and Apron Return Spreaders set all the time. Please call and talk it over.

Three years ago the majority of American millers believed that to treat flour by electricity was a fad. Today, more than three fourths of the aggressive merchant mills in the United States are using the process. The Quaker mills not willing to be behind the times have installed the Alsop process at no small expense. You cannot help being satisfied if you will try a sack of Blue Ribbon or Tecumseh Chief flour.

Among those from out of town who attended the funeral of Miss Ida Rector Sunday were, Misses Fanny and Mary Curtis, Mrs. Camburn and daughter, Edith, Misses Burr, Campbell, Richardson, Thompson, Knapp, Morden, Campbell, Alice Angell and Elvia Tallman, Mrs. Archie Boyd and Willis Chatfield of Adrian, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Rawson of Manchester, and Mrs. Susan Raymond of Detroit.

What the Sewer Will Cost You

Per Annum for Each $100 of Your Assessment.

The 1st Ten Years,	10 Cents
The 2nd Ten Years,	15½ Cents
The 3rd Ten Years,	16½ Cents

An average of only 14 cents per annum.

The total assessed valuation of the village is $1,450,000.00, and as there are 721 tax-payers in the village, the average assessment is but $2,000.00, entailing an average payment for the sewer, by each tax-payer of only $2.80 per annum, or an average for each person in our village of only 80 cents.

In view of these FACTS, can any reasonable person contend that Tecumseh can afford to exist without a sanitary sewer?

THE SEWER.

There is little more to say on the sewer question. At the top of this page in a very readable place and in a condensed form can be found a table which tells how much the sewer improvement will cost in additional taxes each year for 20 years. Right below in this same column can be seen an interview with each of the doctors of Tecumseh. Every one of the doctors condemn the cess pools and vaults, and say the earth closets stink, and are also dangerous to the health. Now the only two questions to ask about the proposed sewer are cost and health. By getting out your last tax receipt and looking at the above table you can find out in two minutes how much it will cost, then read down this column and see what your doctor says about the health problem. Dr. Conklin says that a cess pool at the upper end of town, might pollute the whole village if the drainage reaches the water veins and he should and no doubt does know.

For a minute let us go back to the financial side of the question. Week before last they commenced laying water pipes on South Pearl street and since this part of town has been added to the village there has been a constant cry for water. The water works, as is the cemetery, are self supporting and why? Because they were made nearly complete in the beginning. The sewer will cause the use of so much more water that the few additional pipes needed will be added without additional tax in a very short time.

For the purpose of finding out the opinion of every doctor in Tecumseh on the sewer question I, personally, interviewed each one and asked him these two questions. Are you in favor of the proposed sewer? Which do you think the more sanitary, cess pools or earth closets?

Dr. Frost—"I am in favor of the sewer by all means and think the earth closet is far more preferable to cess pools."

Dr. Catlin—"The sewer is imperative and should be built anyway. Cess pools are dangerous and earth closets are dangerous but preferable to cess pools."

Dr. F. O. Tefft—"I am in favor of the sewer if it can be built for the amount of money that the people can stand. These earth closets are far more preferable to cess pools for by their use the water supply is safe."

Dr. Howell.—"I am in favor of the sewer but shall not vote for the present proposition as it is too large and expensive. Have not given the subject of cess pools and earth closets enough thought to express an opinion."

Dr. Conklin—"Yes sir. I am in favor of it thoroughly. All over town. Why, of course, don't every citizen need it as much as another, beside bad water in part of the village is liable to contaminate the whole. Again every family needs the sewer even if they do not connect with it. They all need pure water and cleanliness."

Dr. P. B. Hardy—"Of course I am in favor of it. Come and look out of my back window, then smell. These earth closets are supposed to be cleaned once a month. I say the sewer is well nigh imperative for the health of Tecumseh, and if I was a taxpayer would insist in having it on every street in town. Earth closets and cess pools are both bad. You can smell the earth closets from here and the cess pools are bound to contaminate the water supply."

Dr. L. M. Jones—"Yes I am in favor of the sewer. Anything that makes clean streets and clean homes."

Dr. O. Q. Jones—"Yes I want it complete. No street left out. Cess pools and earth closets are both bad. Give us the sewers."

According to Wightman, and he has no doubt looked it up, there are four miles of streets yet in the village that need water pipe and for at least three miles there is no excuse. There is no water on these streets simply because the citizens when the water works were put in did not look ahead of their noses and realize it would ever be needed even on the streets then occupied.

There would be as much excuse for starting a cemetery of half an acre as skipping 4 miles of streets that need water or building a sewer only in the business portion, but there is a remedy at hand. Land can be purchased for more room in the cemetery as fast as it is needed and the putting in the sewer will sell sufficient water to put down pipes on all the 4 miles of streets that need it in a short time.

Now to build the sewer in the same way would shut out the entire village except Chicago street for this generation of home owners. Now this sewer plan is not to leave out any street but serve every taxpayer alike, the poor man with the small home, the rich man with the large home. The small taxpayer will not complain if he understands it. The rich man who has a large stock of goods or money out at interest may complain but why should not every man pay tax on what he owns.

One man on one street cannot build a sewer. This sewer must have length enough to carry the sewerage to the river and for this we must ALL PAY. Why when Chicago street must have it should not the rich men pay their portion and at the same time allow the sewerage to empty into the Chicago street pipe, thus to assist the poor man to make a connection if he desires it and thus to make in all a clean village, healthy for everybody, rich and poor and all who desire to come and live here.

This is if the truth must be told, is the POOR MAN'S plan but withall an HONEST plan. To build the sewer on every street in front of every man's house and to have every man pay HIS SHARE of the tax.

The poor man never COMPLAINS, he pays and shuts up. The rich man rarely fails to complain of his tax. All that is necessary is to make the man on the side street understand that if he does not vote for the sewer on this plan he will not get it in front of his home, then read what the doctors say right above, then read what it will cost him. Now how can he avoid voting for it. I interviewed the doctor myself and every word I print of them is true. I will also vouch for every figure in the above table and I again say, This is the POOR MAN'S PLAN but the RICH MAN MUST PAY HIS SHARE, which makes it honest.

If you cut your finger you don't attempt to heal it by swallowing a pill or a dose of medicine.

It is just as foolish to try and cure catarrh of the nose and throat with pills and stomach dosing, for catarrh is a local disease and needs special local healing treatment.

The only natural and common sense method known for the cure of catarrhal troubles is Hy-o-mei. It is breathed through an ingenious pocket inhaler, so that its medicated air reaches the most remote air-cells of the nose, throat and lungs, killing all catarrhal germs, soothing the irritated mucous membranes and restoring a healthy condition.

If you suffer from catarrhal troubles, such as offensive breath, raising of mucous, frequent sneezing, husky voice, discharge from the nose, droppings in the throat, loss of strength, spasmodic coughing, or a feeling of tightness across the upper part of the chest, you should begin to use Hy-o-mei at once. It will destroy all disease germs in the nose, throat and lungs and provide the blood with additional ozone.

The complete Hy-o-mei outfit with inhaler costs but $1.00. So strong is C. A. Wright & Son's faith in the power of Hy-o-mei to cure all catarrhal troubles, that with every dollar outfit they give an iron-clad guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

"BLUE DEVILS."

Get rid of indigestion and things will look bright and joyous.

Even in the present era of prosperity and good times everything appears black to those people who are suffering wretchedly from some form of indigestion. Where digestion is quick, complete and easy there is a joyous and hopeful outlook, but indigestion causes depression.

The want of a safe, effective cure for sick headache, indigestion and stomach troubles, was always felt until the prescription known as Mi-o-na stomach tablets was put up in popular form and proved its invariable success in the many forms of indigestion.

After a few days use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets the headache, dizzy feeling, drowsiness, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, nervousness, sleeplessness, distress after eating—all these symptoms of a week stomach—will disappear and perfect digestion and a good skin will show that the vital machinery is once more running smoothly.

Mi-o-na is to be taken before each meal and it will stimulate the secretive and digestive juices and strengthen the whole of the digestive system so that the unpleasant full feeling will be absent and indigestion prevented.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets are sold only in a neat metal box convenient for the vest pocket and costs 50c. C. A. Wright & Son have seen so many cures made by Mi-o-na stomach tablets they give a guarantee with every box that the money will be refunded if the remedy fails to give satisfaction.

CONFIRMED PROOF

Residents of Tecumseh can't doubt what has been twice proved.

In gratitude for relief from distressing kidney ills many have publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. Tecumseh people who testified years ago now say their cures were permanent. Such testimony proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills

S. Erskine, living on Evans street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "For ten years, I was troubled with kidney complaint and pains in my back. Being more severe after hard work or if I lifted anything. I was greatly annoyed at night by the too frequent action of the kidneys, the secretions being highly colored and showed much sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills came to my notice and they did me a world of good for I felt stronger than I had for a long time. This was five years ago and I was so grateful that I gave a statement for publication. I think just as highly of Doan's Kidney Pills today as I did then and am glad of the opportunity to recommend them that others may try this remedy and receive the same good results."

RAIN IN NEW YORK.

Labor Day Paraders Drenched to the Skin.

New York, Sept. 3.—The weather man failed to make good his prediction of a bright day for Labor day, but in spite of the rain which began early in the morning and lasted until afternoon, 25,000 members of the labor union paraded the streets, drenched to the skin, and were watched and cheered by thousands of umbrella-protected spectators.

New York had two parades, one under the direction of the Central Federated union and the other in charge of the Building Trades' organizations. A committee of the horseshoers caused considerable delay in the starting of the Federated unions' parade by examining the feet of all the horses in line to determine whether or not they were union made shoes. All horses whose shoes did not bear the union mark were ordered out of the line, and a number of the marshals and aides and those who had intended riding in carriages were forced to walk.

The police estimated 15,000 to 20,000 men in the Federated unions' parade and 5,000 to 6,000 in the Building Trades is conservative.

Another Dies of Plague.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 3.—The health boards Monday reported an additional death of bubonic plague and two additional cases under suspicion since Saturday. The death was that of a woman in Berkeley, across the bay from San Francisco. This case falls within the limits of the statement by the plague authorities that all ports on the Pacific coast having intercourse with trans-Pacific points are subject to sporadic appearances of the disease.

Love Plants of West Indies.

"Did you ever hear of the love plant?" asked a sea captain who was showing several visitors over his craft the other day. "I have several in the cabin."

He showed three small leaves attached to the ceiling by strings. They were without any soil or foundation, but were green, and from each there sprouted a dozen or more little leaves, greener and fresher than the main leaf itself.

"During our last cruise in the West Indies," the captain continued, "I visited a deserted English fortress, which was grown over with shrubbery. A native plucked several leaves from a vine and told me to hang them somewhere and write the name of my best girl on them. 'If they die,' he said, 'she does not love you. If they sprout, she does.' I put my wife's name on one and my two daughters' names on the others. You see, although they have been without nourishment for three months, all three are sprouting well and my family's affections seem assured."—Philadelphia Record.

Colors.

White is the emblem of light, religious purity, innocence, faith, joy and life. In the judge it indicates integrity; in the sick, humility; in the woman, chastity. Red, the ruby, signifies fire, divine love and royalty. White and red roses express love and wisdom. Blue, or the sapphire, expresses heaven, the firmament, truth from a celestial origin, constancy and fidelity. Yellow or gold is the symbol of the sun, of marriage and faithfulness. Green, the emerald, is the color of spring, of—hope—particularly of the hope of immortality and of victory, as the color of the laurel and palm. Violet, the amethyst, signifies love and truth or passion and suffering. Purple and scarlet signify things good and true from a celestial origin. Black corresponds to despair, darkness, earthiness, mourning, negation, wickedness and death.

A Rhapsody on a Mutton Chop.

When a primitive man wants breakfast he takes a sheep, kneels upon it, holds it between his legs and cuts its throat. He skins it, and, taking a slice out of it, fries it on the coals for breakfast. We also demand not less imperatively cutlets for our breakfast, but we manage it another way. We procure an individual some way off to kill the beast and another out of our sight to cook it. We have a paper frill put around the bone to disguise it, and set a pot of flowers straight before us to look at while we eat it; but, to the sheep—to the sheep—it can make little difference which way it is eaten. We still do our unclean work, but we do it by proxy. And it may be questioned whether what we gain in refinement we have not lost in sincerity.—Fortnightly Review.

No One But Yourself if You Don't Get Well When Sick.

All we can do is give advice.
Of course that's easy.
But our advice is really worth a little more to you than most people's, for we offer to give you the first bottle of our medicine free, if it fails to help you
We could not afford to do this unless our medicine was good. Such an offer, on the wrong kind of medicine, would put a merchant prince in the poor house.
Dr. Miles' Nervine, however, as years of experience have proved, is a medicine that cures the sick.
Those whom it cannot benefit—less than one in ten thousand—we prefer to refund their money.
All we ask of you is to try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine for your complaint. If you suffer from sleeplessness, nervous exhaustion, dizziness, headache, muscular twitchings, melancholy, loss of memory, weak stomach, poor blood, bilious troubles, epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance, etc., we will guarantee to benefit you or refund your money.
You are the doctor.
"My son Bert, when in his 17th year, became subject to attacks of epilepsy, so serious that we were compelled to take him out of school. NEWS IN BRIEF.

Labor day gave to the world a new welter-weight champion. In the thirty-second round of a scheduled 45-round contest at Coffroth's arena at Colma, near San Francisco, Monday afternoon, Young Ketchell of Butte, Mont., knocked out Champion Joe Thomas of San Francisco in the presence of 8,000 persons.

Striking operators formerly employed by the Postal Telegraph company in Houston, Tex., have applied for reinstatement as individuals. The manager of the Postal notified the men that he would take their applications under advisement. There are numerous rumors of breaks in the strikers' ranks in all parts of Texas.

Quicksand in the Illinois river, Monday night caused the drowning of Charles McEnlee, Keeling Wilson and Wm. Stinger of Lacon, Ill. The bodies were found upright in the river at Peoria, Ill., all three held firmly by the quicksand, which reached their knees. The water was barely over their heads when they were found.

All government offices and practically all private business establishments in Washington were closed Monday in observance of Labor day. Large crowds journeyed to nearby resorts. The local feature was the celebration of the Central Labor Union, which held exercises and athletic events at a park a few miles south of this city.

Flames licked up a half million dollars' worth of property and reduced three squares of the business and residence section to ashes in Houston, Tex., Monday night. The biggest loss was to the plant of the Standard Milling Co., valued at $300,000, which covered an entire block. The elevator and the flour mill and rice mill were destroyed. The fire started in this plant, and after consuming it, destroyed about two blocks of residences.

While 10,000 persons at the Labor day celebration in Fort Wayne, Ind., Monday evening were watching Miss Mabel Davenport make a balloon ascension, William Roeffing, 12 years old, got caught in a guy rope and was carried 70 feet above the ground. The rope swung him into the branch of a towering tree and he clutched a slender branch, getting clear of the rope. He mustered strength to wrap his legs about the branch, where he swung head downward until four men climbed the tree and threw a rope hose around his body. He did not have strength enough to let go the branch and grab the rope. The dangling noose caught him about the waist and he fell 20 feet with the rope about him. The rope caught on a strong limb and Roeffing was lowered to the ground unhurt.

Two Boys Electrocuted.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Two lads, Tony Carola and Guiseppe Zeppa, both about 13 years old, were electrocuted Sunday on a steel tower, which carries high voltage from Niagara Falls power houses to the Lackawanna Steel plant. There was great delay in communicating with the power house to get the current shut off, and for nearly three hours the bodies hung in midair with the blue flames playing about them, in plain view of thousands of street car passengers.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

David Sicord of Chicago, aged 16, visiting at the Waukazoo resort, near Holland, was drowned Sunday afternoon while in bathing in the bay. The body was recovered two hours later in 20 feet of water and sent to Chicago.

George Woodward, aged 59, a notorious character, known throughout the Saginaw valley, fell from a window over his saloon at Saginaw Sunday when he leaned out to see who was knocking on the door. He died a few hours later.

Grand Trung passenger train No. 8, while running about 50 miles an hour, crashed into four freight cars about 7 o'clock Sunday night, a mile and a half west of Royal Oak, and threw them in showers of splinters to either side of the tracks. Miraculously, there were no serious injuries to either passengers or members of the crew, though a number received minor hurts.

Swerved from the road by the heavy mud two miles south of the city of Ann Arbor Monday, the automobile of George Woods of the First National bank of that city crashed into a tree, badly injuring himself and his wife. Mrs. Woods received a broken collar bone and internal injuries, and it is not know how serious they will be. Woods received a bad cut in the leg and bled profusely before receiving medical attention.

Col. Sir Augustus Charles Frederick Fitzgeorge, third son of the late Duke of Cambridge, died in Lucerne, Switzerland Monday. He was born in 1847.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

"Mr. S. S. Bell of Ranseyville, W. Va., says—"I was troubled with sour stomach for many years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

Monument in Buffalo Unveiled During Rain Storm.

GOVERNOR HUGHES THERE.

Flag Which Enveloped Obelisk Rent in Twain by Wind Just at Critical Moment—Multitude of People Attend Ceremony—Notables Speak.

Buffalo, Sept. 6.—In a heavy downpour of rain and before a vast multitude, the McKinley monument on Niagara square was dedicated Thursday afternoon and formally turned over to the state of New York through Governor Charles E. Hughes. The ceremonies were brief, but none the less impressive.

Assembled on the stand near the monument, with Governor Hughes, were men prominent in the state and nation and also from the Dominion of Canada. Back of the speakers' platform was a grandstand filled with business and professional men of Buffalo and western New York with their wives and daughters. Another large body, consisting of the Grand Army veterans, who always hailed President McKinley as "comrade," formed in a circle in front of the speakers' stand, and on the steps of the monument. Interspread with them and in striking contrast to their plain blue uniforms and battle flags, were the scarlet-coated Canadian troopers.

Mighty Multitude.

But by far the mightiest part of the assemblage was the multitude which banked Niagara square and the approaching thoroughfares as far as the eye could see.

Governor Hughes, the members of the monument commission, their honorary guests and the speakers of the day were escorted to Niagara square by soldiers from the National Guard, the regular army, the Canadian troopers and veterans of the G. A. R. and the Spanish war.

The sky out over Lake Erie had become overcast with threatening clouds, and with the first sounds of the approaching soldiery came a patter of rain. The skies grew darker and just as Governor Hughes stepped upon the platform there came a roll of thunder—a booming salue from the heavens. The rain increased and the immense flag which enveloped the obelisk in its folds was rent in twain by the wind. The stay ropes broke from their fastenings and the two ends of the flag fluttered out over the crowd. The top of the flag where the release cord was attached did not break away from the obelisk.

Speeches Delivered.

Following a prayer by Rev. E. H. Dickinson, Edward H. Butler, chairman of the monument commission, introduced Mayor J. N. Adam, who spoke for a few moments.

Mayor Adam was followed by Harlan J. Swift, state commander of the G. A. R., who delivered an eloquent tribute to McKinley, the soldier; Gen Miller, past commander of the Spanish-American war veterans, who spoke of President McKinley's part in the Spanish-American war, and Mrs. Donald McLean, president of the Daughters of the Revolution, who spoke of the martyr-president's qualities as a lover, a husband and father.

At the conclusion of Mrs. McLean's address, Mrs. Truman C. Avery pulled the cord which released the flag, revealing the white sides of the shaft.

Chairman Butler then addressed the governor in behalf of the monument commission.

Government Forces Take Charge.

Washington, Sept. 6.—By direction of President Roosevelt the public health and marine hospital service has assumed charge of the measures to stamp out the plague in San Francisco. This step was taken Thursday upon the request of the mayor of San Francisco, who added that the city would do all that is possible toward providing funds to carry on the work. Acting promptly on telegraph instructions from Oyster Bay, Surgeon-General Wyman issued the necessary orders and notified the mayor of San Francisco that the corps of service officers already on duty there would be augmented and additional measures taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

Confessed He Fired Hotel.

Columbus, O., Sept. 6.—Burton Plummer, 19 years old, last night confessed that he set fire to the Normandie hotel which was destroyed Wednesday with a loss of $200,000. He said he was jealous of attentions paid by Charles Dohr, a hotel clerk, to a dining room girl of whom he was enamored.

FRANCE IS ALARMED.

Fears Diplomatic Complications Over Moroccan Affair.

PRESS STIRS UP THE PUBLIC

Nation May Find It Difficult to Keep Within Algeciras Convention Terms—Germany Has an Eagle Eye on Developments in Africa.

Paris, Sept. 6.—While there has not been any more fighting at Casablanca since a fierce engagement of Tuesday, the seriousness of the general situation in Morocco and the possibility of its leading France into diplomatic difficulties with the other powers of Europe, notably Germany and Great Britain, to say nothing of the apparently growing necessity of increasing the size of the French force on the Moroccan coast, is occupying the attention of the French people.

The press is calling attention to the difficulty of keeping within the terms of the Algeciras convention, and the call to convoke parliament to discuss and decide what course the nation should pursue is becoming more insistent. There is a growing feeling that the important decisions in the matter of France's policy in Morocco should not be left entirely to the members of the cabinet.

The seriousness of the fighting of Tuesday in which Major Prevost, of the foreign legion, was killed, further details of which have been published, has brought home to the French people a comprehension of the persistent resistance of the Moors and a realization that France may be only at the threshold of a protracted campaign that may easilly prove costly in lives and money. The situation is now referred to as a "war," and no longer, as heretofore, as an "expedition of pacification."

No other power yet has been drawn into the difficulty, but Germany is watching the progress of events in Morocco more closely every day, and as it becomes apparent that the situation there is not improving, it is intimated in Berlin that the Algeciras convention, under the terms of which France and Spain are acting in Morocco, prescribes certain limitations, and that France is approaching the bounds beyond which she should not go without first obtaining the special permission of the powers.

The situation at Mazagan is reported to be growing more threatening, and the exodus of Europeans from Tangier continues.

Native advices received at Tangier declare that 20,000 hostile Moors have concentrated not far from Casablanca, and that 10,000 Kabyle tribesmen have mobilized near Alcabaza.

Spain is preparing to send reinforcements of men and ships to Morocco. One Spanish battleship, the Emperador Carlos V, arrived at Tangier Thursday.

The newspapers today have adopted an altogether graver tone in discussing the Moroccan situation. The more comprehensive reports of the engagement of Tuesday show it to have been much more serious than was first stated.

SOLDIERS NEED ATTENTION

Col. Galbraith Asks That He Be Paid, Clothed and Fed Better.

Washington, Sept. 6.—There is a crying need of making the army more attractive to the private soldier, according to the annual report of Col. J. G. Galbraith, acting inspector-general of the army, which has just been made public. The report discusses in an interesting manner the grievances of the soldier concerning small pay, insufficient rations, faulty uniforms, conditions attending enlistments and causes of desertions.

Some of the causes of desertion and changes suggested, follow:

Lack of permanency of commanders of companies; shifting command personnel with the regiment and the deterioration of the regimental spirit.

Tyrannical sergeants and lack of home interest and encouragement, which sustain the volunteer regiments.

The report says that if the first enlistment were for one year, desertions would almost disappear and recruiting would be facilitated.

The report recommends that congress be urged "to greater liberality, so that the soldiers may have a uniform that is uniform, with a style that is pleasing."

The touch that heals

Is the touch of Bucklen's arnica salve. It's the happiest combination of arnica flowers and healing balsams ever compounded. No matter how old the sore or ulcer is this salve will cure it. For burns, scalds, cuts, wounds or piles it has no equal. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son, druggists. 25c.

ONLY SIXTY PRESENT.

Veterans of Fourth Michigan Cavalry in Reunion.

ONCE NUMBERED 2,200 MEN.

Old Battle Scarred Flag Exhibited—Gen Pritchard and Captains Boutell, Dickinson and Haywood Present—Annual Gathering at Ann Arbor.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 6.—With the spirit of the days of '61 still flowing in their veins, the remnant of the Fourth Michigan cavalry gathered Thursday in this city to talk over the days of long ago and to rehearse the stories of the war.

During the term of its service the Fourth Michigan cavalry had 2,200 men in the field, but today but 69 gathered here to take part in the reunion, and it is thought that but 350 of the total number are still living.

One of the features of the reunion which particularly appeals to those present was the old battle flag which was shown at the regimental headquarters. The flag, which is tattered and torn from wind and storm, has been patched up as best it could to make it last and has been preserved as a relic of the days of strife. It is the battalion colors and is formed of a strip of red and one of blue bunting over which a pennant of white silk bears the name of Michigan, the number of the brigade and the division, which was in each case to appear under crossed swords. It seems that the regimental flag was long ago given into the keeping of the historical society at Lansing, and when the organization attempted to get control of it to carry at the meetings of the regiment, it was refused. Thereupon one of their number, who was well endowed with this world's goods, had a duplicate made, and this, which is of blue silk edged with gold fringe, and bears the seal of the state, was also at the headquarters Thursday.

Among those who were present were: Gen. Pritchard of Allegan; Lieut. Backus of Detroit; Capt. Boutell of Ypsilanti, and Capt. Dickinson of Detroit.

Capt. Harvey S. Haywood of Wayne was also present, and was one of the interesting characters of the day. Capt. Haywood was a member of the Dr. Isaac I. Hayes polar expedition in 1860-61. Dr. Hayes had been the surgeon of the Kane expedition, and after his return fitted out another expedition and returned to seek the pole. The party left Boston in 1860 and spent that year and the succeeding winter in the north. They reached 83 degrees and 35 minutes, which was at that time the farthest north that any party had gone. In the expedition were 19 men, and of this number Capt. Haywood is the only survivor.

Carry Fight Into Supreme Court.

Alpena, Mich., Sept. 6.—The row over the nomination for delegate to the constitutional convention in the 29th senatorial district has been taken to the supreme court for settlement, it being claimed that Postmaster A. L. Deuel of Harbor Springs, and a member of the republican senatorial committee, illegally voted for himself in choosing a successor to Judge Emrick of Alpena, resigned. Deuel was appointed chairman of the committee by Senator Ming at Cheboygan last week, although he was not a member of the committee. This gave Emmet county two votes instead of one, and the ballot stood four for Deuel and three for A. B. Green of Alpena. Green is the logical candidate, as Alpena is entitled to one selection. Now the chairman and secretary of the committee are asked to show cause why a certificate of nomination should not be issued to Green, or some third party.

Leap to Their Death.

Tacoma, Wash., Sept. 6.—Fire destroyed the Webb hotel at Shelton, 20 miles from Tacoma. Ten persons are known to be dead and one dying. The fire was discovered about 1:40 Thursday morning. It had started in the hotel annex probably from a lighted cigar dropped in the sample room. The hotel was a three-story structure. Persons in the upper stories were entirely cut off from the stairway and seven or eight jumped from the windows before help could reach them.

Paying Off Indebtedness.

Washington, Sept. 6.—The treasury department Thursday received $50,000 from the Jamestown Exposition Co., which makes over $100,000 so far received from the exposition. This money will be applied to the liquidation of the exposition's debt to the government of $1,000,00 which was appropriated at the last session of congress.

DROVE OUT HINDUS.

Populace of Bellingham, Wash., Rise in Revolt Against Natives of India in Their Town.

Bellingham, Wash., Sept. 6.—Six badly beaten Hindus are in the hospital, four hundred frightened and half-naked Hindus are in jail and the corridors of the city hall, guarded by policemen, and somewhere between Bellingham and the British Columbia line are 750 natives of India, beaten, hungry and half-clothed, making their way along the Great Northern railway to Canadian territory and the protection of the British flag.

The long-expected cry "Drive out the Hindus," was heard throughout the city and along the water front Wednesday night. The police were helpless. All authority was paralyzed and for five hours a mob of half a thousand white men raided the mills where the foreigners were working, battered down doors of lodging houses, and dragging the Asiatics from their beds escorted them to the city limits with orders to keep going.

The trouble started at C and Holly streets, a lodging house district. The houses were cleared and the mob then swept down the water front and mill after mill was visited, the white employes joining the mob. Every Hindu was hustled outside.

Here the police suggested that the mob victims be taken to jail. This was hailed with delight and the Hindus were hustled along. From this time on few were beaten, the blood thirstiness of the mob seemingly being satisfied during the attack on the lodging houses.

The mob kept up its work along the water front until early Thursday morning when Larson's mill at Whatcom Lake was visited, and a hundred Hindus brought in from there.

The city is quiet now, but there is a strong undercurrent of opinion which apparently approves the action of the mob and it may be found impossible to prosecute the leaders.

Racial feeling has played no small part in the affair. Every day whites are being replaced in the mills by the Asiatics. Many instances of women being pushed into the gutter or insulted on street cars by the foreigners were also reported. General uneasiness of the whites is given as a reason for the outbreak.

The Hindus are all British subjects and the case is being placed before the British authorities.

HIS PLANS FIND FAVOR.

Choate May Succeed in Securing Establishment of Permanent Court of Justice.

The Hague, Sept. 6.—Joseph H. Choate, one of the American delegates to the peace conference, is credited with the statement that he will not leave The Hague until his pet project for the creation of a permanent International High Court of Justice has become an accomplished fact, and at Thursday's meeting of the examining committee, under the presidency of M. Bourgeois, which is dealing with this matter, he had the satisfaction of securing approval for the entire American project, with the exception of the paragraph referring to the allotment of judges.

In a powerful speech, Mr. Choate urged the committee not to permit its differences on the matter of the allotment of judges to interfere with the solemn duty devolving upon it of satisfying, either permanently or provisionally, the universal demand for the establishment of such a court. "It would be ignominious in the last degree for us to confess our inability to discharge this duty," Mr. Choate declared.

He suggested a number of solutions for the difficulty regarding judges, including a proposal for the election of judges by the whole conference voting by states, each state exercising absolute equality. He maintained that this method would assure equality of sovereignty, as well as equality in all other respects. Each nation would take its chance, he said, of a successful canvass.

It has been decided that the judges of the court are to receive a fixed salary of $2,400 a year, and in addition $40 a day while sitting on the court.

Charge Old Man With Murder.

Cadillac, Mich., Sept. 6.—The coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of Charles E. Cartright, the Yuma merchant who met death as the result of a quarrel with Henry O. Miner, aged 70, returned Thursday night to the effect that the deceased came to his death from a knife in the hands of the latter. Miner was taken into custody Thursday, coming here voluntarily, and a warrant charging manslaughter or murder will likely be issued today.

Deafness cannot be cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's catarrh cure. Send for circulars free.

Sold by all druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

A young widow has a peculiar way of seeing a man without looking at him.

There are a great many people who have slight attacks of indigestion and dyspepsia nearly all the time. Their food may satisfy the appetite but it fails to nourish the body simply because the stomach is not in fit condition to do the work it is supposed to do. It can't digest the food you eat. The stomach should be given help. You ought to take something that will do the work your stomach can't do. Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia, a combination of natural digestants and vegetable acids, digests the food itself and gives strength and health to the stomach. Pleasant to take. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

A man doesn't have to wear good clothes if he can afford not to.

One of the worst features of kidney trouble is that it is an insidious disease and before the victim realizes his danger he may have a fatal malady. Take Foley's Kidney Cure as the first sign of trouble as it corrects irregularities and prevents Bright's disease and diabetes. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Some men stand just inside the door ready to grasp opportunity by the back of the neck when it knocks.

Occasional headache, belching, bad taste in the mouth, lack of appetite and slight nervousness are symptoms of indigestion which, when allowed to go uncared for, will develop into a case of dyspepsia that will take a long time to get rid of. Don't neglect your stomach. At the first indication of trouble take something that will help it along in its work of digesting the food you eat. Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia will do this. Kodol will make your food do you good and will enable you to enjoy what you eat. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

The new pure food and drug law.

We are now pleased to announce that Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not effected by the national pure food and drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs, and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

A real good man doesn't have to use words to tell it.

The way to get rid of a cold, whether it be a "bad cold" or just a little one, is to get it out of your system through the bowels. Nearly all cough cures, especially those that contain opiates, are constipating. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup contains no opiates and acts gently on the bowels. Pleasant to take. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Many a man has been forced to ask for a handout because he was unable to get his hand in.

Cured hay fever and summer colds.

A. J. Nusbaum, Batesville, Ind., writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed to only aggravate my case. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package and it quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and tar with the same success." Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

You can't always judge a man's pay by the work he does.

DeWitt's little early risers are good for any one who needs a pill. They are small, safe, sure, little pills that do not gripe or sicken. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

The Woman Or the Car

By Elliot Walker

Copyright, 1906, by Homer Sprague

Ladd, the proprietor of the Tamaracks, shook his head with discouraging firmness.

"No," he declared decidedly; "I accommodate people here, not automobiles. First, no shelter for the machine; second, I won't have one round since my dog was run over; third, there's no use of talking. Better go along."

In the sudden darkness of the summer twilight came a blinding flash, disclosing more clearly the occupants of the big touring car the chauffeur gesticulating angrily; two other stalwart men, a woman and a child.

With a rush of wind that storm-tossed the trees, a deafening thunderclap shook the earth. The rain, almost horizontal in the flying air, drove a deluge of crystal drops under the hastily arranged covers.

"I'm going to get out!" shrilled a small scared voice. "I want to be in a house! Mamma, come!"

A tall figure leaped from the piazza of the little hotel, shoved Ladd aside and held out a pair of shirt sleeved arms.

"You shall, baby!" he shouted. "It's a confounded shame! You, too, mad am! Let the men take care of themselves. Hurry, or you'll be drenched!"

"Look out!" cried the mother sharply, for the child had jumped recklessly. "Thank you, sir. I feared she would fall. Yes, I think it is best. I'll be right in."

She fumbled for a bag, spoke rapidly to one of her companions and sprang from the step unassisted to run up the short path after the uncouth figure, striding swiftly, with the little girl clinging to his neck.

Ladd's loud voice came to her ears above the din.

"You're all welcome, I say. I'll bet mad fool the crowd, but that pesky machine can't lodge at my place. No, gents. Sorry, but I've sworn to pass 'em along."

"A fine specimen you are to run a hotel," scoffed the man by the driver.

"It's my house," retorted Ladd.

"Well, keep it and be hanged! I wouldn't put my head under such a roof. We'll be here in the morning, old curmudgeon. Take care of Mrs. Dixon. Push her along, Henri. Never mind speed limits."

A few rattles, a dozen snorting gasps and the car dashed away through the mud.

Mr. Ladd, bareheaded and dripping, gazed after it with a satisfied grin.

"Too bad to break up a party," he grunted. "This storm will last a good hour. They'll get a nice twenty mile trip to Jepworth, splashing soft dirt. Well, I've got two guests, anyhow, and tomorrow I make my third nick on old Hank's tombstone."

He chuckled his way into the barn.

* * * * * * *

Lois Dixon sat in the dining room a small apartment largely given over to social usage other than the delights of the table. A high chair had been found for Dot, who was assaulting bread and milk. Seraph Ladd, corpulent and apologetic, talked from the adjacent kitchen.

"Oh, no, my dear," she was saying. "The Tamaracks isn't much of a hotel. Folks stay here for meals, and we take in a few transients and occasionally a regular. The regulars are mostly men who come to fish and kill time. There are good trout in the tamarack swamp brook, but it's a pesky hole. That man you saw is a regular. He has been here a week."

"I can hardly say I saw him. Everything was done so quickly. I'm quite dry now, and so is Dot. Your husband doesn't appear to approve of automobiles," this last sentence with an aggrieved intonation.

"He doesn't!" exclaimed Mrs. Ladd rather warmly. "Jason is good natured about most other things, but after our dog was knocked across the fence (poor old thing; he was only gnawing a bone in the road) Jason swore an oath never to let a car stop overnight again. So he boarded up the shed. My, the way some of these people whiz along a country road is fearful! Your supper is most ready, Mrs. Dixon. I take it you are a widow woman, because"—

"Yes, I've been widowed for five years," Lois interrupted. "We were simply taking a short pleasure drive. A slight accident delayed us for an hour, else we should be at home by this time. We were making for Jepworth, where I have a sister."

"I see." Mrs. Ladd began to place dishes. "I sort of wondered."

"A friend of mine and his brother, besides the chauffeur," explained Lois, blushing a trifle. "It did seem queer that I was left so unceremoniously to the care of strangers, but I can look out for myself, and I always go prepared for emergencies. Still I should have thought"—

"Oh, it's the machine every time," laughed the old woman. "Men seem to forget. What with their wrangling and hurry for cover, you and Dotty were better out of it."

"Apparently." Mrs. Dixon's tone was sarcastic. "However, to let me come in unattended and to leave all explanation to me when he knew I was upset and trying to calm Dot"— She paused. Seraph was eying her shrewdly.

"Considerate, I must say," observed the hostess. "Well, draw up and eat."

"Mercy! You have cooked enough for three!" Lois laughed outright.

"It's not all for you, my dear. Our regular hasn't had his supper. He turned up only a few minutes before you did. I'll tinkle the bell for him. You don't mind company, do you? He's a real nice man, but sort of quiet this trip. Acts sort of impatient and nervous, too, which isn't his usual way."

"I must ask you to introduce me, then. I'll be glad to thank him for helping us."

The bell rang softly in the hall. Lois, busying herself with her napkin and with Dot, did not glance at the entering figure.

Mrs. Ladd, impressed by the importance of the act of introduction, spoke up smartly.

"Nat, let me make you acquainted with Mrs. Blakeley—I—I mean Mrs. Dixon. Mr. Blakeley, Mrs. Dixon. This is her little girl. Dear, dear! Wasn't it funny that I should have got you twisted?"

"Very funny," murmured Blakeley, bowing and making considerable noise with his chair. Lois dropped her napkin. Dot stared, smiling and nodding.

"Now I've embarrassed you!" cried Mrs. Ladd, retreating to the kitchen.

"Gracious!" she exclaimed to herself. "Neither of them can find a word to say. I guess I'll shut this door or they may hear me giggle."

The silence was broken by Dot. "You've got whiskers," she informed him with complacence. "Don't you know me?"

TWO BRAKEMEN DEAD.

Crushed to Death While Making Coupling of Cars at Dundee.

Dundee, Mich., Sept. 6.—Norris Goodrich, 33 years old, of Napoleon, O., and John Lowry, 20 years old, of Tecumseh, brakemen on the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton railroad, were instantly killed by their freight train while working here about 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

The men had gone in between two heavily loaded gravel cars to couple them and when the engine bumped the cars they were caught and crushed through the bumpers failing to connect properly. They were quickly discovered by the train crew and assistance summoned, but both were dead by the time the doctors arrived, a few minutes later. Accident [illegible]

Goodrich's chest was crushed in and he was pinioned, being held up by the two cars. Lowry sustained internal injuries, and was found lying on the ground. Goodrich was married. He had seen his mother in the door of her home near the track as he and waved his hand to her in farewell a few minutes before his life was crushed out.

Switchmen Killed.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 6.—Two switchmen were thrown off the front end of a Grand Trunk freight engine when it hit a frog at the yard crossing on the Belvedere yesterday afternoon. One of them was John Brett, aged 33. As his body was thrown forward the brake of the driving wheel struck his head and the back of his skull was torn off. The engine was ditched. Death was instantaneous.

Student Loses Both Limbs.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 6.—Orin George Seaver, aged 24 years, a well-known student at the University of Michigan, was run down by a Baker Street car at Gratiot and Rivard street Thursday afternoon, and both legs were cut off just below the knees. The young man's parents live in Ypsilanti. Seaver was taken to St. Mary's hospital and the doctors hold out some hope for his recovery.

Ball Player Left Fortune.

Marshall, Mich., Sept. 6.—The will of Mrs. Mary Gibbs of Homer probated Thursday, leaves her entire estate of $22,000 to Edward Limpon, a well-known amateur base ball player of Homer. The woman had no near relatives living and Limpon is no connection whatever. The young man was a good friend of Mrs. Gibbs, but no reason is known for her making him her sole beneficiary, and he is as much surprised as his many friends.

Resort Buildings Burn.

South Haven, Mich., Sept. 6.—The main building of the Variety Fruit Farm resort, owned by G. W. Griffin, was burned to the ground with all contents early Thursday morning. The last guest left Wednesday. The origin was probably lightning. The loss is $5,000, with an insurance of $4,100.

Hog Cholera Gets Many.

Marshall, Mich., Sept. 6.—Hog cholera is epidemic in Marengo township. Frank Church has lost 72 swine, Frank Clark 60, and several others lesser numbers. Agricultural college specialists are here in an endeavor to stay the inroads of the pest.

Reported Fifty Buried Alive.

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 6.—Fifty persons are said to have been buried alive by a vast avalanche of snow that has rolled down the mountain side and obliterated the Chilean custom house at Juncal. This station is on the Argentine frontier, high up in the Andes.

Signing of Treaty Observed.

Portsmouth, N. H., Sept. 6.—The second anniversary of the signing of the treaty of Portsmouth between Russia and Japan was observed here last evening by the unveiling of a peace tablet, followed by solemn song and Te Deum in Christ Episcopal church in which edifice the service of thanksgiving, participated in by the clergy of the Russian and Episcopal churches, was held two years ago. The service last evening was similar to the one held in 1905, with the exception that none of the clergy of the Greek catholic body was present.

WHEREAS, a large number to taxpayers of this village have expressed an earnest wish that the special election, heretofore called, on the subject of a village loan, may be postponed that the voters may have a better understanding of the issue:

AND WHEREAS, this council realizes that the question involved, is of great importance, and wishes to permit thorough discussion and consideration of the subject:

It is hereby moved that the resolution, passed by this council on the 21st day of August, A. D. 1907, directing a special election for the purpose of authorizing a loan of twenty-nine thousand dollars, to be held on the 9th day of September, A. D. 1907, be and is hereby reconsidered, and that the call for said election be and is hereby revoked annulled.

Ayes—Heesen, Lowry, Magers, Sherman; nays—none. Carried.

Moved and supported that the following resolution be accepted and adopted:

RESOLVED, that the proposition to raise the sum of twenty-nine thousand dollars by a loan on the faith and credit of this village, for the purpose of constructing a sanitary sewer system in said village according to the plans and specifications prepared by Riggs & Sherman, and now on file in the office of the Clerk of this village, be and the same is hereby submitted to the vote of the electors of this village at a special village election, now and hereby called for that purpose, to be held at the council building in said village on the 23rd day of September A. D. 1907, at which election the votes shall be by ballot, the contents of which shall be as follows, viz:

The ballot for those voting to authorize said loan to read as follows: "[ ] Shall a village loan of twenty-nine thousand dollars for sewer purposes be authorized: Yes."

The ballot for those voting not to authorize said loan shall read as follows: "[ ] Shall a village loan of twenty-nine thousand dollars for sewer purposes be authorized; No."

That said special village election be conducted in every respect, in the manner provided by law for special village elections; and that the village clerk is hereby directed to give notice of said election by having a copy of this resolution published in each the Tecumseh Herald and the Tecumseh News at least twice before said election, and by posting notices of said election containing copies of this resolution in six of the most public places in this village at least two weeks before the date of said election.

Ayes—Heesen, Lowry, Magers, Sherman; nays—none. Carried.

On motion council adjourned.

W. L. JONES, Clerk.

David McNair.

The writer of these lines has known David McNair for 40 years and finds the preparation of a commendatory obituary a labor of love.

Mr. McNair's ancestors were of Scotch Irish descent, living in Scotland till the rebellion of 1600 when they went to Ireland where they remained until they came to America in 1731. Colonel Wm. S. McNair settled in Tecumseh in 1826 or 27, and in 1832 married Miss Betsey Robertson, and in Tecumseh and Raisin townships three sons and three daughters were born, David being born on the corner where now stands the home of Hon. John D. Shull, Oct. 19th, 1838.

He endured the privations and hardships of those early times, acquiring an education in the district school which was extended by attendance at the more advanced schools in this village. Later he taught in the district schools in this vicinity for some years, thus applying and adding to his experience. In 1866 he married Miss Lucinda Sharp, a daughter of the late Peter Sharp of Ridgeway. Of this happy union four sons were born, three of whom survive their father. Royal D. died in infancy. Herbert L. an attorney lives in Denver, Col., Wm. S. an officer in the U. S. A. is located at Fort Riley, Kan., and Fred J. a mining engineer lives at Leadville, Col., the latter unmarried, the two preceding having families.

In 1867 Mr. McNair embarked in the clothing business in this village with the late J. S. Strong under the firm name of Strong & McNair, and the firm continued the business under that name till Mr. Strong's age rendered a change necessary in 1894, when after selling the business Mr. McNair went to Denver, Colo., where his oldest son had established himself in the legal profession. In that city, near their children Mr. and Mrs. McNair made their home till the ruthless hand of death removed Mrs. McNair on Jan. 29th, 1907, and where McNair passed away from chronic heart disease Aug. 26th of the same year.

His youngest son, Fred J. McNair, brought his mortal remains from Denver to this village, where they arrived Aug. 30th. They were taken to the home of his sisters, the Misses Sarah and Agnes McNair, on west Chicago street where the same day impressive services were conducted by Rev. J. Wirt Dunning of the Presbyterian church. From there to Brookside cemetery appreciative friends of other days carried his worn body, laying it beside the beloved wife, who had so recently left him. By death they were but a few months separated and in death they are now united.

His brothers, James and Albert, and sister, Eliza, died many years ago, so that of his father's family these two sisters are the only representatives living and they feel his death most profoundly for he has been to them for many years an adviser and a guide. With his sons they have the sympathy of the entire community.

During the many years of his business life in Tecumseh, Mr. McNair made a most enviable record for just and honest dealing and served the community in many ways with faithfulness and decided ability. For 21 years he was a member of the board of education several terms he sat in the village council, for one or more terms he was village treasurer. All his life he was an honest and faithful democrat, using the term in both its etymological and political senses. In the councils of his party his advice was much esteemed and was always for true statesmanship, never for mere petty party advantage. Everywhere his word was as good as his bond. Though he could speak well and express himself clearly it was only to those that chose to listen, his views were never forced upon any one.

He was sometimes regarded as taciturn but among his intimates he expressed himself freely and to their pleasure and edification. Though he had a slight reserve of manner he had a courtliness and a kindliness of bearing that are now accredited to the "Gentlemen of the Old School" that won for him the regard of all his acquaintances. A good man, an able man, a man to be admired, a man to copy after, was David McNair. We are bereft, for a high minded Christian gentleman has left us.

Wigle-Crawford.

The marriage of Dr. Ora A. Wigle of No. 256 Joseph Campau Ave., and John D. Crawford of Toledo, O., was quietly celebrated Tuesday morning by the Rev. C. W. Baldwin, pastor of the Mary Palmer Memorial church, in the parsonage. The couple left at once for their future home in Toledo.

Dr. Wigle graduated from the Detroit Homeopathic college five years ago and immediately went to Brooklyn, N. Y., where she was connected with the Women's and Children's hospital for four years. She returned to this city last winter and took up her professional work. She is a sister of Dr. Lewis W. Wigle of this city and belongs to the well-known Canadian family of that name.—Detroit times.

Dr. Wigle practised in Tecumseh last fall, before going to Detroit.

BASE BALL

Railing pitched for Tecumseh last Tuesday in the first of the series against Mt. Clemens, allowing the visitors but two hits. Their only score came in the 7th, when Eberts hit over Somerlott, stole second and scored on two wild throws. Slear followed Railing's two bagger in the third with a home run, which won the game.

Score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Mt. Cle'ns	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	1	2	2

Runs, Eberts 1, Slear, Railing 2; two-base hits, Merkle, Railing; home run, Slear; sacrifice hit, Preston; stolen bases, Somerlott, Hillinger, Railing; bases on balls, by Supplee 2, by Railing 2; first on errors, Tecumseh 2; left on bases, Mt. Clemens 3, Tecumseh 5; struck out, Supplee 6, Railing 7; double play, Darringer to Thomas to Wenger; passed ball, Mitchell; time 1:30; umpire, Corletter; attendance 250.

Teal outpitched Felrath Wednesday and Tecumseh won by a score of 5 to 4. The storm spoiled the attendance. Merkle featured with a home run.

Score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Mt Clm'ns	0	0	0	1	0	3	0	0	0	4	6	3

Runs, Derringer, Thomas 2, Dillon, Somerlott, Slear, Hillinger, Wagner, Merkle; two base hits, Dillon, Derringer Mitchell; home run, Merkle; sacrifice hit, Merkle; stolen base, Wagner; first base on errors, Mt. Clemens 2; left on bases, Mt. Clemens 4, Tecumseh 3; struck out, by Felrath 1, by Teal 3; time, 1:35; umpire, Corlette; attendance 150.

Yesterday's base ball was a great pitchers battle, Gough having a little the better of the contest. Wagner featured with a double play, unassisted, retiring the base runner, who would have scored had the ball passed Wagner. Mt. Clemens was dangerous several times. The game was called in the first half of the 10th on account of darkness, neither side having scored.

Score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Mt. Clm'ns	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0

Election Notice.

Notice is hereby given that a special village election will be held at the council building, in the village of Tecumseh, on the 23rd day of September, A. D. 1907, the polls being open at 7 o'clock in the morning of that day, or as soon thereafter as may be and kept open until 5 in the afternoon, for the purpose of determining whether a loan of $39,000 on the faith and credit of said village, for the purpose of constructing a sanitary sewer system therein shall be authorized, in accordance with a resolution adopted by the Common Council of said village, at an adjourned meeting held on the 4th day of September A. D. 1907 of which the following is a true copy.

Resolved, That the proposition to raise the sum of Twenty-nine Thousand dollars by a loan on the faith and credit of this village, for the purpose of constructing a sanitary sewer system in said village, according to the plans and specifications prepared by Riggs & Sherman and now on file in the office of the clerk of this village, be and the same hereby is submitted to the vote of the electors of this village at a special village election, now and hereby called for that purpose, to be held at the Council Building in said village on the 23rd day of September, A. D. 1907 at which election the votes shall be by ballot the contents of which shall be as follows, viz:

The ballot for those voting to authorize said loan to read as follows:—

"[ ] Shall a village loan of Twenty-nine Thousand dollars for sewer purposes be authorized; Yes"

The ballot for those voting not to authorize said loan shall read as follows:—

"[ ] Shall a village loan of Twenty-nine thousand dollars for sewer purposes be authorized; No."

That said special village election be conducted in every respect, in the manner provided by law for special village elections, and that the village clerk is hereby directed to give notice of said election by having a copy of this resolution published in each the Tecumseh HERALD and the Tecumseh News, at least twice before said election and by posting notices of said election containing copies of this resolution in six of the most public places in this village at least two weeks before the date of said election.

Date:—Village of Tecumseh, Michigan September 4, A. D., 1907.

Mrs. Cecilia House.

Mrs. C. E. House died yesterday morning at 10 o'clock at her home in Clinton, aged 73 years. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the house. Burial in that village. Rev. J. H. Ashby will take charge of the services. Mrs. Jas. Clark of Tecumseh, is a daughter.

John Wilson.

The above, who had bound many friends to himself "with hoops of steel" was born July 11, 1850 in Raisin township, Lenawee county, Mich., where he had spent his whole life time. On the 4th of July, 1867, he was united in marriage to Miss Elizabeth Harrison. Two children were born to them. One of these having passed away, he leaves to mourn his loss a wife and one daughter, Mrs. Amos Sherriff, of Gasport, N. Y. together with three brothers, of whom two are also residents of Raisin township.

He was a man who always saw the bright and sunny side, and will be greatly missed. A year's illness effected the dissolving of the earthly tabernacle from which the spirit took its flight Sept. 2, '07. On Wednesday of this week the funeral services were held at the family residence in Raisin, Rev. J. A. DeSpelder officiating. Burial in the Ridgeway cemetery.

"I count it true whate'er befall,
I feel it when I sorrow most,
'Tis better to have loved and lost
Than never to have loved at all."

Health in the Canal Zone.

The high wages paid make it a mighty temptation to young artisans to join the force of skilled workmen needed to construct the Panama canal. Many are restrained by the fear of fevers and malaria. It is the knowing ones, those who have used Electric Bitters, who go with no fear, knowing they are safe from malarious influence with the bitters on hand. Cures blood poison too, biliousness, stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son. 50c.

WHY?

The International Manure Spreader is the most satisfactory all around Spreader sold.

1. It is made, sold and looked after, after it is sold, by the International Harvester Co.

2. It has practically no gearing compared with other spreaders.

3. It has one lever only, that does the same work that other machines require six for.

4. It has a self-feed vibrating rake which pulverizes and levels the load.

5. It has more than double the feed changes of any other machine.

We have several endless and Apron Return Spreaders set all the time. Please call and talk it over.

What the Sewer Will Cost You

Per Annum for Each $100 of Your Assessment.

The 1st Ten Years,	- -	10 Cents
The 2nd Ten Years,	- -	15½ Cents
The 3rd Ten Years,	- -	16½ Cents

An average of only 14 cents per annum.

The total assessed valuation of the village is $1,150,000.00, and as there are 721 tax-payers in the village, the average assessment is but $2,000.00, entailing an average payment for the sewer, by each tax-payer of only $2.80 per annum, or an average for each person in our village of only 80 cents.

In view of these FACTS, can any reasonable person contend that Tecumseh can afford to exist without a sanitary sewer?

INSTANTLY KILLED

Norris Goodrich of Dundee, and JOHN LOWRY

Son of Wm. Lowry of this place. Both men were brakemen on the D. T. & I.

This community was shocked last evening to learn of the sudden and tragic deaths at Dundee of John Lowry, son of Wm. Lowry, of this village and Norris Goodrich now of Dundee, but formerly of this place. Both men were braking on the D. T. & I. being members of the freight crew, due at Dundee at 4 o'clock. It was discovered while at Dundee that one of the cars was damaged and while these two men were repairing the damage, working between two cars, the remainder of the crew were doing some switching. Three cars loaded with coal were shunted onto the siding, where Goodrich and Lowry were working, catching them and crushing their lives out.

The remains of John Lowry were brought to Tecumseh this morning and taken to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Lowry.

He was born in Tecumseh 17 years ago and has always made this place his home. Besides his parents he leaves two brothers, Will and Kenneth and three sisters, Minnie, Grace and Luella, who are nearly frantic with grief. They have the sympathy of the entire community in their hour of bereavement.

The funeral will be held at the home Sunday afternoon at 2:30, Rev. Dunning will have charge. Interment at Brookside.

Norris Goodrich was 30 years of age and before working for the D. T. & I. was employed by Abner Wilson. He was married to Miss Carrie Emerson of this place about 8 years ago. They have two children. Mr. Goodrich had been living with his mother near Rea and the remains were taken there today. Arrangements for the funeral have not been learned.

Fall and Winter Woolens.

Without a doubt the finest line we have ever shown. Newest colorings, latest designs, patterns that dazzle the eye and make every one that sees them say, "lay this one out for me." We have never seen costumers grab them so fast before. The worst trouble they have is to know which one to take, they are all so nice, not a poor one in the lot. Get the fever, come in and look at them and you will surely buy. Glad to show them.

A humane appeal.

A humane citizen of Richmond, Ind., U. E. Williams of 107 Main St., says:—"I appeal to all persons with weak lungs to use Dr. King's New Discovery, the only remedy that has helped me and fully comes up to its recommendation." It saves more lives than all other throat and lung remedies put together. Used as a cough and cold cure the world over. Cures asthma, bronchitis, croup, grippe, hoarseness and phthisic, stops hemorrhages of the lungs and builds them up. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

"Joshua Simpkins."

The sensational rural comedy drama, "Joshua Simpkins" will be produced at the New Bradley opera house Tuesday, Sept. 10, with David B. Kennedy in the title part. The play contains an interesting and intelligible plot, but it is not allowed to interfere with the fun which is said to be in abundance. During the run of the play some startling scenes and situations are seen, the principal of which is said to be the saw mill in the third act shown in complete operation, cutting up real timber. The saw used is the genuine article, the same as usually seen in large country saw-mills. An excellent band and fine orchestra accompany this attraction. The band will parade at noon when some good music may be looked for, all dressed as farmers.

DON'T DIE AT 45.

Cure the indigestion which is so liable to lead to apoplexy.

Rush of business, eating to fast and too much, excesses of any kind, soon result in indigestion. Then when the digestive organs cannot care for the food properly the coats of the blood vessels in the brain get little nourishment, become brittle and finally yield to the fierce blood pressure. One is then said to have a "shock," to be paralyzed, or to die from apoplexy.

People suffering with headache, giddiness, palpitation, sleeplessness, bad taste in the mouth, drowsiness, coated tongue, distress after eating, specks before the eyes and any other of the many distressing results of a weakened stomach, should profit by the discovery of Mi-o-na stomach tablets.

In recent years the greatest advance in medicine has been in the study of diseases of digestion and nutrition and no other prescription has proven itself of as much value as Mi-o-na. It is relied upon as a certainty today in relieving the worst troubles of digestion and assimilation and making a complete cure.

The strongest proof that can be offered in substantiation of the claims that Mi-o-na will cure the worst forms of stomach trouble, cancer excepted, and give immediate relief in indigestion is the guarantee that C. A. Wright & Son gives with every 50 cent box of Mi-o-na to refund the money unless Mi-o-na cures. A guarantee like this must inspire confidence in Mi-o-na. C. A. Wright & Son take the whole risk and the remedy will not cost you a penny unless it cures.

FIRE

At Williamson Bros.' Grocery WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Resulted in a Great Loss.

The fire at Williamson Bros.' grocery Wednesday night resulted in almost a total loss of stock and a badly damaged store. The pipes of the gas plant leaked and after lighting up an explosion soon followed. The building was saved through the quick and prompt work of the firemen. The loss on the building and stock is estimated at $5,000.

Ida B. Rector.

Again the Angel of Death has come to one of our homes and the whole village, one family it seems in these times of sorrow, mourns with the bereaved mother and brother.

Early Friday morning, August 30, twenty four hours after a surgical operation, Ida B. Rector entered into rest. She had been frail for some years and subject to severe attacks of pain, but her courage and energy kept her cheerful and patient and unwilling to give up her work."

When told her only chance of recovery was in submitting to an operation, she was so brave, saying, "If I have one chance in a hundred, I ought to take it for mother's sake, she has had so much sorrow in her life." So the calmest of all about her she trusted herself to the skill of her physicians. She rallied and talked cheerfully the next day and all were hopeful, but the end came suddenly and the post-mortem revealed that no human skill could have saved her life.

Peacefully she fell asleep in Jesus and the sweet spirit freed from weariness and pain, has joined the loved ones gone before father, Eva, Minnie and heard her Lord's "well done." We need not think of her now as weak and and suffering, nor even in the grave where we laid the mortal, covered with beautiful flowers, but as busy and helpful in her new home, not the one she had planned for, but a more beautiful home, one of the "many mansions" in her Father's dwelling.

"Think of her faring on, as dear
In the love of there, as the love of here."
Surely such a life of quiet steadfast devotion to duty, faithful in every relation in life as daughter, sister, teacher, friend, though short, has not lived in vain.

"God's plans like lillies pure and white unfold.
We must not tear the close shut leaves apart;
Time will reveal the calyxes of gold.
And when through patient toil we reach the land
Where tired feet with sandals loosed may rest,
When we shall know and understand,
I think that we shall say: God knew the best."

CATARRH CAN BE CURED.

Kill the germs by breathing Hyomei Gives quick relief.

Many people who have suffered with catarrh for years naturally feel that the disease cannot be cured and become discouraged.

Their fail to get relief because they have not used the right remedy. Catarrh is an affection of the head, throat and lungs and cannot be cured by stomach dosing.

The only scientific and natural treatment for this disease is Hy-o-mei which is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler so that its healing medicated air reaches the most remote air cells, kills all catarrh germs and restores the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs to a healthy condition.

Hy-o-mei is the only cure for catarrh that has ever been sold with the understanding that it was to cost absolutely nothing unless it cured. C. A. Wright & Son sell Hy-o-mei in this way and are always ready to refund the money if it does not cure catarrh.

The healing and antiseptic balsams of Hy-o-mei perform their purpose to perfection and using this remedy a few times each day you can soon cure yourself of catarrhal troubles.

A complete Hy-o-mei outfit consisting of a bottle of Hy-o-mei and an inhaler costs but $1.

CONFIRMED PROOF.

Residents of Tecumseh can't doubt what has been twice proved.

In gratitude for relief from distressing kidney ills many have publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. Tecumseh people who testified years ago now say their cures were permanent. Such testimony proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills.

S. Erskine, living on Evans street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "For ten years, I was troubled with kidney complaint and pains in my back, being more severe after hard work or if I lifted anything. I was greatly annoyed at night by the too frequent action of the kidneys the secretions being highly colored and showed much sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills came to my notice and they did me a world of good for I felt stronger than I had for a long time. This was five years ago and I was so grateful that I gave a statement for publication. I think just as highly of Doan's Kidney Pills to-day as I did then and am glad of the opportunity to re-endorse them that others may try this remedy and receive the same good results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

MANY SEEK HONOR.

Five Candidates for Office of Commander-In-Chief.

FOUR CITIES AFTER 1908 GANP

Detroit May Get It Next Year If Washington Is Not Permanently Chosen—Twenty Thousand Veterans Expected to March in Grand Parade.

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Saratoga is crowded with G. A. R. veterans. Thousands have arrived in the past 24 hours, with the result that more visitors are in Saratoga than on any other date in its recent history.

Mingled with pre-election gossip there has been a rumor among the arrivals that an attempt would be made at the encampment to indorse President Roosevelt for a third term. Commander Brown declared that the rumor is utterly groundless. "The Grand Army of the Republic is not a political organization," he said, "and such work would be entirely beyond its jurisdiction."

Five candidates have arrived in the field for commander-in-chief. An active canvass is being made by all of these for the office. Among them are H. P. Coney of Topeka, Kas.; General John T. Wilder of Knoxville, Tenn., and Charles G. Burton of Nevada, Mo. The election will take place Friday morning. Five candidates alro are in the field for president of the Women's Relief Corps.

Four cities want the next encampment, provided the selection of Washington, D. C., is not made permanent. These are Omaha, Salt Lake City, Detroit and Atlantic City. It is probable that a western city will be chosen.

The first session of the encampment will be held tonight when Gov. Charles E. Hughes will welcome the veterans to New York state. Other speakers will include Commander-in-Chief Brown, James Tanner, former commander-in-chief, and Archbishop Ireland. This afternoon an excursion was given to the Saratoga battleground and during the day re-unions took place, among them the following: Twelfth Ohio battery, Berdan's sharpshooters, Union ex-prisoners of war, regular army veterans and the signal corps. At the evening meeting Mrs. Carrie Sparklin of St. Louis, Mo., the president of the Women's Relief Corps, will present to Grand Army of the Republic the silver jubilee offering which has been raised by the Women's Relief Corps this year.

For the parade Wednesday afternoon elaborate hospital arrangments have been made. Ambulances, automobiles and nurses will be stationed at short intervals along the line of march. Twenty thousand veterans are expected to march.

ONE DEAD; TWO HURT.

Serious Accidents at Automobile Races in Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Sept. 10.—One man is dead and two others are more or less seriously injured as a result of two accidents at a series of automobile races that were held at the Brunots Island track near this city Monday. The dead man is Rex Rienersten, 35 years old, president of the Auto Repair Co., of this city, who died of a fractured skull while being taken to the hospital. Walter Christy, 26 years old, of 518 West 18th street, New York city, who was one of the drivers in the Vanderbilt cup races at Mineola, L. I., fractured his right forearm and sustained scalp wounds and bruises of the body. It is also feared he has been internally injured.

Clarence Bastion, who was mechanician for Rienersten and was riding with him at the time, received injuries to the spine that are serious, besides bruises and cuts.

Reinersten was driving in a race called the 50-mile derby, and was on the thirteenth mile when at a turn one of the front tires came off and the machine turned over.

The wrecked car was left at the edge of the track, and after order had been restored, Walter Christy attempted to make a new track record for a mile in a new 140-horsepower car.

Christy's car hit the wreck of the Reinerstein car, while going at a terrible speed, and bounded fully 50 feet in the air. Christy was hurled like a catapult a long distance ahead of it. As he was thrown from the machine, the steering wheel caught him across the stomach, and it is from this it is feared he has sustained internal injuries.

A Reason.

"Please, pa," pleaded Bobby, "just one more."

"All right," said pa, closing his book.

"Well, say, pa," began Bobby, "who is going to bury the last man that dies?"

FEAR ANOTHER CLASH.

Chinese and Japs in Vancouver Buy Up Firearms.

CITY'S POLICE POWERLESS.

Anti-Asiatic Rioting Broke Out Saturday Night—Stores in Oriental Quarter Badly Damaged — Governments Notified and International Complications May Result.

Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 10.—There is renewed apprehension of further anti-Asiatic rioting here. Monday Japanese and Chinese crowded the local gun shops to buy firearms and ammunition. They declare they will defend their lives and property. In case the oriental quarter is again attacked, it is feared that there will be bloodshed, for the Japanese and Chinese are thoroughly aroused and are convinced that the police are powerless to protect them. Shortly before noon the police notified the gun stores to cease selling firearms to any one until such time as all possibility of further outbreaks had passed. Before the order was issued, however, hundreds of Chinese and Japanese had armed themselves.

All Chinese and Japanese domestic servants, of whom hundreds are employed in Vancouver, have stopped work and have been forced by the threats of their countrymen to act as part of the defensive guard. Orientals employed in the mills also have stopped work and have taken refuge in the quarter occupied by their countrymen, where they are preparing to assist in opposing any further attacks that may be made.

Special Policemen.

Two hundred special policemen were sworn in Monday and there is talk of calling out the militia. There is little doubt that this will be done in case the rioting is renewed. Feeling all over the city runs high, and another attack is likely to occur at any time.

So far there have been no fatalities, although several of those injured in Saturday night's riots are in a serious condition. Twenty-six rioters were arraigned in the police court Monday and were held for further examination.

The oriental quarter today shows the effect of the riots of Saturday night. Not a window in the 50 or more stores and other places of business conducted by Japanese and Chinese remains, and costly stocks of goods are badly damaged. It is said that arrangements are being made to demand heavy indemnities from the city, but it is reported that Mayor Bethune has said that not one cent of indemnity will be paid. The matter will finally be taken to the dominion government. The Japanese consul here and Baron Ishii, director of commerce and trade of the Japanese foreign office, who is in the city, have communicated the facts to the Japanese government in Tokio.

Ambassador Notified.

Baron Ishii also reported to have cabled a report of the riot to Ambassador Kaneko in London, with a request that he take the matter up with the British government. In his dispatches, Baron Ishii states that the police force has done its best to preserve order, but that it is unable to cope with the mobs. Telegrams also have been sent to Japanese consul-general Nosse at Montreal, who will lay the matter before Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the premier.

Four attacks by whites were made on the oriental quarter Saturday night and much damage was done. The Chinese merchants and others promptly fled, but the Japanese opposed the mob and fought valiently to protect their property. Anti-oriental orators on the street corners aroused the people and hundreds joined the rioters. A dozen Japanese who had just arrived, were attacked on the Canadian Pacific railway wharves and thrown into the water, but all were rescued. During the disturbance a number of Japanese were seriously injured and several white men were stabbed.

The police and the authorities are doing everything in their power to prevent any further outbreak, but the situation is considered critical and a further outbreak may occur at any moment.

LAUNCH CAUGHT FIRE.

Four Young People Leap Into Water and Drown.

IT HAPPENS AT SAGINAW.

Other Occupants of Boat Who Reach Shore Tell Thrilling Story of Accident—Men Dragging for Bodies Watched by Hundreds of People.

Saginaw, Mich., Sept. 10.—August Held, Roland Kemp, Blanch Potoski and Anna Farmer, ages between 20 and 25, were drowned in Saginaw river about 9 o'clock last night, when flames from an exploding gasoline can set fire to a launch, causing them to jump over board. The victims are all sons and daughters of well-known Saginaw citizens.

The accident occurred near the Pere Marquette bridge. There were others than those drowned in the boat and they tell a thrilling story of the accident, of their companions' frantic efforts for life and of their own miraculous escape. The two dead girls were the only women in the party. It is thought the dead may have been badly burned before they jumped.

The launch, a 20-footer, belonged to August Held, one of the young men drowned. He had invited several of his friends for a ride, and before starting had set a can containing several gallons of gasoline in the boat.

One of the party who reached shore says that one of the launch's lights was placed near the gasoline and in some manner set fire to probably escaping vapor. He says they tried to smother the flames with sofa pillows, but it was but a few minutes before the boat was a skeleton and drifted ashore, where it sank. The force of the explosion was so great that the boat's engine was blown loose from the oak keel and into the river.

Several hundred people are gathered at the river bank and are watching the dragging operations.

ROW CLOSES HOME.

Mother White Faction Drives Juvenile Retreat to the Wall.

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 10.—Driven to it by factional troubles in the Adventist church, the management of the Haskell Home for Orphans will close the big institution Oct. 1.

The home has existed on Dr. John H. Kellogg's plans. He has brought scores of children from the slums of American, Cuban and Porto Rican cities, to the home, where their lives have been completely changed. Some, men grown, are now medical missionaries and all have turned out well. But the support of the home has been from the church, and now, heeding the demands of denominational papers opposed to anything in which Dr. Kellogg figures, this support has been withdrawn. The children are being given over to private families, and the place will soon be vacated. Chances are that it will be eventually reopened, as its achievements have become world-wide in their fame. But the home can't run without money, even though the teachers (called "mothers") work for practically no remuneration.

Painter Fell to His Death.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 10.—While the street in front of the Star Clothing Co.'s building was thronged with pedestrians early Monday morning, a shout and an upward look from a man in the crowd turned the eyes of scores of persons toward the body of a man which was falling apparently from the top of the building. The unfortunate struck the stone sidewalk, just missing a pedestrian, and was instantly killed. The victim was Dick Richards, a painter. He had just reached his scaffolding at the third floor of the building when he tripped and fell. He was one of the best known laboring men in the city, having been marshal of the Labor day parade.

Found Wife Dead in Oat Bin.

Owosso, Mich., Sept. 10.—Alarmed at the absence of his wife, when he came home from work Monday noon, Henry Van Wormer, a teamster of Durand, went to the barn and found her dead in the oat bin. She had tied twine to a spike in the bin and wrapped the other end about her neck. Mrs. Van Wormer had been in ill-health for some time. One daughter, Mrs. Kate Fuller, survives.

Stabbed Convict, is Dead.

Jackson, Mich., Sept. 10.—Charles Douglas, the Kent county man in prison here for larceny, and who was stabbed seven times in a fight with John Van Vleet, a Washtenaw county representative in the prison, is dead from his wounds, and the coroner is investigating. The row and the stabbing were a dense secret until it was seen that Douglas would die.

SPECIAL FLAG DAY.

Spanish War Veterans Desire That December 1, Next, Be Observed.

Sandusky, O., Sept. 10.—An effort is to be made by the members of the United Spanish-American War Veterans to have December 1, next, generally observed as a special flag day in the United States, in honor of the sailing of the fleet of American warships for the Pacific coast in command of Admiral Evans. A motion to this effect was presented by Past-Commander Charles R. Miller of Cleveland at the opening of the fourth annual encampment of the veterans at Cedar Point Monday. The motion was adopted with cheers and a waving of flags.

A message was sent to the Grand Army of the Republic, now in session at Saratoga, N. Y., asking the veterans of the civil war to join in the appeal to the people of the United States to observe this important event.

"The object of a special flag day will be to show the world that patriotism still lives in the United States," Commander Miller explained, in putting the motion.

The report of Commander-in-Chief Hamilton Ward shows that the organization has a cash balance of $5,000, the largest balnce in its history. During the past six months 4,506 members have been added, making a grand total of over 50,000 members.

The address of welcome was delivered by J. A. Freed, commander of Ohio.

BRITT INJURES WRIST.

Loses Fight Against Gans in Fifth Round.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 10.—A left swing to the body, cleverly blocked by Joe Gans, cost Jimmy Britt any chance he might have had to win the lightweight championship of the world Monday, and brought to a close five rounds of fast fighting before 14,000 persons at the Recreation park.

The deciding blow was caught by Gans on the elbow in the middle of the fourth round. It broke Britt's wrist; and, though Britt went on again in the fifth round, he was helpless in both offense and defense. It was not until this round that he informed his seconds of the mishap.

"What's the use of my going on? I can't fight. I am helpless," Britt said to Tip Kreling. Captain of Police Gleason was informed at the ringside, and he stopped the fight. Referee Welch gave the decision to Gans. Three doctors, after an examination, announced that the injury was a fracture and dislocation of the lower end of the ulna. Whether it was a genuine fracture or not, Britt showed such intense suffering while the doctors were manipulating his wrist, that the tears rolled down his cheeks.

The fight while it lasted was a slugging match, but it was evident to every trained observer that Britt had no chance to win from the Negro.

Deafness cannot be cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's catarrh cure. Send for circulars free.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

A young widow has a peculiar way of seeing a man without looking at him.

There are a great many people who have slight attacks of indigestion and dyspepsia nearly all the time. Their food may satisfy the appetite but it fails to nourish the body simply because the stomach is not in fit condition to do the work it is supposed to do. It can't digest the food you eat. The stomach should be given help. You ought to take something that will do the work your stomach can't do. Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia, a combination of natural digestants and vegetable acids, digests the food itself and gives strength and health to the stomach. Pleasant to take. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

A man doesn't have to wear good clothes if he can afford not to.

One of the worst features of kidney trouble is that it is an insidious disease and before the victim realizes his danger he may have a fatal malady. Take Foley's Kidney Cure as the first sign of trouble as it corrects irregularities and prevents Bright's disease and diabetes. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Some men stand just inside the door ready to grasp opportunity by the back of the neck when it knocks.

Occasional headache, belching, bad taste in the mouth, lack of appetite and slight nervousness are symptoms of indigestion which, when allowed to go uncared for, will develop into a case of dyspepsia that will take a long time to get rid of. Don't neglect your stomach. At the first indication of trouble take something that will help it along in its work of digesting the food you eat. Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia will do this. Kodol will make your food do you good and will enable you to enjoy what you eat. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

The new pure food and drug law.

We are now pleased to announce that Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not effected by the national pure food and drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs, and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

A real good man doesn't have to use words to tell it.

The way to get rid of a cold, whether it be a "bad cold" or just a little one, is to get it out of your system through the bowels. Nearly all cough cures, especially those that contain opiates, are constipating. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup contains no opiates and acts gently on the bowels. Pleasant to take. Sold by B. J. The Stanway Cameo Mystery.

By ARTHUR MORRISON.

Published by Arrangement With Harper & Brothers.

It is now a fair number of years back since the loss of the famous Stanway cameo made its sensation, and the only person who had the least interest in keeping the real facts of the case secret has now been dead for some time, leaving neither relatives nor other representatives. Therefore no harm will be done in making the inner history of the case public. On the contrary, it will afford an opportunity of vindicating the professional reputation of Hewitt, who is supposed to have completely failed to make anything of the mystery surrounding the case.

The cameo, as may be remembered from the many descriptions published at the time, was said to be absolutely the finest extant. It was a sardonyx of three strata—one of those rare sardonyx cameos in which it has been possible for the artist to avail himself of three different colors of superimposed stone—the lowest for the ground and the two others for the middle and high relief of the design. In size it was, for a cameo, immense, measuring seven and a half inches by nearly six. In subject it was similar to the renowned Gonzaga cameo—now the property of the czar of Russia—a male and a female head with imperial insignia, but in this case supposed to represent Tiberius Claudius and Messalina. Experts considered it probably to be the work of Athenion, a famous gem cutter of the first Christian century.

The Stanway cameo had been discovered in an obscure Italian village by one of those traveling agents who scour all Europe for valuable antiquities and objects of art. This man had hurried immediately to London with his prize and sold it to Mr. Claridge of St. James street, eminent as a dealer in such objects. Mr. Claridge, recognizing the importance and value of the article, lost no opportunity in making its existence known, and very soon the Claudius cameo, as it was first usually called, was as famous as any in the world. Many experts in ancient art examined it, and several large bids were made for its purchase. In the end it was bought by the Marquis of Stanway for £5,000 for the purpose of presentation to the British museum. The marquis kept the cameo at his town house for a few days, showing it to his friends, and then returned it to Mr. Claridge to be finally and carefully cleaned before passing into the national collection. Two nights after, Mr. Claridge's premises were broken into and the cameo stolen.

Such, in outline, was the generally known history of the Stanway cameo. The circumstances of the burglary in detail were these: Mr. Claridge had himself been the last to leave the premises at about 8 in the evening, at dusk, and had locked the small side door as usual. His assistant, Mr. Cutler, had left an hour and a half earlier. When Mr. Claridge left everything was in order, and the policeman on fixed point duty just opposite, who bade Mr. Claridge good evening as he left, saw nothing suspicious during the rest of his term of duty nor did his successors throughout the night.

In the morning, however, Mr. Cutler, the assistant, who arrived first, soon after 9 o'clock, at once perceived that something unlooked for had happened. The door, of which he had a key, was still fastened and had not been touched, but in the room behind the shop Mr. Claridge's private desk had been broken open and the contents turned out in confusion. The door leading on to the staircase had also been forced. Proceeding up the stairs, Mr. Cutler found another door open, leading from the top landing to a small room. This door had been opened by the simple expedient of unscrewing and taking off the lock, which had been on the inside. In the ceiling of this room was a trapdoor, and this was six or eight inches open, the edge resting on the half wrenched off bolt, which had been torn away when the trap was levered open from the outside.

Plainly, then, this was the path of the thief or thieves. Entrance had been made through the trapdoor, two more doors had been opened, and then the desk had been ransacked. Mr. Cutler afterward explained that at this time he had no precise idea what had been stolen and did not know where the cameo had been left on the previous evening. Mr. Claridge had himself undertaken the cleaning and had been engaged on it, the assistant said, when he left.

There was no doubt, however, after Mr. Claridge's arrival at 10 o'clock. The cameo was gone. Mr. Claridge, utterly confounded at his loss, explained incoherently and with curses on his own carelessness that he had locked the precious article in his desk on relinquishing work on it the previous evening.

The police were sent for at once, of course, and every investigation made. Mr. Claridge offering a reward of £500 for the recovery of the cameo. By noon all the world was aware of the extraordinary theft of the Stanway cameo.

It was in the afternoon of this day that Lord Stanway called on Martin Hewitt. The marquis was well known as a member of learned societies and a great patron of art.

"Probably you already guess my business with you, Mr. Hewitt. You have seen the early evening papers? Just so. Then I needn't tell you again what you already know. My cameo is gone, and I badly want it back. Of course the police are hard at work at Claridge's, but I'm not quite satisfied. The police, naturally and properly enough from their point of view, look first to find the criminal, regarding the recovery of the property almost as a secondary consideration. Of course I want the thief caught if possible and properly punished, but still more I want the cameo."

"Certainly it is a considerable loss. Five thousand pounds"—

"Ah, but don't misunderstand me! It isn't the monetary value of the thing that I regret. As a matter of fact, I am indemnified for that already. Claridge has behaved most honorably—more than honorably. Indeed, the first intimation I had of the loss was a check from him for £5,000, with a letter assuring me that the restoration to me of the amount I had paid was the least he could do to repair the result of what he called his unpardonable carelessness."

"Is anybody suspected?" asked Hewitt.

"Claridge won't admit that he suspects any one, though he believes that whoever it was must have watched him yesterday evening through the back window of his room and must have seen him put the cameo away in his desk, because the thief would seem to have gone straight to the place. But I half fancy that in his inner mind he is inclined to suspect one of two people. You see, a robbery of this sort is different from others. That cameo would never be stolen, I imagine, with the view of its being sold. It is much too famous a thing. A man might as well walk about offering to sell the Tower of London. So that it really seems more likely that it has been taken by somebody who wishes to keep it for mere love of the thing—a collector, in fact, unless, indeed, an ordinary vulgar burglar has taken it without knowing its value."

"That isn't likely," Hewitt replied. "An ordinary burglar, ignorant of its value, wouldn't have gone straight to the cameo and have taken it in preference to many other things of more apparent worth, which must be lying near in such a place as Claridge's."

"True. I suppose he wouldn't. Although the police seem to think that the breaking in is clearly the work of a regular criminal—from the jimmy marks, you know, and so on."

"Well, but what of the two people you think Mr. Claridge suspects?"

"Of course I can't say that he does suspect them. I only fancied from his tone that it might be possible. He himself insists that he can't in justice suspect anybody. One of these men is Hahn, the traveling agent who sold him the cameo. This man's character does not appear to be absolutely irreproachable. No dealer trusts him very far. Of course Claridge doesn't say what he paid him for the cameo. These dealers are very reticent about their profits, which I believe are as often something like 500 per cent as not. But it seems Hahn bargained to have something extra, depending on the amount Claridge could sell the carving for. According to the appointment, he should have turned up this morning, but he hasn't been seen, and nobody seems to know exactly where he is."

"Yes. And the other person?"

"Well, I scarcely like mentioning Mr. Woollett, because he is certainly a gentleman, and I believe in the ordinary way quite incapable of anything in the least degree dishonorable, although, of course, they say a collector has no conscience in the matter of his own particular hobby. He lives in chambers in the next turning past Claridge's premises—can, in fact, look into Claridge's back window if he likes. He examined the cameo several times before I bought it and made several high offers—appeared, in fact, very anxious indeed to get it."

"Now, let me see. Mr. Woollett's rooms, you say, are near Mr. Claridge's place of business? Is there any means of communication between the roofs?"

"Yes, I am told that it is perfectly possible to get from one place to the other by walking along the leads."

"Very good. In regard to Mr. Claridge's assistant now. Do you know anything of him?"

"Only that he has always seemed a very civil and decent sort of man. Honest, I should say, or Claridge wouldn't have kept him so many years. There are a good many valuable things about at Claridge's. Besides, the man has keys of the place himself, and, even if he were a thief, he wouldn't need to go breaking in through the roof."

"So that," said Hewitt, "we have, directly connected with this cameo, besides yourself, these people: Mr. Claridge, the dealer; Mr. Cutler, the assistant in Mr. Claridge's business; Hahn, who sold the article to Claridge, and Mr. Woollett, who made bids for it. These are all?"

"All that I know of. Other gentlemen made bids, I believe, but I don't know them."

There was unwonted excitement at Mr. Claridge's place when Hewitt and his client arrived. Mr. Claridge, a brisk, stout, little old man, was talking earnestly to a burly police inspector in uniform. He came forward eagerly.

"The leather case has been found, I am pleased to be able to tell you, Lord Stanway, since you left."

"Empty, of course?"

"Unfortunately, yes. It had evidently been thrown away by the thief behind a chimney stack a roof or two away, where the police have found it. But it is a clew, of course."

"Ah, then this gentleman will give me his opinion of it," Lord Stanway said, turning to Hewitt. "This, Mr. Claridge, is Mr. Martin Hewitt, who has been kind enough to come with me here at a moment's notice."

Mr. Claridge bowed and beamed on Hewitt through his spectacles. "I'm very glad Mr. Hewitt has come," he said.

Hewitt bowed in his turn and then asked: "Can I see the broken desk?"

Mr. Claridge led the way into the room behind the shop. The desk was really a sort of work table, with a lifting top and a lock. The top had been forced roughly open by some instrument which had been pushed in below it and used as a lever, so that the catch of the lock was torn away. Hewitt examined the damaged parts and the marks of the lever and then looked out at the back window.

"There are several windows about here," he remarked, "from which it might be possible to see into this room. Do you know any of the people who live behind them?"

"Two or three I know," Mr. Claridge answered, "but there are two windows—the pair almost immediately before us—belonging to a room or office which is to let. Any stranger might get in there and watch."

"Do the roofs above any of those windows communicate in any way with yours?"

"None of those directly opposite. Those at the left do. You may walk all the way along the leads."

"And whose windows are they?"

Mr. Claridge hesitated. "Well," he said, "they're Mr. Woollett's, an excellent customer of mine, but he's a gentleman, and—well, I really think it's absurd to suspect him."

"Have any of your neighbors been burgled during the night?" asked Hewitt.

"No," Mr. Claridge replied; "there has been nothing of that sort."

Hewitt examined the broken door and then made his way up the stairs with the others. The unscrewed lock of the door of the top back room required little examination. In the room below the trapdoor was a dusty table on which stood a chair, and at the other side of the table sat Detective Inspector Plummer, whom Hewitt knew very well and who bade him "good day" and then went on with his docket.

"This chair and table were found as they are now, I take it?" Hewitt asked.

"Yes," said Mr. Claridge; "the thieves, I should think, dropped through the trapdoor, after breaking it open, and had to place this chair where it is to be able to climb back."

Hewitt scrambled up through the trapway and examined it from the top. The door was hung on long external barn door hinges and had been forced open in a similar manner to that practiced on the desk. A jimmy had been pushed between the frame and the door near the bolt, and the door had been pried open, the bolt being torn away from the screws in the operation.

Presently Inspector Plummer, having finished his docket, climbed up to the roof after Hewitt, and the two together went to the spot, close under a chimney stack on the next roof but one, where the case had been found. Plummer produced the case, which he had in his coattail pocket.

"I don't see anything particular about it, do you?" he said. "It shows us the way they went, though, being found just here."

"Well, yes," Hewitt said; "if we kept on in this direction we should be going toward Mr. Woollett's house and his trapdoor, shouldn't we?"

The inspector pursed his lips, smiled and shrugged his shoulders. "Of course we haven't waited till now to find that out," he said.

"No, of course. And, as you say, I don't think there is much to be learned from this leather case. It is almost new, and there isn't a mark on it."

"Well," said Plummer as he returned the case to his pocket, "what's your opinion?"

"It's rather an awkward case."

"Yes, it is. Between ourselves—I don't mind telling you—I'm having a sharp lookout kept over there"—Plummer jerked his head in the direction of Mr. Woollett's chambers. "Of course some of the work, taking off the lock and so on, looks rather like a regular burglar, but it's just possible that any one badly wanting the cameo would hire a man who was up to the work."

"Yes, it's possible."

"Do you know anything of Hahn, the agent?" Plummer asked a moment later.

"No, I don't. Have you found him yet?"

"I haven't yet, but I'm after him. I've found he was at Charing Cross a day or two ago booking a ticket for the continent. That and his failing to turn up today seem to make it worth while not to miss him if we can help it. He isn't the sort of man that lets a chance of drawing a bit of money go for nothing."

Suppose that a prior patent is infringed and no way is seen to avoid infringement by changing the product or the process or the machine so as not to embody the principle of a patented invention. The simplest way, of course, would be to buy the patent. If the patent cannot be bought, but a fraction of the patent can be obtained, no matter how small a fraction—say one-tenth of the entire right in the patent—the owner of the one-tenth would be just as well off as the owner of the nine-tenths. The courts have held that a patent is not like the capital stock of a corporation and that the owner of more than one-half of the title to the patent has no claim upon the owner of less than one-half. Each is at liberty to do with his portion what he pleases and cannot be made to account to the other. The owner of one-tenth may make ten times as much out of the patent as the owner of nine-tenths, because of his greater business ability or greater capital or for other similar reasons, and it would not be equitable to make him turn over nine-tenths of his profits to the other owner.—Edwin J. Prindle in Engineering Magazine.

His Great Nose.

There was a certain exciseman in Shrewsbury who was very trim and neat in his attire, but who had a bottle nose of more than usual size. As he passed through the school lane the boys used to call him "Nosey," and this made him so angry that he complained to Dr. Butler, who sympathized and sent for the head boy, to whom he gave strict injunctions that the boys should not say "Nosey" any more. Next day, however, the exciseman reappeared, even more angry than before. It seems that not a boy had said "Nosey," but that as soon as he was seen coming the boys ranged themselves in two lines, through which he must pass, and all fixed their eyes intently upon his nose. Again Dr. Butler summoned the head boy and spoke more sharply. "You have no business," said he, "to annoy a man who is passing through the school on his lawful occupation. Don't look at him." But again the exciseman returned to Dr. Butler, furious with indignation, for this time, as soon as he was seen, every boy had covered his face with his hand until he had gone by.—"Life and Letters of Dr. Samuel Butler."

Paris' Secondhand Market.

There is a curious old market near Paris in which everything is sold at second hand. Working girls can fit themselves out there from head to foot. As a writer says, "Mimi can sell her old felt hat and buy a straw one, exchange her old dress for a new one and, if she likes, buy a steak and a salad for her dinner, a paper bag of fried potatoes, sweets and some flowers for her window. Democracy is king here, and no more attention is paid to the millionaire who is looking for something marvelous which he may pick up cheap than to the man with the wooden leg who wants a new left boot in exchange for a dozen sardine tins, five gloves and a stocking."

The Mineral Jade.

Most people have probably seen jade ornaments without having a very clear idea of the material of which such things are composed. Jade is an exceedingly tough but beautiful mineral, much of which is found in China. It is of five colors, the most highly prized jade being the white, yellow and green varieties. The rarest of all is red jade, but this is so scarce that it has no place in market valuations. The mineral is frequently found in the beds of streams, and in searching for it Mohammedans are generally employed, as it is believed that people of this faith are sensitive to its presence, and, like the dowsers or water finders, are affected with shuddering fits when passing over a place where jade is to be found.

Animals Clever With Their Feet.

Goats are the most sure footed of our native animals. They can walk upright where the average human being would not crawl. Horses are the daintiest treaders, however, though they cannot climb. No horse will step on a man if it can possibly help it. It is a standing rule in cavalry regiments that if a trooper is dismounted he must remain perfectly still, when the whole column passes over him without injuring him. Camels are careless, on the other hand, and the man who came out unharmed from under the feet of a camel corps was not born to be run over by any beast or vehicle.

Aerated Water.

Artificially aerated drinking waters were the invention of the chemist Joseph Priestley, who in 1772 published his "Directions For Impregnating Water With Fixed Air In Order to Communicate to It the Peculiar Spirit and Virtues of Pyrmont Water and Other Mineral Waters of a Similar Nature." Some one has calculated the consumption of aerated waters in Great Britain and Ireland to amount to 200,000,000 gallons a year.—London Standard.

Order.

Order is the sanity of the mind, the health of the body, the peace of the city, the security of the state. As the beams to a house, as the bones to the microcosm of man, so is order to all things.

An Itching One.

Miss Country Maid—I understand that in some hotels one often sees palms about the dining rooms. What kind of palm is the most prominent? Mr. Dineout—The waiter's.

Lord Kelvin's Bravery.

Lord Kelvin once performed a daring experiment before a class of students. In the course of his lecture he said that while a voltage of 3,000 or so would be fatal to a man a voltage of some 300,000 would be harmless. He was going to give a practical illustration on himself, but the students cried out, "Try it on a dog!" Lord Kelvin cast a look of reproach at his class. "Didn't I figure it out myself?" he said quietly, as he walked to the apparatus and safely turned the tremendous voltage into himself.

Chinese Cologne.

The Chinese ladies have an odd kind of cologne—that is to say, they constantly have upon their person a small bag of sweet smelling gum similar to that which was used by the ancient Egyptian women. Numerous costly jars recently unearthed at Pyramida contain the cosmetics and perfumes which were used by Egyptian princesses, all of which bear a resemblance to those in vogue today among Chinese ladies of the highest rank.

Postmasters In Convention.

Saginaw, Mich., Sept. 6.—The Michigan Postmasters' association opened its annual convention here Thursday with 150 delegates in attendance. Congressman Fordney welcomed the delegates to the city and in the course of his speech commended President Roosevelt for encouraging the merit system of appointments. Incidentally he gave a few reasons why he is opposed to the ship subsidy.

The principal speaker Thursday was Hon. W. J. Vickey, chief postoffice inspector, of Washington. Today Homer Warren of Detroit will sing "The Sword of Bunker Hill," and Congressman Charles E. Townsend and Hon. Bayard Wyman, superintendent of postoffice appointments, will speak. M. M. Brady of Saginaw is the retiring president, and W. N. Lister of Ypsilanti, now vice-president, will succeed him.

John Lowry.

The funeral of John Lowry was held from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lowry, at 2:30 Sunday afternoon, where a large number of friends and relatives gathered. Rev. J. Wirt Dunning conducted the services. The bearers were Percy Slayton, Seymour Boyd, Wade Frost, Earl Brown, Guy Nemire and Kirby Wilson, all young friends of the deceased. The flowers were beautiful, the casket being completely hidden from view with them.

Among those from away who attended were, Mr. and Mrs. John Stevens of VanWert, O., Jas. Kennedy, wife and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Will Kennedy and two daughters of Raisin, Marjorie McAdams of Clinton, Mr. and Mrs. Darius Cortis of Britton, Mrs. Eggers and two daughters, Misses Nora and Sophia Ritz, Miss Bessie Warner, Mr. and Mrs. DeEll, Mrs. Geo. VanAtta, Mrs. Elsie Jinks, Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Peter Flinn and two children, Will Hanley, Frank Bidwell and Harry Cockard of Napoleon. A special train over the D. T. & I. from Napoleon conveyed about 30 fellow workmen and friends.

WIGHTMAN'S ANSWER TO WOOD.

Tecumseh, Mich., Aug. 28, 1907.

EDITOR HERALD:—In your issue of the 27th I find an article headed, "A Thorough and Just Discussion of the Sewer Question." Not a living soul would have supposed Village Attorney Wood was discussing the sewer question if he had not put that heading upon it. I do not care to discuss the sewer question in the way Brother Wood goes at it. If you will refer to my letter in reply to Stacy and Mead, you will see that I there decline to discuss the question with the HERALD editor until he moved into and became a voter in the village and with Mead until he got upon the tax rolls of the village and I now decline to discuss the question with this excellent gentleman and scholar until he gets upon the roll, for he certainly did not appear there at 8 o'clock on the morning of August 28, 1907, therefore he can afford to be liberal with the other fellow's money if it don't cost him a cent. Get some fellow in the ring to talk to me who has some interest in it from a financial standpoint.

Now replying to his personal attack, I would like to say that many years ago the council established the precedent of paying to the village attorney a salary or retainer of $50 per year and I know of no record of the village that has changed it. That is the rate which I was paid, but I find in the Tecumseh News of March 8, 1906, the report of council proceedings, "The annual statement of the general fund was submitted as follows: Deputy Marshal $50, Street commissioner $540, Village attorney $68," then follows, "The following bills were referred to the finance committee, F. B. Wood, village attorney, $90. That looks like $158 instead of $50. I may be a little off in my arithmatic, figure it out Mr. Wood.

I find under date of April 2, 1906, of the clerks records moved and supported that the following appointments be made, E. C. Brown, marshall, John B. Smith, deputy marshall, F. B. Wood, village attorney." Ayes, Elliott, Smith, McIntyre, Heesen, Slater, Teachout, nays, none."

I also find that at the same time this scholarly gentleman was drawing his pension from the village, the council let a contract to one Will J. Ingersoll (a lawyer) to draft a set of ordinances. It does not look as if the council saw in this inflated scholar the necessary qualifications for the job?

If anybody should read this, will you look up the report of our school meeting and see the commendation this learned lawyer gave the school board for holding the apportionment that the law says shall be paid to teachers and for no other purpose, as a nucleus to a fund to build a new school house, and after you have read that, see if the law does not provide that only those who are upon the assessment roll shall vote at school meeting. Excuse the great length but it will not take five and one half columns as did Woods personal attack. We, and by we I include a majority of the voters, will vote no.

JAS. W. WIGHTMAN.

Mrs. John Stoughton Strong.

On Wednesday, Aug. 27, '07 occurred obsequies of rare interest, being on behalf of one who had been identified with Tecumseh's interests for 70 years. Delia Alden Baldwin, born at Strongsville, Cuyahoga county, O., Jan. 9, 1825 in the first frame house erected in that town, was the second child and the only daughter of Dr. Wm. and Delia Alden Baldwin. Her parents came to Tecumseh from Ohio on the 4th of July, 1836, and Delia came from Cherry Valley, N. Y., the next year in the care of her life long friend, the late Hon. Perley Bills.

She received a superior education for a young lady of those days, being for several years a student in what was at that time the most celebrated academy west of the Hudson in the historical town of Cherry Valley, N. Y., where she lived in the home of her cousin, Mrs. J. H. Olcott. She also spent one year with her aunt, Mrs. C. R. Deming of Ashland, O., when she attended the seminary in that town. The remainder of her school days was spent at the University in Tecumseh, under the instruction of Mr. Bills and B. L. Baxter. Miss Baldwin was a natural musician of rare ability.

In 1857, when only a child of 12 years she joined the Presbyterian choir in the old "Session house" then standing near the site of the first Presbyterian church, in the eastern part of our village. (Said "Session House" is still standing, in later years it became the property of the society of friends, and was moved to the south west part of town, being now the residence of Vincent Wood.) Among Miss Baldwin's early musical instructors in vocal and instrumental music was Mr. David Smith. From those early days she was connected with the Presbyterian choir and with brief intervals until the second Sabbath after the dedication of the present house of worship.

She united with the Presbyterian church under the pastorate of Rev. Mr. Jennings. She was married to Mr. John Stoughton Strong May 18, 1846, by Rev. E. Cheever in the old Baldwin homestead, corner Logan and Manmee streets. Mr. Henry Conkling of Tecumseh, and Mrs. Kate Pittman Tribon of Detroit, are the only persons now living who were present on that occasion. Fifty-four years of Mrs. Strong's married life were spent in Tecumseh. She died at Kalamazoo Aug 25 about 9 a. m., surviving her husband about 15 months. Appropriate services in honor of her memory were held at the family residence, the home of her only child, Mrs. B. F. Snyder, the officiating clergyman being Rev. J. A. DeSpelder of Tecumseh.

In character and disposition she resembled the woman in Proverbs (31:10) whose price was declared to be "far above rubies." How "the sadness of earth's little while is lost in the brightness of earth's little while is lost in the bright forever," and "He hath given his beloved sleep."

"So sweet her sleep, her slumber holds
Through all the dreary march of years."

You hear of germs in everything except whiskey and beer.

BASE BALL

Flint crossed bats with Tecumseh last Friday and Saturday, the first game going to Flint with a score of 7 and three, while Tecumseh took the second by a score of 4 and 3. Rain stopped Saturday's game after six innings had been played.

Errors and timely long hits, the farthest and most opportune ever seen on the Mona Lake diamond, won for the Tecumseh South Michigan leaguers against the Mona Lake aggregation at Muskegon Sunday afternoon. There was never any doubt as the outcome and class simply showed at the beginning. In the last few innings Doty, visitors twirler, eased up and allowed 6 hits. The hitting of Merkle was real classy. He got three two base drives and Eddie Preston knocked the ball over the back field fence for the longest ever seen here, the first time over the back fence, Ruthbun, the local twirler, used too much horse power at the outset and all the visitors had to do was to lay against the ball. Later he slowed up and was more effective.

Score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Muskegon	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	1	6	5

David W. Clemens.

David W. Clemens, Pueblo, Colo., died at his home in that city, Sept. 4.

Mr. Clemens was at one time a resident of this place. He leaves a wife, formerly Miss Milla Everhart, and two children, one son and one daughter, the youngest son having preceeded him to the other home. Friends sincerely sympathize with Mrs. Clemens and children in this bereavement. Interment Sunday, Sept. 8.

Election Notice.

Notice is hereby given that a special village election will be held at the council building, in the village of Tecumseh, on the 23rd day of September, A. D. 1907, the polls being open at 7 o'clock in the morning of that day, or as soon thereafter as may be and kept open until 5 in the afternoon, for the purpose of determining whether a loan of $29,000 on the faith and credit of said village, for the purpose of constructing a sanitary sewer system therein shall be authorized, in accordance with a resolution adopted by the Common Council of said village, at an adjourned meeting held on the 4th day of September A. D. 1907 of which the following is a true copy.

Resolved, That the proposition to raise the sum of Twenty-nine Thousand dollars by a loan on the faith and credit of this village, for the purpose of constructing a sanitary sewer system in said village, according to the plans and specifications prepared by Riggs & Sherman and now on file in the office of the clerk of this village, be and the same hereby is submitted to the vote of the electors of this village at a special village election, now and hereby called for that purpose, to be held at the Council Building in said village on the 23rd day of September, A. D. 1907 at which election the votes shall be by ballot the contents of which shall be as follows, viz:

The ballot for those voting to authorize said loan to read as follows:—

"☐ Shall a village loan of Twenty-nine Thousand dollars for sewer purposes be authorized; Yes."

The ballot for those voting not to authorize said loan shall read as follows:—

"☐ Shall a village loan of Twenty-nine thousand dollars for sewer purposes be authorized; No."

That said special village election be conducted in every respect, in the manner provided by law for special village elections, and that the village clerk is hereby directed to give notice of said election by having a copy of this resolution published in each the Tecumseh HERALD and the Tecumseh News, at least twice before said election and by posting notices of said election containing copies of this resolution in six of the most public places in this village at least two weeks before the date of said election.

Date:—Village of Tecumseh, Michigan September 4, A. D., 1907.

Health in the Canal Zone.

The high wages paid make it a mighty temptation to young artisans to join the force of skilled workmen needed to construct the Panama canal. Many are restrained by the fear of fevers and malaria. It is the knowing ones, those who have used Electric Bitters, who go with no fear, knowing they are safe from malarious influence with the bitters on hand. Cures blood poison too, billiousness, stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son. 50c.

It is extremely difficult to locate the origin of a long distance accusation.

Moore Reunion.

The 11th annual reunion of the descendants of John and Mary Moore, who lived in Lancaster county, Pa., and were married in 1802, convened at the comfortable home of Mr. and Mrs. George Moore, 338 Perry street, yesterday. The day was as in the past, a perfect one which was cause of thanksgiving to all the relatives and friends who, from early morn until nearly noon, were made welcome.

At noon a delicious dinner was served to 64 persons, who did ample justice. A collection was taken at this time to defray expenses.

After dinner the president called reports of last year's meeting, births, deaths and marriages, with letters of regrets from absent families. Recitations, songs and remarks were enjoyed.

The picture of a cradle which was made about the year 1774 for John Moore to be rocked in when he was born, was shown. In time the cradle came into possession of Isaac Moore of Christiana, Pa., son of John Moore. It cradled several of his children, also the babes of brothers. This cradle is still in perfect condition and is now the property of Isaac's son, Wm. B. Moore, of Pennsylvania.

There were so many new cousins to be put in their proper place, as more than 30 years had passed since they had met. Those from other states were Joseph S. Moore of Galena, Kan.; Blanch Moore and Wm. B. Moore of Christiana, Pa.; Ellsworth Riggs, whose parents reside in Alhambra, Cal.; Heaton Moore and wife, Somerset, Ky.; Joseph Wickersham and wife of Delaware; Mary Elma Kunkel, of Ohio.

Ionia was well represented by cousins who made all glad with their presence at this time. Adrian, Tecumseh, Assyria, Bellevue, Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti were well represented.

The most conspicuous one was the only aunt, Hannah H. R. Moore, mother of the Moore boys of Pontiac, whose life has been despaired of so many times in the last year.

The time and place for the next meeting will be August, 1908, at Garrison Moore's, Bellevue, Mich. This closed one of the best reunions, the guests feeling that each one grows better as the years roll by. A vote of thanks was extended to the host and hostess for their unceasing efforts to make this yearly gathering a success.—The Pontiac Press Gazette, Aug. 30.

Notice to the Public.

Notice is hereby given that on the sixteenth (16) day of September at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the office of the supervisor of the township of Tecumseh, which said office is at the law office of J. W. Wightman in the Bidwell block in the village of Tecumseh.

The said supervisor and the township clerk, having by resolution of the township board, in accordance with the vote of the electors of said township, been previously authorized, will open any and all proposals received and filed with Leon E. Rosacrans, township clerk, prior to said day and hour, for the purchase of five promissory notes as follows: One note for $3500, with interest at 5 per cent payable annually, due Jan. 15, 1908. One note for the sum of $2000, interest at 5 per cent, due Jan. 15, 1909. One note for the sum of $2500, interest at 5 per cent due Jan. 15, 1910, one note for the sum of $2500, interest at 5 per cent, due Jan 15, 1911, and one note for the sum of $3500, interest at 5 per cent, due Jan. 15, 1912.

Said notes will be issued to the party giving the best advantage or benefit to the township of Tecumseh. Said supervisor and said township clerk, reserve the right to reject any and all proposals that they deem not in accordance with the best interest of said township.

Dated at Tecumseh, Mich., this 31st day of Aug. A. D., 1907.

JOHN F. SCHREDER,
Supervisor.
LEON ROSACRANS,
Township Clerk.

WHY?

The International Manure Spreader is the most satisfactory all around Spreader sold.

1. It is made, sold and looked after, after it is sold, by the International Harvester Co.

2. It has practically no gearing compared with other spreaders.

3. It has one lever only, that does the same work that other machines require six for.

4. It has a self-feed vibrating rake which pulverizes and levels the load.

5. It has more than double the feed changes of any other machine.

We have several endless and Apron Return Spreaders set all the time. Please call and talk it over.

What the Sewer Will Cost You

Per Annum for Each $100 of Your Assessment.

The 1st Ten Years,	- -	10 Cents
The 2nd Ten Years,	- -	15½ Cents
The 3rd Ten Years,	- -	16½ Cents

An average of only 14 cents per annum.

The total assessed valuation of the village is $1,450,000.00, and as there are 721 tax-payers in the village, the average assessment is but $2,000.00, entailing an average payment for the sewer, by each tax-payer of only $2.80 per annum or an average for each person in our village of only 80 cents.

In view of these FACTS, can any reasonable person contend that Tecumseh can afford to exist without a sanitary sewer?

WANTED.

An opportunity to demonstrate to those interested in manure spreaders:

1. That the Great Western manure spreader is of lighter draught than any machine of the same capacity.

2. That it is made of better material, therefore stronger and more desirable than other machines.

3. That it has the widest range of feed of any machine.

4. That it has less gearing and stronger gearing than other machines.

5. That it is an up-to-date practical machine for practical farmers at a reasonable price.

Fall and Winter Woolens.

Without a doubt the finest line we have ever shown. Newest colorings, latest designs, patterns that dazzle the eye and make every one that sees them say, "lay this one out for me." We have never seen costumers grab them so fast before. The worst trouble they have is to know which one to take, they are all so nice, not a poor one in the lot. Get the fever, come in and look at them and you will surely buy. Glad to show them.

We wish to thank all for assistance, especially the fire department for their prompt work. Williamson Bros.

Mrs. Susan Pond.

Mrs. Susan Pond, mother of Mrs. Myron Siloway, who resides on the H. D. Cutting farm south of town, died while sitting in her carriage in front of the Witherell block Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. Some small boys were attracted to the carriage by the strange appearance of the woman and it was soon discovered that she was dead, her death being due to heart trouble from which she had suffered a considerable.

The remains were taken to the home of the daughter where the funeral was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Blanch Young officiating.

DON'T DIE AT 45.

Cure the indigestion which is so liable to lead to apoplexy.

Rush of business, eating to fast and too much, excesses of any kind, soon result in indigestion. Then when the digestive organs cannot care for the food properly the coats of the blood vessels in the brain get little nourishment, become brittle and finally yield to the fierce blood pressure. One is then said to have a "shock," to be paralyzed, or to die from apoplexy.

People suffering with headache, giddiness, palpitation, sleeplessness, bad taste in the mouth, drowsiness, coated tongue, diffress after eating, specks before the eyes and any other of the many distressing results of a weakened stomach, should profit by the discovery of Mi-o-na stomach tablets.

In recent years the greatest advance in medicine has been in the study of diseases of digestion and nutrition and no other prescription has proven itself of as much value as Mi-o-na. It is relied upon as a certainty today in relieving the worst troubles of digestion and assimilation and making a complete cure.

The strongest proof that can be offered in substantiation of the claims that Mi-o-na will cure the worst forms of stomach trouble, cancer excepted, and give immediate relief in indigestion is the guarantee that C. A. Wright & Son gives with every 50 cent box of Mi-o-na to refund the money unless Mi-o-na cures. A guarantee like this must inspire confidence in Mi-o-na. C. A. Wright & Son take the whole risk and the remedy will not cost you a penny unless it cures.

USED FUNDS UNLAWFULLY.

Twenty per cent. of State's School spent Primary Money illegally.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 5.—It has been found that of the 7,267 school districts of the state, about 20 per cent. have used primary funds unlawfully, paying out the money for other purposes than teacher's wages. Every district that has violated the law in this manner has been notified that it will be expected to make the teachers' fund good, and a reasonable opportunity will be given for the districts to replace the money.—Free Press.

Dance at Devils lake.

The dances at the Club hotel, Devils lake, are proving to be more popular at each instance and the one last Friday night scored the usual hit. Although the summer resorters have left the lake, dance devotees from surrounding villages and Tecumseh, made up a merry party that danced until the wee hours of Saturday morning.

In the prize waltz there was some spirited contests, but Miss Mabel Wheaton of this place, and Dwight Bennett of Addison, finally took down the prizes a ladies gold brooch and a handsome umbrella. A. D. Stevens of Morenci, Chas. Otts of Devils lake, and Thomas Barnes of Addison, acted as judges of light stepping.

H. E. Hand, proprietor of the local hospice, intends to have these dances throughout the winter, twice a month. The next one occurs Friday night. The Brooklyn orchestra furnished the music.

A humane appeal.

A humane citizen of Richmond, Ind., U. E. Williams of 107 Main St., says:—"I appeal to all persons with weak lungs to use Dr. King's New Discovery, the only remedy that has helped me and fully comes up to its recommendation." It saves more lives than all other throat and lung remedies put together. Used as a cough and cold cure the world over. Cures asthma, bronchitis, croup, quinsy hoarseness and phthisic, stops hemorrhages of the lungs and builds them up. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright & Son. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

Miss Emma A. Aten.

Miss Emma A. Aten died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Chas. Mattis, in Brownville yesterday morning at 7 o'clock, aged 54 years. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at the house. Burial in Tecumseh.

Norris Goodrich.

The remains of Norris Goodrich were brought to Tecumseh last Saturday for burial. They were accompanied by a large number of relatives and friends from Dundee and Rea. The Maccabees, of which order deceased was a member, attended in a body.

CATARRH CAN BE CURED.

Kill the germs by breathing Hyomei. Gives quick relief.

Many people who have suffered with catarrh for years naturally feel that the disease cannot be cured and become discouraged.

Their fail to get relief because they have not used the right remedy. Catarrh is an affection of the head, throat and lungs and cannot be cured by stomach dosing.

The only scientific and natural treatment for this disease is Hy-o-mei which is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler so that its healing medicated air reaches the most remote air cells, kills all catarrh germs and restores the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs to a healthy condition.

Hy-o-mei is the only cure for catarrh that has ever been sold with the understanding that it was to cost absolutely nothing unless it cured. C. A. Wright & Son sell Hy-o-mei in this way and are always ready to refund the money if it does not cure catarrh.

The healing and antiseptic balsams of Hy-o-mei perform their purpose to perfection and using this remedy a few times each day you can soon cure yourself of catarrhal troubles.

A complete Hy-o-mei outfit consisting of a bottle of Hy-o-mei and an inhaler costs but $1.

MRS. SARAH J. WINDROM

Mrs. Sarah J. Windrom of Chicago, cousin of Zachary Taylor, twelfth president of the United States, and grandniece of Alexander Hamilton, who signed the Declaration of Independence, says:

"Vinol is a Godsend to old people. I am 76 years old, but have a hearty appetite, sleep soundly, and feel active and well today, thanks to Vinol. When I was young cod liver oil was dispensed in a greasy, unpalatable form, and it fairly gagged me to get it down. Vinol is entirely different, very palatable and nourishing to impoverished blood. It is the finest tonic and strength creator I ever used in my life."

Vinol is a real cod liver preparation, from which the useless oil has been eliminated and tonic iron added. Try Vinol on our guarantee.

NATURE'S WARNING.

Tecumseh people must recognize and heed it.

Kidney ills come quietly—mysteriously.

But nature always warns you through the urine.

Notice the kidney secretions.

See if the color is unhealthy.

If there are settlings and sediment.

Passages too frequent, scanty, painful

It's time then to use Doan's Kidney Pills.

To ward off Bright's disease or diabetes.

Doan's have done great work in Tecumseh

Mrs Susan B Williams, living corner Maumee and Cummings street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I do not think there is a remedy on the market today that can equal Doan's Kidney Pills in the cure and relief of kidney troubles. I was afflicted in a most severe form. At times it was impossible for me to get up from my chair without assistance on account of the distressing pains which I had in the small of my back and shoulders. I could not get my proper rest and at night owing to the frequent action of the kidneys and the passages were always attended by a smarting and burning sensation From a girl up, I would pass gravel stones. I tried different physicians but received no permanent benefit. Finally I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills, I bought a box and after I had taken the contents I noticed wonderful relief. I continued taking them until I was practically cured. I will not hesitate to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as they are worthy of the highest praise."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other.

When a man follows his statements with, "You understand?" its a fairly safe bet that you don't.

Itch! Itch! Itch—Scratch! Scratch! Scratch! The more you scratch the worse the itch. Try Doan's ointment. It cures piles, eczema, any skin itching. All druggists sell it.

You can borrow trouble without security, but you have to pay a pretty heavy rate of interest.

To feel strong, have good appetite and digestion, sleep soundly and enjoy life, use Burdock Blood Bitters, the great system tonic and builder.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Kermit Roosevelt arrived in Chicago Monday in company with Marvin Hughitt, Jr., from a hunting trip in South Dakota. Young Roosevelt will go to Oyster Bay after passing a few days in Chicago.

The plant of Nichols and Stone, chair manufacturers, the largest industry in Gardner, Mass., was destroyed by fire Monday night, entailing a loss of more than $100,000 and throwing 150 hands out of employment. Insurance $35,000.

Travelers who have arrived in Braila, Roumania, from Odessa declare that the anti-Jewish excesses there continue, and it is estimated that the deaths in the Russian city during the past week exceed 100. The police are preventing Jews from leaving Odessa.

A firm of New York accountants, which has been examining the books of the Syracuse, N. Y., city treasurer's office, filed a preliminary report Monday with the mayor, showing defalcations amounting to $39,945 in the period from 1888 to 1894. The books from 1888 to the present time are now being examined.

Two more deaths of bubonic plague occurred in San Francisco, Cal., Monday, and three additional cases were verified. Of twenty-one cases in San Francisco, ten have died. These are exclusive of the fatal cases in Berkeley. Attention is called to the fact that thus far the death percentage is low, less than one half. The standard death rate for the plague is about 80 per cent.

According to Captain Isachen, in command of the Norwegian Arctic expedition which arrived in Tromsoe, Norway, Monday from the north, Walter Wellman and his party, will probably abandon their attempt to reach the pole in an airship, for the present year. No start had been attempted up to Aug. 26, and the weather subsequent to that date precluded an ascent of the airship.

President A. B. Stickney, of the Chicago Great Western railroad, in an affidavit filed in the federal court in St. Paul Monday, says that if the commodity and the two-cent passenger rates, now in controversy in Minnesota, become effective, the road will be financially ruined. It is estimated that the road will suffer a reduction of 22 per cent on fine grains, 28 per cent on corn, over 42 per cent on hard coal and nearly 26 per cent on soft coal.

Peacemaker is Killed.

Washington, Sept. 10.—One of two men found early Sunday lying on the sidewalk within a block of each other, suffering from stab wounds, died Sunday. His name is Arthur Winter, 26 years old, a tile seller. The other man, Bretanno Salvia, a young Italian, is expected to recover. The man who did the stabbing is still at large. At the time of the occurence Salvia and one of his countrymen were engaged in a quarrel, and Winter was acting as peacemaker. This so enraged the Italian that he plunged a knife into Winter's body near the heart and then turned on Salvia. A number of Italians were taken into custody on suspicion, and through one of them the name of the man who had the knife was ascertained.

George F. Ball, 93 years old, pioneer, of Midland is dead. He was one of the two men who brought to Michigan the first stage coach that ever traveled its wilds. As a matter of fact, he was a boy at that time, a cousin being the adult member of the "company" which came on the boat from Buffalo with the vehicle. Mr. Ball carried the mail north from Saginaw to settlements along the Lake Huron shore and to the Straits of Mackinaw where the roads were mere trails through the forest.

The Ruling Passion.

Sorry He Spoke.

He—I'd like to know what enjoyment you can find in going from store to store looking at things you haven't the least idea of buying. She—I know I can't buy them, but there is a sort of melancholy pleasure in thinking that I could have bought them if I had married George Scads when I had the chance, instead of taking you.

Coldly Described.

"So you don't envy any of the world's men of genius?"

"No," answered Mr. Cumrox. "I admire them, but I don't envy 'em. A genius is a man who gets a monument after he's dead instead of three square meals a day while he's living."—Washington Star.

She Was Stout.

"Do you remember how you used to put your arm round my waist when we were engaged, ten years ago? You never do it now."

"No; my arm has not grown any longer."

The average Englishman does not want his wife or sister to be anything but dull. A beautiful and amiable idiot is his ideal of feminine perfection.—Ladies' Field.

Your Heart

May Be Weak. One Person in Four Has a Weak Heart.

One of the surest signs of a weak heart is shortness of breath after exercise.

Your heart is not able to pump the blood fast enough to your lungs.

Some of the other symptoms of Heart Trouble are: Pains in the Side, Back and Shoulder; Fainting or Weak Spells; Dry Cough; Swelling of Feet and Ankles; Cold Feet or Hands.

No one can afford to allow a weak heart to go without medicine, because weak heart means poor circulation, and poor circulation means weak lungs, stomach, liver, kidneys, etc.

If, therefore, you suspect heart trouble, begin taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. The Heart Cure will do you good, as it is a splendid tonic for the blood and nerves, and will revitalize your entire system.

Finally, remember, Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is sold under a guarantee that the first bottle will do you good.

If it doesn't—your money back.

"I was afflicted with heart trouble for three years. I would be apparently all right, and without a moment's warning would fall as though shot. The attacks were frequent, and a terrible dread possessed me, as I never knew when or where, nor under what conditions I would be attacked, and whether I would survive them. I consulted and was treated by some of the most eminent physicians of the state. Not finding relief from this source, I began taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and began to improve at once. I used ten bottles, which entirely cured me, as I have not had an attack for five years."—MRS. JOHN DRESBACK, Leipsic, O.

OFFICERS FILL JAIL.

Pontiac Officers Arrest Deadheads Seeking to Get to Grand Rapids.

Pontiac, Mich., Sept. 10.—Thirty-seven arrests in about 37 minutes, and a jail so full of prisoners that the walls fairly creaked—this breaks the local record, and came about through the ambition of 31 men and six boys to get from the state fair at Detroit to the West Michigan fair at Grand Rapids for nothing.

"There ain't police enough in Pontiac to stop us."

This was what was said to Grand Trunk Detective John Krimmel when he went about the state fair grounds Saturday warning the men that hover about the horses, that they must get their names on the transportation sheets or they would be arrested when the train reached the asylum city.

When the train did reach Pontiac these officers were at the depot: Deputy Sheriffs Wiley, Calbert and Van Buskirk; Chief of Police Frank Graves, Night Policemen Johnson and Knight and Detective Krimmel, who had come on ahead.

The train stopped at the depot and the officers boarded it at the engine. Then they went back through the cars, taking men or boys from each one. The prisoners were packed into the baggageroom as fast as gathered into the net. They were quite meek, all but one man, who had been mopped around the station platform a while before he would settle down quietly in the baggageroom.

The measured tramp of the 37 prisoners awoke the echoes on the way to the jail, but there was no other disturbance. In court Monday morning 16 of the prisoners were fined and the rest got off scot free. The six boys, ages ranging from 12 to 15 years, were not locked up.

Quaker Preacher Deserts Family.

Jackson, Mich., Sept. 10.—John Kincaid, 40 years old, a Quaker preacher out of a job, came to Jackson from Columbus, O., about two weeks ago, and while waiting for a call to a pulpit secured a job as watchman in a local factory. He brought on his wife and children, a boy aged 10 and a girl aged seven, and bought a stock of household goods on time. Saturday night he disappeared, leaving the debts unpaid and no money in the house.

Election Cases Up to Supreme Court.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 10.—A session of the supreme court will be held Wednesday to hear several election matters. James W. Helme's contention that the use of voting machines for the election of delegates to the constitutional convention is invalid will be argued. The trouble in the twenty-ninth senatorial district, where Andrew L. Duell, postmaster at Harbor Springs, was placed on the ticket by his own vote, will also be argued.

An Ideal Laxative.

Physics and Cathartics which purge, unload the bowels, and give temporary relief, but irritate, and weaken the digestive and expelling organs. Laxative Iron-ox Tablets act as different in effect as truth is from falsehood. They nourish the bowel muscles and nerves, giving them strength and vigor to do the work nature intended, thus effecting a permanent cure by perfectly safe and natural means. The best laxative for children. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never gripe or nauseate. 10c, 25c and $1.00 at all drug stores.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

A jury in the police court in Detroit Monday morning found Henry J. Becker, a Western Union strike-breaker, arrested last week with a pair of metallic knuckles on his hand, guilty of carrying concealed weapons, and Justice Jeffries fined him $36, with an alternative of 30 days in jail.

Up in a tall tree, climbing for fun, Anthony Meyers, 12 years old, son of a truck gardner of Bay City, grasped a live wire, then with a scream fell crashing through the branches to the ground. His parents ran from the house, finding him dead, with a broken neck.

Interest in the finding of Sister Mary John is growing less every day at Isadore, and although there is a new theory advanced hourly, there will probably never be another concerted effort to search the swamp for her. The two sisters, who grew alarmed at the uncanniness of the thing and fled to Manistee, have returned, and the quaint, rustic, isolated hamlet of Isadore has settled back into its accustomed lethargy of humdrum existence.

Alleged wholesale pilfering of fares by some of the Detroit United Railway conductors during the state fair is charged by officials of the company. One man, Walter Russell of Toledo, has been locked up in the central police station in Detroit since last Saturday; six regular conductors have been suspended pending an investigation, and the police are looking for a half-dozen "transient" conductors, who worked on the cars during the rush.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

ENFORCE BLUE LAWS.

Mayor of South Fork, Pa., Will Do So Sunday.

EFFECT EVEN RAILROADS.

Ticket Agents Will Not Be Permitted to Even Sell Transportation—Electric Light Plant Must Close Down—Livery Stables Shall Also Close.

Jamestown, Pa., Sept. 13.—The town of South Fork, near here, will witness on Sunday, the most rabid enforcement of blue laws that has been recorded in some time. Residents opposed to a liberal observance of the Sabbath entered complaint with the burgess, and he went even further than the most rabid of Puritans had dreamed. These are some of the things that will result:

The ticket agent at South Fork will be compelled to refuse to sell tickets to prospective passengers.

The electric light plant will be closed and there will be no light even to conduct evening worship.

Livery stables will be closed all day.

It will be next to impossible to spend a cent in the place Sunday, unless the coin be dropped in the contribution box in the churches.

The water company alone has escaped the serving of a notice. The mayor takes the position that if the old blue laws are to be enforced at all they apply against all alike. That's why the Pennsylvania Railroad company comes under the ban with the rest.

BIG OVERPRODUCTION.

Amalgamated Mines Will Shut Down —Copper Stocks Drop.

New York, Sept. 13.—A crisis in the copper situation, due to a deadlock between the producer and the consumer, has resulted in a tremendous overproduction of the metal, and the Amalgamated Copper Co., the largest producer of copper in this country, will soon shut down its mines in and about Butte, Mont. News of the intended suspension of operations there was made known Thursday by an interest closely identified with the company. Amalgamated stock fell over four points on the stock exchange when the news became known and the shares of the company sold down to $60.25, which is 61 points under the high record price of the year. It is said that the suspension at the Butte mines will throw 5,000 men out of work. The Amalgamated Co. has had difficulty in obtaining adequate supplies of fuel at Butte and this is said to be a contributing cause for the shut-down.

The Amalgamated Copper Co., along with other copper companies, has been piling up a large surplus of copper for several months, and it is authoritatively stated that there is a surplus of 250,000,000 pounds of refined copper in the United States. The present situation has developed from the seeming inability of the producer and consumer to reach a price for the metal that would prove satisfactory. The selling price of copper has been steadily reduced in the copper markets of the world, but the consumer has steadfastly declined to purchase except when needs were pressing.

How long it will take to dispose of this vast surplusage of copper in problematical and cannot be determined until a price for the metal has been reached which will cause heavy buying.

Deny Compromise Report.

New York, Sept. 13.—Reports that a compromise would soon be reached between the telegraph companies and their striking operators were denied Thursday by officials of the companies, who declare that no negotiations looking to a strike settlement are pending and that there will be no compromise. General Superintendent Brooks of the Western Union, said concerning the report: "This company is standing now just where it has stood from the beginning of the strike. There will be no compromise on our part. We have received no committee and will receive none. Our business is conducted with the same dispatch as before the strike."

Embezzler Letten Caught.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 13.—Charles E. Letten, chief clerk in the office of the First district tax collector here, who disappeared two days ago, leaving a shortage of over $200,000, was discovered Thursday afternoon standing on the bank of the Mississippi attempting to summon up enough courage to jump in the water and commit suicide. He said he had started toward the water several times, but each time his courage had failed him. He made a full confession.

ALL IS CONFUSION.

Pandemonium Reigns on Emperor Nicholas' Yacht.

STILL FAST ON THE ROCKS.

Vessel's Salvage Certain, But Much Damage Has Been Done—Accident Happened While Imperial Family Were at Dinner.

Hangoe, Finland, Sept. 13.—A representative of the Associated Press visited the Standart Thursday afternoon. Confusion reigned on board the imperial yacht. Efforts were being made to save the yacht and to care for the imperial property, but little consistent method was to be observed and everything was as fives and sevens. Gorgeously bedecked generals and flurried footmen were hurrying here and there, talking and gesticulating excitedly.

While the correspondent was on board the emperor came over to the Standart from the Alexandra, returning later to that vessel. The emperor and the members of the imperial family are housed on board the Alexandra and will remain there until the arrival of the Polar Star from St. Petersburg. They will then return to the capital.

At the time the yacht ran on the rocks, Emperor Nicholas and his family were at dinner in the dining saloon. The Standart was making 15 knots an hour and when she struck the reef all the tableware crashed to the floor and the lights went out. The children began crying, but neither the emperor nor the empress showed any excitement. They remained calm and quieted the children. His majesty did not leave th[illegible] he was driven away by the inrushing water.

The Standart is still on the reef. Her bottom is badly torn forward and amidships there is a rent 42 feet long. The luxurious saloons, the imperial suite and the engine room are flooded. Five salvage steamers, under the command of Capt. Horst, who was awarded the Cross of Efficiency before Port Arthur, are standing by. Six pumping engines are constantly at work. The salvage of the Standart is now certain; but, nevertheless, everything movable on board is being transferred to the Alexandra.

Train Is Held Up.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 13.—Great Northern Oriental limited trans-continental train was held up by two masked men near Rexford, Mont., early on Thursday morning. They dynamited an empty safe and robbed the mail car of registered mail. The robbers crawled over the tender and at the point of their guns commanded the engineer to stop the train. They then ordered the engineer to go back with them to the express car and instructed him to tell the express messenger, mail clerk and baggageman to go back into the coaches. While this was being done the robbers kept up a continual fusillade with their guns to terrify the passengers and keep them within the coaches. On finding the safe empty the highwaymen helped themselves to the registered mail and after firing a parting volley disappeared. The Great Northern offers $10,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the robbers.

Mrs. Morris Likely Insane.

St. Louis, Sept. 13.—Claiming to be the victim of a plot, in which she implicates high government officials and relatives, Mrs. Minor Morris, whose ejection from the White House nearly two years ago attracted national attention, was taken to the city hospital yesterday by relatives. She is confined in the observation ward pending an examination into her sanity. Mrs. Morris, protesting that she is not and was never insane, was taken to the hospital immediately after her arrival here from Minneapolis.

Brooklyn Brewer Kills Himself.

New York, Sept. 13.—With a stab wound in the breast and a blood-covered carving knife lying near-by, the body of John F. Trommer, head of the firm of John F. Trommer & Co., brewers, of Brooklyn, was found in a room at his home in Brooklyn late last night. Gas was pouring from an open jet and the windows and doors were closed. The man had been dead several hours. His family could assign no cause for the apparent suicide.

PREFER FORT WAYNE.

Seventh Infantry Has No Desire to Go to Philippines.

MEN ARE ORDERED THERE.

Gen Oliver Found Opposition to the Return to United States of Colored Troops Now in Islands—Orders Them to His Own State.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 13.—By general orders issued by Gen. Oliver, acting secretary of war, Thursday, the Second infantry now in Manila will sail for America, March 15, to relieve the Seventh infantry now stationed at Fort Wayne and allow them to sail for Manila, April 5.

The boys at the barracks don't like the move particularly.

"I don't think many of the regiment will go," said one of the boys last night. "I for one am mighty sick of this army life and I won't take a trip like that unless I have to. The regulations are that the men who go must have at least two years and three months to serve and there are very few in our regiment who will have to go under those conditions. Most of the boys are away under that.

"There is a provision that those who haven't enough time to serve may be discharged on the condition that they re-enlist for three years. This would let any in one the trip who wish to go, but I guess the boys aren't looking for it very badly."

Only 50 Will Go.

Probably not more than 50 out of the 200 odd men at the fort will go to the east. The rest, it is stated, will be joined by part of the Second infantry to form the usual quota. The Second regiment will garrison Fort Wayne, Fort Brady, Mich., and Fort Thomas, Ky.

The Second, although a very full regiment just now, is expected to be greatly decreased in number by the fact that many of the men will have scarcely any time to serve after leaving the transport. They went to the Philippines with the required time of two years and three months to serve. Few had any more time than that and having served their two years, a month or two will be the maximum before their service expires.

General Oliver's order, as telegraphed from Washington, provides for the relief of a number of regiments that have been serving in the Philippines for more than the full allotted term of two years, and a point of interest is found in the fact that included in the returning organization is a Negro regiment, the Twenty-fourth infantry.

Protest Negroes' Return.

With the dispatch to the Philippines of the Twenty-fifth infantry some months ago the United States was left without any Negro troops except a few short term cavalrymen employed in the stables at the West Point military academy.

When the proposition was made about two months ago to return the Negro troops several strong protests were made to the department by congressmen and other prominent persons representing communities where it was reported these troops were to be posted. Gen. Oliver has settled the matter by ordering these soldiers into his own state.

"Sleeper" Hall Adjudged Insane.

Mason, Mich., Sept. 13.—Chester B. Hall, an Ingham township farmer, has been adjudged insane by Judge of Probate Gardner and committed to the Kalamazoo asylum. Several years ago Hall created considerable stir in medical circles by remaining in a cataleptic state for many months. During the time that he was in that condition it is said that he was able to awaken himself but a few times. It was necessary to arouse him at intervals to take nourishment, after which he returned to an unconscious state and remained in it until aroused again.

Bad Condition of Affairs.

Washington, Sept. 13.—Six hundred officers of the army are now serving a detached service, according to statements made at the war department. Their loss is seriously felt in their regular commands, with the result that a number of the army organizations are inadequately officered. An earnest effort is to be made by the military authorities to have congress remedy this condition of affairs by providing more officers.

Influential Jap Killed.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 13.—Matajiro Tsukuno, president of the Oriental-American bank, president of the Oriental Trading Co. and one of the influential Japanese residents of Seattle, was instantly killed by a Great Northern switch engine at Smith Cove.

QUIT SMALL GOSSIP

Bishop McDowell Gives Heart to Heart Talk With His Ministers.

Albion, Mich., Sept. 13.—The event of Thursday at the Michigan M. E. conference was the speech of Bishop McDowell, who arraigned members of the conference for "nasty jealousy," and "gossiping," and aslo gave them a few pointers on the conduct becoming men of the cloth.

"There are always men who fill up their minds with the small gossip of the conference," he said. "The men who fill their minds with cheap gossip have no room for anything else." Then, gazing into the faces of the 450 members of the conference, he remarked: "Some of you look self-conscious."

He pleaded for better work, saying that some of them were not preaching any better than they did ten years "Sweat your brains," he counselled, "you won't catch cold."

Statistician Cottrell was given the floor and read a list of a hundred ministers who had made errors in their reports, and asked them to see him at once in his office, three quarters of a mile away.

Among the speakers Wednesday evening were Dr. P. J. Mavetty, Dr. A. E. Craig of Columbus, O., and Dr. J. Benson Hamilton of New York city. A delegation was sent to Detroit Thursday morning to bear greeting to the Detroit conference, among the men being Rev. Jno Graham, D. D., Rev. Jas. I. Buell, D. D., and Rev. A. J. Eldred, D. D.

Rev. J. A. Bready preached the annual missionary sermon in the afternoon and at 4 o'clock, and again at 7 o'clock the conference listened to Dr. Wm. A. Quayle of Chicago, who is almost certain to be elected bishop next May.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 13.—Chief feature of Thursday's session at the Detroit Methodist conference at the North Woodward Avenue M. E. church was the address of Bishop Joseph F. Berry to a class of young men about to be ordained to the ministry. Into an hour just preceding the noon adjournment the noted churchman crowded such a wealth of sound advice and wideawake suggestion to his young hearers as to all but constitute a code of daily pastoral and personal practice.

The life of the pastor out of his pulpit rather than in, his duty as a citizen and a man, the changing conditions that affect the religious world as well as political and business existence, the growing discord between capital and labor, the "boy" question and the advisability of the churchman going into politics—these were some of the points touched upon in the bishop's address. His remarks were received with decided enthusiasm by the audience that crowded the auditorium of the church to the door.

Another Grand Trunk Wreck.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 13.—The second wreck on the Grand Trunk within two weeks occurred at Royal Oak Thursday afternoon at 2:45, when a Detroit bound regular freight, running behind a "double header," crashed into the rear end of a way freight unloading at the depot. Nine box cars were crushed to splinters, both engines on the rear train were reduced to a scrap heap. Engineers and firemen barely escaped with their lives by jumping. Cause for the accident seems to rest in the fact that the semaphore, which should have warned the train behind that the other was still on the division, was never raised into place. Some blame the conductor of the advance freight for this negligence. Others say it was not his business to handle the semaphore.

Auto Accident Kills Him.

Pittsburg, Sept. 13.—President John Runnette of the Metropolitan National bank of this city, is dead, and Dr. M. C. Cameron, a prominent physician of this city, is seriously injured, as a result of the latter's automobile coming into collision with a telegraph pole late Thursday. The men were running at a good rate of speed when the steering gear broke and Dr. Cameron lost control of the machine. The brakes were applied but did not check the speed before it crashed into the telegraph pole. Though cut and badly bruised, Dr. Cameron called a carriage and sent Mr. Runnette to his home, where other physicians were called. He an hour later the injured man died of internal injuries.

Longworths Return.

San Francisco, Sept. 13.—Congressman Nicholas Longworth and Mrs. Longworth arrived here Thursday on the steamer Sierra from Honolulu.

Deafness cannot be cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's catarrh cure. Send for circulars free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by all druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

A young widow has a peculiar way of seeing a man without looking at him.

There are a great many people who have slight attacks of indigestion and dyspepsia nearly all the time. Their food may satisfy the appetite but it fails to nourish the body simply because the stomach is not in fit condition to do the work it is supposed to do. It can't digest the food you eat. The stomach should be given help. You ought to take something that will do the work your stomach can't do. Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia, a combination of natural digestants and vegetable acids, digests the food itself and gives strength and health to the stomach. Pleasant to take. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

A man doesn't have to wear good clothes if he can afford not to.

One of the worst features of kidney trouble is that it is an insidious disease and before the victim realizes his danger he may have a fatal malady. Take Foley's Kidney Cure as the first sign of trouble as it corrects irregularities and prevents Bright's disease and diabetes. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Some men stand just inside the door ready to grasp opportunity by the back of the neck when it knocks.

Occasional headache, belching, bad taste in the mouth, lack of appetite and slight nervousness are symptoms of indigestion which, when allowed to go uncured for, will develop into a case of dyspepsia that will take a long time to get rid of. Don't neglect your stomach. At the first indication of trouble take something that will help it along in its work of digesting the food you eat. Kodol for indigestion and dyspepsia will do this. Kodol will make your food do you good and will enable you to enjoy what you eat. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

The new pure food and drug law.

We are now pleased to announce that Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not effected by the national pure food and drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs, and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

A real good man doesn't have to use words to tell it.

The way to get rid of a cold, whether it be a "bad cold" or just a little one, is to get it out of your system through the bowels. Nearly all cough cures, especially those that contain opiates, are constipating. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup contains no opiates and acts gently on the bowels. Pleasant to take. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Many a man has been forced to ask for a handout because he was unable to get his hand in.

Cured hay fever and summer colds.

A. J. Nusbaum, Batesville, Ind., writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed to only aggravate my case. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package and it quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and tar with the same success." Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Martin Hewitt, Investigator.

The Stanway Cameo Mystery.

By ARTHUR MORRISON.

Published by Arrangement With Harper & Brothers.

They returned to the room. On the wall just beneath the trapdoor a very dusty old tall hat hung on a peg. This Hewitt took down and examined very closely, smearing his fingers with the dust from the inside lining. "Is this one of your valuable and crusted old antiques?" he asked, with a smile, of Mr. Claridge.

"That's only an old hat that I used to keep here for use in bad weather," Mr. Claridge said, with some surprise at the question. "I haven't touched it for a year or more."

"Oh, then it couldn't have been left here by your last night's visitor," Hewitt replied, carelessly replacing it on the hook. "You left here at 8 last night, I think."

"Eight exactly or within a minute or two."

"Just so. I think I'll look at the room on the opposite side of the landing if you'll let me."

"Certainly if you'd like to," Claridge replied, "but they haven't been there. It is only a lumber room."

A number of partly broken up packing cases littered about this room, with much other rubbish. Hewitt took the lid of one of the newest looking packing cases and glanced at the address label. Then he turned to a rusty old iron box that stood against a wall. "I should like to see behind this," he said, tugging at it with his hands. "It is heavy and dirty. Is there a small crowbar about the house or some similar lever?"

Mr. Claridge shook his head. "Haven't such a thing in the place," he said.

"Never mind," Hewitt replied. "Another time will do to shift that old box, and perhaps, after all, there's little reason for moving it. I will just walk round to the police station, I think, and speak to the constables who were on duty opposite during the night. I think, Lord Stanway, I have seen all that is necessary here."

As they reached the front shop a fiery faced old gentleman bounced in at the street door, stumbling over an umbrella that stood in a dark corner and kicking it three yards away.

"What the deuce do you mean," he roared at Mr. Claridge, "by sending these police people smelling about my rooms and asking questions of my servants? What do you mean, sir, by treating me as a thief? Can't a gentleman come into this place to look at an article without being suspected of stealing it when it disappears through your wretched carelessness? I'll ask my solicitor, sir, if there isn't a remedy for this sort of thing. And if I catch another of your spy fellows on my staircase or crawling about my roof I'll—I'll shoot him!"

"Really, Mr. Woollett," began Mr. Claridge, somewhat abashed, but the angry old man would hear nothing and bounced into the street again.

"Mr. Woollett is annoyed," Hewitt observed, with a smile. "I'm afraid Plummer has a clumsy assistant somewhere."

Mr. Claridge said nothing, but looked rather glum, for Mr. Woollett was a most excellent customer.

Lord Stanway and Hewitt walked slowly down the street, Hewitt staring at the pavement in profound thought. Once or twice Lord Stanway glanced at his face, but refrained from disturbing him. Presently, however, he observed: "You seem, at least, Mr. Hewitt, to have noticed something that has set you thinking. Does it look like a clew?"

Hewitt came out of his cogitation at once. "A clew?" he said. "The case bristles with clews. But it is decidedly a very remarkable one."

"Remarkable in what particular way?"

"In regard to motive. Now, it would seem, as Plummer was saying to me just now on the roof, that there were only two possible motives for such a robbery. Either the man who took all this trouble and risk to break into Claridge's place must have desired to sell the cameo at a good price or he must have desired to keep it for himself, being a lover of such things. But neither of these has been the actual motive."

"Perhaps he thinks he can extort a good sum from me by way of ransom?"

"No, it isn't that. Nor is it jealousy, nor spite, nor anything of that kind. I know the motive, I think—but I wish we could get hold of Hahn. I will shut myself up alone and turn it over in my mind for half an hour presently."

"Meanwhile, what I want to know is, apart from all your professional subtleties—which I confess I can't understand—can you get back the cameo?"

"That," said Hewitt, stopping at the corner of the street, "I am rather afraid I cannot—nor anybody else. But I am pretty sure I know the thief."

"Then surely that will lead you to the cameo?"

"It may, of course, but then it is just possible that by this evening you may not want to have it back after all."

Lord Stanway stared in amazement.

"Not want to have it back!" he exclaimed. "Why, of course I shall want to have it back."

"I think, Lord Stanway," Hewitt said, "that perhaps I had better not say until I have quite finished my inquiries. I have very little fear of a mistake, however, and I hope I may wait on you in a few hours at Piccadilly with news. I have only to see the policemen."

"Certainly, come whenever you please. But why see the policemen? They have already most positively stated that they saw nothing whatever suspicious in the house or near it."

"I shall not ask them anything at all about the house," Hewitt responded. "I shall just have a little chat with them—about the weather."

In rather more than an hour Hewitt was back in Mr. Claridge's shop. "Mr. Claridge," he said, "I think I must ask you one or two questions in private. May I see you in your own room?"

They went there at once, and Hewitt, pulling a chair before the window, sat down with his back to the light. The dealer shut the door and sat opposite him, with the light full in his face.

"Mr. Claridge," Hewitt proceeded slowly, "when did you first find that Lord Stanway's cameo was a forgery?"

Claridge literally bounced in his chair. His face paled, but he managed to stammer sharply: "What—what—what d'you mean? Forgery? Do you mean to say I sell forgeries? Forgery? It wasn't a forgery!"

"Then," continued Hewitt in the same deliberate tone, watching the other's face the while, "if it wasn't a forgery, why did you destroy it and burst your trapdoor and desk to imitate a burglary?"

The sweat stood thick on the dealer's face, and he gasped, but he struggled hard to keep his faculties together and ejaculated hoarsely: "Destroy it? What—what—I didn't—didn't destroy it!"

"Threw it into the river, then. Don't prevaricate about details."

"No—no—it's a lie. Who says that? Go away! You're insulting me!" Claridge almost screamed.

"Come, come, Mr. Claridge," Hewitt said more placably, for he had gained his point. "Don't distress yourself, and don't attempt to deceive me—you can't, I assure you. I know everything you did before you left here last night—everything."

Claridge's face worked painfully. Once or twice he appeared to be on the point of returning an indignant reply, but hesitated and finally broke down altogether.

"Don't expose me, Mr. Hewitt!" he pleaded. "I beg you won't expose me! I haven't harmed a soul but myself. I've paid Lord Stanway every penny back, and I never knew the thing was a forgery till I began to clean it. I'm an old man, Mr. Hewitt, and my professional reputation has been spotless till now. I beg you won't expose me."

Hewitt's voice softened. "Let us talk the affair over. Tell me about it," he said.

"It was that swindler Hahn who deceived me in the beginning," Claridge said. "I felt as sure as I possibly could feel that I had bought one of the finest, if not actually the finest, cameo known to exist. It was not until after it had come back from Lord Stanway's, and I was cleaning it the evening before last, that in course of my work it became apparent that the thing was nothing but a consummately clever forgery. It was made of three layers of molded glass, nothing more nor less, but the glass was treated in a way I had never before known of, and the surface had been cunningly worked on till it defied any ordinary examination.

"I was amazed and horrified. I put the thing away and went home. All that night I lay awake in a state of distraction, quite unable to decide what to do. To let the cameo go out of my possession was impossible. Sooner or later the forgery would be discovered, and my reputation, the growth of nearly fifty years of honest application and good judgment, would be gone forever. But without considering this there was the fact that I had taken £5,000 of Lord Stanway's money for a mere piece of glass, and that money I must, in mere common honesty as well as for my own sake, return. But how? Even if I confided in Lord Stanway privately, returned his money and destroyed the cameo, what then? The sudden disappearance of an article so famous would excite remark at once. It had been presented to the British museum, and if it never appeared in that collection and no news were to be got of it, people would guess at the truth at once.

"What could I do? Every expedient seemed useless but one—the one I adopted. It was not straightforward, I admit; but, oh, Mr. Hewitt, consider the temptation—and remember that it couldn't do a soul any harm! No matter who might be suspected, I knew there could not possibly be evidence to make them suffer. More I needn't tell you. You know it. I have only now to beg that you will use your best influence with Lord Stanway to save me from public derision and exposure. I will do anything—pay anything—anything but exposure at my age and with my position."

"Well, you see," Hewitt replied thoughtfully, "I've no doubt Lord Stanway will show you every consideration, and certainly I will do what I can to save you in the circumstances; though you must remember that you have done some harm—you have caused suspicions to rest on at least one honest man. But as to reputation, I've a professional reputation of my own. If I help to conceal your professional failure, I shall appear to have failed in my part of the business."

"But the cases are different, Mr. Hewitt. Consider. You are not expected—it would be impossible—to succeed invariably, and there are only two or three who know you have looked into the case. Then, your other conspicuous successes"—

"Well, well, we shall see. One thing I don't know, though—whether you climbed out of a window to break open the trapdoor or whether you got up through the trapdoor itself and pulled the bolt with a string through the jamb, so as to bolt it after you."

"There was no available window; I used the string, as you say. My poor little cunning must seem very transparent to you, I fear. How, to begin with, could you possibly know that the cameo was a forgery? Did you ever see it?"

"Never. And if I had seen it I fear I should never have been able to express an opinion on it; I'm not a connoisseur. As a matter of fact, I didn't know that the thing was a forgery in the first place; what I knew in the first place was that it was you who had broken into the house. It was from that that I arrived at the conclusion, after a certain amount of thought, that the cameo must have been forged. Gain was out of the question. You, beyond all men, could never sell the Stanway cameo again, and, besides, you had paid back Lord Stanway's money. I knew enough of your reputation to know that you would never incur the scandal of a great theft at your place for the sake of getting the cameo for yourself, when you might have kept it in the beginning with no trouble and mystery. Consequently I had to look for another motive, and at first another motive seemed an impossibility. Why should you wish to take all this trouble to lose £5,000? You had nothing to gain; perhaps you had something to save—your professional reputation, for instance. Looking at it so, it was plain that you were suppressing the cameo—burking it—since once taken, as you had taken it, it could never come to light again. That suggested the solution of the mystery at once—you had discovered after the sale that the cameo was not genuine."

"Yes, yes, I see. But you say you began with the knowledge that I broke into the place myself. How did you know that? I cannot imagine a trace"—

"My dear sir, you left traces everywhere. In the first place, it struck me as curious before I came here that you had sent off that check for £5,000 to Lord Stanway an hour or so after the robbery was discovered. It looked so much as though you were sure of the cameo never coming back and were in a hurry to avert suspicion.

"When I came here I saw suspicious indications in many directions, but the conclusive piece of evidence was that old hat hanging below the trapdoor."

"But I never touched it, I assure you, Mr. Hewitt, I never touched the hat—haven't touched it for months"—

"Of course. If you had touched it, I might never have got the clew. But we'll deal with the hat presently. That wasn't what struck me at first. The trapdoor first took my attention. Consider, now: Here was a trapdoor most insecurely hung on external hinges. The burglar had a screwdriver, for he took off the door lock below with it. Why, then, didn't he take this trap off by the hinges instead of making a noise and taking longer time and trouble to burst the bolt from its fastenings? And why, if he were a stranger, was he able to plant his jimmy from the outside just opposite the interior bolt? There was only one mark on the frame, and that precisely in the proper place.

"After that I saw the leather case. It had not been thrown away or some corner would have shown signs of the fall. It had been put down carefully where it was found. These things, however, were of small importance compared with the hat. The hat, as you know, was exceedingly thick with dust, the accumulation of months. But on the top side, presented toward the trapdoor, were a score or so of raindrop marks. That was all. They were new marks, for there was no dust over them. They had merely had time to dry and cake the dust they had fallen on. Now, there had been no rain since a sharp shower just after 7 o'clock last night, as the police told me. At that time you, by your own statement, were in the place. You left at 8, and the rain was all over at ten minutes or a quarter past 7. The trapdoor, you also told me, had not been opened for months. The thing was plain. You or somebody who was here when you were had opened that trapdoor during or just before that shower.
